Mrs Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill. makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse, He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00 6

War Claim Filed.

[Goshen Democrat]

Harry O. Perkins, of Co. F, 157th Ind., who died in Florida, was the son of Harvey W. Perkins, manager of the job department of the South Bend Tribune. Upon hearing of his illness his parents went to Florida and removed him to a private hospital, employing nurses and doing everything possible to save his life. After death his remains were brought home and buried. When this had been done Mr. Perkins presented a bill to the war department calling for $400, necessary expenses incurred. Apparently there is no law warranting reimbursement. The regulations allow $15 for burial expenses and Secretary Alger, because of the peculiar conditions, increased the sum to $35. It is not probable, however, that the remainder of the claim will be audited, as it would establish a precedent eventually causing great outlay. Mr. Perkins says that the department requested of him, under date of Sept. 17th, to forward to the war department the bill of the Fernandina undertaker and receipts for transportation of remains, and the same would be given attentation in conformity with army regulations.

GRAND GIFT DISTRIBUTION.

A Full Set of Six War Memorial Spoons Absolutely Free to Every Family in the United States.

For sixty days we'll give absolutely without cost a full set of War Memorial Spoons to every family sending us a cash order for Household Furniture selected from our catalogue, no matter whether the order be for $1 or $1,000. This means that we're going to add fifty thousand names to our list of permanent customers. We are going to demonstrate that it pays to send direct to the factory for furniture. This distribution will cost us thousands of dollars—and make us thousands of friends. Each spoon is of a different design—four U. S. Battleships, including the Maine, Soldiers in Camp in Cuba, and Morro Castle. These spoons are not the cheap kind advertised extensively at $1 to $1.50 a set. They are warranted best coin silver plate on a base of pure nickel silver (not low grade brass). They will wear for years and become a priceless heirloom for future generations. Send for a copy of our catalogue to-day. You should enclose a stamp or two two help pay postage. QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 357 W. Harrison St, Chicago.

NOTICE OF FINAL SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Burton Brown deceased to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of October 1898 and show cause, if any, why my Final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 17th day of Sept. 1898,
WILLIAM H. BROWN, Administrator.

J. E. & J. H. Rose, Attys.

AT BUTLER

We have been at Butler several times recently including the trips to the street fair. Butler is holding its own pretty well considering the several streaks of hard luck it has had for a few years past. Some new buildings are to be seen and many old ones are being put in order, business firms have changed about as to location, and many things are different from what they were a year ago, even. Among the most prominent changes is that in the Jeff Boyle building on Main-st. It will be remembered that it burned not long ago and was rebuilt by Mr. Boyle, and a second story added in which he has his real estate office. He has for some years devoted himself to this line, and there are indications that he has made a success of it. We also met his father Ex-sheriff John Boyle, who though rendered almost helpless by rheumatism is still able to get about and is as genial as ever. We are glad to know he has weathered the financial storms which at one time seemed to sweep down on him, and is now in his old age, sure of a competency for himself and his worthy wife. There are many other Butler people we met but have not space for all.

The Oregon's Band.

Before the battles at Manila and Santiago many foreign naval experts thought that from the lack of homogeneous nationality among the enlisted men in our navy there would be missing, when the fight came, that spirit of unanimity—"team work" they call it on the foot ball field—which is essential to true courage and victory. That they were mistaken is clear, for the striking feature of the battles has been the courage and fearlessness of the men under fire. This is well shown by the way in which nearly all the men of Sampson's fleet volunteered to go on the Merrimac with Hobson to almost certain death. Constantly recurring victories nas naturally brought about a great deal of enthusiasm among our fighters. Probably one of the most picturesque examples of enthusiasm displayed in this war is shown in the illustration by W. A. Rogers in Harper's Weekly for August 6. It is drawn from a photograph showing the band on the Oregon just after the surrender of the Colon. The men, all of whom took an active part in the manning of the guns, did not stop to wash or dress, but with one accord gathered together on the forward turret, and, amid the cheers of the crew, played the "Star Spangled Banner."

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER
(The Oregon's band immediately after the gun)

Save The Children.

When children are attacked with cough, cold and croup, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will prove a quick and sure cure. Mr. Elmer E. Baker, Blandon, Pa., writes: "We have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for cough, cold and croup, and found it the best cough medicine and cure for these affections. We never run out of it, but alway keep it on hand." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is sold everywhere for 25 cents. Insist on having it.

BAYARD IS DEAD.

Thomas F. Bayard, the most eminent of an eminent family died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, at Dedham, Mass., yesterday at 4:20 p. m., after an illness of six weeks, Says an exchange:

Three generations of Bayards have furnished four United States senators. No other family in American history has held political eminence so long.

The right of a Bayard to a seat in the senate has been made almost hereditary by Delaware sentiment. On one occasion March 4, 1869, father and son, James A. Bayard and Thomas F. Bayard, were elected to the United States senate on the same day. This is the only instance in American history where a sovereign state has decided that one family was entitled to all the senatorships it had to give.

James A. Bayard I., grandfather of Thomas F. Bayard, was United States senator from 1806 to 1813.

Richard A. Bayard, United States senator, 1836-1845.

Jame A. Bayard II., father of Thomas F. Bayard, United States senator, 1851-1863.

Thomas F. Bayard, United States senator, 1869-1885; secretary of state, 1885-1889; minister to England, 1893-1897.

The Bayards originally settled in New York. Three brothers, Balthazar, Nicholas and Petrus, were decendants of Huguenot emigrants, who came to New Amsterdam in 1647. They claimed direct decent from that famous Pierre Du Terrial, Seigneur de Bayard, known to history and romance as "the knight without fear and without reproach."

After his election to the U. S. Senate in 1868 he continued several terms as senator and rose rapidly to a leading place. In the troubles over Tilden's election in 1876 and '77, he was one of the originators of the electoral commission plan and was chosen one of the democratic members. He was a prominent candidate for president on the democratic ticket in 1880, but the politicians demanded promises of certain cabinet appointments in case of his election. He refued to make promises, and the nomination was given to Hancock who was defeated.

On the election of President Cleveland in 1884, Bayard was chosen his secretary of state beginning the following March. He was afterwards made ambassador to Great Britain, and at the close of that term returned to private life.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Cures Coughs

"My wife was suffering from a dreadful cough. We did not expect that she would long survive, but Mr. R. V. Royal, deputy surveyor, happened to be stopping with us over night, and having a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with him, induced my wife to try this remedy. The result was so beneficial that she kept on taking it till she was cured."
R. S. HUMPHRIES, Sansey, Ga.

"My little daughter was taken with a distressing cough, which for three years defied all the remedies I tried. At length, on the urgent recommendation of a friend, I began to give her Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After using one bottle I found to my great surprise that she was improving. Three bottles completely cured her."

Wednesday's Daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Gugerli spent the day at Fort Wayne.

—Irven Rader is quite sick at his home south of town.

—For Fertilizers, see Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind. 31—tf

—Some frost last night again but probably not a hard one.

—Rosa and Lena Schiffli spent Sunday in Detroit. Today they go up to St. Michael's church at Summit to attend a picnic.

—Walter Hartman is making some improvements to the interior of his residence in the north end.

—Wm Walsworth is repainting his residence in the west part of town. Geo. Quince is doing the work.

—Arrangements are being peing perfected to send a large body of troops to Cuba, early in November. The sickly season will then be over and also, by that time, the property will probably be turned over to us.

—Fred Purdy took a bucket full of blue clay from the new well they are boring for Dr. Baxter, and showed it to the men who are calking the pipes of the water mains. He proposes to prove, to them that they do not need to bring blue clay from Michigan.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—There are some men that ought to be made examples of in connection with this American-Hispano war. Take Senator Elkins for instance, who is hand-in-glove with the President. He manages some way to sell to the Government 600,000 tons of coal at $6.40 per ton, while it could be delivered at Three Rivers for $1.45 a ton.—Exchange.

—Dr. Fitch has quietly made a number of little improvements on the Abright property since he got it. The most noticeable is replacing the old woodshed with a new one much smaller and set farther back so as to clean up the ground there. It also permits one to see the lovely bur oak tree, one of the most symmetrical in the county.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—H. M. Phillips so long connected with Davenport's drugstore has purchased one at Ashley and took possession yesterday. He will move his family to that place next week, having sold his residence in the west side of Auburn. The store he bought out is that owned by Dan Gonser and Harry Henry. Mr. Gonser, we believe expects to go into the bank there with his brother, and Harry Henry talks of going to California.

—Ben. Cochran gave us the glad hand this morning. We have not seen him for several years. Now he is a soldier, and looks one every inch, having just came come on a furlough. He is a member of the Third Missouri, and has been in different camps all summer, but fortunately has not been sick. Ben says he likes being a soldier fairly well, but would be better suited if there was more fighting and less camp life.

—The familiar face of Trackmaster Mike Lumm, beamed out of the east bound noon train over the Wabash. He was going up the road to look after the work. He has charge of the line from Montpelier to Peru and the short line from Chili to Logansport. He has laid over forty miles of heavy steel rails this year, and is highly pleased at the rapidly increasing business of the road. He caught sight of the wide mud puddle west of the station house, and promised to have it filled.

Thursday's Daily.

—Mrs. C. C. Schlattar, of Fort Wayne, came up here yesterday and is visiting her relatives, the Zimmerman families, a few days.

—Eli Cochran yesterday brought up town a large and handsome spike of the flowers of the castor oil bean. It stands in Shull's store window and is quite a curiosity.

—A. W. Madden is putting a new kind of iron roof on the elevated addition at the north end of his building and used by Dr. Buchtel as part of his dwelling on that floor.

—Mr. and Mrs. Homiller and the children started yesterday for their home in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Homiller had been here all summer, with her sister, Mrs. Charles McClellan.

—Bonds of all officers or employes, also administrators, guardians etc issued in the original Baltimore Bonding Company at lowest rates by WALTER C. HARTMAN.

—When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—James Holderman of Elkhart, called yesterday in company with his brother-in-law, Frank Bolender of this place. He had been visiting relatives at Huntington and before going home went to Waterloo to visit his sisters at that place.

—Col. Wm. J. Bryan is sick at New York. He had been to Washington to get some of the sick men of his regiment either furloughed or discharged. His wife has been sent for from their home at Lincoln, Neb., and started east at once.

—Kendallville has come to be considered lucky in regard to having good weather at the fair, and early this morning people were remarking that her luck had changed. Still she had a good day after all, and Thursday is always the saving day of a fair.

—It pays to advertise in COURIER For a few days past a small ad of "wood wanted" was in the COURIER a time or two. It was for the M. E. church. Today the wood is there. Mr. Porter and his son have for several days been piling up a lot of A 1 wood there at $1.15 a cord.

—One Minute Cough Cure surprises people by its quick cures and children may take it in large quantities without the least danger. It has won for itself the best reputation of any preparation used today for colds, croup, tickling in the throat or obstinate coughs. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Orrin Miller is still very low this morning. He was taken decidedly worse yesterday and now is lying helpless and almost speechless. In fact what few words he attempts to say cannot be distinguished and it is not thought he understands or realizes anything. He lies most of the time in a sort of stupor. His family have almost given up hopes of his recovery.

—Not many went on the Hillsdale special this morning, as it was just as the rain was going on more or less. The band went of course, but except them there were only eight tickets sold, to that place and seven to Kendallville Within a short time, however, the sun came out nicely and a great many got ready and went on the freight which makes good connection at Waterloo.

—Frank Fisher, the jolly traveling man for Robert Wicks & Co., of Utica, N. Y., was here today, and being an old-time friend always gives the COURIER a call, and we are always glad to grasp his hand. Frank has made a success of life in all his undertakings, and more especially in his later lines. He was for many years marshal of his town and made a brilliant record. He could no doubt be serving the people there yet, but he preferred going on the road as soon as he found a place with a house he liked. He found just such a house in the firm above named, and is now selling their goods. Dealers in clothing recognize them as one of the leading firms and their make of goods among the first-class lines now handled. We have heard of this house for some time, and are glad our young friend got the job he was after. We do not know what Auburn or DeKalb houses deal with them, but we hope to see Frank, a DeKalb man, get a liberal share of the trade.

Friday's Daily.

—B. F. Shively will speak in Auburn Oct. 7.

—Will Clark is able to be up town now every day a little while, but is still pretty weak.

—Orrin Miller remains about the same and there seems to be no hope for his recovery.

—Evan Kutzner is now a considerable better and Dr. Baxter hopes he will get through yet.

—O. H. Widney was in town awhile today on business and got even again with the COURIER as usual. Thanks.

—Mrs. Wm. Walsworth and her grandson Carey Boyer, drove down to near Spencerville today, to visit Mrs. Davis, the ladies being sisters.

—Cyrus Jackman, the next prosecutor was in town again today. He is getting over the district in lively fashion, and is making a splendid impression.

—Mrs. Reba Davis has returned from a visit with her husband's people near Hicksville. She and her mother, Mrs. C. P. Houser, are guests today of the COURIER family.

—One of Cervera's sunken ships, the Infanta Maria Teresa, has been saved by the efforts of Lieut. Hobson. He says he will save the big Christobal Colon, the last one sunk, and that came so near escaping.

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Herald Angola:—Mark Barnes has left in this office a sample bunch of cranberries grown upon his place. He has taken some pains to cultivate a small marsh for several years past, as an experiment, and has this year about twelve bushels of very nice fruit—enough to show that cranberry culture may be made profitable in this county.

—D M. Link has moved his law office to the old COURIER rooms in the Kiblinger block, corner of Main and Seventh. This is one of the very best locations in the city, and is besides convenient to the court house and to all kinds of business. Mr. Link is a rising young attorney and will, we have no doubt, be well pleased with the new location.

—St. Joe News:—Henry Abel has a novelty in the way of a Siberian crab apple tree. Last spring the tree bloomed as usual and bore a good crop of fruit, and last week it came out in full blossom again. It is a pretty sight although a little out of date this time of the year. There are said to be others in bloom in different parts of the country but this is the only one we have heard of in this vicinity.

—The tomb of Columbus at Havana has been opened and his remains will be taken to Spain. They don't propose to let us have his corpse, though he died as a result of Spanish neglect, ingratitude and cruelty. But we could give Spain a hint, that she is not likely getting the right corpse. Christopher and a younger brother, were buried side by side in Santo Domingo, and when Spain lost that island, she had him moved to Havana. But it appears that in digging down, they got into the wrong grave, and it is the younger Columbus that they took to Havana and are now taking to Spain. And the Yankees will still get him if they don't watch out.

Saturday's Daily.

—John F. Miller and wife, of Albion are here the guests of L. J. Miller and Mr. I. M. Johnson.

—Mrs. Sheets returned to her home at Toledo today, after spending a few days with her sons.

—Daniel Herrick, candidate for recorder and F. P. Seiler candidate for auditor were in town this afternoon.

—Mrs. Schlattar returned to her home at Fort Wayne today, after visiting her father Mr. E. Zimmerman for a few days.

—Corporal George Wolfe, of Company K made this office a very pleasant call this afternoon. George says he is well and happy.

—B. F. Cornelius of Troy, was a caller this forenoon. We are glad to learn that he and his family are all well and prospering.

—Mrs. Ida O'Mara of Chicago, was here yesterday with her brother, S. H. Barton of Richland township. She is down here making him a visit.

—J. R. Palmer has been making quite a number of improvements on his residence and lot, including a new woodshed, and a new roof for the dwelling. He will have a comfortable home.

—Sam Fretz is raising the finest fall radishes we ever saw. He was up town this morning with a basketful that were large, bright and crisp. They will grow well any fall, bnt this one has been unusually favorable.

Howard Mountz from Garrett came here this morning for Miss Laura Keeran, and took her up to the home of his people beyond Summit, as a nurse for his sister, who is very sick with typhoid fever, Mess Keeran has a well deserved reputation as a skilled nurse.

—Laporte Republican:—Two gentlemen passed through Laporte, Wednesday, in a two horse rig, having inscribed on the side of their wagon, "Seattle to New York." That is a pretty long stretch of country to pass over, but it must be very pleasant if a person only had the time to spend in such diversion.

—The first face that T. C. Ford saw after reaching Omaha, was a very familiar one, that of Frank Eckhart, who is there viewing the beautiful White City. Mr. Ford called on the Austins, Mrs. Gordon and Pearl Kelly. He was so well pleased with the exposition that he will stop off there a day on his return from Sioux City.

—S. H. Barton was the third enterprising farmer to complete for the corn prize offered by the COURIER. He came in yesterday with a hill of corn that measured 15 feet and 3 inches, the same as Cal. Husselman's, and two of the stalks had each, two large ears. It is of the variety called the Boone County White. He has one ear that show 30 rows, and also an ear with over 1300 grains.

—The Immortal J. N. is flashing back and forth through this section again. We went to Butler Tuesday on the evening train, and he got on that same train going east. He must have gone merely to meet the west bound train at Montpelier, for when we went to take that train home, here he was again, the center of a well entertained coach full of passengers. He did not get off at Auburn but the Columbia City papers say he was there two days later.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Republican exchanges all come to our table now filled with the same plate matter furnished by their central committee. One set is devoted to showing what big salaries the last democratic state officers drew, and then what small salaries their successors, the republican state officers drew. So far, both these items are true. The republican state officers do draw much less than did their democratic predecessors. But here is where the joke comes in The democratic legislature objected to the big salaries its state officers were getting and proceeded to cut off their pay by a law. And when that law went into effect, the republicans had got their men elected, and much against their will they are taking the reduced salaries forced on them by a democratic law. Read over these patent editorials again and notice the wording.

THE RESULT.

The tariff that was to save the sheep crop must be getting old and losing strength. In spite of the fact that the tariff is more than ten times higher on sheep and sheep products than on cattle and cattle products, a recent republican paper says:

In the United States last year the number of milk cows increased about twenty-five per cent, and the number of other cattle over thirty per cent, while the number of sheep and swine slightly declined.

Big Storm North.

Those who were at the picnic yesterday at St. Michael's in Smithfield, say they had a heavy rainstorm. The water stood in some low places several feet deep. Standing shocks of corn were half submerged. But there was a large attendance and all enjoyed the meeting.

Without A Rival.

As a positive cure for sprains, bruises, and pains of all kinds, Salvation Oil has no equal. Mrs. Frank Juif, 518 Gratiot Ave., Detroit, Mich., writes: "I used Salvation Oil in my family and can say it has no rival as a liniment; it certainly cures pains. I sprained my ankle and it cured me and since then I have always used it for any pains and bruises." Salvation Oil is sold for only 25 cents. No other remedy will do the work as promptly.

THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN

Skilled Gunners Can Send Steel Shot Through Heavy Iron Plate Armor

The hole made by a cannon ball passing through heavy plates of iron and steel is a different thing from that made by the same shot going through the sides of a wooden vessel. Our readers will be pleased to see we have secured these copies of photos.

One of the most interesting things in connection with the naval battles of this war, and one of the things that has caused the most comment here and in Europe, is the fact of the superior markmanship of the American sailor, which has been typified in the saying "The Man Behind the Gun."

It is interesting to hear from commanders and officers in command of guns on our different ships the reason for this. The method on our ships when approaching the enemy is to fire a small calibre gun, as with the use of telescopes, the direction can always be obtained at once, the difficulty is to find the elevation. This is obtained by firing short of the object, and then, as the shot strikes the water, gradually raising the gun until the enemy is struck. With the small calibre rapid fire gun, this is a matter of only two or three shots, and the range is obtained in less than a minute.

NOS. 1 AND 2. HOLES MADE IN THE IOWA'S SPANISH SHELLS.

The moment any one firing one of the small guns secures the range, it is telegraphed or telephoned to every gun on the ship, and with the magnificent machinery for the firing the large guns, it is only a few seconds when every weapon of different sizes on board the ship which can be aimed at the object is sending shot and shell of all descriptions straight at the mark, with the consequent result that it is practicall impossible for the gunners on the enemy's ship to stay at their guns.

As a a result, our ships were seldom hit. Nevertheless, when they were once struck, the frightful execution done by these shots shows what might have happened to our fine battle-ships if the good American behind the gun had not known and done his work so well.

The illustrations we reproduce from Harper's Weekly show the damage done by a Spanish shell which struck the Iowa above the water line and, after passing through the side of the vessel, crashed into the forward turret Picture No. 1 was taken from the inside of the Iowa looking out, and No. 2 shows the hole made in the turret.

Hair Hints

It is much easier to keep the hair when you have it than it is to restore it when it's lost. If your hair is "coming out" it needs instant attention. The use of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will promptly stop the hair from falling, and stimulate it to new growth.

"Some years ago my hair began to fall out and I became quite bald. I was advised to try and had used it but a short time when my hair ceased to fall out and a new and vigorous growth made its appearance. My hair is now abundant and glossy."

With the Flowers She Loved.

Many sad faces and sad hearts were among those who called at A. C. Robbins' residence today, to take a final look at a departed friend. Mrs. Culbertson's last resting place was amid the loveliest flowers whose beauty and fragrance were so much prized by her in life. Reclining as at rest in the couch casket, it took but little imagination to think her lying in peaceful sleep. And so she was. A sleep that knows no waking, and to her a sleep of sweet rest after months of suffering. All day the friends kept dropping in, and, with bowed heads, retired. The profusion of flowers overcame with their brightness the shadow of the death angel's wings. Art and love have done much to soften the harshness of the funeral hours and none who made the sad pilgrimage today to bestow a last look and a parting sigh by the upturned face of her they had learned to love and from whom it was bitterness to sever, but felt glad this could be. It did not seem like death, though all knew its reality. It was as the passing sight that leaves a dear friend in sweetest repose and amid the loveliest surroundings. It was an emblem the better rest on which she has now entered, and which will never end.

OBITUARY.

James Madison Duncan was born July 10, 1866, died Oct. 1, 1898, aged 32 years, 3 months, 20 days.

He was born in Smithfield township, DeKalb county, Indiana, where his parents lived until in 1873, when they moved to Waterloo, where Jimmie, as he has always been called, grew to manhood. He began his independent career as a telegraph operator for the Lake Shore R. R., and was stationed at Waterloo for several years. Eight years ago he went to Toledo, O., and secured a position with a popular and enterprising grocer by the name of Parker, to whom he became, probably, as nearly indispensible as a trusted employe ever becomes. Of late he has been employed by the firm of Sisson & Whitmore, in the same business, with whom he was also very highly esteemed.

Oct. 3, 1882, he was married to Miss Dessie Mounts, a very popular and excellent teacher in the Waterloo school. They took up their residence in Toledo, at once, and their home life has ever been a beautiful ideal of sweet connubial enjoyment. He was always a tender, thoughtful and considerate husband, leaving his bereaved wife a sweet lingering memory of her sacred relations with her husband.

He has had several very serious events of accident and disease, which threatened his life each time, and probably shook and shattered his life forces to an extent that made him unable to cope with his last dread disease, typhoid fever, coming as it did when his beloved wife had scarcely escaped and emerged from the danger point of the same affliction, so amid the scenes and surroundings of his manly efforts, watched over and cared for by all that tender love and the best of medical attendance could offer, his young life has come to a deeply regretted close.

The remains accompanied by friends and his enfeebled wife, reached his old home town Monday afternoon. The casket was covered with the most exquisite floral offerings. Cottage services were held at the old home of his parents, to whom he gave the most positive assurance that all was well with his soul, and the worn body was laid to rest in the Waterloo cemetery. Services were coducted by Revs. Butler, Dingel and Klotz.

Second Crops.

We have several times called attention to the wonderful vegetable growths of this fine autumn. We are again reminded of it today, by a lovely bunch of double hollyhocks brought in by Dr. S. B. Johnston. They are way months behind the regular season but are as fresh and delicate as their sisters of midsummer that have long since faded and disappeared. And in this connection, we might speak of some luck of our own. Yesterday we, in company with M. B. Masters were examining our black raspberry bushes and found several good branches of fine ripe berries.

The Hawaiian Islands.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway has issued a booklet with the above title, giving a brief description of these Islands, their topography, climate, natural resources, railways, schools, population etc. It contains a folding map and mentions the various steamship lines plying between the Pacific ports and the islands. Attention is also called to the unparalleled facilities offered by the North-Western Line, the Pioneer Line west and northwest of Chicago, for reaching San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and other western points. The booklet will be sent to any address upon receipt of four cents in stamps by D. W. Aldridge, 127 The Arcade, Cleveland, Ohio, or W. B. Kniskern, 22 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill. 41

Shiveley's Speech

This is not a year for large attendance at speeches, and the audience for Mr. Shively was not large. Still, it was a representative audience and contained many of all parties. The attention given was excellent for Mr. Shively always holds his hearers by the clearness, eloquence and fairness of his speeches. He is an easy speaker to follow, for his arguments are all carefully arranged and made plain, one following the other in natural order. He is never abusive but makes his points by facts and reasoning. It is always a pleasure to hear him. He spoke of the causes that led to the Spanish war, and the active part the democratic members of congress and the party at large had taken in defending the national honor, even at the cost of war. Then he spoke of present efforts to republican politicians to make the war a political issue in order to deceive the people into voting their ticket. He spoke of the evils of low prices brought about by the single standard, and of the failure of the present tariff to bring either high prices, prosperity or revenue. He assailed the trusts that are choking out small firms in all lines of business, and of the failure of the government to prosecute them under the law of congress. He spoke of the state law against trusts, which though made by a republican legislature, Gov. Mount had not yet used to prosecute a single case against trusts in Indiana for the law seemed purposely made so faulty, that the trusts could not be hurt. His arguments were all strong, and made a good impression on all who heard him.

Garrett Accidents.

As if the terrible accident at Garrett last evening were not enough, there were two bad accidents, for Garrett generally has two or three accidents in a row. Last night, James Decker, who we believe is the same young man who was in the jail here at one time for some offense, was knocked down by a car and considerably hurt, four ribs being broken. He was assisting the yard engine in switching cars, and was struck and then pushed along for some distance. The other accident was the injury of one of the men at work in the round house, but we did not learn the details. His name was Marony.

A Narrow Escape

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Reguler size 50c and $1 00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

His Difficulties.

SUMMER CATARRH

Catarrh of the bowels, because it is most prevalent in the summer months, is called summer catarrh.

Its surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Write to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for them. They tell all about catarrh and how Pe-ru-na cures it wherever located.

"I had chronic diarrhœa for fifteen years," writes Mr. T. E. Miller, Grand Prairie, Tex. "I tried many medicines and doctors in vain. At last Pe-ru-na was recommended, and it relieved and cured me at once."

Mr. John Harting, 633 Main St., Cincinnati, O., writes: "My wife and myself took your Pe-ru-na for chronic diarrhœa and it cured us. No doctor or medicine we tried before helped us."

Mr. Edward Wormack, Ledbetter, Tex., writes: "Pe-ru-na for bowel troubles is unequalled by anything in my experience. I owe my life to Pe-ru-na, and shall always recommend it to those suffering as I was."

Mr. John Edgarton, 1020 Third Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "I suffered from dysentery for three years I took Pe-ru-na and am now well."

MURDER AT GARRETT.

Jesse Chaney Kills His Former Wife, And Then Shoots Himself.

There was a terrible tragedy at Garrett last evening, which resulted in the murder of one, and an attempt at suicide by the murderer. Some time ago, Jesse Chaney a laborer, was divorced from his wife, she taking her former husband's name, Harrison, who is now dead. She has lately been occupying the Sargent House, south of the round house and shops, and at one time some years ago, a well known hotel there. But it seems that Chaney brooded over his troubles and was inclined to make trouble for her. Last evening while she was away from the house for the evening, he went there about 7 o'clock and went in and concealed himself in a closet. Here he waited her return. About 11 o'clock she came in, her little boy being with her. He came out from his concealment and a quarrel was started at once. During the trouble he caught the boy, who however got away. The mother took the boy's part and in the struggle she struck Chaney He drew a revolver and shot her, she dying soon after. He then turned the gun on himself, inflicting a serious wound, but it is not believed to be fatal. The unfortunate woman is the mother of Mrs. Charlie Crew of this place. She had been married to Mrs. Crew's father, a Mr. Harrison some years ago, and after his death was married to Chaney. As far as we have ever heard she was a woman well respected, and her death under such tragic circumstances is a sad affair. The man is alive, but will probably die before midnight.

A Timely Friend.

With perfect propriety may we call that excellent remedy, Salvation Oil, a timely friend. This liniment rapidly cures rheumatism, neuralgia and pains, when other remedies fail. Mr. Jno. M. Hall, Ashland, Va., writes: "I suffered with rheumatism in the ankle and the muscles connected therewith. Salvation Oil at once relieved the soreness, reduced the swelling, and cured the pain. No other liniment that I ever used did me so much good."

Soldier's Obituary.

The First DeKalb boy to lay down his life for his country, in the Spanish war will be well remembered by the citizens of Corunna and vicinity.

Robert Bruce Gushwa son of Mrs. Belle C. Gushwa died at Jacksonville, Florida, Sept. 22, 1898, after an illness of two week of typhoid fever. Robert Gushwa was the fourth young man from Evanston to give his life for Cuba's freedom. He was a member of Company I 2nd Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry. He had been a member of the Illinois National Guard for two years. At the time of his death he was Artificer in his company.

Robert B. Gushwa was born in Corunna DeKalb County, Indiana in 1876 lived there until 1887 when his parents moved to Evanston, Illinois. His father who had been a soldier in the civil war died two years ago. Robert received his education in the Evanston public schools, and devoted his time to the study of electricity. He became an excellent electrician. He was buried in Rose Hill cemetery with military honors. He leaves a sorrowing mother, one brother and many friends to mourn his loss. He died a christian for his trust was in the Lord. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. D. J. F. Loba, under the auspices of the Gen. John, A. Logan Post. NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Soldiers Can Be Used.

Nearly a month ago Gov. Mount telegraphed to Adjutant General Corbin asking that in case an attempt should be made to bring off the McCoy-Corbett fight in Indiana the State be allowed to use three companies of soldiers of the 158th Regiment, now on furlough, in the effort to maintain the law of the State. The other day the reply was received by the Governor, in which it was stated that the matter had been referred to the Attorney General, as such a request had never before been made by any state to the Federal Government. The War Department notified the Governor that if the soldiers were needed, permission to use them would cheerfully be given on a request by telegraph to the President direct.

Garcia's Mission.

Santiago special: Garcia and his party have left for the interior on his mission of pacification. He will ride 400 miles on horseback. He carried ten days' rations. Garcia thinks he will be able to induce thousands of Cubans to disarm. Col. Pedro Perez has notified the American officials at Guantanamo that he will march 200 Cubans to Guantanamo Monday next, when they will turn their arms over to the Americans and disband. Each will be given a certificate of length of service in the Cuban army and a certificate of the amount of pay due.

Religious Riot.

Mexico City special: The Political Chief or Marshal of Iraputo has rendered a report on the recent attack on a native Protestant family in that city, asserting that the case was not of any gravity, but the Minister of the Interior has given orders for a full examination into the case. No Americans were assaulted, and the United States Consular Agent residing in Iraputo has rendered a report of the matter to the American Minister, saying that the affair was exagerated.

Has Them Whipped.

A special from Duluth, Minn., says Gen. Bacon has sent word that he has the Pillager band of Indians whipped and does not need further reinforcements. The companies of the Fourteenth Minnesota, now here, do not expect to be called on.

The bodies of Maj. Gen. Wilkinson and six privates of the Third Regiment, killed by the Indians at Leech Lake, have arrived at Brainerd, Minn., together with twelve wounded soldiers. All the wounded will recover.

Turkish Troops Must Leave Crete.

The collective note of Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia, demanding the withdrawal of the Turkish troops in the Island of Crete, has been presented to the Turkish Government. It insists that the Turkish troops must evacuate the Island of Crete within a month, their withdrawal to commence within a fortnight.

Lee Ordered to Move.

Major General Fitzhugh Lee has received an order from the War Department directing him to move his command from Jacksonville, Fla., to Savannah, Ga., and get it in readiness to embark for Havana the last of this month.

Two Hundred and Fifty Chinese Drowned.

The steamer Yamaguchi Maru has arrived with news that 250 Chinese were drowned September 1, by the overturning of a crowded Canton passage boat in East River.

To Protect Legations.

Pekin special: Small detachments of Russian, British and German marines have arrived here to protect the legations. Large crowds were out, but no extraordinary incident happened.

A Square Mile of Fire.

According to a dispatch from Shanghai a fire at Bankow destroyed over a square mile of the city, including the Government Building and Temple. A thousand lives were lost.

Three Deaths.

A freight wreck in the Burlington yard at Indianola, Neb., resulted in the death of Engineer Sol Brace, Fireman E. J. Walters and Brakeman William McCarl.

Senator Hoar Dead.

The Hon. Sherman Hoar, United States Senator, died at his residence in Concord, Mass.

Cervera To Be a Senator.

It is announced at Madrid that Admiral Cervera will be appointed a life Senator.

Yachting Party Drowned.

N. L. Weatherby, Commodore of the Troy Yacht Club, and three companions, Stephen J. Mallory, Mrs. William Breslin and Miss Eliza Savage, were drowned by the capsizing of a yacht in the Hudson River at Troy, N. Y.

New Monitors Named.

Secretary Long has named the four new monitors contracted for last week as follows: That at Bath the Connecticut; at Nixon's, the Florida; at Newport News, the Arkansas, and at San Francisco, the Wyoming.

EASTERN.

Peter Crick, Peter Corwal, John Lorenski and Martin Simotocitch, miners, were burned to death by a gas explosion in the Lehigh shops of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company in Midvale, Pa.

A special from Dover, N. H., says: N. A. & J. Sawyer, woolen manufacturers have assigned. Liabilities are estimated at $1,000,000. Ex-Governor Charles H. Sawyer is President of the corporation.

New York's State superintendent of public instruction, Charles R. Skinner, has issued a statement disapproving of the various movements started to raise money in the public schools for patriotic purposes.

Dr. George S. Gagnon, horseman, wing shot and dentist, formerly of Chicago, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $80,000 and assets which consist of the furniture of dental parlors in Philadelphia.

Judson Crossman died in the Eastern Hospital, Williamsburg, N. Y., from the effects of a dental operation. A post-mortem examination revealed the fact that his jaw had been broken and a main artery ruptured.

Mrs. Phoebe Clark Crilly, 102 years old, was buried in New York. Her mind was clear up to the time of her death. Her fund of reminiscences seemed inexhaustible. She frequently mentioned the war of 1812, in which her husband was a soldier. Mrs. Crilly was born in Union County, New Jersey, Sept. 3, 1796.

WESTERN.

By the overwhelming vote of 192 to 7 the Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference has declared for equal lay representation.

Over 200 people narrowly escaped death by the collision of the steamer Santa Rosa with one of the derelict log rafts now afloat in the Pacific Ocean. The collision occurred off Pigeon Point, Cal.

Grace Barnes, 4 years old, fell from a Rock Island train between Mullinsville and Pratt, Kan., and was picked up some time later uninjured. The babe was found lying in high grass, where it had fallen.

Oliver W. Trupp, said to be the son of an officer of high rank in the British army, was found dead in a bathtub at the West End Hotel in St. Louis. It has not been ascertained what caused the man's death.

Near Guthrie, Ok., a negro attempted to take the daughter of Monday Cat, an old Creek Indian, to a dance and when the old man attempted to interfere shot him through the heart and escaped with the girl.

The Roseburg-Myrtle Point (Oregon) stage was robbed about one mile of the latter place by a highwayman at 4 o'clock the other morning. The robber secured the registered mail sack, containing between $800 and $1,000.

Edward Ruhling, a well-known assayer, committed suicide at San Francisco by inhaling gas. Ruhling some months ago married a Chicago widow and recently began suit for a divorce. He was 66 years of age, while she was 35.

One hundred and fifty coal miners from Pana, Ill., went to Washington, Ind., assembled at the fair grounds with the home union miners and organized. They got together, all masked, and visited the shacks where the colored miners lived, and about fifty of the negroes were corraled and at the point of pistols run out of town.

A. W. Bash, general agent of the American-Chinese Development Company at Seattle, sails soon with W. Barclay Parsons, chief engineer of the company, for China to start work on one of the greatest railroads to be built in China. The company, headed by ex-Senator Calvin S. Brice, has obtained a concession to build a railway from Hankow to Canton and the sea opposite Hong Kong, traversing one of the richest districts of the empire. The company is capitalized at $40,000,000. It will obtain most of its material on our Western coast.

Fourteen business houses in the business district of Lowell, Ind., were destroyed by fire early the other morning. The blaze broke out in Dr. Bacon's barn, in the rear of Main street, and as the town has no fire protection the flames spread rapidly and laid a whole block in ashes. Among the buildings burned were Nichols' opera house, the postoffice, Waters' drug store, the Viaut building, Hayward's studio, Gersham's tailoring establishment, Spindler's store, the Lowell Record printing house, Hacker's saloon, George Death's hardware store, a millinery store and several others. The loss will probably reach $40,000, with little insurance.

The citrus fruit season which has just closed has been remarkable in many respects. Not only has the output been the greatest in the history of southern California, but this has been after a series of frosts, which were supposed to have wiped out about a third of the crop. It is estimated that the product, aggregating 5,000,000 boxes, sold in the Eastern markets at wholesale for $11,018,127, representing a value on board the cars in California of $6,491,792, with freight aggregating $4,526,334. Estimating that 25 per cent of the freight is paid out by the railroads in California, the industrial value to the State is placed at $7,627,379.

SOUTHERN.

At Fort Worth, Texas, Jim Garlington was convicted of train robbery and murder and given the death penalty. Three others will be tried for complicity in the same affair.

For eighteen hours Savannah, Ga., was in the grasp of a West India tornado. The damage in the city was slight, but the rice growers of the vicinity suffered heavily. Their loss will undoubtedly reach $200,000.

The mammoth United States battleship Illinois, one of the three latest additions to the navy and probably the most powerful fighting machine afloat, was launched at Newport News, Va., under auspicious circumstances.

Flames swept over ten acres of ground in Clarksville, Tenn., destroying a tobacco warehouse and contents, storage and coal sheds, Louisville and Nashville depot and six freight cars. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

At Mobile, Ala., Francis P. O'Connor, 17 years of age, a molder's apprentice, stabbed John Kitchen in the heart in defence of his mother's honor. O'Connor surrendered to the police immediately after the stabbing. Public feeling is on his side, and it is not expected that the law will hold him.

At Mobile, Ala., Francis P. O'Connor, 17 years of age, a molder's apprentice, stabbed John Kitchen in the heart in defence of his mother's honor. O'Connor surrendered to the police immediately after the stabbing. Public feeling is on his side, and it is not expected that the law will hold him.

WASHINGTON.

Rev. Jabez Fox, who was well known in the West in the anti-slavery agitation, is dead at Washington.

The comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures for September shows the total receipts to have been $39,778,070 and the expenditures $54,223,921. This statement takes no account of the receipts from the war loan.

A plan has been effected between the pension bureau and the Postoffice and Treasury Departments by which pensioners will hereafter be permitted to have their checks cashed at all money order postoffices free of charge. It is estimated that this will result in a saving to pensioners of $250,000 per annum.

The Postoffice Department has made an important change in the money order laws, whereby the postoffice can be used by patrons as a savings bank in places where there are no banks. The change is made by amending section 1246 of the postal laws and regulations so as to read as follows: "A money order may be drawn upon the office at which it is issued, provided such office be not a 'limited money order office.' The advice of a money order so drawn, until payment is made or until the order has become invalidated by age (more than one year having elapsed since the last day of the month of issue), should be filed among the unpaid advices, the same as if received from another postoffice.

FOREIGN.

The Spanish Government has sanctioned the sale, to South American republics, of the Spanish gunboats lying in Cuban waters.

The Russian and English ministers at Peking have ordered armed guards to proceed to the Chinese capital, where drunken rioters are assaulting foreigners.

A dispatch received at Madrid from the Visayas Islands says the Tegales have landed in the Antiqua province and have been completely defeated by the Spanish column after a sharp fight in which ninety-four of the insurgents were killed.

A collective note of Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia, demanding the withdrawal of the Turkish troops from the island of Crete, has been presented to the Turkish Government. It insists that the Turkish troops must evacuate the island of Crete within a month.

Queen Victoria and her daughter, the ex-Empress Frederick of Germany, had a narrow escape from death while driving at Balmoral, Scotland. The coachman lost control of the horses and a serious accident was only averted by the horses turning into the woods, where the carriage stuck between the trees.

The British steamer Hillcraig, Captain Gibson, from Fernandina, via Norfolk, for Hamburg, has been in collision with the Dutch steamer De Reuyter, bound from Cronstadt for Dordreicht. The collision occurred near Helvoet. The Hillcraig proceeded and the extent of damage to her is as yet unknown, but De Reuyter was badly damaged.

The latest advices from Japan bring news of the death of Rev. Thaddeus S. K. Freeman, chaplain of the United States steamship Baltimore, at Nagasaki. From all accounts Freeman committed suicide while in a condition of mental depression consequent upon his failing health. He jumped overboard from the Zealandia and was drowned before any assistance could be rendered him.

New pearl fields of great richness have been discovered off the coast of New Caledonia on the west side, according to United States Consul Wolf at Noumea. He says that one shell contained the fabulous number of 256 pearls and one little boat of one and a half tons furnished last year twenty-two pounds of pearls. Up to this time the water has not been sounded to a greater depth than six feet seven inches, but the fisheries are to be further exploited by French and Austrian syndicates. Mr. Wolf says that the quality of the pearl shells is remarkably fine and he urges that Americans profit by the discovery.

IN GENERAL.

The insane wife of Joseph Clothier, a farmer of St. Severin, Quebec, killed her four children by cutting their throats.

James R. Keene is reported to have made $1,500,000 during the last few days speculating in Tobacco stock in Wall street.

The Winnipeg branch of Molson's Bank of Canada has been robbed of $62,000 in a mysterious way and there is no direct clew to the manner in which the money was stolen.

A report has reached Victoria, B. C., of the murder of Alphonse Le Clair by Xavier Lauzon near Lake Teslin. The murderer escaped, but was overtaken after a chase of five hours and riddled with bullets by the other members of the party.

Henry Athey, an American locomotive engineer, who was locked up in a Mexican prison without trial or hearing for injuring a Mexican, succeeded in securing a release through Gov. Culberson of Texas after being confined eleven months. He says 200 other Americans are locked up in the City of Mexico prison under similar conditions.

John Stanley, Mayor of Skaguay, Alaska, who is now in San Francisco purchasing apparatus for a fire department, says: "The Pacific and Arctic Railroad, now being built from Skaguay to Selkirk, is well under way. Rails have been laid to White Pass, and up to that point the road is in full working order. Over thirty-five tons of freight is daily shipped over this spur. Seven hundred men are working on the road. Last month the pay roll was $129,000. From White Pass to Lake Bennett, a distance of thirty miles, freight is transferred by sledges. Laborers on the road receive 35 cents an hour."

R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say: "Failures in September have been about $6,700,000, and for the quarter about $22,875,000. The returns indicate a smaller aggregate of failures than in any other month in many years, except in August of this year, and smaller for the quarter than in any other quarter since 1892. In fact, excepting one quarter in that year, no other appears to have shown a smaller aggregate unless, more than ten years ago, when the volume of solvent business was very much smaller than it is now. Evidently the complete returns will show that the state of business is in that respect more satisfactory that it has ever been, unless in one quarter of 1892."

MARKET REPORTS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 62c to 63c; corn, No. 2, 29c to 30c; oats, No. 2, 21c to 22c; rye, No. 2, 44c to 46c; butter, choice creamery, 19c to 20c; eggs, fresh, 18c to 15c; potatoes, choice, 25c to 35c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, common to choice, $3.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 63c to 64c; corn, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c; oats, No. 2 white, 24c to 25c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, $3.50 to $4.00; sheep, $3.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 66c to 67c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 29c to 30c; oats, No. 2, 22c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 46c to 48c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.50; hogs, $3.25 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2, 65c to 67c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 29c to 31c; oats, No. 2 white, 24c to 26c; rye, 46c to 48c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 66c to 67c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 29c to 31c; oats, No. 2 white, 21c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 46c to 47c; clover seed, $3.95 to $4.00.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 61c to 62c; corn, No. 3, 29c to 31c; oats, No. 2 white, 23c to 25c; rye, No. 1, 45c to 46c; barley, No. 2, 44c to 46c; pork, mess, $7.75 to $8.25.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, common to choice, $3.50 to $4.25; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.00; lambs, common to extra, $5.00 to $5.75.

New York—Cattle, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.25; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 73c to 74c; corn, No. 2, 35c to 37c; oats, No. 2, 26c to 27c; butter, creamery, 15c to 21c; eggs, Western, 17c to 18c.

MOUNT VESUVIUS, WHICH HAS AGAIN BECOME ACTIVE.

DEATH IN ITS FLAMES.

Eruption of Vesuvius Threatens Destruction of Naples.

Vesuvius, the greatest volcano in the world, is again in eruption, belching forth great masses of fire and molten lava, which threaten destruction to the city of Naples. Nine new craters have formed within the past week around the central crater. The smoke, in a brownish yellow cloud, overhands the mountain like a great pall. The lava torrent is half a mile in width and divides into three principal streams, each seventy to eighty yards wide. These as they pour down the mountain side subdivide into numerous smaller streams, carrying death to everything living, and advancing at the rate of forty yards an hour.

Lava in a volume of a thousand tons a minute pours out of the volcano. It has filled Vetrana valley, a deep ravine. The ashes lie several inches deep for a long distance down the sides of the mountain and in the adjacent villages. At night the volcano is splendidly awful. The crater belches forth a flame, which rends the pall of smoke, reaches to the heavens, and at times takes on the colors of the rainbow. The lights are reflected in the broad waters of the Bay of Naples, the loveliest in the world.

Tremblings of the earth and subterranean explosions precede the outpourings of lava, and the wells on the mountain sides are beginning to dry up. A great stream of lava threatens to overwhelm the observatory built on that part of the volcano known as Monte Contaroni. This observatory is on a hill 2,200 feet above the sea level. This observatory was established for the purpose of giving warning of all eruptions to those living on the mountain.

Vesuvius is eight miles from Naples, whose bay it overlooks, at the eastern extremity of a chain extending to the island of Ischia. It is believed that the whole gulf of Naples was once an immense crater, the northern end of a great rent in the earth's crust, Aetna being the southern end and Stromboli about the middle. At its base Vesuvius is thirty miles in circumference. Its height varies after its eruptions, but the average is about 4,000 feet. Its great crater is some 2,000 feet in diameter and about 500 feet deep.

WILL CHRISTEN THE WISCONSIN

Honor Is Given Miss Elizabeth Stephenson of Marinette.

Miss Elizabeth Stephenson, who has been selected to christen the battleship Wisconsin at San Francisco Nov. 26, is one of the fairest daughters of the Badger State. She is the child of ex-Congressman Isaac Stephenson of Marinette, and is just 21 years old. The Wisconsin sponsor was born in Marinette and was educated at Milwaukee-Dower College and LaSalle College, near Boston. She was graduated from the latter institution with high honors. Miss Stephenson is a magnificent specimen of young womanhood. She is almost six feet tall, and slender. She has dark eyes and a bright, attractive face. Her father is quite wealthy, and he will take his daughter across the continent with a large party of Wisconsin people in fine style.

MISS ELIZABETH STEPHENSON.

NOT AS A STATE.

Hawaii to Come Into the United States as a Territory.

Hawaii is to come into the United States as a territory, with all the Government machinery of an embryotic state, according to plans reached by the commission which has returned from its visit to the islands. In a dispatch box, which is carefully guarded by a sergeant-at-arms, lies the draft of a bill for the government of the new territory. It was carefully considered by the entire commission, section by section, and while it has not passed to final approval, it contains all the salient features which will be found in the report which the commission makes to Congress at the opening of the session in December. The American members of the commission arrived in San Francisco by the steamer Gaelic, after nearly two months' absence, and started for the East. They will meet again in Washington Nov. 14, when they will be joined by the Hawaiian members, who are expected to come to this country about the first of next month.

KILLED AN AMERICAN.

Spanish Troops Mistook American Soldiers for Outlaws.

Word has reached San Juan, Porto Rico, that a Porto Rican residing at Aguadalla, near Mayaguez, asked the protection of both American and Spanish troops against depredations by outlaws, which it was predicted would occur. In response to his request, the American authorities sent to his residence two soldiers of a Kentucky regiment, who arrived there Sunday evening after dark. The resident had not notified the Spaniards that he had requested American protection and some Spanish soldiers who had been sent to guard his house, arriving after the Americans, mistook the latter for outlaws. In the confusion resulting the Spaniards fired, unfortunately killing one of the Americans.

OUR CHEAP VICTORIES.

It Cost Less than $150,000 to Sink Montejo's and Cervera's Fleets.

Instead of the American squadrons off Cavite and Santiago de Cuba expending a fortune in accomplishing the destruction of Montejo's and Cervera's fleets, less than $150,000 fully covers the cost of the ammunition which they expended.

The bureau of ordnance has received from Rear Admiral Dewey a full statement of the amount of ammunition fired by the vessels under his command in the battle of Manila bay. The bureau has also received the reports of all the vessels which participated in the battle of Santiago de Cuba, with the exception of that of the commanding officer of the battleship Indiana, regarding the number of shells fired in that engagement.

As the Indiana was compelled to stop firing early in the engagement on account of her inability to keep within range of the fleeing Spanish men-of-war, the amount of ammunition she expended was much less than that fired by the battleship Oregon. However, the authorities have been able to compute about the cost of the powder and shell discharged in that battle, and they fix the cost at between $90,000 and $100,000.

Rear Admiral Dewey's victory was less costly. Only $45,000 worth of powder and shells were used during the battle of Manila bay, distributed in this way:

One hundred and fifty-seven 8-inch projectiles, 635 6-inch, 622 5-inch, 1,987 6-pounders, 648 3-pounders and 47 mm. and 1,632 1-pounders and 37 mm.; total, 5,681.

So far as the reports received by the bureau show the ships which participated in the battle with Cervera's fleet fired these numbers of rounds from the guns named:

Brooklyn—100 8-inch, 473 5-inch, 1,200 6-pounders and 200 1-pounders. Oregon—36 13-inch, 145 8-inch, 41 6-inch, 1,564 6-pounders and 141 1-pounders. Iowa—31 12-inch, 35 8-inch, 251 4-inch, 1,056 6-pounders and 100 1-pounders. Texas—8 12-inch, 97 6-inch, 400 6-pounders and 331 1-pounders. Gloucester—589 6-pounders and 783 3-pounders. New York—2 4-inch.

The reports show that most of the shell fired were common shell, the Brooklyn using the largest number of armor-piercing shell. It was due to this fact that the cost of the ammunition was so comparatively small.

FRENCHMEN NOT FAVORABLE.

The General Atmosphere of Paris Does Not Incline Toward America.

While the reception accorded to the United States peace commission at Paris is all that could be desired, and while the French foreign office has taken great pains to treat the American and Spanish commissioners in precisely the same manner, it must be admitted that the general atmosphere of Paris, especially the diplomatic atmosphere, does not incline towards America. It is the general impression that the American commissioners have instructions to provide for the retention of Manila and the Island of Luzon, "and for a commission to pretend to negotiate is a farce," said a prominent diplomat. He continued; "America will put herself, diplomatically, in the wrong when she exceeds the provisions of the protocol, which both nations signed. I know the Spaniards have come prepared to make concessions; but, if the Americans' instructions are of an uncompromising nature, which is generally believed to be the case, you can rest assured that the work of the commission will be futile. The Spaniards will retire and America will at least have to threaten a resumption of hostilities before she will gain her point." The French newspapers, beyond announcing the arrival of the commissions, make no comment upon the matter.

CUBANS THREATEN HOSTILITY.

Would Fight Americans Unless Their Independence Is Granted.

Reports from Guines, province of Havana, say that no farmer or landholder or tenant has turned his hand to the sowing of crops in that vicinity, and the district, therefore, will have no potatoes, tobacco, cane, cabbage, or other vegetables this year. This will further impoverish the district, and add to the distress. From now until February it will be impossible for farmers to sow crops and in February the ground will be prepared for spring harvest. Therefore the next six months will see a great deal of want and misfortune in that vicinity. This state of affairs is directly due to the unsettled condition of the country and the attitude of a cerain portion of the Cubans who openly threaten hostility to the United States and are preparing to take the field and wage a guerrilla warfare against the Americans if any form of government short of absolute independence for the Cubans is established in the island. This matter is openly discussed in the public meeting places of the Cubans at Havana, the plan finding many advocates among certain classes of people.

HARD LUCK OF KLONDIKERS.

Out of a Party of Twenty-Six Only One Succeeded in Reaching Dawson.

Out of a party of twenty-six men that left San Francisco early in the year to go to Dawson via the Stikeen trail, Herman Long of Seattle, Wash., is the only one that pushed through. Two of the number were drowned, two are insane and the others are far into the interior, regaining their health at trading points. In the swift Chesley river, in the north rivers, seven of their boats were dashed to pieces on the rocks and the outfits were lost. In two of the wrecks Dr. Black and a man named Morgan, both from California, were drowned. Long says that many of the men went temporarily insane after their provisions began to give out, as several attempts at suicide were made.

Holding Wheat for Higher Prices.

Flouring mills all over Kansas are shutting down because they cannot get wheat to grind. It is estimated by grain men that nearly 100 flouring mills in the State have been forced to close for this reason. It is declared that the farmers of Kansas have combined to hold their wheat for better prices. More than 70,000,000 bushels of wheat is being held.

BEAR ISLAND BATTLE.

Minnesota Indians Begin Attack by Firing Volleys from Ambush.

Leech Lake District Is the Scene of the Worst Conflict with Redskins in Recent Years—Soldiers Returned from Cuba Among Those Reported Massacred—General Slaughter of White Residents Feared—Secretary of War Orders Re-enforcements and Artillery to the Scene.

Word received in Duluth, Minn., Tuesday night from Brainerd was to the effect that the entire force of soldiers sent to Bear Lake Island under command of Gen. Bacon had been wiped out of existence. There were 100 men in the force of regulars, most of them veterans of the battle of Santiago. A Minneapolis report denied that the troops had been wiped out, but said the Indians got the best of it. Another report said that there were fifty dead Indians within a mile of the landing.

A special from Walker, Minn., says: Major Wilkinson, six privates and one Indian policeman are dead. Major Wilkinson was shot and killed while walking up and down admonishing the men to keep their heads low. Thirty Indians are dead.

It is feared that the Indians will attack the settlers on and around the reservation. If a general uprising takes place 3,000 fighting braves will be in the field. The message to Brainerd came with a request to wire Washington for 5,000 troops.

A St. Paul, Minn., dispatch reported disbelief there that a general massacre of troops had taken place at Bear Island, although the situation was acknowledged to be one of extreme gravity.

Secretary Bliss received a telegram in Washington from Inspector Tinker announcing a fight with the Bear Lake Indians. It did not say how many were killed. Marshal O'Connor wired Attorney General Griggs that a general Indian uprising was imminent. On receipt of these advices Secretary Alger ordered re-enforcements sent to the scene at once on a special train, and with a Gatling gun if needed.

Fight Lasted Three Hours.

The battle which took place at Bear Island was between a detachment of the Third United States infantry and 250 Pillager Indians. The combat lasted three hours. The first shot came from Bog-Ah-Me-Ge-Shirk's house, while the troopers were drinking coffee at noon. The ball broke the arm of Ed Harris, ex-marshal of Walker, a half-breed. The firing became general, the Indians shooting from ambush.

Three of Gen. Bacon's men dropped dead. At the first shot the line of blue coats vanished as the men sought protection by dropping on the ground. "Steady, men," shouted Gen. Bacon, who stood straight up by the side of Major Wilkinson, looking straight into the fire from the red men. At the second volley from the bushes the cracking of the Krag-Jorgensen rifles rattled out and six braves fell in their tracks. The Indians had fired twenty-five shots before the troops returned the fire. The reds could not withstand the deadly fire of the troopers and were routed.

CAUSE OF THE OUTBREAK.

Marshal Attempts to Arrest Chief of the Pillager Tribe.

The present trouble with the Bear Lake or Pillager Indians started eight months ago when Deputy United States Marshal Warren of White Earth tried to arrest Chief Bush and nine other Indians of Bear Island, but they resisted authority. Some were charged with the illicit sale of whisky and others were wanted as witnesses. All but the chief gave themselves up and were sentenced to 30 and 60 days. Chief Bush Ear kept out of reach, however, until two weeks ago, when he came to be paid his annuity. When he was being taken from the Indian reservation jail to a boat for transmission to Duluth a large band attacked the deputy and his posse and Chief Bush Ear escaped.

Sept. 30 twenty men from the Third Infantry under Lieut. Humphrey Walker, Minn., went to assist the marshal in rearresting Chief Bush Ear and to take those who assisted the old chief to escape. The Indians kept away from the reservation and made ugly threats as to what they would do if any of their members were taken prisoners. It appeared evident that a trip by the twenty troopers to Bear Island would result in their meeting with overwhelming defeat. Re-enforcements were ordered from Washington to assist in making the desired arrests. The full seriousness of the situation was then made known.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Fatal Head-End Collision at Dillsboro—Double Tragedy in Indianapolis—Traveling Salesman Robbed—New Glass Factory at Summitville.

There was a head-on collision on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railway between the second section of west-bound freight train No. 97 and the second section of east-bound freight train No. 98, in which Harvey Bryan and John Lee of Sparksville were probably fatally hurt. Several tramps, whose names are unknown, were also dangerously injured. The wreck was caused by a mistake of the operator in giving the wrong orders. Twenty cars are badly wrecked. The wreck occurred near Dillsboro, and the injured men were taken to Aurora.

Kills Wife and Self.

At Indianapolis, Robert Lesh killed himself and wife. They had not been living together for several months. He sent his wife a note requesting that she see him, that he wanted to live with her again. The note was not answered and he repaired to where she was living. He was refused admittance, but finally forced his way into the house. He and his wife talked together a few moments in the hall. No one knows what was said, but he pulled his pistol, shot her through the eye and she fell dead. He rushed out of the house, looked back once at the dead body and then blew his brains out.

Ohio Salesman Beaten and Robbed.

Martin St. Morris, a commercial salesman for the Tappan Shoe Manufacturing Company and whose home is thought to be Auburndale, Ohio, was sandbagged in Granger. Morris was going from one depot to another when he was assaulted. One hundred and seventy dollars was secured. The victim lay unconscious for three hours. Two men were seen at daylight by farmers driving toward Mishawaka at a terrific rate, but at the Edwardsburg road the trail was lost.

New Glass Factory for Summitville.

The Fairview Land Company located a 12-pot window glass factory at Summitville and arrangements are under way for the erection of the plant. The parties who will build the factory are led by L. S. Woodbridge, formerly Dunkirk and Redkey.

Albert Griffith, a contractor and builder, who recently came to Michigan City from Three Rivers, Mich., committed suicide by hanging.

It is estimated that Nelson Horine of Howard County, on a little over six acres of ground, had 40,000 watermelons ripening at one time.

William Bishop, a prominent resident and business man of Russiaville, was married the other day to Mrs. Laura Bishop. The bride is his stepmother.

The dismembered body of a man was found on the Lake Shore tracks near Whiting. It was identified as Charles Feige, aged 56, of Saginaw, Mich.

The Emison and Oaktown schools have been closed by order of the County Board of Health, on account of diphtheria, which is prevalent to an alarming extent in these neighborhoods.

The Big Four had a wreck at Crawfordsville. A double freight attempted to run on a switch and let the second engine proceed to the main track. A miscalculation was made as to the distance and the first engine was knocked from the track, blockading traffic.

J. B. Connors of Evansville rowed a skiff across the river to the Kentucky shore and opened fire on a man and woman who were concealed on the bank. It transpired that Connors' wife was with Charles Williams. Mrs. Connors and Williams were both killed and Connors escaped.

The mangled remains of an unknown man were found on the E. & T. H. Railroad north of Vincennes. There was nothing by which he could be identified. His hat had the firm name of "Amons & Allen, Newton, Ia.," stamped on the inside. He was well dressed, and many people believe he was the victim of foul play.

Quincy Coble, a young man of Stilesville, aged 26, was found dead at the side of the Monon tracks at Putnamville. Coble was on a visit to a young woman friend at Quincy and it is thought that he had boarded a freight train for her home. Where the Monon road crosses the old National road is an overhead bridge which has been the most prolific death trap in that section of Indiana. The death of Coble is the nineteenth or twentieth fatal accident that is chargeable to this bridge.

At the yearly picnic of the Baptist Church for Delaware, Grant and Blackford counties at Mayhews there was an exciting incident not down on the program. In the afternoon the ordinance of baptism by immersion was to have been conducted in the Mississinewa river by Rev. James Richards, a veteran minister, aged 82 years. The man to be baptized was a physical giant. When the time came for baptism the strength of Rev. Mr. Richards proved unequal for the task, and both men went under and were carried to a hole of deep water near by. They were rescued, but it took some time for physicians to resuscitate them.

Her Father's Hope.

ELEVATING CHICAGO'S RAILROADS

ONE OF THE GREATEST-OF-THE-CENTURY WORKS

SOME stupendous undertakings in the way of vast mechanical improvements have been encompassed by Western railroads during the past few years. To a person unfamiliar with the details of the same, an outline proves both surprising and amazing. The demand for perfect train service, roadway accessories that enable a correct calculation on small parts of a minute, convenience, comfort, utility—all are elements in the enterprise that thinks nothing of expending millions on placing the railroad on the most approved basis. The last and most important object of attention to engross railroad managements has been the advantages of track elevation. The enormous evils of grade crossings, it was found, had to be done away with—safety to life and limb insured to citizens, while the solving of the problem of rapid transit was also concerned—for ordinance has failed to restrict speed. Delays and interruptions to street traffic and travel will never be abolished, guards and gates dispensed with, length of trains regulated, the noise of bells and whistles mitigated—in fact, the elevation of tracks, as in London and Philadelphia—will place the railway systems about Chicago on a kind of automatic basis, so to speak.

Chicago is the greatest railroad center in the world, and its mileage of tracks exceeds that of any other city. Within the corporate limits are found 115 lineal miles of main tracks. This does not include every track of each system, but the real aggregate—from two to ten tracks—of each line as one. There are in addition 1,500 miles of other tracks—switches, yards, belt lines and the like. Nearly ten years since the public began to discuss how the great loss of life occurring to persons passing over these tracks could be avoided. Fences, walls, guards—gates even—did not entirely insure safety. Isolation seemed necessary. At one single crossing it was found that from morning till midnight 743 trains passed, with 3,952 cars. During these eighteen hours, 827 street cars passed, carrying 16,540 passengers; 2,232 wagons, trucks, buggies and other vehicles, with 4,464 drivers and other persons. People on foot aggregated some 20,000. This was at a point that, from the frequency of accidents, came to be known generally as "Dead Man's crossing."

The movement to force railroads to elevate their city tracks developed very rapidly after its first agitation. In 1892 the Illinois Central took the lead by elevating its ten tracks on the lake front for a distance of five miles. Vast pecuniary benefits immediately accrued to the road, for during the next year of the World's Fair it was enabled to almost double its speed in carrying passengers. The cost was something over $2,000,000, and the Northwestern road soon followed the example. Within three years the plan was in prospect or operation with nearly all the railway lines centering at Chicago.

The result is that skilled contractors have reduced track elevation to a positive science, Chicago mechanical ability bringing this about distinctively. The first venture cost extra time and money, being practically experimental. The methods then employed lacked economical results. Now, tracks are elevated with no interruption to traffic. The tracks are raised by jacks in sections of about 300 yards, and dirt is rammed under them. The elevation is so distributed as to allow a gradual incline from the surface level to the elevation grade. A clear idea of this method was furnished at one crossing, where hundreds of trains—freight and passenger—climed up and over the elevation in progress without mishap.

In building the big retaining walls to hold the sand or dirt, concrete resting upon a solid foundation of clay is used In the process of formation, molds of heavy planking are sometimes employed, one side vertical, or nearly so, the other in a series of offsets, to give the necessary batter to the finished wall. Into this substantial mold is poured the concrete mixture, which is made to a consistency to adapt itself readily to the sides of the mold. Constant ramming insures the solidity of the mass, and fills all inequalities. The mixing and handling of the concrete is done by portable machinery, and the mold is left until the concrete walls have thoroughly hardened.

At one point where the tracks of one railroad had to be depressed under those of another at the same crossing, details were both skillful and interesting. Pilings were at first driven down, and the dirt was then excavated therefrom, it being necessary to put in several sets of pilings. At the proper stage of the work the tracks to be elevated were set across the depression by means of pilings fixed at intervals.

As closely as can be figured out at present, the total elevated and rock-ballasted trunk line trackage within the limits of Chicago, if stretched out across the continent, would reach Salt Lake City ten feet above the present trans-continental grade. In short, more than 1,500 miles of railroad would be inclosed within massive restraining walls at the average height stated above street grades. The great Gizen pyramid, which took 100,000 men twenty years to complete, cost $42,500,000. Owing to improved appliances in excavation, moving and filling, 15,000 workmen have finished the work of elevating the trunk railroads of Chicago in fourteen years, though the total outlay will be $7,500,000 more than was expended on the monster pyramid of the Egyptians, or, approximately, $50,000,000. In the 300 miles of restraining walls for the Chicago elevated grades, the largest blocks of stone are eight feet long, four feet wide and two feet thick, or a cubic contents of about two and one-quarter yards. The total cubic measurement of stone used in the grade walls and subways will fall little short of 3,000,000 yards. Of sand and dirt, mostly taken by trains from drives along the Lake Michigan shore, not less than 300,000,000 yards will eventually be packed into elevated grades. If the filling of the Chicago elevated trunk roads were raised and shaped compactly, it would form three Gizen pyramids, and a fourth one about two-thirds as large.

On many roads the task of elevation has been simple, but at "Dead Man's Crossing," as the district about Clark and 12th streets is called, since early spring the work in progress has marked some extraordinary activity and the evolution of many remarkable engineering problems. Here sixteen railroad rights of way crossed each other at street grade: the Santa Fe, Eastern Illinois, Erie, Monon, Wabash, Grand Trunk, Illinois Central, Michigan Central, Burlington, Madison, Lake Shore, Rock Island, Alton, Western Indiana and Nickel Plate. In this network of tracks many an imperiled citizen has been kept busy guessing which way to jump out of the way of cow catchers and bumpers, and the loss of life in ten years has been enormous. The work here has been more important and engrossing than at any other point of track elevation. Here labor has been the rule, day and night, rain or shine. The problem of so many lines crossing so as to insure noninterruption and absolute safety of trains, while prescribing open way for street traffic, was solved only after intricate calculation. No such complicated and busy railroad and street crossing exists in any other place on earth. It has been found necessary to raise two of the lines on a little island of masonry at the mouth of a subway. This subway, which is cement-walled, is graded four feet above the river, which is near by, and is perpetually drained by a pumping station constructed in the west wall. It will be crossed by six railroad bridges. Perfect security and facility of movement at the few elevated crossings remaining will be guaranteed by a system of interlocking switches, which will stop only one of two approaching trains, thus rendering collision impossible.

From "Dead Man's Crossing" out five miles, it is now possible to take a suburban train that runs at the rate of a mile a minute. Beyond, the railroads have combined to use a union depot. Here are yards with an area of fifty-two acres, containing about 13,500,000 yards of filling. They take the form of subways at an oblique angle, and are of exceptional length. The semi-subterranean highways leading up, including approaches, are about 1,000 feet. The cost of this piece of work is about $1,000,000.

Track elevation has come to be as important a plank in Republican and Democratic party platforms in mayoralty and town trustee elections, as the "clean street" plank. In Chicago, in the past four municipal elections, the track elevation idea was made conspicuous. This principle is spreading to other large cities and to towns. At several places tracks have been elevated to a distance of even fifteen miles out of the city, where they run through large suburbs.

Twenty-seven ordinances have been passed already, respecting the elevation of the railroad tracks, and during the present city administration an uncompromising determination and zeal to have the laws complied with has been displayed. Only one pugnacious company seemed disposed to hold aloof and fight. Drastic measures were adopted in treating with this corporation. Other roads commendably have hurried the work prescribed. Several of these corporations have not only crowded the improvements required of them, they have rock-ballasted their roadways into the very depots.

The following tables give a very clear idea of what Chicago has done and is doing in the way of track elevation. Here are some facts that very clearly outline the scope of the work done:

Total lineal mileage of main track inside of city limits of Chicago...	115
Total miles of track elevation as per ordinances passed since 1892.....	51.7
Total miles elevated to June, 1898..	19.0
Total mileage yet to be elevated....	82.7
Total miles elevating during 1898...	23.5
Total grade crossings eliminated as per ordinances passed.....	271

Total yet to be eliminated.....	185
Approximate estimated cost of elevation under ordinances..	$17,380,000
Approximate amount expended to June 1, 1898.....	6,000,000
Yet to be expended.....	$11,380,000

The following table shows work that has been carried out this year by various lines, as is now in progress, the approximate cost to each, and the number of grade crossings abolished:

St. Charles Air Line and joint roads, eight grade crossings to be abolished—ten tracks, six of which are depressed eleven feet	$2,000,000
Pennsylvania Company, seventeen grade crossings to be abolished—two tracks.....	1,250,000
Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, eight grade crossings to be abolished—two tracks	1,600,000
Chicago and Northwestern, thirty-two grade crossings to be abolished—four tracks....	1,200,000
Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, twelve grade crossings to be abolished—two tracks..	750,000
Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, twelve grade crossings to be abolished—two tracks..	1,000,000
Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, twenty grade crossings to be abolished—two tracks....	1,250,000
Total miles of track elevation..	23.5
Total grade crossings to be abolished	106
Total approximate cost.....	$9,000,000

The agitation of track elevation has been like a small snowball, set in motion and fast growing apace. As an economic feature of railway progress it has proven itself to be an adjunct not only profitable but in line with the demands of the age. The matter is one that is now occupying the interested attention of townships as well as municipalities, and the grade crossing is fast becoming a dangerous and troublesome thing of the past.

foot high, sloped on sides and ends, with round stones sunken in all around the slopes. In the center of the mound was a cross made of shells and surrounded by a circle of small stones. The headstone was of brown tiling, with inscription cut in.

The Flagellants.

The Christian sect known in history as the Flagellants arose in 1260 at Perugia, and spread throughout and beyond Italy. Its adherents, who saw a plague raging, and moreover expected the world speedily to terminate, believed that they could propitiate the Divine Being by walking in procession with only a cloth tied around them, and flogging their bare shoulders with whips, which they carried, and preaching "that without shedding of blood there can be no remission." At first they were noted for sanctity, and made many converts, but doubtful characters beginning to join their ranks, they fell into disrepute, and were restrained from their processions by the civil and ecclesiastical authorities, and the sect gradually died away. The terror produced by the dreadful diseases called the Black Death, which destroyed many millions of people in Europe between 1348 and 1351, caused a revival of the Flagellation mania, which spread over most of Europe, and was attended by greater extravagances than before. In the reign of Edward III., a band of 120 Flagellants made their appearance in London on a missionary enterprise. They marched in procession through the streets, singing hymns, and then scourging each other, trusting that the spectacle would prove contagious, but the sober-minded Englishmen could not be induced either to flagellate themselves, or submit to be flagellated by others, and the strangers left the country without having made even one proselyte. In 1349, Pope Clement VII. declared the Flagellants heretics, and took steps to repress them. The first leader of this extraordinary sect was a hermit called Rainer. In the fifteenth century their leader was Conrad Schmidt, who, with several of his followers, was burnt by the German inquisitors about 1414. They existed in some parts of Italy until recent times.

NORMAL AND ABNORMAL.

Difference Between Physical Culture and Professional Training.

Dr. W. L. Savage explains the difference between the trainer and the physical-culture man. "We take a man and build him up and make him a strong and useful man, one who, if he has the inclination, may become an all-round athlete. The trainer, on the other hand, takes a man who has an aptness in some particular direction and in whom some muscles are possibly developed beyond the normal point, and with a view to making the man still stronger in that particular part he produces an abnormal man. While the trainer is building up his man—or rather the strong part of him—the weak points are being neglected. While the strong ones are becoming still stronger, the weak parts, although they may remain stationary for the time being, appear weaker than they really are by contrast. The physical culture expert leaves the strong and superdeveloped parts of his patient alone and applies himself only to the weak parts—the others will take care of themselves. Take, for example, the men who have the bicycle craze. They have heavy thighs and calves, but many who have gained in that direction have acquired hollow chests, round shoulders, abnormal arms and weakness in the abdominal region. Now, we do not try to make such a person's legs stronger, but we do try by proper exercise to bring the rest of the body up to the thigh standard. After the whole body has been thoroughly developed, no one part at the cost of the other, then, if the man has a taste for sprinting, for jumping or for any other sport, he may safely place himself in the hands of a trainer, but without the proper foundation he would run a risk in doing so. The athletic clubs take care of that end of it, and with men in good condition they do good work."

Men and Women at Sea.

Walter Wellman gives us the following statistics as to a voyage with moderately rough seas or long swell: Men seasick and invisible, 20 per cent.; men sick and on deck but not going down to meals, 25 per cent.; men who go to meals but only nibble through pride's sake, 15 per cent.; men who were "never seasick," but who have "eaten something that disagreed with them," 10 per cent.; men not sick at all, 25 per cent.; women too sick to leave their cabins, 35 per cent.; women sick on deck, 40 per cent.; women who are "not seasick at all," but who have "bad headaches," 15 per cent.; women who "don't feel just right," 7 per cent.; and women who really enjoy it, 3 per cent. —Argonaut.

Queer Chinese Passport.

In China a traveler wishing for a passport is compelled to have the palm of his hand brushed over with fine oil paint. He then presses his hand on thin, damp paper, which retains an impression of the lines. This is used to prevent transference of the passport, as the lines of no two hands are alike.

Molecules in Gas.

It has been calculated that the number of molecules in a cubic inch of any gas is 100,000,000,000,000,000,000,000, and in each of these molecules there are several atoms moving among themselves at the rate of 70 miles a minute.

AN AUTUMN MORNING.

The frost's agleam in the mellow dawn,
And the spider's nets are on the lawn,
And deep in filmy robes of mist
The hills and the silent woodlands lie,
And anon, as the sun comes up the sky
The gray clouds turn to amethyst.

The tender song of the waking thrush
Is heard no more in the brooding hush,
Nor linnet's song in the dying trees.
And down where the dodder's skeins are spread,
The witch-hazel gleams in velvet red,
And the sweetbriar waves in the breeze.

And wheeling up through the distant sky,
On their flashing wings the plovers fly,
And over the breast of the pool
Through haze of the daybreak's atmosphere,
The cry of a bittern, sharp and clear,
Comes from the marshes dim and cool.

And deep in the grasses at our feet
The tuneful crickets still sing as sweet
As in the depths of torrid June;
And o'er the dells and the sleepy woods,
A reverent hush of stillness broods
As morning dreams into the noon.

A MEXICAN'S REVENGE.

I have spent, in all, three years in Central America. I went there with a surveying party which was running the line of a projected railroad, one of those railroads which are built on paper alone. It has never yet materialized. While the line was being run I made the acquaintance of an American citizen who was the owner of a large coffee plantation, and he invited me to spend some time with him. I accepted, and in a little while a mutual friendship sprang up between us. The result was that before the time came for my departure he told me that it was necessary for him to pay a visit to his old home in Ohio with his wife, to settle up some legal business, and he had been trying to find some one who could take charge of his plantation during his absence. He urged me to take the position, and I accepted. Another week found me at the head of one of the finest plantations in Nicaragua.

My duties were light enough. Bland had a competent general manager, and about all I had to do was to act as the power behind the throne in the masters absence. I had but one difficulty during this time. The manager, a Cuban named Carlinos, was popular with the laborers, and all went smoothly until one day a Mexican, Michael Ferrara, positively refused to obey some order that Carlinos had given him, and Carlinos appealed to me. Upon investigation I calmly told the Mexican either to obey orders or leave the place. With a side-long glance at Carlinos and myself he did what the manager had commanded, and the storm seemed to have blown over, but I did not feel quite confident about it. The Mexican's look troubled me and I mentioned it to Carlinos, but he treated the matter lightly and was inclined to be scornful in regard to Ferrara. "He is a coward," he said, shrugging his shoulders, and so dismissed the matter. I let the subject drop, ashamed of seeming afraid of a man whom this slender Cuban regarded with such disdain, and yet I could have sworn that when I waked that night, startled at some slight noise on the terrace outside my window, it was Ferrara's dark face I saw in the moonlight peering in at me. In an instant it was gone, and I was out of the room, running along the terrace, searching here and there. But no, though I gave the terrace a thorough search and even went around to the end of the house and the grove of banana trees beyond, I saw nothing moving anywhere, save an owl that flitted out of the trees. I went back to my room, concluding that I had dreamed the whole affair.

The next morning I felt quite sure of it. I met Ferrara several times during the course of the day, and he was especially pleasant. He was better educated than the majority of his class, and his position on the plantation gave him a kind of precedence over the others. I was near him several times before the day was over, and I noticed that on each occasion he took pains to speak pleasantly and greet me with his most courteous smile. I thought he was sorry for the bad temper he had shown the day before. I didn't know him as well then as I do now.

The next day Carlinos and I had decided upon a hunt in the mountains that made a jagged outline against the sky off to the south. While we were getting the guns and cartridges into condition for use, Ferrara approached and said in his smoothest tones:

"If the senors went to the valley, down below the Contadino pass, they would find where a great panther roams, and has been seen many times. I myself saw it but two days ago, but I was unarmed, so I put spurs to my horse and galloped away."

Carlinos turned to me with a look of interest. "That's a good idea," he said. "We'll look for the panther first, and if we fail to find him we can try the mountains."

We were about to turn away when Ferrara stopped us, with many apologies. "Beyond the Contadino pass," he said, "you will find a narrow trail leading off eastward down the valley. Follow that trail half a mile, until you see a huge white cliff, a hundred yards to the right. At the foot of that cliff the panther has been seen again and again. Adios, senors!"

And so Carlinos and I went walking off, with swinging stride, toward the pass, glad of a day in the woods, and ready for any adventure that came along.

Except the one that actually did come. For within the next hour we passed through the most horrible experience that ever fell to the lot of mortals I am sure.

We found the pass—a mere gap in the mountains, not used for travel, as another pass, a few miles further south, furnished the nearest road to the town. The pass was strewn with rough bowlders and jagged masses of rock, difficult to make one's way over, and for half an hour we had all the exercise we needed in climbing over and around these obstructions. At last, however, we were clear of them, and we shouldered our guns again after a brief rest, and went on until we found the trail among the bushes. It was such a path as could be made by cows or sheep, going to and from a watering place, and I was going along, paying very little attention to it, when Carlinos, who was in the lead, suddenly stopped and muttered: "That is very strange."

I looked over his shoulder, and there in the yellow sand was the barefoot track of a man. We easily traced it along the trail for several hundred yards, and then it suddenly disappeared, as though the owner of the track had turned off into the thick undergrowth. We both followed it up to the point, and then missing it, looked at one another and said again: "That is very strange!"

And then we both laughed, and Carlinos said: "But it might have been some herdsman looking for a stray cow or sheep."

But I noticed that Carlinos looked after his cartridges a little more closely, and held his gun in a position to use, if necessary. And just then the cliff that Ferrara had described came into view, about a hundred yards away, and we turned off from the path toward this place in which the panther had been so often seen.

Scarcely had we started in that direction when we were startled by the long, fierce scream of the panther itself. As nearly as we could judge it was at that very moment at the base of the cliff. We stopped involuntarily at the sound, and then went stealing down the slope, with eyes watchful and nerves stretched to the utmost. Yet we went on and on without seeing it, and suddenly found ourselves almost at the base of the cliff, which had been hidden by the thick and tangled brush through which we had passed.

Then we stopped and looked around, peering here and there through the bushes. It was easy to see the spot of ground on which we stood had been the haunt of some wild animal, for all about us bones lay bleaching on the ground. But nothing was to be seen The face of the cliff, up to a height of twelve or fifteen feet, was covered with the matted tendrils of a dead vine, apparently. It suddenly occurred to me that the panther's den might be back under the cliff, hidden by the vine, and I was about to investigate when just behind us, not ten feet away, sounded the horrible scream of the panther.

Both of us whirled, and Carlinos stepped back a little. In a moment of confusion I failed to notice him, but in an instant he gave a heart-rending cry: "Help! help! quick, the tree! The man-eating tree!"

Never will I forget that cry, nor the sight that met my eyes. In stepping back he had stumbled against the dead vine, as I had thought it. And then in a moment every tendril had become instinct with life, and was twisting and writhing about him with the most horribly snake-like motions, matted around his body and legs, holding his arms tight, and drawn across his face and clasped about his throat. Already when I looked about he was helpless. During the single moment while I stood there looking at him motionless with horror, his face had begun to turn purple.

And then all at once I recovered myself a little, and snatching my hunting knife from my belt began cutting and slashing at the horrible, writhing tendrils in the effort to cut their victim loose.

But before I had made three strokes something caught my arm and then something crawled swiftly about my neck, and then there were others around my hands, over my head, and held, while wherever the snaky monsters touched went fierce pains, as though my flesh were being torn from my body. I felt my consciousness slipping away; but as it was going suddenly the dark face of Ferrara peered out from the bushes in front of me, and he cried out with mocking laughter:

"I hope you enjoy yourselves, senors. The panther is not far away, believe me! Only wait for him until he comes. Adios! Adios!"

The shock of anger roused me a little in the midst of my racking torture, and I saw Ferrara turn to go away, but all at once amid the chorus of maledictions, a dozen hands seized him and pinned him down, and we were surrounded by a crowd of laborers from the plantation. With long knives they cut and hacked at the limbs that were sucking the blood from our veins, and in a few moments they had us free. How they got us home I never knew. It was not until the next day that I recovered consciousness, and I was unable to turn over in my bed even, for two weeks. The excoriations on my hands and face left painful wounds, which were a long time in healing, and which made dreadful scars. These have all gone, however, except the one on my neck, which resembles the scar left by a centipede.

As for Carlinos, he lay as if dead for several days, and there were times when he was pronounced really dead. Then he went off into fever and delirium, and it seemed that he could not possibly recover. After a while, though, he did struggle back into life, but his health was wrecked, and he was never again able to walk as much as a hundred yards.

How did we happen to be rescued? Why, some of Ferrara's fellow servants had heard his muttered imprecations against us, and, when we had gone and they saw him sneak after us, they held a consultation and decided to follow. I have always believed that Ferrara circled around us, got in ahead, and imitated the cry of the panther to lure us on. I have never found out, however. When I had regained strength enough to feel some little curiosity, and asked one of the rescuers what they had done with Ferrara, he answered with the utmost unconcern:

"We gave him to the man-eating tree, senor!"—The Golden Censer.

Two Paris policemen the other day arrested a ragged vagabond who was too imbecile to answer any questions. When his clothes were searched his pockets were found to contain $4,000 in banknotes and $170,000 in bonds.

Peace.—Now, if ever, we must find our way into the heart of that peace which the world cannot give.—Rev. W. Gladden, Congregationalist, Columbus, Ohio.

Belief.—To believe in a good and fatherly God gives courage and security to the soul and sweetness to life.—Rev. W. D. Williams, Episcopalian, New York City.

The Bible.—The Bible teaches us that between God, who is a spirit, and man, who is spiritual, there is a community of life.—Rev. J. F. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Order.—The power that holds this nation in order is the power of the voice of God, speaking in the consciences of the people.—Rev. Lyman Abbott, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

God's Work.—God is interested in every individual soul; how he works we do not know; we do not have to know; if he does not do it, he is not God.—Rev. George Hughes, Baptist, New York City.

Spirituality.—A low state of spirituality in any church usually can be traced to the absence of a sense of sin.—Rev. John L. Clark, Presbyterian, Chicago, Ill.

Sources of Our Danger.—In the whole of God's economy those things wherein we boast ourselves superior to the rest of creation are the sources of our danger.—Rev. F. C. Harding, Congregationalist, New York City.

Prayer.—The importance and efficacy of prayer had testimony in the memorable prayer of the Savior on the Mount, when he spent the night praying for his disciples.—Rev. A. J. Van Cleft, Methodist, Scranton, Pa.

Man's Way.—Men do not make the same tests of measures and weights as they do of the truth. Many a man tries to stretch the truth and applies the wrong test to it.—Rev. T. C. Beattie, Presbyterian, Albuquerque, N. M.

Application of the Gospel.—To-day, while we apply the principles of the Gospel not less than formerly to the salvation of the individual, we are yet turning our thoughts more and more to the Gospel's application to society.—Rev. J. G. Butler, Lutheran, Washington, D. C.

What the Bible Tells.—The Bible tells us in many ways what we should expect as the outcome of God's plan and Christ's work, what we should hope for, what we should glorify the father for —the complete salvation of every human soul.—Rev. F. W. Whippen, Universalist, Scranton, Pa.

Christian Difficulties.—Many of the difficulties baffling Christian progress to-day would not have existed had our fathers been more candid in mind, and remembered in wisdom and tolerance the teaching of the text: "For every creature of God is good."—Rev. S. P. Cadman, Congregationalist, New York.

Our Reward.—The disciples on the sea were working under the eye of the master, yet knew it not. So, even to-day, no matter how humble our calling, the eye of the Master Workman is upon us. He knows all our labors and weariness. He knows how carefully and conscientiously we perform our tasks. He knows all our neglect and formalism and indifference. And soon he will come to give us our reward. Then will he give every one according as his work shall be.—Rev. Mr. Winship, Methodist, Cheyenne, Wyo.

The Sword.—The sword has developed the grandest natures that the world ever saw. It has developed courage—that sublime energy of the soul which defies the universe when it feels itself to be in the right. It has developed a self-sacrifice which repudiates the idea that our life is worth more than anything else, when for a principle it throws that life away, as much as to say: "It is not necessary that I live, but it is necessary that righteousness triumph."—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, Washington, District of Columbia.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....OCTOBER 13, 1898.

THE OLD GAME.

Friday of last week every member of Company K, as far as we can learn, received through the postoffice a set of circulars, the object of which was to induce him to vote the republican ticket. Now, we concede to every soldier, the right to choose his own party, the right to vote as he has been voting heretofore, or of changing his party affiliations as he pleases. In fact this is a right conceded to every man. It is the same old game. That was tried years ago. It is a shameful game. When this Spanish war was facing us, all the nation rose up as one man to defend the nation's honor. All agreed there was no politics in it. As a prominent Auburn republican said, when asked about having a hickory flag staff, "there's no politics in this war." And so every one felt, and acted. Now that the war is over, the very first thing done, is to make this open and pointed effort to get every soldier to become a republican. We make this statement in terms so plain there can be no misunderstanding it. The men who are doing this evidently care nothing for the country or its honor, care nothing for the wrongs to Cuba, nothing about the insults to our flag when the Maine with 266 American sailors, was sent to the bottom of Havana bay, care nothing for the lives sacrificed, the money spent and the glorious achievements of the war. All they can see in this glorious six months of history, is a chance for political gain. And what is the reason they give as the apparent cause for this outbreak of partisanship. It is shown in the two double page display articles we copy in this issue. They are the first or outside page in each of the two political pamphlets sent to the soldiers.

One of these is headed "Democratic Opposition to War Measures." This Democratic Opposition to War Measures.

"Since the outbreak of the Spanish War they have committed—

That is, the Democrats in the House—about every error possible. Giving a grudging support to the various imperative measures which followed the original appropriation of $50,000,000 for the national defense, they lined themselves up almost solidly against the War-Revenue Bill, and capped the climax last Wednesday by casting the bulk of their vote in opposition to the anexation of Hawaii, a consummation devoutly desired by a two-thirds majority in both Houses of Congress and four-fifths of the American people without regard to party.

"The result is plain. What was intended to be, and what was originally a purely American war has degenerated in the eyes of the country into a Republican war with all that that implies.

"The Republican President stands before the world today as one pursuing a patriotic policy in the teeth of unreasoning Democratic opposition. When victory comes to him and Spain is humbled in the dust; when America's possessions are enriched by the addition of Hawaii, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, and perhaps the Canaries, Mr. McKinley can rise and truthfully say:

"'This is my work—mine and the Republican party's. As we saved the Union in 1861, so now do we glorify it with victory. Ours the triumph, ours the spoils, including a majority in the new House of Representatives!'"

"And the people, on the 8th of November, will cry 'Amen,'"—An editorial published in a leading Democratic newspaper of the city of Washington, the Times, dated the 22d day of June, 1898.

we all know is false. The head is followed as seen by a few tame extracts from the Congressional Record, all of which fails to prove a thing, as will be seen by reading it. We hope all who get these pamphlets will read them over carefully and then explain in what way the democratic party has opposed the war.

treason to investigate? If our soldiers have been wronged, shall we not be allowed to defend them? Is it "slander to our government" to tell what is well known? If so, is it not slander to our government to publish column after column of the hardships and horrors the soldiers of the rebellion went through? Again, we urge everybody to read this document, also. It is unfortunate that this attempt has been made to bring politics into the war. It will make it unpleasant for the soldiers themselves, and they are intelligent enough to see through the scheme.

A Question of Veracity.

Speaking of our criticism on the hiring of high priced help in the prosecutor's office, the Press says:

"There is not a word of truth in what the COURIER says. Thus far not a dollar has been paid in this line for any case entered on the docket since Mr. Rhoads came into office."

Now this is a mere dodge. The big case against McIntosh was "put on the docket" perhaps, before Rhoads came into office. But still, it was tried by Rhoads, or rather in his presence, for he took no part. And after the trial had begun, and two able attorneys were already helping Mr. Rhoads, or rather were doing the work for him, Judge McBride, of Indianapolis, came into the court room. As he did so, he spoke to the writer and said he had come to help Miss Chamberlain who was interested in one phase of the case. Yet, by the next day he was fully at work as a third assistant to the prosecutor. Judge McBride was therefore employed after Mr. Rhoads got the office. These three assistants cost the taxpayers $500. Are they going to continue such methods?

Threshing old Straw

The Press says it is no use for the COURIER to be "threshing over old straw", referring to the charges that Stroh was a defaulter to the county by not turning over the fees the law plainly says he must, and which after sliding over into the second session of commissioners, he was compelled to turn over at last. According to the reasoning of the Press, any crime, should only be called up once, and then afterwards condoned for fear of "threshing over old straw." The Press adds that "Stroh paid into the treasury all the fees that are due at the end of the quarter as the law directs. But this is just what Stroh did not do. He forced his way over the December term, but was forced to pay over, the following march. See our reply to the Butler Record. See the records of the sheriff's office and the records of the commissioners and the treasurer. The Press says that possibly the reason Stroh kept back those fees, was that "only a part was paid in." Then the part paid in should have been turned over. But the part not paid in he would not have to pay over, for he could not. The press adds, that the COURIER appears to have magnified these errors that Stroh and Platter made in showing up the business of that office, and that we do it to "draw attention from defaulting democratic officials and to attach odium to republican officials." The first part of this assertion is wrong. The second is partly correct. We punished every democratic official and no word of the COURIER can be shown to excuse them. But we are making these charges about men who happen to be republicans, not because they are republicans but because they have shown themselves utterly unfit for the place that one has filled for four years and that the other wants to fill. Why did the republicans nominate such a man? They know what has been done in that office. They know what will be done if their nominee succeeds. The COURIER would like to see the republicans serve their defaulting officers as the democrats did theirs, and not run them or their helpers for office.

No Craw fishing.

The Waterloo Press expresses its hopes, no doubt, rather than its belief, when it says "The COURIER crawfishes" in regard to Stroh and Platter. We have already answered that, and only now, care to emphasize what we then said. Men who claimed to be friends of that pickpocket, gave out plainly, that $100 to $200 was waiting for the benefit of the man in jail, and that his escape was worth that, Sheriff Stroh and Deputy Sheriff Platter, both absented themselves. The door of the cell was left insecure, and the prisoner opened it though it was of steel bars, got into the corridor, worked there long enough to saw off the inside row of steel cross bars, then the similar outsid row, and got out. All these are facts and cannot be denied. They have made no attempt to deny them. The people of the county are freely condemning such officials, though asked to continue one of them right there in that office. During the incumbency of these two men, the jail, one of the strongest in the state has been nearly sawed to pieces. It begins to look as if Dewey or Sampson had been taking a whirl at it. Does the Press want this kind of thing to go on?

The Bottle Post.

The "bottle post" is an old institution of the south coast of Iceland. Letters are put into corked bottles, which are wafted by the winds to the opposite coast. They also contain a cigar or other trifle, to induce the finder to deliver the letter as addressed.

THE STATE PLATFORMS

For Purposes of Comparison the Declarations of the Republican and Democratic State Platforms on the Various Issues of the Campaign Are Herewith Given In Parallel Columns, Arranged by Topics:

DEMOCRATIC.	REPUBLICAN.
THE WAR.
We, the Democracy of Indiana, in convention assembled, now, as always, loyal to our country and our flag, affirm that the cause for which the United States is engaged in war with Spain is just and righteous. We recall with pride the early espousal and united and persistent support of this cause by the senators and representatives of the Democratic party in congress. We congratulate the country upon the universal patriotic uprising which has swept away the last vestige of sectionalism, and revealed us to the world as a united people. We rejoice in the heroic deeds of Dewey, Bagley, Hobson, and their brave comrades, which have added new luster to the American name. We demand, now, as heretofore, the most vigorous prosecution of the war until it shall have ended in vindication of the national honor, the absolute relinquishment by Spain of possession or control of any part of the western hemisphere, and the formal acknowledgment by that kingdom of the independence of the Cuban republic. We favor the prompt recognition by the United States of such independence as a war measure, and as an act of justice to a brave people, struggling for freedom. We urge the immediate increase of the volunteer forces of our army and navy to any extent necessary to assure speedy and decisive results, and the appropriation of all the funds requisite for the adequate equipment and support, and for the comfort of our gallant soldiers and sailors in armed conflict against the public enemy. The supreme duty of the hour is to relieve the perishing victims of Spanish cruelty and secure the complete triumph of the national arms. When this shall have been accomplished the justice and wisdom of the American people may be safely trusted to deal with all questions which may grow out of existing complications, in such a way as best to promote the objects for which this republic was founded.	While we sincerely deplore the necessity of war, we believe the president and congress acted wisely in demanding the complete withdrawal of Spanish sovereignty over the island of Cuba and in proceeding to enforce the demand with the military and naval power of the government. And now that our army and navy, through their splendid achievements, have blessed our nation with triumphs not excelled in the world's history, rendering many names illustrious and immortal, and adding prestige and glory, limited only by civilization, to our great republic, the occasion is one of supreme gratitude to the great ruler of nations. We extend to the brave men on land and sea who have gone forth to battle for the glory of our flag and the cause of human liberty our deepest sympathy on account of the sacrifices they have made and the hardships they are called upon to endure, and our warmest praise for their unconquerable valor. We honor, congratulate and applaud our country's heroes who have once more proved the matchless intelligence, devotion and courage of American manhood. They have proved to the world that the United States is a nation, one and indivisible, without sections and without classes, whose purpose is "to deal justly, love mercy and walk humbly before God." We commend Mr. McKinley's conservative and patriotic course in earnestly hoping and negotiating for peace while yet prudently preparing for war. And we further express our most earnest approval of his vigorous prosecution of the war, and our entire confidence in his ability to secure such terms of peace, now happily near at hand, as will advance human liberty and comport with the dignity and honor of the American people.
THE NAVY.
We favor such a permanent strengthening of the navy of the United States and such improvements of our system of coast defenses as shall assure adequate protection of the country against foreign aggression.	Having achieved its manhood, the republic, under God, is entering upon its greatest period of power, happiness and responsibility. Realizing the mighty future of wealth, prosperity and duty which is even now upon us, we favor the extension of American trade, the reformation of our consular system accordingly, the encouragement by all legitimate means of the American merchant marine, the creation of a navy as powerful as our commerce shall be extensive for the public defense and security, and the establishment of coaling stations and naval rendezvous wherever necessary.
PENSIONS.
The Democratic party of Indiana, now, as in the past, advocates liberal pensions as well to the disabled survivors of the Union army in the civil war, and their widows and orphans, as to the victims in the present conflict, and those who may be dependent upon them. We honor alike the valor of those who suffered for the flag in the gigantic contest of 1861-65, and of those who have now gone forth to do battle in the cause of liberty and humanity.	We hold in undying honor the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the life of the nation, and those who were but recently called to arms in vindication of their country's honor and the cause of human liberty. Just and liberal pensions to all deserving soldiers are a sacred debt of the nation, and the widows and orphans of those who are dead are entitled to the care of a generous and grateful people.
THE NICARAGUA CANAL.
We are in favor of the construction and control of the Nicaragua canal by this government, when its feasibility shall have been determined; but we are opposed to a loan of the national credit to any private corporation for that purpose.	We most heartily approve of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands as a wise measure; we recommend the early construction of the Nicaraguan canal under the immediate direction and exclusive control of the United States government—the importance and necessity of the canal having been emphasized by recent events connected with the present war with Spain.
THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.
We reaffirm and emphasize the platform adopted by the national Democratic convention of 1896 at Chicago. We are in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the existing ratio of 16 to 1, without the aid or consent of any other nation. We are unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, and we specially protest against the declared purpose of the present Republican secretary of the treasury of applying that policy more thoroughly. We believe that the practice of the treasury in paying treasury notes in gold only, in violation of law, and in surrendering the option of the government, reserved by the statute, to pay in gold or silver, is chiefly responsible for the great money depression now, and for so long a period, existing in this country, is destructive of business enterprise, dangerous to the public credit and the prosperity of the people, and a serious menace to the national honor.	The Republicans of Indiana are unreservedly for sound money, and are therefore opposed to the heresy to which the Democratic party is wedded, of the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, which we regard as absolutely sure to debase our money and destroy our private and public credit, and cause general business disaster. We recognize the necessity of comprehensive and enlightened monetary legislation and believe that the declaration in the St. Louis national Republican platform for the maintenance of the gold standard and the parity of all our forms of money should be given the vitality of public law and the money of the American people should be made, like all its institutions, the best in the world. We felicitate the country on the fact, when in the exigencies of war it became necessary to issue $200,000,000 of government bonds to meet the extraordinary expenditures, a Republican administration had the good sense and wisdom to put the loan within the easy reach of the people, where it has been wholly absorbed, furnishing a splendid security for their savings, awakening a new interest in the permanency of our government and the soundness of its financial system.
THE INHERITANCE AND INCOME TAXES.
We insist that the wealth of the country should bear its just share of the public burdens. For that reason we approve the inheritance tax recently adopted through the efforts of the Democrats in congress and we favor the principle and policy of an income tax. The demonitization of silver and the judicial denial of the power to tax incomes have materially impaired our resources for war purposes. We favor the reimposition of an income tax, so that the question of its validity may be reviewed by the supreme court.
THE TARIFF.
We earnestly reassert the Democratic doctrine that all tariff taxes shall be laid for revenue as their sole object and purpose, and we do at this time especially denounce and condemn the high prohibitory rates of the present Republican tariff, commonly called the Dingley bill, under the operation of which trusts and combinations have	We especially commend the president and congress for the prompt passage of a wise revenue law in accordance with the sound Republican doctrine of reciprocity and protection to American industries and home labor, and express our unbounded confidence in the beneficial results predicted for this measure by our party leaders, evidences of which Mountains of the Moon.

The mountains of the moon are immensely larger in proportion than those of the earth. The moon is but 1-49th the size of the earth, but its mountain peaks are nearly as high. Twenty-two are higher than Mont Blanc, which is within a few feet of three miles high. The highest is a little more than four miles and a half.

And Prove Himself a Fool!

His Attorney—You'd better plead guilty. Your punishment would be merely a nominal fine. Prisoner—That's all right. I'd rather run the risk of going to jail than to stand up before everybody and acknowledge I stole a bicycle of the make of 1894.—Chicago Tribune.

Take Your Choice.

The Butler Record is again guilty of using low flung language in discussing the Stroh-Platter scandals with the COURIER. We shall not follow the Record into a field so low, but suggest that slang will not do away with the fact that Stroh was a defaulter to the county and utterly incompetent. Nor will the calling of names relieve Platter of the charges publicly made against him for gambling, drinking, licentiousness and incompetency. And it made no differecne that the county owed Stroh. His sworn duty was to obey the law, and the law is that every cent he receives in fees, must be turned over to the county. This he did not do, as he should have done at the December term of Commissioners' Court, 1896, but stood the county off till the next March term. If he was not bound to turn this money over to the county, why did he turn it over the next March? Had he failed of re-election as Fair did, he would have been obliged to do as Fair was called do, that is, settle at once, and that three or four weeks before even the December term. And it makes no difference that "$500 of the money paid in by Moody's bondsmen belonged to Stroh." If this money was paid in before the December settlement, Stroh should have turned it over to the county as the law plainly directs. If it was not paid in before the December session, he was not expected to turn it in. No fees are to be accounted for by the sheriff till paid in to him. But when they are paid to him, they are the property of the county, and he has no more right to take that money to use for campaign purposes or in his private business, than he has to take and use the money of a private citizen. If he had done as the law directs, and as his predecessor did, he would have turned that money over to the treasurer, and then the commissioners would have paid it back to him in salary If Stroh did not know this, he was incompetent. If he did know the law and failed to obey it, he was criminal. The Record can take whichever horn it pleases. And it cannot deny that its party is excusing this way of doing public business by nominating the man who was intimately mixed up in it.

Re-organization of Militia.

[Goshen Democrat.]

Some of the members of Co. C express the opinion that Gov. Mount will have much trouble in re-organizing the militia for the reason that he is not popular with any of the Indiana soldiers. They state that not only the privates, but the officers of the various companies of the three regiments have a hatred for the chief executive and condemn his methods which were employed while the militiamen and afterwards the volunteers were at Camp Mount. So great are the difficulties that it is freely predicted that there will not be another national guard until Gov. Mount has retired from office. Col. Studebaker has a plan of reorganization, but few persons want to go into it if Gov. Mount has much to say. Unless the re-organization is under the governor it must be under the federal authorities and this would be unfortunate as the guard would then practically be a standing army. What the outcome will be cannot now be told, but Gov. Mount will try and reorganize the state forces.

Off Again

Once more Company K boarded a special train to return to camp, leaving the Wabash station at about 10 a. m. to-day. The parting this time was not a sad one, as it is expected they will return in about a week. There are some whose health will not permit them to return, as in case of Clarence Shoemaker, who is lying quite sick at the home of his father, Horace Shoemaker. It looked a little sad to see a friend carry his gun and accoutrements and deposit them on the train, to be taken care of by others till they can be turned over to the government with the rest, at Indianapolis. But we hope the young soldier himself will soon be all right. One other boy, we saw, who was going, though he should have been in bed, and that was Fred Miller, who has been very sick. Ed. Willis, of the Waterloo company is another, and he is desperately sick at the home of his father, F. W. Willis, of Waterloo.

After the special had left the uptown station they ran to the Junction and there they were joined by the companies from Angola and Waterloo. They go into camp on the fair grounds, Camp Mount, Indianapolis, and will be mustered out as soon as the work can be done, Then they come back to take their places in the walks of civil life again. As we said in an article last week, "Give the Boys a Chance" wherever and whenever it can be done.

A Moving Scene.

There is a great moving movement today, which was inaugurated Saturday by Dr. Baxter who that day moved his residence west of Hoffman's gallery, to his own house across west from the M. E. church, so long owned by G. C. Ralston. He has it nicely refitted and finds it a cosy home. The house he left, is now being occupied by Gene Trout. The house Mr. Trout occupied is being taken by Alt Moody, who has been living in the A. C. Wilson property on South Van Buren-st. This fine property now belongs to Albert Buchanan, and we are told he will soon move from his farm and occupy it. We shall gladly welcome him to Auburn.

COURT.

A Busy Session and Lots of Work Being Done.

Court is today, Wednesday working at the damage case of Miller vs Wabash railroad, a case so much out of the usual that we give it a separate article. We hope our readers will examine it carefully and speak of it to their neighbors as it contains much information and we presume no other paper will give it in full.

Some changes were made in the jury and it now stands as follows:

G. W. Bleeks	Jacob Shull
Fred Ginder	Geo. W. Hamilton
John C. Brand	Hugh Watt
J. F. Housel	Chas. V. Hodge
W. D. Dannels	Melvin Springer
John H. Hammon	Wm. Johnson

Bleeks, Ginder and Brand took the places of M. C. Sheets, Mell Bishop and James Shull.

COURT WORK

Divorces have been granted in cases of Nora and Jerome Harris, Myrtle and James Shriner, Nora and Edward Eichelberger, Henry and Emma Grueter, Albert from Olive Smith.

O. H. Downey has applied for admission to the bar.

The Wabash road has a damage case brought against it for the accident by which Chappell was killed near Hamilton.

The following cases have been dismissed:

Ober vs McDonnell, mechanics lien; Camp vs Gorder, note; Zurbrug vs J. O. Blake on bond; Bennett vs Van Fleit, damages; J. W. Dills vs Freece; State vs Coppinger.

J. F. Shuman was assigned to take charge of the Metcalf partition case in place of C. J. Coats, who is in the asylum.

Geo. M. Henderson by request of both parties, is chosen reporter in the damage case of Sebastian Miller vs Wabash railway, a case for damaging a willow farm, and brought from Allen county on change of venue.

CRIMINAL CASES.

Abraham J. Conover, took 35 cents, paid back 8c. As it is believed it was by a childish impulse and not with criminal intent, he being under 14, sentence was suspended during good behavior.

David Brennan, larceny, got one to three years, in prison.

John Jonhson for larceny and entering a dwelling, was sent to the reform school till 21. He is now under 16

The Last Legislature

Never before has Indiana been disgraced by such a shameless, brazen, incompetent legislature as sat in Indianapolis two years ago. The caliber of the republican majority would compare unfavorably to a Chicago ward caucus. The respectable democratic minority who went there for the purpose of legislating for the people was over-ridden, insulted and kicked out by a gang of swaggering bullies who represented nobody but Mark Hanna and the multi-millionaire aristocrat Fairbanks. A reform movement was making rapid progress over the land just as the "plain people" were beginning to feel that even they had some rights which the financial and political potentates were bound to respect. The result was fusion between the reform elements, a sacred right of franchise guaranteed by the constitution. Reform to these fellows was as the breath of death. They conceded the people no rights which they were bound to respect, and in the hour of his million dollar victory King Fairbanks and his "yours for $'s" parliament passed the iniquitors anti-fusion law denying existence to independent reform parties and for the further purpose of preventing future union between the Populists and the Democrats. Two years is a too short a time for "just the plain people" to forget such a franchise robbery as that. Every democratic candidate for the legislature in this state ought to be (and a vast majority of them will be) elected as an everlasting rebuke to the men who would prostitute themselves before the the god of mammon and deny their fellow citizens the right to express their covereign will in any manner they may choose.

FAMILY REUNION.

There was a family reunion yesterday, at Jeff Clark's west of town, which included the Cochran families as well. There was a general attendance and of course there was a good time. The supper was a magnificent one and for abundance, it would have satisfied this half of Keyser township. Of course there were a few who could not attend, like D. S. Cochran in Arizona and possibly one or two others. But fortunately Ben. Cochran, now serving your Uncle Samuel in the Third Missouri Volunteers, had the good luck to be at home and met with them. We give the list of those in attendance:

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Clark there were, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Houts, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Houts, of Mercer county, Ohio, Miss Mishie Houghton, of Lewistown, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Levi McBride, of Butler, Mr. and Mrs E. T. Cochran, Mr. and Mrs Samuel Miser and family, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Smith, Joe Cochran, wife and family, Charley Cochran and family and Mr. B. F. Cochran, numbering in all thirty-two.

We Are Seven.

Seven new names adorn the register of the Hotel Stroh on the public square and seven warm places in a hay mow south of the Junction are growing cold in the brisk October air. Last night Deputy Platter and Marshal Potter were notified that a gang of hobos had been discovered in a barn near the Junction, and that they were supposed to be of a set badly wanted by the officers of justice. So, our officers, re-inforced by Henry West and several others marched down that way and went to the barn indicated. There they could see at once that the building was alive with the hobo crowd, and at the two available points of entrance it was pretty evident they had stationed a man with a revolver to keep out all intruders. No one cared to climb up into and through a hole where a man stood to shoot him, backed also by no one knew how many vicious hoboes within. So our men turned the attack into a siege, and ranged themselves around on the outside and waited, with Winchesters in hand. Just as daylight appeared, the beleaguered garrison came out and faced a half dozen guns and a stern command to throw up their hands. Backed by such arguments, they were prompt to obey, and were marched uptown and to jail. Here they will have a hearing, and if not the parties wanted, they will be turned loose again. They are probably plain hoboes and not criminals. The revolvers they were supposed to have were not found on them and it is supposed they hid them before being arrested. But at all events, their prompt arrest will likely scare them out of the county. We give the officers credit for good work quickly done.

Remembered Again.

J. D. Brosy, pastor of the Lutheran church was kindly remembered on his thirty-first birthday last Saturday, by his congregation and many friends outside of the church. A large donation was brought to the parsonage, consisting of potatoes, squash, sugar, canned fruit, coffee, apples, pears, flour peaches, lard, besides many other useful things and nearly seven dollars in money. Besides the donation, a handsome writing desk and rocking chair, was presented to Mr. Brosy by friends in and out of the church, which he greatly appreciates. All we can say to the friends for their generous remembrance, is "Thanks." Mr. Brosy came to Auburn over seven years ago, and during this time he has found many friends, and has been remembered by them time and again. He thinks Auburn is one of the best places he has ever lived in, not because of the presents received, but because of the sociability and kindness of the people. It is a pleasure to live where one has many friends. The donation and the presents amounted to $40 00. Again we say many thanks to you all.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Special to the Courier

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct. 11, 1898:—Special train carrying Company K and other companies arrived at the Camp yesterday at 3:25, without any incidences of special interest. The boys were in the best of spirits, and were surprized when they arrived, the time enroute had passed so pleasantly and quickly. In less than an hour after the arrival of the regiment—the first and second batteries preceeding the arrival of the special from Auburn only a few minutes—the camp assumed its home-like appearance. The commissary responded with rations at about half past five, and in less than an hour the boys with undisguised delights dulled their sharp appetites with rare beefsteaks and bakers' bread, It is understood that meals will not be served the regiment by contractors before Wednesday. The contractors have arranged a large restaurant in the "Fine Art Building" for the accommodation of several hundred men. Very heavy rains commenced to fall last evening at 7:20, and still continue to pour [9 a. m.] now. The first rain was so severe and so completely saturated things, most of the boys were compelled to resort to the stock barns to insure a dry night's sleep. From all reports—from official source—we gleam the information that in all probability the regiment will be able to return to their various homes by Sunday next.

BILL OF FARE.
Fruit,
Chicken with noodles, mashed potatoes.
Tomatoes, cold slaw, pickles,
Bread and butter,
Pie and pudding
tea and coffee.

All this for 15 cents, from five to seven.

—The law fixes the fee of a sheriff for impanneling a jury at $1 for each jury. How is it then, when Platter, or Stroh, one or the other, brought in their bill for impanneling juries last March term, that 40 cents was charged for each juryman? The bill was for two sets of juries which was all right if the charge had been made $1 each or $4 for the two sets of grand and petit juries. But for the 36 men in the two sets if charged at 40 cents apiece. it would be $14.40, or 10.40 cents more than the law allowed. The COURIER columns can be had for explanation.

THE MILLER CASE.

A Willow Farm Proves an Interesting Bone of Contention.

This is the most peculiar case for damages that has come up in court in recent years.

Miller owns a muck farm of 80 acres about four miles from Ft. Wayne, that he has put into good condition for garden crops, corn and grass. But the especial cause of the trouble is the destruction by fire of six acres of willows, the fire having caught from the sparks of a passing Wabash engine. The fire burned out the muck on a considerable portion of the land and destroyed the six acres of willows. And for this the plaintiff asks damages of $20,000. He explains the value of these willows like this:

The willows are a peculiar kind known as the "white basket willows," and have a high value and great demand for making baskets. Miller says his muck was of a peculiar kind not often found, and was especially good for these willows. It cost him $170 to get plants for each acre, the rows being 2½ feet apart and the plants 6 inches apart in the rows, or 34,000 plants at 5 cents each to the acre. It cost $135 for planting an acre, $150 for manures the first year and $50 for tending each acre the first year. The willows produced nothing the first year, but the second year produced willows that sold for $650 per acre; the third year $750 per acre and after that about $800 per acre each year. Taking into consideration the cost of keeping up the land and cultivating and preparing for market, the willows, it was claimed the annual profit of the six acres of willows was over $3,100. After the first year, each hill of willows would produce two or three pounds of willows and these sold at 6 cents to 12 cents per pound, according to quality. The entire product for one year would average about 52 tons of willows ready for market.

October 5, 1897, sparks from an engine set the muck on fire and a large portion of his farm burned over to a depth of from 12 to 36 inches. The willows were destroyed and the ground rendered valueless, hence the suit. The jury has it in charge, having been started Monday afternoon. Witnesses to prove the value of the land are being examined. It will be a hard fought case. Miller is represented by Walpole and Henry Colerick and D. M. Link. The railroad is represented by Stuart Brothers & Hammond and J. E. and J. H. Rose.

Carnival Benefit.

In order to clean up all deficiencies still lacking in the accounts still outstanding there will be a popular concert consisting of popular instrumental and vocal music, selections by the band, comical sketches, etc, at Henry's Opera House on Wedensday evening Oct. 19, for benefit of Carnival fund. Business men and others will be solicited to by seats at extra prices, as we feel that an extra effort should be made to have the matter all closed up satisfactorily.

Coming.

A company of homeless children from the New England Home for Little Wanderers, of Boston, Mass., will arrive in town next Saturday, 15th inst., accompanied by the Superintendent, Rev. Dr. Cooper. These children are of both sexes, from 3 to 12 years of age, healthy and well cultivated, for whom good christian homes are desired. "Whosoever shall receive one such child in my name, receiveth me."

They will be in the services of the M. E. and Evangelical Lutheran churches next Sunday morning, and in the Baptist and Church of God churches in the evening, when Dr. Cooper and Missionary Agent Noyes, will address the people respecting the work of the "Home." On Monday morning these children will be in the Baptist church at 9 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. and a few days following, and all are cordially invited to be present and assist in the responsible work of placing them in good homes.

BUTLER.

An infant child of Charles Capp, died and was buried last Sunday. The third of their children to die for them.

Miss Moss and Miss Jarvis, of Angola are starting a dressmaking establishment over Mrs. Hines' Millinery store.

Dr. E. Campbell was called to Garrett last Saturday to hold an inquest over the victims or the tragedy there

J. A. Campbell and wife visited at Angola and attended the fair last week

The Butler paper still maintains that eighty tons of tomatoes are worth $3000, but the producer that delivers them gets $6.00 per ton or $480. If this is correct it shows a profit of over 600 per cent. Why brave the cold to go to the Klondike?

R. C. Campbell and wife are visiting at Napoleon, and M. I. Campbell are visiting at Fort Wayne.

—Quite a number of our people visited Fort Wayne last week and speak favorably of the exhibits and of a big crowd.

The Angola fair was but meagerly attended. The exhibits in many departments was good. The big corn broke all previous records—the tallest man could not reach the ears. The stalks were almost 16 feet high.

Born Sunday Oct. 9, to Emlin V. and Laura A. Campbell a son, mother and child are doing well.

Oviatt Campbell, in the employ of the Lake Shore road as master mason was home over Sunday.

The Indian Outbreak.

The trouble with the Indians at Leech Lake reservation in Minnesota is about over. It is the same old story of wrongs and injustice by the whites. It appears that the Indians cannot cut timber on the reservation lands unless there is an account made of it and reported to the government. And in order to secure this accounting they must have a white man go with them when they want to cut timber and scale their trees or logs, so as to show just how much they have cut. And the Indians have to pay these white inspectors. This point is where the trouble started. These inspectors charged so much for their services, that the Indians could not stand it, and in spite of the advice of the more cool headed, a lot of the younger men went on the war path. In the skirmishes that followed, a number of soldiers sent there to prevent trouble, were killed. But at a meeting of chiefs and white men, including army officers, Saturday, the greater part of the Indians wish to be friendly. We, however, demand that they give up the young men who did the killing, and we shall punish them. If these men are given up, the trouble will stop. If the Indians refuse to give them up, then our soldiers will go and take them, and this may bring on another battle and a short war. We are sending several regiments there to be ready for whatever may happen but we believe the Indians do not want war.

POLITICS OF THE DAY

HIGH OR LOW PRICES.

The following question was asked of Mr. Owen, fusion candidate for Congress in Minneapolis:

Supposing the present amount of money is doubled and that prices in consequence should increase in the same proportion, where would the benefit come in? For example: A now sells 1,000 bushels of wheat for $500; after the increase in money he gets $1,000 for his wheat, but he can buy no more with his $1,000 than he could with his $500?

Mr. Owen's answer was as follows: "If one is to spend his entire income as he goes along, gives no thought to accumulation, and is out of debt, it would make no difference, providing everything went up or down in exactly the same proportion. But no man is prosperous unless he sells more than he buys. The laborer must sell his labor for more than it costs him to live or he is ever a slave; the farmer must get more for his crops than it costs to produce them or he will be in the same fix; the merchant must sell more than he buys, including cost of doing business, or he will soon be a bankrupt. If a farmer sells 1,000 bushels of wheat for $500 and expends in the operation $400 he has $100 left. If he gets double price for his wheat and pays double expenses his balance is $200. If he is in debt, and that is the condition of most farmers, unfortunately, the difference to him is enormous, for he can pay twice as much debt with the same effort as under low prices. But it is not true that all products will advance exactly alike. Destroy trusts, for instance, and without that no monetary system will afford much relief, and many articles of necessity would not advance because they are already higher priced than they would be if competition obtained in their manufacture and sale. And again, processes of making many things the farmer has to buy are cheapening much faster than the methods of producing farm crops, and while more abundant money would make the price of the first higher they would ever be relative to cost of production. Railroad transportation would not be higher, because it has not decreased locally with the decrease of price of commodities. Taxes would be no higher by reason of more money, for taxes have not decreased by reason of less money. And certain other fixed or arbitrary charges are in the same condition. But better than all figures and theories are the facts of history and experience, and they prove that prosperity is always more general and trade and industry flourishing, the people more contented and happier in periods of high prices. At the close of 1865 Hugh McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury, reported officially "that the people are now substantially out of debt," and that was after a period of excessively high prices and high taxes. There is no better test of the real prosperity of a people than their freedom from debt. In periods of high prices people can and do buy more, homes are better and better furnished, and their inmates better clothed, deprivations and want are minimized, labor is better employed, merchants are busier, railroads have more to do, factories are crowded with work, and farmers are in their best estate. The world's ages have been dark or light as money has been scarce or abundant, or prices high or low. No theories of those who now want to enslave the world's producers by the bond method can dissipate these facts of history."

Coinage Ratio.

Why should the coinage ratio between silver and gold be fixed at 16 to 1? Because that is the proportion, as near as can be ascertained, in which the metals exist in the earth. It is, therefore, the true ratio.

Although for several years the production of one metal at that ratio exceeds the other, yet in a long series of years the total amount produced is very near sixteen times as much silver as gold, or at coinage value, about equal.

The table of the production of silver and gold from 1741 to the present time shows that there was produced in that period 360,459,124 ounces of gold and 5,727,841,723 ounces of silver. Divide the silver by the gold and you will obtain as the result 15 8-9. That demonstrates that for the period of more than 150 years there was almost exactly 16 times as many ounces of silver produced as of gold, and that the coinage value of the same was about equal.

Our gold friends tell us that the mint is open to the free coinage of silver in Mexico and ask why does not that establish the parity of the metals. They talk of Mexico as if it were a gigantic power. Do you know that the commerce of Mexico is not equal to that of the State of Illinois, and would you expect the State of Illinois, unaided by the rest of the States in the Union, to establish the parity of the metals?

The reason Mexico does not establish the parity of the metals is because it is not sufficiently powerful in commerce to do so, but when you compare Mexico with the United States you compare a pigmy to a giant. You must remember that this great nation is composed of forty-five great States, and that an act of Congress is simply an international agreement in itself among those forty-five great States.

In determining what a powerful effect such a nation as the United States would have in establishing the parity of the metals, you must take into consideration the pivotal position that it occupies as to the monetary systems of the world. The silver standard nations, which make their demands upon silver alone for currency, constitute one-fourth of the nations of the world in commercial importance.

Japan Was Buncoed.

There was no country in the world more prosperous than Japan, until she was induced to adopt the gold standard. When the usurers got their clutch on her throat, strangulation speedily ensued. "War indemnity" is not the trouble. Germany was prosperous until she fell under the gold standard. She conquered Austria and France and created the German Empire under the silver standard. Her troubles began when the usurers induced Bismarck to accept the gold standard. That great man bitterly repented what he called a great mistake, claiming that he had been misled by the "financiers."—Cleveland Recorder.

Silver Remonetization.

Republicans who are extremely anxious to convince the people that silver sentiment is dead are saying that "events have changed the conditions since 1896." In what direction have the conditions been changed? Is the oppression of the people because of the gold standard relaxed in any degree? Are the prices of real estate advanced? Has the farmer experienced any benefits not brought about by foreign causes, such as the famine in India and the short crop of wheat abroad? As a matter of fact, the necessity of bringing about the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is more apparent to-day than ever. And as another matter of fact, there are more people to-day in the United States who favor such a change than there were in 1896.

In the south the silver question is very much alive, but not more so than in the west and northwest. So far as labor is concerned, the conditions are such as to demand the remonetization of silver. In this connection the Atlanta Constitution says:

"In certain classes of labor—the cotton operatives of New England—wages are in some instances below the pauper labor of Europe. A gold standard advocate will either not admit this or he will say that it is not a serious matter; but it is a very serious matter, indeed. By cutting off a part of our money supply we have suffocated demand in our home markets. To remedy this we have reduced wages to the European pauper level in order that we may compete with the products of this pauper labor in its own natural markets. Can that country, a country of 50-cent dollars! How about that other country, composed largely of the same kind of people that inhabit Mexico, that gold standard country, Spain? A written answer is not necessary, everybody knows it. Only a little over a year ago the foregoing description would have applied to Japan as well as Mexico. Japan was a silver, or bimetallic, country, and was developing and prospering in a marvelous manner. She was buncoed into adopting the gold standard, and is now in the market as a heavy borrower of gold to relieve the severe business depression she is experiencing! War may distract attention from it for a time, scarcity of products may for a few months seem to disprove it, but the passing years proclaim with doleful emphasis that the gold standard is a blight that withers wherever it strikes.

To Whitewash Alger.

It is quite just to call the committee appointed to investigate the conduct of the war "McKinley's committee." McKinley appointed the members of this committee to investigate the proceedings of Alger, who was also appointed by McKinley, and it looks as though the whole thing would be strictly a family affair. The whitewashing job has begun. The Chicago Democrat feels justified in calling it a whitewashing job from the fact that a large working majority of the members of this committee is made up of strong administration partisans, and from the conduct of the committee since it arrived in Washington. It is alleged that all of the members of the committee seem to be "very friendly to the administration." This is significant of the kind of verdict that will be rendered. Should the committee continue to work in secret it will demonstrate its inability to understand the temper of the people, and its findings will have little or no weight when they are made public.

Reform Needed in Army Affairs.

The only way in which we can avoid a repetition of the misconduct of our armies in case we again become involved in war is a reorganization of our military system on the latest and most approved lines of the science of warfare, and to absolutely eschew politics in its administration. We do not require a large standing army, but we do need a thoroughly modernized, unified system capable of standing any strain that may be put upon it.—Detroit Free Press.

SPREADING IT ON.

Vindication of St. Alger (?)—Chicago Democrat.

which gives the whip hand to misery, poverty, distress and degradation in this country be called a great victory for American trade?"

No, indeed; silver sentiment is not dead, nor have events changed the conditions since 1896. The monetary question is the great issue of to-day and will continue to be the great issue until it is settled and settled right.

Sixteen to One or Bust.

In response to a letter of inquiry written to Secretary Gage, the treasurer of the department at Washington states the total cost of the Spanish war from the beginning until August 31st after the close at $105,000,000. This is less than half the amount of the gold the McKinley administration is now hoarding in the treasury, yet it has had the hardihood to force an issue of $200,000,000 in bonds to draw interest from the scanty earnings of American labor! This money was not borrowed for war purposes, but to prevent the circulation of other money—of the $200,000,000 in Mr. McKinley's Wall street "war chest." The Wall street plutocracy compels the producers of the country to pay interest on one bond issue after another in order "to maintain the gold reserve"—that is, to keep over $200,000,000 in gold locked up out of circulation in order to increase the demand for and interest on national bank notes. A national bank note represents the extreme of inflation. It is 100 cents less than nothing. To demonetize silver and lock up gold in order to force the inflated and valueless paper of private corporations into circulation on the public credit is not only to invite but to compel panic after panic. For the business of the country—not less than for the Democratic party—it is 16 to 1 or bust!—St. Louis Journal of Agriculture.

Gold—Silver—Prosperity.

A City of Mexico special to the Boston Herald says:

"The general rise in real estate value is noteworthy. Many large industrial concerns are being established here, and large tracts of land near the railway have, in six months, quadrupled in price, while suburban lots show a continual upward tendency. The city is growing as never before in its history, and electric traction street car lines are now being definitely assured, and all material bought. People are beginning to buy lands outside of city limits. The suburbs are all showing a healthy growth, and in the heart of the city the tearing down of old buildings and replacing them with modern ones goes on without cessation. And this seems to be an example of conditions throughout the republic."

How is it possible that a gold standard paper, in gold standard New England, can give publicity and credence to such reports about a silver standard

Too Bad About the Incentive.

Under a system in which all could have plenty they tell me there would be no incentive to work, says J. A. Wayland. A tenant who gets all the crop could have no incentive—he must give some rent lord half he raises for an incentive! Or a man working for a dollar a day would have no incentive if he got $10.50. People who live in shanties would have no incentive to live if they were furnished good houses with all conveniences of science! There would be no incentive to board a train at one-fourth to one-half cent a mile, instead of paying the railroad kings 3 cents more. It is too bad about the incentive business.

Just So.

McKinley was elected President because he was powerless to do aught but the will of his masters. Of a quiet disposition, orderly and well disposed, he takes care of his family, goes to church, and leaves Lombard and Wall streets to take care of the state.

He Drew on Him.

It is not safe to presume too much on a stranger's knowledge of commercial and legal terms. J. E. Watrous, Deputy United States Marshal of Southern Kansas, narrates an incident which occurred when Kansas was not the cultivated commonwealth it has since become.

Mart Hoover, a resident of one of our rural towns, sent a consignment of corn to a commission merchant in Kansas City. In due time the merchant telegraphed, "Your credit is $27.40. Draw on me at sight."

But Hoover was angry. He had expected his money, not a telegram. He felt that he had been duped, and treasured up the grievance. About six weeks afterward the commission man went to Hoover's town, got out of the omnibus, and started to walk down the street. Hoover saw him, and instantly drew his revolver and fired. His eye was fairly good. The bullet cut away the merchant's necktie and unfastened his collar. Then Hoover put up his revolver.

"That's expensive shootin'," said he, "but I reckon you're as sorry as I am."

"What do you mean?" demanded the town constable, who came up at the moment.

"He told me to," said Hoover, surprised.

"Told you to?" demanded the white-cheeked city man. "I never did anything of the kind."

"You did," said Hoover; and drawing out the telegram, re read, "'Draw on me at sight.' I done it," he said.—Youth's Companion.

THE GAME SEASON.

A TIME OF KEEN DELIGHT FOR THE SPORTSMAN.

How Various Species of Game Are Hunted by Enthusiastic Nimrods—Variety of Game Laws in the States of the Central West.

It is a pity that the game laws are so different in the States, for the habits of game are the same in the central western country, and the variation in the laws breeds confusion. Thus, in Illinois, quail shooting begins Oct. 1 and lasts sixty days, while in Indiana the season does not begin until Nov. 10. The rare hunting in Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Dakota lures many an Eastern sportsman to the West, and these and other Western States have been obliged to adopt stringent rules during the past few years.

The best game bird with general scope of habitation is, of course, the quail. Hardy, prolific, strong of wing and lying well to dogs, it cannot be surpassed for upland shooting. They run an average of about six weeks' easy shooting, but are away like rockets with December. For the earlier shooting a pointer is used, but a setter is the best when the birds become scarce. The quail feeds about 9 o'clock in the morning. After that it is hard to trace them accurately, although they do a good deal of running about the corn fields. Stubbles, hedges, orchards, old deserted houses and old buckwheat fields are favorite haunts with this bird. A 12-gauge gun with three drams of smokeless powder and an ounce and a half of No. 7 or 8 shot is the proper equipment for quail shooting, although "everything goes" with this game, while in duck shooting it is necessary to have everything "just so."

The work of the game wardens in the West has been of vast material advantage in respect to prairie chickens, and to their diligence sportsmen are indebted for excellent game prospects in this line. The extent of the original favorite covey for the chickens—long prarie grass—has so narrowed that the birds now take to the corn. Prairie chickens begin to "pack," or gather in large crowds, about Nov. 10. They nest in the meadows and fence corners, in the sloughs and prairies, and range from 12 to 50 birds in a group. They will fly from one to two miles when disturbed, and, gifted with keen sense of hearing, will often get up as far as 100 yards from the shooters. Eight birds a day, or 24 pounds, is a good average for a sportsman. Of late years Dakota and Minnesota have become the best spots for prairie chicken shooting, but the birds are still found within a few miles of even the large cities in most all of the Western States.

Woodcock shooting begins very generally with early September. This game favors such localities as deserted farm houses, or timber on the hillside among springs. The woodcock is an elusive bird, and its hunting has become almost a sport of the past in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. Lakes and rivers everywhere, however, echo to the swish of hurrying water fowl and the report of the shotgun just now. Teal, mallard and woodcock are fairly plentiful in all localities, and canvasbacks, redheads, widgeons, pintails, ringbills, butterballs, bluebills, goldeneyes, spanbills and mergansers are scattered in groups through all the Western hunting districts. Duck shooting has become an art in the past ten years. Battery shooting, or shooting from a large boat sunk close to the level of the water, is not so favored in the West as blind shooting, pass shooting and jumping the birds. It takes an old hunter to build a blind and to pick the right place for its location. Seventeen volumes of directions would not educate a person to become a proficient in the various kinds of duck hunting; it takes nerve, skill, strength and endurance with shotgun and oar to make an adept.

STILL HUNTING DEER.

Deer and turkeys may be shot up to Jan. 1. Hounding the deer with dogs is generally prohibited, and the fee charged a non-resident hunter in the deer States—about $25—enforces still hunting. A 38-caliber rifle is the weapon most used, and a thorough knowledge of woodcraft, or the assistance of an expert guide, is essential to bring down the game finally.

The ruffled grouse season begins Oct. 1, and the birds are fairly plentiful. They are found in woods, in alder thickets, and go in coveys of from 10 to 20. This bird flies like a bullet, and it takes the best of snap shooting to bring him down as he hurtles through the trees. The jacksnipe affords ideal sport for the gun, but should be shot only in the spring. A man must be a good walker to hunt this bird, which haunts the sparse grass around swamps. Boggy meadows and corn fields are also a favorite cover for the game.

Squirrels, the fox and the grey, are on the alert as soon as the leaves begin to fall, and rabbits are plentiful with the first snows. Geese and trout are only occasional trophies of the hunter's prowess in the vicinity of the great lakes, although a great many geese are annually shot in Dakota and Minnesota. With all the great variety of sport to choose from, however, the hunter has much to congratulate himself on. The sport with the gun may be enjoyed by both rich and poor, and laid down at will by the novice. Still, its proper appreciation requires humanity, patience and a knowledge of the woods, streams and waters, and a skill with the shotgun learned by years of practice.

DUCK SHOOTING—AFTER A CRIPPLE.

FOR ATHLETES.

Machine Especially Designed for General Physical Training.

A machine especially designed for aquatic and general physical training, but which is also finely adapted to road and track work, is soon to be exhibited by an eastern company, under the direction of which it has been constructed. In effect, this new apparatus for gymnasium and road use is a bicycle and rowing machine combined. As the accompanying illustration indicates, the machine is propelled by oarlike attachments. It is propelled, steered, brake applied, gearing changed and bell rung all without changing position of the hands.

PROPELLED LIKE A BOAT.

At What Age Is Man Strongest?

The muscles, in common with all the organs of the body, have their stages of development and decline; our physical strength increases up to a certain age and then decreases. Tests of the strength of several thousands of people have been made by means of a dynamometer (strength measurer), and the following are given as the average figures for the white race:

The "lifting power" of a youth of 17 years is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds, and in the thirtieth and thirty-first years it reaches its height, 356 pounds. At the end of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very slowly at first.

By the fortieth year it has decreased eight pounds, and this diminution continues at a slightly increasing rate until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 330 pounds.

After this period the strength fails more and more rapidly until the weakness of old age is reached. It is not possible to give statistics of the decline of strength after the fiftieth year, as it varies to a large extent in different individuals.—The Strand.

Offhand Sleeping.

A gentleman, over 50, says: "I cultivated the habit of sleeping offhand when I was a youngster," he says, "and have kept it up ever since. I don't go to bed or lie down when I want to nap, but as soon as I feel drowsy I put my elbow on the back of my chair, rest my head upon my hand and go off sound for five minutes. When I wake up I am in first-class trim again. I have got so used to that way of napping that if I lie down I am wide awake in an instant."

ILLINOIS' FIRST STATE HOUSE.

The Old Pape Mansion Still Stands at Kaskaskia.

The old Pape mansion or the state house, as it was afterward called, is without doubt the oldest brick structure in the Mississippi valley. The old building now stands in what is about the center of the remains of the historic village of Old Kaskaskia, and unless some action is taken against the continual encroachments of the Mississippi river the house will ere long follow all the other old buildings in their course and fall a victim to the relentless waters.

The date of the erection of the building is veiled in uncertainty, but it was built some time about the year 1780. The material of which it is constructed, large square bricks, were brought down the Ohio river from Pittsburg, and thence up the Mississippi to Kaskaskia in keel boats. They were the first brick brought into the country then known as the Illinois territory and though more than 100 years have elapsed since they were put into the building they are still in a perfect state of preservation. The old house has been repaired from time to time and at present the outer walls are covered with a heavy coat of cement. The building has a most remarkable history.

It was erected as a residence, but as it neared completion, the various councils which met at Kaskaskia having no suitable building wherein they could hold their sessions, and as the Pape mansion was everything that could be desired the citizens of the town purchased the building and converted it into a public hall. In 1809, when all the territory lying west of the Wabash river and north as far as the Dominion of Canada line was organized into the Illinois territory, Kaskaskia became the territorial seat of government and the Pape mansion was converted into the assembly-house of the territorial legislature. On June 16, 1809, the first territorial legislature that ever met west of the Wabash river convened in this old building. The body was composed of General George Edwards, the territorial governor, and Judge Stuart and Judge Sprigg, two of the three supreme judges of the territory.

From June 16 until September 16 the counties of Madison, Gallatin and Johnson were organized, making altogether, with St. Clair and Randolph, five counties. One representative from each county was elected, and on November 10 Governor Edwards issued a proclamation ordering the representatives to convene at the Pape mansion at Kaskaskia, and here the first laws of the territory of Illinois were enacted. The large hall on the lower floor of the building was used as the assembly-room and the rooms in the upper story served as the offices of the governor and the other executive officers. It was in this building that the legislature incorporated the first bank in the territory, which was located at Cairo.

In the year 1818 Illinois, owing to her rapid progress, was admitted to the union as a state. The petition praying for the admission of the state into the union on an equal footing with the other states is said to have been framed in this old building. The legislature was in session at Kaskaskia in January of that year and the session was held in this building.

The interior of the house has now fallen to decay, and has long since been abandoned even by the present inhabitants of Kaskaskia.

The Treasurer Knew the Money Was Good.

Ex-Treasurer Jordan frequently amuses his friends by telling of an exciting experience he had while treasurer of the United States. Mr. Jordan occasionally indulges in joking remarks, uttered with a serious countenance. It was the indulgence of this proclivity, says the Washington Star, while connected with the Treasury Department, that came near resulting in his introduction to a pair of handcuffs and incarceration in a dingy cell. Mr. Jordan had occasion to make a trip to New York just at a time when a new $5 bill was issued by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It happened that the treasurer, on the day of starting on his trip, drew a portion of his salary, and the cashier handed him a bunch of the new $5 bills, which had reached the office within an hour. When he arrived in New York, Mr. Jordan proceeded to purchase some needed articles and handed the clerk one of the new bills. The clerk had never seen money that looked like that bill, which was spotless and uncrumpled by handling. He examined the alleged money and the man who gave it to him with equal care. Mr. Jordan watched him with suppressed amusement, and remarked in a matter-of-fact way:

"It's good money. I made it myself."

That was enough for the clerk, who went to the cashier's desk with the bill. There was a hurried conference, and a message was sent to police headquarters over the telephone. In a short time a couple of detectives in citizens' attire were standing on either side of the treasurer of the United States. They waited there to watch developments, fumbling their handcuffs in their pockets. In the meantime the cashier studied the new bill further, looked carefully over his counterfeit detector, and rummaged through treasury circulars relating to the issuance of money. Finally he came across a description of the new $5 bill which was to be issued by the Treasury Department. His message had not yet reached the clerk, who was exchanging significant glances with the detectives and watching Mr. Jordan, when the latter, getting tired waiting for his change, and realizing that his new money was probably puzzling the cashier, produced his card. At the same moment the cashier's message that the money was not counterfeit reached the clerk, the dectectives wandered off with crestfallen countenances and the treasurer proceeded to the nearest bank, where he exchanged his new bills for money that had passed through a thousand hands and was far from being sanitary.

A DOMESTIC INCIDENT

From the Observer, Flushing, Mich.

"Early in November, 1894," says Frank Long, who lives near Lennon, Mich., "on starting to get up from the dinner table, I was taken with a pain in my back. The pain increased and I was obliged to take to my bed. The physician who was summoned pronounced my case muscular rheumatism accompanied by lumbago. He gave me remedies and injected morphine into my arm to ease the pain.

"My disease gradually became worse, until I thought that death would be welcome release from my sufferings. Besides my regular physician I also consulted another, but he gave me no encouragement.

On Getting Up from the Table.

"I was finally induced through reading some accounts in the newspapers regarding the wonderful cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, to try them. I took the pills according to directions and soon began to notice an improvement in my condition. Before the first box was used I could get about the house, and after using five boxes was entirely cured.

"Since that time I have felt no return of the rheumatic pains. I am confident that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life and I try to induce my friends who are sick to try the same remedy. I will gladly answer inquiries concerning my sickness and wonderful cure, provided stamp is enclosed for reply.

FANNY DAVENPORT.

Death Ends a Long and Remarkably Successful Dramatic Career.

The death of Fannie Davenport removes one of the best known and most successful actresses on the American stage. Her dramatic career began when she was a little girl and extended over a period of forty years.

Fanny Davenport inherited her dramatic talent, her father being Edgar L. Davenport, while her mother was known on the English stage as Fannie Vining. The daughter was born in London in 1850 and she came to this country in 1854 with her parents. She made her debut as a child in Boston. When 13 she went to Louisville to fill soubrette roles. Next she played with Mrs. John Drew in opera and drama. Her ability attracted the attention of Augustin Daly, and under his management she came to the front rank of American actresses. For many years she had been her own manager and met with great success here and abroad. Some of the roles in which she made a name for herself were Rosalind, Nancy Sikes, Lady Teazle, Fedora, La Tosca and Cleopatra. Her splendid impersonations made Sardou's dramas popular with the American people. In 1891, while Cleopatra was being produced at the Fifth Avenue Theater, New York, the theater was burned to the ground and Miss Davenport experienced a great loss. The entire production, however, was replaced in three weeks.

FANNY DAVENPORT.

As an actress Fanny Davenport was noted for her strong artistic sincerity and the intelligence of her vivid dramatic style made her particularly effective in roles requiring breadth and power. She was regarded as one of the ablest stage managers in this country. She was twice married, her first husband being Edwin H. Price, to whom she was wedded in 1879, and her second, Melbourne MacDonald, who was her leading man for several years.

HEAD OF A LAW COLLEGE.

Unique Position Held by Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, of Washington.

Dean of a law college is certainly a unique position for a woman to occupy. Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey fills this position in the Washington College of Law. Mrs. Mussey is an Ohioan by birth and is the daughter of the author of the Spencerian system of writing.

MRS. ELLEN SPENCER MUSSEY.

As a young woman she married Gen. R. D. Mussey, an able Washington lawyer, and with him she studied law. Some years after their marriage Gen. Mussey had a severe illness, and Mrs. Mussey went into his office to conduct the business, intending to retire on his restoration to health, but the general insisted on retaining her as his partner, and the relation existed for sixteen years, terminating only at his death in 1892. Mrs. Mussey has ever since conducted the business, retaining the large clientele of her husband, as well as becoming the attorney for many women and women's associations. She practices before all the courts of the district, including the Supreme Court of the United States. She has been dean of the law college a number of years.

THE THINGS MEN EAT.

Obvious Relations of Diet to the Individual.

One's mind depends in a great measure on one's food. Primitive man, with his large digestive organs, small brain and rudimentary soul, desired fresh killed game, which he ate without flavorings, sauces or condiments. Potatoes and fine fruits and vegetables were unknown. As he migrated he began to depend on the products of the soil more and more. Ancient Egypt, during her period of highest civilization, subsisted on millet, dates, fruits and cereals.

Athletic Greece achieved her greatest culture on two meals a day, consisting of maize and vegetables steeped in oil. The decline of a nation commences when gormandizing begins. Rome's collapse was well under way when slaves were thrown into the eel pits to increase the gamy flavor of the eels when they came upon the table.

Of pugnacious and warlike nations one may predict a freshly laden table accompanied by the wassail bowl in some one of its manifestations. The Teutonic type of soul prefers the alcoholism of hops, while the Latin races have identified themselves with the juice of the grape.

A diet curve might be mathematically plotted, showing a direct ratio between the food and the mental and psychical status of the individual or the race. Given so much flesh, pastry, beer and ale, the result can be written down in lymphatic brain, fighting proclivities and sensuality. Given a working hypothesis of nitrogenous cereals, nuts and fruits, the returns can be counted in intellectual activity and a more or less vitalized golden rule. When Rudyard Kipling immortalized "the great pie belt" of New England he illustrated the humorous side of the diet question—a never failing source of entertainment to the observer. Boston's baked beans and codfish balls afford ever fresh material for international witticisms; although the great Horace, Ruskin and others, in lauding the nutritive virtues of the "leguminosae," failed to excite mirth.

The central figure in western baseball is by unanimous consent conceded to be Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the Western Baseball League. He was elected to the position while head of the sporting department of a Cincinnati paper, and for one year he filled the dual role. With the growth of baseball interest in the West he found it necessary to devote his entire time to the league. President Johnson was born

None to Match.

"Have you any neckties?" inquired a dandified young man, addressing the proprietor of the Cedarby "corner store." Then, turning to his companion, he said, with a slight lisp, "I have a fad for getting neckties as souvenirs of every place I visit. It's my own idea, you know."

"What color do you want, young man?" inquired the proprietor, surveying his customer through a pair of iron bowed spectacles.

"Oh—ah—I'm very fond of having them match the color of my eyes," said the young man, languidly, opening his small orbs to their widest extent.

"Haven't got any neckties that'll do, then," said the proprietor, shaking his head decidedly. "I've got plain blue ones, real pale blue, but none with pink edges."—Youth's Companion.

Strange Insanity.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, in her "Memoirs of a Highland Lady," tells of an old Scotchman who once took the strange whim that he was a turkey hen. He made a nest of straw in his carriage, and filled it with eggs and a large stone, and there he sat, hatching, leaving his station only twice a day, like other fowl, and having his food brought to him. His friends had at last to watch a proper moment to throw out the eggs and put some young chickens in their place. Then the old man, satisfied that he had accomplished his task, went about clucking and strutting in the midst of his brood.

Our Treatment of Spanish Captives.

Never before in history was there a case where a defeated and captive enemy received such generous treatment as we gave the Spaniards. Equally astonishing are the cures brought about by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Never has there been so successful a medicine for stomach and liver disorders like dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness and constipation.

His Home-Run Hit.

There had been some hard words from each on the faults of the opposite sex, and she finally gave what she thought would be a parting shot.

"You rail at us," she said, "and make fun of us, but what, I ask you, would you do without women?"

"Get rich," he replied promptly, and she was indignant that it took her three weeks to make up her mind to ask for a new bonnet.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Hawaiian Islands.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway has issued a booklet with the above title, giving a brief description of these islands, their topography, climate, natural resources, railways, schools, population, etc. It contains a folding map and mentions the various steamship lines plying between the Pacific ports and the islands. Attention is also called to the unparalleled facilities offered by the North-Western Line, "the Pioneer Line west and north-west of Chicago," for reaching San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and other western points. The booklet will be sent to any address upon receipt of four cents in stamps by W. B. Kniskern, 22 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS ABOUT OVARITIS.

Letter from Mrs. Carrie F. Tremper that all Suffering Women Should Read.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation with all its terrors may easily result from neglect.

The fullest counsel on this subject can be secured without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and asking for her advice. Your letter will be confidential and seen by women only.

MRS. CARRIE F. TREMPER, Lake, Ind., whose letter we print, is only one of many that have been cured of ovarian troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was suffering from congestion of the ovaries, misplacement of the womb, irregular, scanty, and painful menstruation, also kidney trouble. I had let it go on until I could not sit up, and could not straighten my left leg. My physician gave me relief, but failed to cure me. Reading the testimonials of different women, telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for them, I decided to give it a trial. I had almost given up hopes, as I had suffered untold agony. The first dose helped me. And now, after using eight bottles of Vegetable Compound, one bottle of Blood Purifier, one box of Liver Pills, I am proud to say I am as well as I ever was. I might have saved a large doctor's bill and much suffering, had I tried your precious medicine in the beginning of my sickness. All in the village know I was not expected to live, when I had the first and second attacks. In fact, I had no hope until I began taking your Vegetable Compound. It has saved my life."

A Fleshy Consumptive

Did you ever see one? Did you ever hear of one?

Most certainly not. Consumption is a disease that invariably causes loss of flesh.

If you are light in weight, even if your cough is only a slight one, you should certainly take of cod liver oil with hypophosphites. No remedy is such a perfect preventive to consumption. Just the moment your throat begins to weaken and you find you are losing flesh, you should begin to take it.

And no other remedy has cured so many cases of consumption. Unless you are far advanced with this disease, Scott's Emulsion will hold every inducement to you for a perfect cure.

Daughter Of The Confederacy.

The life of Var na Anne Jefferson-Davis or Winnie Davis, as she was more commonly called, began amid the storms of war June 27, 1864, in the White House of the South, in Richmond. Miss Davis was educated in France and Germany, and became her father's companion and secretary, and assistant in his literary work.

In social life Miss Davis took the rank to which her birth, natural talents and education entitled her. According to a writer in Harper's Bazar, she was gracious in manner, kindly in disposition, and counted her friends by the score, without regard to lines, sectional or geographical. At an early age she showed marked literary inclinations, and this tendency in later life she turned to active use. Her first novel was The Veiled Doctor, a story of Southern life, which showed elements of strength and dramatic power. The book was very well received; and her second one, A Romance of Summer Seas, which appeared about two months ago, shows a great advance in story-telling power, and is marked by a sprightly style and an undercurrent of of humor often verging on wit. Miss Davis was just making for herself a position in the field of literature, when death stopped the busy pen. But the love which was hers in life goes beyond the grave, and holds in tender recollection one who combined in her person all that was noble, gentle, and true in Southern womanhood.

DeKalb Truancy Districts.

The State Truancy Board has made the following provisions for executing the Truancy Law in DeKalb County:

The county has been divided into two districts. District one consists of the townships of Fairfield, Franklin, Troy, Richland, Smithfield and Grant, including the towns of Waterloo and Ashley. Arthur Daniels, of Smithfield tewdship, postoffice at Waterloo, has been appointed truant officer.

District number two consists of the townships of Keyser, Butler, Union, Jackson, Wilmington, Concord, Stafford and Newville, including the towns of Garrett, Auburn and Butler. Edward VanFleit, of Garrett, has been appointed truant officer for this district.

TOOK A LIFE TIME,

But Was Amply Rewarded—The Knowledge Acquired Graciously

DEDICATED TO HUMANITY.

Many years ago Dr. Wheeler, then a young man with keen perception of physical needs, noted the lack of knowledge in the treatment of nerves, and through them the entire system. He determined to devote his life and direct his efforts to the study and treatment of that mysterious and subtle structure. He followed his determination well and successfully, and as a result the world is endowed with a remedy, Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, which is a specific for all nervous troubles. It remained for Dr. Wheeler to present and develop the fact that disease is a result of a debilitated nerve system; that strong nerves make health. Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer is, beyond all doubt, the true remedy for sick nerves. W. A. Emmons, Pettysville, Ohio, endorses this statement. He says:

"Last summer I was stricken with sleeplessness and nervous prostration. I could get no relief, and was growing worse when Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer was recommended. The first bottle helped me and the third one restored me to perfect health. During my sickness I lost 20 pounds, which I soon regained after the use of this valuable medicine."

Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer is not an experimental compound, neither is its virtue confined to the treatment of special sets of nerves, but through the entire nervous system, restoring strength to all the vital organs.

FORT WAYNE'S BIG DAY.

The Largest Crowd Ever Seen In Our Sister City Was Well Entertained And Cared For.

Yesterday was the great day at the Fort Wayne Carnival, and for the benefit of the Auburn people who did not go, we give a brief note of it. The grand parade, was made up mainly of the same things as that of Wednesday, and was a very creditable affair. Some of the floats must have cost a considerable money. The evening was chilly and many a gorgeously clad goddess sported a blue nose, and appeared badly chilled, for a goddess. Still, they were handsome ladies and had evidently been chosen largely on that basis.

The military parade was very limited when we consider the large number of soldiers in that city, and the great crowd prevented many from seeing those who did march.

There was an abundance of colored lights, and this added to the beauty of the floats.

The cutest thing was the outfit of a disciple of Wilkins, the "wax statoot man." He is following up some of Wilkins' ideas on a different line. In the parade he represented the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty that stands on a little rocky island in New York harbor, and is intended to represent "Liberty Enlightening the World." The goddess holds aloft, a torch in her right hand, and from points of the crown of glory on her head, other lights are shining, so with the man.

He was dressed as the goddess and stood erect and immovable on his wagon. From the crown on his head shone out a number of small electric lights, probably produced on the arc light plan, only very small. They looked like glittering stars. In his upraised hand, he held the torch, which appeared to be a large, and somewhat diffused electric light shining out through a long bulb of what appeared to be ground glass. It looked as if these might have been produced from a small battery on his wagon, but we could not say, or there may have been some other ingenious way in which the lights were produced. It was quite a unique affair. But the most wonderful part of it was the man himself, who could for so long a time maintain an upright and immovable position and with his hand and arm extended above his head as motionless as if made of bronze or marble. The human body seems to be developing new capabilities.

The "Midway" was very properly set off by itself about "midway" beteen the main city and the north side It had the usual number of fakirs and venders of all sorts of things. All the shows charged an admittance, except the "Monte Carlo," which as its name indicates was a straight-out gambling booth. Everybody was asked to enter and just what was the game after getting in, we do not understand. But those who seems to understand such things say the tables were piled with money, and that it was a lively tent all the week.

"WELCOME"

The magic word was seen every where. It was over the stores, on decorations, on restaurants, on temporary church supper rooms, on arches, it was always prominent, and as if to give it a touch of irony it stood out in letters a foot square over the big portal of the Allen county jail. Here is food for reflection.

We saw but little drunkenness, and the crowd was very orderly and very good natured. And the police should be complimented on the small amount pocket picking that was done. We presume they arrested more or less of these lightfingered gentry and ran them in under the big "Welcome" at the jail, and then kept them there. Auburn officials, it will be remembered ran in a few of them, and then let them saw the bars and get a way.

THE PRESS CLUB.

Fort Wayne's Club kept open house in their elegant new quarters in the Building Loan Block on East Berry-st, and here the berthern were welcomed, and entertained in the hearty manner always characteric of these literary gentlemen. Any newspaper man who did not call there, missed the most agreeable feature of Fort Wayne's "largest sized" week. The "writer hereof," thanks the guild for a hearly welcome.

There were remarkably few accidents when we consider the crowded streets and the great difficulty the street cars had in pushing their way through the dense jam at the corner of Calhoun and Wayne-sts, as well as at other points. The most serious accident we heard of, was what happened to a young lady living with Rev. W. D. Parr, the M. E. minister so well known here and at Waterloo. She thought some one was taking her pocket book and in the struggle she fell or was pushed over by the crowd and trampled on. She was seriously hurt, but it is believed she may recover.

There were great numbers of booths in which to show goods or sell goods, but they did not seem to attract much attention. People do not go to a street fair to buy anything or to learn anything.

The store windows over the city were made attractive and lovely by the judicious arrangement of costly goods and wares. But there was little or no effort at merely artistic decorations, so prominent in Auburn stores at our Carnival. Some large buildings elaborately decorated on the outside, with the red, white and blue bunting and other patriotic emblems. But the city does not seem to have adopted any colors to be considered distinctively their own. Auburn's colors have become an important feature, and the lovely yellow and blue will continue to be used for decorations on future public occasions, whether for a Carnival or for something else. It works well in assisting to set off the bunting in national colors, and which will of course always be used.

THE STATE PLATFORMS.

DEMOCRATIC—

multiplied, the cost of the necessaries of life has been increased and the wages of labor have not been advanced, and which has entailed upon the country a deficit of many millions to be made up only by additional taxation in time of war, thus imposing, instead of a benefit, an onerous burden upon the people of the United States.

—REPUBLICAN

are daily accumulating in the way of renewed business prosperity and ample revenue for ordinary governmental expenditures. We, therefore, reaffirm our belief in the doctrine of reciprocity and protection to American labor and home industries and condemn the Democratic doctrine of tariff for revenue only as unsound and unsuited to the best interests of the country, a doctrine the falsity of which has been demonstrated by our experience under the Wilson revenue bill that plunged the nation into commercial and financial distress, from which it is fast recovering since the change from that Democratic policy.

ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS.

We reaffirm and emphasize our repeated declarations in favor of the election of United States senators by the people.

LABOR.

We sincerely sympathize with organized labor in its efforts to adjust differences between the employer and employe. We denounce the incorporated trusts which have overcome these efforts by cruel and unjust methods and we favor a system of equal and disinterested arbitration as a means of adjustment of such differences.

We take pride in the long list of laws enacted by Democratic legislatures for the benefit of the workingmen of the state, including the 8-hour labor law, the law prohibiting "pluck-me stores," the repeal of the infamous Republican intimidation laws, the law prohibiting the importation of Pinkertons, the law prohibiting "blacklisting," the miners' law providing for the proper ventilation of mines and the use of honest weights and screens; the law protecting workingmen in the right to organize for mutual defense, the co-employes' liability law, the mechanics' lien law, the law prohibiting the forced collection of fees from employes of railroad corporations to sustain company hospitals, restaurants, etc., the law guaranteeing the civil rights of all citizens, and the law prohibiting the importation of paupers and aliens under contract into the state who have no purpose of becoming citizens thereof.

We demand a more thorough enforcement of the 8-hour and other laws in the interest of labor by the public officials charged with that duty.

We are opposed to the contract labor system in prison, but we believe that to maintain convicts in idleness is inhuman and unjustly burdensome to the people. We believe some plan should be devised for the profitable utilization of their labor without bringing it into competition with free labor. The projects for its employment under the public account system or in the construction of a ship canal connecting Lake Michigan with the Wabash river, or in some other enterprise of great public utility should be carefully considered and that plan which promises the best results and is open to the fewest objections should be adopted by the next legislature.

We approve the child labor and factory inspection law, and favor such amendments to the same as shall render it more effective.

We favor the enactment and enforcement of laws restricting and preventing the immigration of such undesirable foreign population as is prejudicial to free American labor.

THE DEMOCRATIC TAX LAW.

We congratulate the taxpayers of Indiana upon the rapid decrease in the state debt, and beg to remind them that the revenues with which the payments thereon have been made and are being made result from the enforcement of the Democratic tax law of 1891, which was enacted by a Democratic legislature over Republican opposition and protest, which was assailed by a Republican state convention, denounced by Republican orators and the entire Republican press, but which was sustained in the highest court of the nation through the efforts of a Democratic attorney general. Every dollar paid on the state debt by Republican officials is cumulative evidence of the stupidity, or worse, of the Republican organization in its bitter opposition to the law which made such payment possible, and which, since coming into power, they have made no effort to repeal.

We also recall that a Democratic legislature enacted a law creating a sinking fund of 3 cents on the $100, to be applied exclusively to the extinguishment of the state debt, and that under these laws the Democratic administration of Governor Matthews, in 1895 and 1896, set the pace by reducing the state debt more than $2,000,000.

We commend the wise, prudent, patriotic and economical administration of Governor Mount and the Republican state officials, under which, with a reduction of 25 per centum in the state tax rate within the last 18 months, $920,000 of the state debt has been discharged; an army of over 7,000 men has been equipped and placed in the field at an expense of over $200,000; the laws have been enforced and the name of Indiana honored throughout the land.

GENERAL STATE ISSUES.

The Democratic party feels a just pride in the other great legislative reforms it has accomplished for the people of Indiana and points to their continuing benefits as certain proof of their wisdom. We call attention to the Australian ballot law, enacted against Republican opposition and still having a great purifying effect on elections notwithstanding the Republican amendments lessening its safeguards; to the board of state charities law for the supervision and regulation of our penal and charitable institutions, to the school book law, by which the great school book trust has been driven from the state, the price of the books used in public schools has been reduced over one-half and the frequent changes in books, formerly so burdensome to the people and detrimental to the schools, have been prevented; to the fee and salary law and other great measures of reform which the state of Indiana owes to the Democratic party.

We call attention to the record of the last two legislatures, each Republican in both branches, which made scarcely a law of material benefit to the people. Both of these legislatures were marked by corruption and debauchery so scandalous that even Republican organs were driven to denounce them. They have to their credit the iniquitous special verdict law—made in one and repealed in the other; the present legislative gerrymander, by which the senate is given 51 members, in violation of the constitution; the antitrust law, inspired by trust attorneys and purposely made so worthless that Republican state officials dare not attempt to enforce it; an oppressive garnishee law, which undertook to deprive wage-earners of the state of their constitutional right of exemption; and the outrageous partisan measures to extend the term of the appellate judges, county superintendents and township trustees.

In 1895-97, for the first time since 1883, owing to the vicious system of enacting apportionment laws, whereby the minority might still control the majority, the Republican party found itself in condition to legislate for the state, and the laws that it wisely enacted and the other measures which it still more wisely refused to pass, constitute an epoch in legislation that is an enduring monument to the faithfulness and intelligence of the party which the Fifty-ninth and sixtieth general assemblies represented. Among the many wise and just measures of legislation that stand upon the statute books as the result of the labors of those two general assemblies, are the acts creating a labor commission; providing means for the settlement of disputes between employers and employes by arbitration; abolishing the prison contract system; taking convict labor out of competition with free labor; providing for factory inspection and the protection of the lives and health of operatives and prohibiting the employment of child labor; providing safeguards in the auditing of public expenditures; complying with the constitutional mandate that the penal code should be founded on principles of reformation and not of vindictive justice; providing for the protection of the people against incompetent and inefficient professional men; making permanent in county and extending to state officials the provision that officers shall be paid according to their services, and not constitute a burden upon the people by reason of excessive fees and salaries; the taking of the benevolent institutions out of the purview of partisan politics, whereby the poor and unfortunate wards of the state are assured competent and humane treatment; and above all, the enactment of an honest, fair and constitutional apportionment law. These acts emphasize and illustrate the intelligence and integrity of the 59th and 60th general assemblies, and we congratulate the Republican party and people of the state on their action.

PRIMARY ELECTION REFORM.

We are earnestly in favor of legislation for the regulation and reform of primary elections.

We favor, as a supplement to our present election law, the enactment by the next legislature of such a primary election law as will secure to the people a full and free expression in the selection of their candidates for office.

COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP GOVERNMENT.

We recognize the existence of grave defects in the laws governing counties and townships of this state. We favor a complete and systematic revision of such laws to the end that public business may be transacted with greater efficiency and economy.

Believing that there is need of reform in county and township government, and that a vast saving of the public money can be made by better methods, we favor early and thorough revision of the laws upon this subject, to the end that the people of Indiana may have the best and most economical management of local affairs.

THE TRUANCY LAW.

We favor such an amendment of the truancy law, which now requires a large and unnecessary expenditure of public moneys, so as to transfer the duties of such officials to township trustees, who shall perform the same without further compensation.

PERSONAL LIBERTY.

We adhere firmly to the teachings and practices of the Democratic party in favor of the largest measure of personal liberty consistant with public security and social order. We are opposed to all projects of legislative interference with, or regulation of, matters which lie within the domain of individual judgment and conscience.

Where Vegetation Ceases.

Vines grow at the height of 2,380 feet above the level of the sea, trees at 6,700 feet, shrubs at 8,500 feet, a few plants at 10,500 feet; beyond which are a few lichens, and vegetation ceases entirely at the height of 11,000 feet amid Arctic cold.

God Is with Us.

If we may, then, believe in a present God, a God near by, a God who cares, why then, we can bear anything, we can face any enemy. In the midst of poverty, outcast, we can be patient and we can be strong.—Rev. M. J. Savage.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Geo. Shugers was at home yesterday from Coldwater.

—Mrs. S. M. Knott was here today settling up the estate of her late husband.

—Orrin Miller shows no change in his condition. He lies helpless and largely unconscious.

—Frank Zimmerman and Henry McIntyre are at St. Louis attending a meeting of carriage manufacturers.

—Evan Kutzner is getting along nicely, but is so sore from his injuries that he cannot move himself in bed.

—We are glad to note that Maud Trover is getting quite a number of pupils in music. She is a capable teacher.

—Mrs. Bolender's daughter and her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, are attending the annual meeting of the Dunkers in Richland.

—The COURIER is under obligations to the South Auburn Mills for a sack of fine, new cornmeal. We are told they are making things hum down there.

—S. J. Tarney sends the COURIER to his son Joseph, at Bloomington University and to his daughter Stella, who is at the State Normal at Terre Haute. So they will hear all the home news.

—L. B. Fretz came home Saturday. It turns out to be a hoax in regard to his being in jail He was entertained by the sheriff in the jail residence, and his sister took occasion to write home in a joking way, which was taken seriously.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

Thursday's Daily.

—Mrs. C. W. Reesch of Garrett was here today and advanced her subscription to the COURIER.

—It appears that the sickness of Mrs. Charlie Bartles is caused by heart trouble that has troubled her for some time.

—Capt. Levi Denison, of Company I, was over from Garrett, today. Several of his men are still on the sick list. We see by the Press that Ed Willis is slightly better, which we are very glad to hear.

—Farmers say that the hot damp fall weather has caused a little damage to the corn that is cut and shocked, especially on low ground. Some of it has started to mold and this can only be stopped by dry or cold weather.

—Wm. Ensley brought in a queer looking squash yesterday, or rather it looks like a cross between a pumpkin and a squash. It is called the Japanese squash, and is said to be excellent eating. He had a large crop of them this year.

—Veneer cutting has reached such perfection that a single elephant's tusk thirty inches long is now cut in London into a sheet of ivory 150 inches long and twenty inches wide, and some sheets of rosewood and mahogany are only about a fiftieth of an inch thick.

—And still we hear every day of more fruit trees having blossoms. Our own plum trees that had fall flowers are young and have never borne fruit. It looks as if being new in the business, they didn't know exactly what part of the year was the proper one for starting a crop.

—Miss Jennie Ryerson, who recently visited the COURIER folks, received a dispatch soon after reaching Chicago, that her brother Frank had died at Goshen. He had been sick for some time. The elder brother, Ira, is in the asylum at Logansport, helpless, with softening of the brain.

—One Minute Cough Cure surprises people by its quick cures and children may take it in large quantities without the least danger. It has won for itself the best reputation of any preparation used today for colds, croup, tickling in the throat or obstinate coughs. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—There is chronicled from the coral reef of Funafuti, in the South Pacific, a boring of the reef by a scientific expedition to ascertain the thickness of the coral. At a depth of almost 700 feet bedrock had not been reached, showing the wonderful work of the tiny builders of the coral reef.

—T. C. Ford reached home yesterday afternoon after a week or two spent it the west. He visited several points including the great Omaha Exposition which he says is fine. Then he visited Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, and the latter's daughter, Pearl Kelley, and found all well. He also called on the Austin families and had an agreeable visit.

—We received yesterday a bushel of large, select peaches, from Hon. E. W. Davis and wife, of Hatche's Mills. They were of their own raising and nothing equal to that bushel of peaches has been seen in DeKalb county since we have lived in it. That is the kind of a sister to have. It is altogether better than being fed by the ravens, like some of the fellows had it in olden times.

—Mrs. J. M. Kimsey, for so many years a resident of Waterloo, was here yesterday and called to see the old neighbors of the COURIER family. They have been residents of Toledo a number years, and she was back to bring the remains of her grandmother, Mrs. Forsythe, who had died at the age of 82. Mr. and Mrs. Kimsey and the latters brother Ferg, still form one family as of old. Their daughters, are all married and their sons grown. One of the daughters, Mrs. Dr. Broughton lives in Waterloo, and the Doctor brought Mrs. Kimsey over here.

Friday's Daily.

—Phil Plum, of Waterloo, was on our streets today.

—Mrs. C. P. Houser returned to Indianapolis today, after a visit with the old friends and neighbors here for several weeks.

—Mrs. Hod Kirtcher, of Chicago, returned to her home today after spending a few days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Foltz.

—Fort Wayne Journal:—Mrs. A. B. Steel, of Auburn, and Mr. Harry Trentman and sister, born of Auburn, are visiting Mrs. Charles Muhler, sr.

—Mrs. Alice Grogg and Mrs. Alvin Baker came back from Indianapolis yesterday. They were delegates to the state meeting of the Rathbone Sisters.

—MARRIED:—at the Lutheran parsonage last evening Oct. 6, by Rev. J. D. Brosy, Arthur Cool and Mary Debelius. We extend to this young couple our best wishes. May success attend their efforts.

—T. J. Saxton has taken a pretty effective way to preserve the young grass in the parking in front of his residence He strewed it with light boughs of the maple trees and then pinned a politely worded request on each of the trees. We hope the experiment will prove that it pays to be polite.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—John Griest, of Newville, called on us today, in company with J. M. Johnson, the two families being old-time friends and neighbors. He is here visiting his son, Mr. Greist, of the laundry. His wife being dead, he spends a good deal of his time in this place or with a daughter who lives in Paulding, Ohio. Mr. Greist's parents moved to this county in 1843, and so were among the earliest pioneers of DeKalb.

Saturday's Daily.

—For Fertilizers, see Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind. 31—tf

—C. V. Hoffman of Jackson was here on business today.

—Geo. Shugers, of Coldwater, Mich., returned to his home today.

—Misses Clara and Zora Sommers returned from their visit with Fort Wayne friends, at noon.

—Uncle Jimmie Latson returned from his visit in Michigan, last evening looking as if he had lived well up there.

—Karl Husselman came back from Indianapolis yesterday. He had been making a visit with his young friend Billings, who often visits them here.

—Hon. Cal. Husselman goes to Lafayette next week to attend the meeting of the Farmers' Institutes Lecturers he being one of them. They meet Tuesday and Wednesday.

—Bonds of all officers or employes, also administrators, guardians etc issued in the original Baltimore Bonding Company at lowest rates by

WALTER C. HARTMAN.

—When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Young Towne, a member of the Third Regular Infantry, who has been visiting his people here, has left for Minnesota, where his regiment is fight the Indians at Leech Lake. In the battle the other day, his major was one of those killed.

—C. W. Husselman brought us in this week, quite a lot of stove wood that considered from all points, is the best we have had in years. In fact good, hard wood, is not always to be had, and it will be but a few years till we will have none but soft wood to use.

—Bristol Banner:—Robert Rinehart, of Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders, returned to his fathers's home near Sailor last Saturday. He is quite ill having just arisen from a sick bed in Elkhart where he was confined by an attack of malarial fever for nearly two weeks.

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Cliff Coldwell had a queer accident this noon just as the men were leaving the Kiblinger factory Clyde Myers and Delta Livergood were tossing back and forth, a good sized stone, when Clyde failed to catch it and it struck on top of Cliff's foot and he was not able to walk home but was driven in a rig to his home at Dr. Fords. It will probably not prove serious.

Hobson Still at Work.

Hobson can sink ships and can raise them. The latest from Santiago speaks of his success in saving the valuable guns in the sunken and wrecked Spanise ships. Where the ship cannot be saved he gets out all the valuable property of all kinds that can be got out. He has brought to Santiago a number of six-inch and ordnance guns of smaller calibre, taken from sunken Spanish ships. He will start seventy men to work saving the Colon today. The Teresa is ready to sail for the United States Monday. Hobson says he will save all the big guns from the Spanish ships as soon as a derrick boat arrives.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Thursday's Daily.

CAMP MOUNT, IND. Oct. 12, Today has been one of activity with the 157th This morning the regiment partook of its initiatory breakfast at "Burnette's Cafe." The bill of fare was composed of fried ham, fried potatoes, oat meal with milk and sugar, "good" butter, baker's bread and coffe. Everything was clean and well cooked, and the boys were more than delighted with the arrangement, as the fare is better than was expected, and far better than camp cooking. The dining halls were transformed out of the large implement sheds, which front on the main drive way in the fair grounds Large curtains made of heavy ducking are used as enclosures. Two large tables with seating attachtments are awarded each company. A corps of efficient waiters—two to each table—are in attendance to the wants of the boys. The scene presents a sight worth witnessing, over two thousand busy arms shoveling in the same article of food at the same time. After breafast the regiment moved into barns—Company K assigned to barn "B" (Jersey Cattle,) which sits opposite the dining hall The boys are in jubilant spirits and seem to enjoy themselves very much. A goodly number of the regiment holidayed in the city yesterday—even Sergeant Hilkey of Co. K deserted camp.

No active progress as yet has been made to muster out, but things will commence in good earnest tomorrow, Thursday.

Lieut. Col. May is in command of the regiment owing to the indisposition of Col. Studebaker.

Friday's Daily.

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct. 13.—The preliminaries prior to mustering out commenced in earnest yesterday at one o'clock. All regimental property, such as tents, commissary stores, etc, were checked up and turned in. Mustering out officer, Lieut Waterman, has readily established himself in the favor of all by his genial spirit and gentlemanly bearing, and efficiency, to more than perfectly fulfill his commission to the fullest satisfaction of the government. Judging from the smoothness and rapidity of the progress of things, it will be a matter of only a very few days until the 157th regiment will pass into history. All military conventionalities, as much as possible, have been dispensed with, and the boys are taking advantage of it to have "just as good a time as possible"—in a gentlemanly way. Pains have not been spared upon the part of Lieut Col. May to procure everything necessary for the comfort of the men. Owing to increasing inclemency and coldness of the weather, gas stoves were put in every quarter and gas attachments are now being connected. "The Burnette Cafe" is still running in full blast, and everything that could be expected is served to appease the appetites of the men, The men who were convalescing from sickness while at home are rapidly growing hearty. Great progress is expected toward mustering out the regiment Friday and Saturday.

Saturday's Daily.

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct. 14, 1898. Placing it in a mild light, all would not be far from wrong if we should say the weather was "cold as blazes". A cold misty rain began to fall yesterday afternoon at about 3:30 and continued to rain until near midnight, since when, the weather has been increasing in coldness. Yet, under all these unfavorable conditions the boys seem to enjoy themselves, and work towards mustering out still continues. All ordnance stuff, such as guns, belts, dishes, haversacks, and knapsacks, are being checked up and receipted by the government. The physicial examination commences this morning and by tonight every man in the regiment in all probability will have passed through that ordeal, The most difficult work will be that of making out the final pay roll. We understand that all of the discharges have been made out with the exception of signatures of the men Quite a number of Company K boys secured positions this morning as dishwipers, cooks, etc at Burnette Cafe. They will receive 75 cents per day for services. You can't beat Company K for energy and industry. We might remark that the Burnette Cafe is still running in full tilt, and that everything is served in the "rough and of the first water."

Some Phases of the War.

Men go to war to fight. To fight means at times to march all night, to go hungry, to get wet. Those with no stomach for such adventure should stay at home; it is not a pleasure outing. But the deprivations that come as the natural result of things may be greatly and unnecessarily increased through unlearned, stupid management, and of this there was much in the Santiago campaign.

Mr. Caspar Whitney, who contributes a complete and consecutive narrative of the campaign, with thrilling personal experience, to the October number of Harper's Magazine, thinks it might not inappropriately be called a campaign of blunders. First of all was the firmity of purpose at Washington; then the choice of Tampa, utterly unsuited to be either a point of mobilization or departure—its one railroad track was blocked for miles and for days with the supplies for which the troops were waiting at Tampa. The quartermaster deficiencies alone would fill a book—deficiencies so glaring as to make one stare—the lack of system in loading transports, which made confusion in the unloading; separation of articles that should be together; mixing of hospital supplies with general merchandise; and the storing deep in the holds of the transports things wanted first, while things not wanted were heaped on top.

The Las Guasimas fight, which is graphically illustrated by the plan drawn from notes taken in the field by Mr. Whitney, was, however, not, as it has been spoken of and written about by those who did not see it, a blunder, but a carefully and skilfully planned attack, which cleared the road to Santiago, and thoroughly tested the courage, determination and marksmanship of the present generation of Americans, from the lowest to the highest born, from the wage-worker to the gentlemen of fortune, and not one of them was found deficient.

La Guasimas was the first fight on Cuban soil after landing to march on Santiago. The two roads, as shown on the map, mark the advance of the two divisions of our men. The left hand or shorter road was where the Rough Riders advanced. It was not a good road but a sort of track through the woods and thick bushes. They soon got into reach of the long range Spanish rifles posted on the high grounds each side and ahead, and could not reply with our rifles till they advanced further. Then they got the fire of the Spaniards on the hills ahead. Soon after, the regulars who had followed the right hand road, and were also under fire, joined the Rough Riders by turning as the road does, to the left, and between them the Spaniards were set off in a wild flight. One writer who went up the Rough Riders' trail an hour or so later, said he could tell by the little piles of nickel shells, just where our men began to stop and shoot. Then there were more piles of shells at each place they had stopped. Farther up the hill he came to piles of copper shells used by the Spaniards, then piles of both kinds of shells where our men stopped and fired from the same ground where the Spaniards had stood. Farther along there were only nickel shells showing shat the enemy had quit firing and fled, while our men kept following and firing. It was a queer way to get the history of a battle, but it told the truth.

A Forest Giant.

[Hicksville News]

Elmer Crowl has just finished working into logs a most remarkable tree. It seems it must have been a veritable monarch of the forest. A 16 foot butt cut made a log that contained 2500 feet of timber. Above this the tree divided into three forks. From these pieces were cut 24 additional logs running from 10 to 21 feet, and containing from 100 to 700 feet, the average being near three hundred. Thus it will be seen that a total of 25 logs came from the one tree, making about 7000 feet. A large amount of fire wood could yet be made from the tops and smaller limbs. The giant was cut on the Brush farm near the state line.

Clothes Stolen.

There was a wholesale steal of clothes Sunday night. Mrs. H. B. McCord had her week's washing put into a basket and made ready to deliver to the washerwoman Monday morning. In it were a large amount of fine linen goods like napkins, etc., etc., and a great deal of the Sunday clothes of her little girl, Dorothy. Altogether, it was an unusually valuable lot of goods. She put the basket out on the back porch. In the morning, when it was called for, it was gone. There is no clue as yet, but many believe it was taken by some of the gypsies that have been hanging about near town for some weeks. It would be a very handy stock of goods for them.

Woman's Mysterious Ills.

Explanation of their nature by Dr. Hartman, who tells how to cure them.

YOUNG women are constantly puzzled about their health. Indeed female troubles puzzle all women. Older women have experience, but few possess knowledge of the subject. The periodical suffering is painful. It is accompanied by many varying sensations that distress. How much of this is necessary is a matter of guesswork. The whole question is shrouded in professional mystery.

Dr. Hartman's book for women, called "Health and Beauty," treats these matters with delicacy, and at the same time with clearness. Write to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Company, Columbus, O., for it: it is mailed free. It is a practical printed talk to women. Dr. Hartman defines women's diseases as catarrh and tells how Pe-ru-na cures them.

Mrs. C. C. Naeve, 386 Morrison St., Portland, Ore., writes as follows:

Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

DEAR SIRS:—"I began to take Pe-ru-na when I lived in Columbus, O., in 1887, and have used it and the Man-a-lin ever since whenever I needed medicine. I have never found an equal to Pe-ru-na for regulating the menses, and before I began to take it I was never regular and always had more or less pain. I had tried many different medicines before I saw Pe-ru-na but without success."

There is nothing mysterious about the action of Pe-ru-na. It is not a "cure-all," but it cures catarrh wherever located, and there may be catarrh in any organ of the body, as all are lined with mucous membrane.

Mrs. M. C. Mehl, 504 Walnut St., Columbia, Pa., says: "I have been troubled with catarrh and a soreness in my bowels for several years. I tried everything that was recommended. I tried Pe-ru-na and am happy to say that I am now entirely well."

Dr. Hartman's advice may be had without charge by any woman who will write for it. His book on Chronic Catarrh is also mailed free. It explains the danger of local treatment. All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

GOES FAR AWAY

The fame of Rev. W. L. Meese and the Matrimonial Reunion Society of which he is the founder goes far and wide. We have already published a translation of the letter he received from Russia about a year ago. Now, we find he has received two letters recently from California. One of these is by a lady at LaMead, Calif., who sends it in care of Judge Powers, showing that she had seen Judge Powers' name in the COURIER as one of the speakers at the last reunion of the Matrimonal Association. The other is from a gentleman, Sam C. Bellis, of San Diego, Calif., who writes to Mr. Meese for a descriptive pamphlet of the Matrimonial Association. It all goes to show that something original and worthy will always attract attention far and near.

Would I Were A Boy Again

A western exchange gets off the following: I'd like to be a boy again, without a woe or care, with freckles scattered on my face, and hayseed in my hair. I'd like to rise at four o'clock and do a hundred chores, and saw the wood and feed the hogs and lock the stable doors; and herd the hens and watch the bees and take the mules to drink; and teach the turkeys how to swim so that they wouldn't sink and milk about a hundred cows and bring the wood to burn; and stand out in the sun all day and churn and churn, and churn, and wear my brother's cast off clothes and walk four miles to school and get a licking every day for breaking some old rule, and then get home again at night and do the chores some more; and milk the cows and feed the hogs and curry mules galore; and then crawl wearily up stairs to seek my little bed, and hear dad say: "That worthless boy! He isn't worth his bread!" I'd like to be a boy again—a boy has so much fun! His life is just a round of mirth from rise to set of sun. I guess there's nothing pleasanter than closing stable doors and herding hens and chasing bees and doing evening chores.

Porto Rico Ours.

Today, the United States entered into full possession in Porto Rico. Saturday, the Spanish troops that had not already gone, were embarking and yesterday the Spanish governor-general of the Island went aboard his ship and started for Spain. Our men have gradually been spreading over the island since they first landed at Ponce, on the south coast. When fighting ceased, Gen. Brooke took an escort and his staff and went north across the island to meet our other commissioners and the Spanish chief officer at the capital, San Juan, now generally called by the English form of the name, St. John. Brooke was one of the commissioners Schley was another. The Spanish troops received them politely, and were evidently glad they were to return to Spain. The Spanish people and those of Spanish descent, are well pleased at the change. And those who do not lay claim to much Spanish blood, that is those who belong to the common people, are greatly rejoiced. Porto Rico, with its capital St. John is one of us. The old flag waves over her. Long may it wave, and may peace and happiness follow it.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample of Dr. King's New Life pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of consumption and sick headache. For Malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranted to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c per box. Sold at Robbins & McCord's drug store.

A Plausible Fraud.

(South Bend Times)

Farmers and fruit growers are being warned of a new swindle, which preposterous as it may seem, is being successfully worked in neighboring counties. says an exchange. The new scheme is a wonderful apple tree which is sold for a big price and described as being Asiatic fruit, which never rots, but simply shrivels up and could at any time be soaked in warm water and turns to its original size, shape, color and flavor. It is claimed that the trees are forest trees, yield abundant shade, require no cultivation and that the fruit is all of the same size and shape.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Death in a Mine.

Five men were killed and eleven injured by an explosion of gas near Tamaqua, Pa. In consequence of a fire which originated in the left section of the mine some months ago, shifts of men were driving holes from the gangway through which water was to be forced upon the flames. While the men were building a dam to back up the water, the gangway caught fire. Nearly a hundred thousand gallons of water were turned into the holes and almost instantly a terrific explosion occurred, followed by four lighter explosions of such force that the gangway was torn up for over 300 feet and workmen were blown in all directions. Rescue gangs were put to work, and an hour later all dead and injured were found. The fire is still burning.

Officers Elected.

At the meeting of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar, in Carnegie Hall, Schenley Park, Pittsburgh, the following officers were elected:

Grand Master—Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco.

Deputy Grand Master—H. B. Stoddard of Texas.

Grand Generalissimo—G. M. Moulton of Chicago.

Grand Captain General—H. A. Raum, of Providence, R. I.

Grand Senior Warden—W. B. Melish of Ohio.

Louisville was selected as the next place of meeting.

Factions Fighting.

Manila special: A rumor here says that Macabulos, chief of the five northern provinces of the Phillipine Islands, has rebelled against Aguinaldo and that hard fighting has already taken place between the opposing factions.

It is also reported here that Gen. Rios, the Spanish commander at Iloilo, has sent emissaries from that place to undermine Aguinaldo's influence and induce the natives to demand that Spain retain the Phillippine Islands.

Steamer Foundered.

London special: The steamer Mohegan, which left London for New York with fifty passengers and a crew of 150, is ashore off the Lizard. It is rumored that only thirty-one of the 200 on board were saved. A dispatch from Falmouth says the Mohegan foundered and will probably be blown ashore as a heavy east wind is after her, and her machinery is disabled. All the Falmouth tugs went out, but none were able to approach the vessel.

Military Conspiracy.

Paris special: The latest sensation is the report of a military conspiracy to overthrow the Cabinet. Papers print the story guardedly. The conspiracy is not in favor of any pretender, but against the leading officials except the President. A prominent General is said to be at the head of the conspiracy, and it was intended to act October 15, when the Ministry of War was absent.

A Fatal Explosion.

Ionia (Mich.) special: Two boilers in the State Asylum for Dangerous and Criminal Insane bursted, killing Harry Hanley of Saginaw, and fatally wounding Jack Hogan, both inmates. Another inmate and Jack Carey, a brickmason, were also hurt. The patients were locked in the wards at the time of the explosion and there was little excitement.

The Turk Must Go.

Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy have decided to reject the Porte's suggested modifications in the ultimatum to the Turkish Government on the evacuation of Crete, sending identical notes to Constantinople, reminding the Sultan that every Turkish soldier must leave Crete within the time specified in the ultimatum.

Peace, Sweet Peace.

Spain has acquiesced in the demand of the United States that Porto Rico be turned over to the United States on October 18. Notice to that effect has been received.

The American and Spanish Military Commissioners have adjourned finally and bade each other farewell.

West Pointer a Burglar.

At Kansas City, Mo., Frank R. Mason, a graduate of West Point, pleaded guilty in the Criminal Court to burglary and has been sentenced to serve ten years in the Penitentiary. He is 46 years old, and was arrested for stealing a watch and chain from the home of a local physician.

October 20—"A Female Drummer."
October 21—Tim Murphy.
October 22—George Monroe.

Plot to Kill the Kaiser.

A dispatch from Alexandria, Egypt, says: The Alexandria police have arrested nine Italian anarchists, thereby frustrating a plot against Emperor William, now on his way to the Holy Land with the Empress. The police found in their possession bombs of great strength.

A Double Hanging.

George H. Jacks, formerly Chief of Police of Muskegon, Mich., and John Druggan, both convicted murderers, were hanged on the same scaffold in the County Jail, Chicago.

A New Emperor for China.

A Shanghai dispatch says the Dowager Empress and her supporters have adopted a new Emperor, the son of the late Emperor Tung Chi. The decision will be proclaimed shortly. It is announced that the choice of Kwang Su was a mistake that proved disastrous to China.

Ready for Passengers.

The American liner St. Louis has left New York for Europe on its first regular trip since it was the United States auxiliary cruiser. It had a full passenger list.

The St. Paul has left Cramp's yard at Philadelphia for New York. It will sail October 19.

THE TIME IS FIXED.

December 1 Spanish Rule in Cuba Ends.

A special from Washington says: Instructions have been sent to the United States Military Commission in Cuba fixing December 1 as the date when Spanish control over the island must cease. The commissioners, acting upon these instructions, have notified the Spaniards that all ports and customs receipts and the management of municipal affairs will pass into the hands of the American military commander in the island.

This order was not intended to work hardship to the Spanish troops or government, but it was thought best to fix a definite time to end Spanish rule and to begin operations under the United States.

It is probable that United States troops will go to Cuba before that time. By December 1 it is expected to have troops so stationed that there will be no need of Spanish troops to preserve order.

Chaplain McIntyre Dismissed from the Navy.

The Navy Department has made public the finding and sentence of the court martial in the case of Chaplain McIntyre. The Chaplain was charged, first, with scandalous conduct tending to the destruction of good morals, with three specifications; second, conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline, with four specifications; third, conduct unbecoming an officer of the navy; three specifications. All these charges were founded upon the Chaplain's criticism of his superior officers in a lecture delivered in Denver. All the specifications were found proved as alleged; the accused was declared guilty under the three charges and he was sentenced to be dismissed from the United States naval service.

Knights Templar Parade.

The parade of the twenty-seventh triennial conclave of the Knights Templar in gorgeousness, splendor, and general all-round success amply repaid expectations. There were 25,000 Knights in the parade which marched the streets of Pittsburgh Tuesday. Grand Master Thomas reviewed the pageant from the City Hall square, Allegheny. The line started at 10 o'clock and lasted until late in the afternoon. The weather was clear and cool. Everywhere the cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny were magnificently decorated.

Indians to Surrender.

St. Paul (Minn.) special: The hostile Bear Island Indians have agreed to surrender. As soon as the terms are arranged they will go to the agency and yield to the Government officials, though a delay of several days is expected while the details are being arranged.

Agreement to surrender is the result of a conference held with the leading hostiles by Father Aloysius Homanuiz, Indian Interpreter Beaulieu and Chief Gay-Gure-Che-Way-Bimung.

A Rich Haul.

Jacob Denherder's private bank at Zeeland, Mich., was broken into and the safe blown open with dynamite and rifled. It is estimated that the loss is $10,000, although an examination has not yet been finished. Rain had obliterated all tracks of the robbers but they are believed to be professionals.

African Chiefs Arrested.

A dispatch from Sierre Leone, West Africa, says: One hundred native chiefs have been arrested and are awaiting trial at Freetown for the murder of American and other missionaries at Kwell, on account of the hut tax, in May last. Many chiefs implicated have already been convicted.

Head Is Blown Off.

At Boone, Iowa, Fred Reinhart, aged 17 years, ran in front of a cannon firing salutes as the President's train entered the city, and his head was blown off. The lad was not noticed until he was just in line with the muzzle of the big gun, when the charge was fired.

Americans Criticised.

The Spanish newspapers in Manila criticise the American authorities very severely for removing the Spanish officials and failing to appoint their successors, thereby creating confusion and hardship to the poor population of the Philippines.

Cargo of Oil Burned.

The British steamer Rehawkin, from London, loaded with oil, while lying at anchor at Wilmington, Del., burned to the water's edge. The crew escaped. The loss is estimated at $200,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Fatal Fire.

The Lacock Bed Spring Factory burned at Indianapolis. Loss $25,000. Harry Andrews and George Neip were probably fatally burned. The fire was caused by a bursting ladle of moulten iron, which exploded a naptha tank.

Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee Ill.

Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, who is sick with dengue fever at the hospital, at Richmond, Va., is worse. It is feared it may be necessary to send for the General and his son.

Torrey's Rough Riders.

Secretary Alger has decided to muster out the Second United States Volunteer Cavalry, otherwise known as "Torrey's Rough Riders."

Big London Failure.

The failure is announced of Ernst Orger Lambert, a financier of London. His liabilities are estimated at £1,000,000.

MINERS IN BATTLE.

Meet the Deputies in Deadly Conflict at Virden.

STATE TROOPS SENT.

Fourteen Were Killed and Many Fatally Wounded by Rifle Bullets.

Effort of the Coal Mine Operators to Bring Negro Miners from the South Causes Trouble—Twenty-five More or Less Severely Wounded—Railway Cars Are Riddled with Bullets—Tanner Sends Troops.

The expected tragedy at Virden, Ill., was enacted Wednesday. A train load of negro miners who were brought to Virden to take the places of the men who were on strike was met by a mob of strikers, variously estimated at from five hundred to fifteen hundred, and a battle ensued, in which many were killed or wounded. The striking miners had been awaiting the coming of the negroes for several days. They have been armed during all of that time and have paraded the streets of the town, openly avowing their purpose to prevent the negroes from landing.

The tragedy is the result of a determined effort on the part of the Chicago-Virden Coal Company to employ negro miners brought from Alabama to take the places of miners on a strike. The strikers were equally determined and both sides sought to win by force of arms. Firing began when the train loaded passed the station and continued all along the line of the stockade, where the principal battle took place. Here the miners were in force and they were opposed by a strong force of guards. The train, riddled with bullets, pulled out and proceeded to Springfield, without unloading the negroes. After a desperate fight the guards retreated to the stockade and the men went to town, where the man in charge of the company store was shot, beaten and kicked until fatally wounded.

It was shortly after noon when the trouble began. The operators have known for weeks that there would be riot and bloodshed the moment it was attempted to unload the negroes at the mines, and they were prepared for trouble. A stockade had been erected, with a block house in the inclosure, in which thirty-two Chicago police officers with loaded rifles were stationed.

No sooner had the train steamed in than a fusillade was opened upon the miners from the guards in the block house and the fifty guards in charge of the train. Then the slaughter began. The miners returned the fire, and soon dead and wounded men cumbered the ground. At the east end of the stockade where the train stopped the scene was awful. The miners who were making their demonstrations were to the south of the stockade, but over in the field east of the Chicago and Alton tracks was a crowd of miners. The guards in the tower and on the train commenced picking them off, and here is where the miners lost all their men who were killed. The train met a furious volley of bullets from over a thousand men, every shot intending to kill. The volleys were kept up for fully ten minutes, until the uselessness of remaining became apparent to the trainmen, and the train was sped on to Springfield.

Then the miners turned loose and pandemonium reigned. The men were crazed at the slaughter of their comrades, and as a result there were terrible excesses. J. F. Eyster, manager of the coal company store, was espied in the streets and set upon. He was first shot down and then his body was frightfully mangled

Of the dead, six are miners, one a Chicago and Alton detective, one a stockade guard—Al Morgan of Chicago—and two detectives, W. W. Carroll and W. W. Clarkson. The wounded include eight strikers, six Pinkerton and Thiele men and seven guards at the stockade. Thos. Preston, formerly a lieutenant of police in Chicago, was killed by the militia. He was on guard at the stockade and failed to respond to an order to halt.

Troops were sent by Gov. Tanner to protect life and property and he asked the Federal authorities to allow him to use Col. Culver's regiment. He insisted the soldiers should not aid the coal mine operators in their purpose of working imported negro miners, and he declares the operators ought to be convicted for causing the bloodshed. Mr. Lukens, the company's manager, is quite as vehment in his denunciation of the Governor for his failure to send troops sooner.

After the negroes who were brought from Alabama on Aug. 24 were put to work the miners coerced the Overholt brothers to write a note calling the miners out, but when released by the strikers who had captured them the note was repudiated. On Sept. 14 another batch of negro miners were put to work in the Penwell mines. Two weeks later one of their number appeared on the streets and was attacked. This precipitated a riot and the negro was arrested. A call was made for troops, which, after having been previously refused by the Governor, arrived on the last day of September.

TWO MEN DIE AT SPRINGFIELD.

Victims of the Riot Expire on Reaching the Capital.

Great excitement was created in Springfield upon the arrival of the train over the Chicago and Alton road that had passed through the battle at Virden. It consisted of three coaches, a baggage car and a caboose and contained about 160 negroes and fifty or sixty deputies. It was literally riddled with bullets. The windows had been shot to pieces. The sides of the cars were peppered, and a piece was shot out of one of the driving wheels of the engine. Here seven wounded men were taken from the train and conveyed to St. John's Hospital, where two of them subsequently died.

While the train was lying at the depot State President Hunter of the miners' organization and other leaders of the miners put in appearance and induced about half of the negroes on the train to leave it.

Ejection Notices Served.

Operator King of Chicago, owner of the Green Ridge shaft at Carlinville, has served ejectment notices on miners occupying company houses. King has received no rent since last May. The miners are given twelve days' notice to leave, at the end of which time, it is asserted, they are to be supplanted by imported men.

MAP SHOWING SEAT OF MINING OUTBREAKS IN ILLINOIS.

This map shows the country surrounding Virden (Macoupin County), where the killing of the miners took place. The town of Pana on the right is the original seat of the trouble. Pana is in the County of Christian, about thirty-six miles to the east. Virden itself is only about twenty-one miles from Springfield. From Springfield to St. Louis the distance is about 100 miles, and from Springfield to Chicago the distance is about 180 miles. The mining troubles have occurred within an area described by a circle whose radius starts from Virden as the center of the circle. The town of Virden itself is situated on the Chicago and Alton Railroad and on the Jacksonville, Louisville and St. Louis. The population in 1890 (census count), 1,610.

CAUSE OF THE MINERS' STRIKE.

Conditions Leading Up to the Trouble at Pana and Virden.

The coal miners' strike, which has had such a sanguinary culmination at Virden, was begun last April. The miners insisted on a scale of wages adopted at the miners' national convention at Columbus. The operators refused the terms demanded, and the miners offered to leave the matter to arbitration. This the operators refused to consider, and when the State Board of Arbitration went to Pana for the purpose of settling the difficulty, if possible, the operators declined to join in the investigation. Then the lockout began. In August the operators grew tired of the situation and undertook to fill the strikers' places with imported negroes, and since that time Pana has been in a state of siege. Sheriffs have guarded the negroes, who have been working behind stockades. The Penwell and Springside mines were protected with stockades and the negroes were safe behind them. Whenever an imported miner appeared in the streets he was roughly treated.

SENTIMENT AGAINST OPERATORS

Opinion General at Virden That the Miners Have Won a Victory.

Everywhere, according to a Virden report, sentiment is against the mine owners. It is the general opinion that the miners have won a victory, though at a terrible price. Miners stood guard at the stockades, and the Chicago and Alton tracks all of Wednesday night, fearful that an attempt would be made to bring the special with the imported miners on board back from Springfield. The miners claim that the first shot was fired from the train by a guard. A miner fired a shot into the air as the train approached the town, as a signal for the miners to assemble and resist the landing of the negroes.

Adjutant General Reece, in command of the soldiers, said he had unmistakable orders from Gov. Tanner to prevent further trouble, to protect lives and property and to prevent operators from bringing imported labor into the town. He called upon the men at the stockade with Col. Sargeant McKnight of Girard, a member of the Governor's staff, and notified them that all arms must be surrendered.

ARRIVAL OF BATTERY B.

Presence of State Troops Causes a Lull in the Tumult at Virden.

The arrival of Battery B from Pana at midnight Wednesday was the signal for peace in Virden. The tumult of the streets had not subsided before that time and threats of blowing up the stockade with dynamite were freely made by the more hot-headed of the miners. When the troops arrived a skirmish line was thrown out at once by Capt. Craig and the streets cleared. Seventy-five men were found in the strikers' hall and made to come down to the street and hold up their hands. They were searched and all weapons taken from them. This action was general throughout the city.

STOCKADE AND SHAFT TOWER AT VIRDEN, SCENE OF WEDNESDAY'S BATTLE.

From the shaft tower at the stockade a deadly fire was poured into the ranks of the strikers, apparently by expert marksmen, as it is claimed most of the fatalities among the attacking party were caused by bullets from this vantage point. The train came to a halt just in front of the gate and a force of guards emerged to cover the unloading of the negroes. The fiercest fight of the day resulted.

DANGER IN FRANCE.

Jules Meline Utters Serious Warning Against Agitation and Unrest.

Jules Meline, premier of the French ministry preceding the present Government of M. Brisson and who presided at a banquet of the Association of Railway Employes at Epinal, France, uttered a serious warning against the agitation and unrest in France, class troubles and strikes. Referring to the "divided state of society, the violence of polemics and the sectarian spirit displayed in politics," he said it was impossible to see France thus torn by factions and devoured by political passions, while daily the principle of authority was undermined, the army was weakened, and the institutions upon which rested the security of the nation were shaken, without thinking of "that opening in the Vosges through which an invading army could pass," or without thinking of "some unforeseen temptation being offered to the foreigner." The adversaries of France, however, had no need to declare war, said M. Meline. They were content to wait the exhaustion of France.

News of Minor Note.

The value of the annual plum crop in France is $3,000,000.

Great Britain has 294 torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

Ninety-two flour mills in North Carolina grind all the wheat grown in the State.

Thirty kegs of beer were consumed by the guests at a wedding of foreigners at Shenandoah, Pa.

Vienna has a cabman who has been fined twenty times for trying to bring bicyclists to grief.

McKINLEY AT OMAHA.

PRESIDENT IS WELCOMED WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Mr. McKinley and Party Arrive in the Exposition City and Are Greeted by an Enormous Crowd—The Trip Through Western States.

Two hundred thousand citizens of the transmissouri region welcomed President McKinley to the Omaha peace jubilee. The enthusiasm of the greeting was worthy of the great West and the President of the republic. President McKinley was profoundly impressed with the magnitude of the demonstration. He said as much in words and more in actions, for he made no effort to conceal his pleasure. From the time the special bearing the distinguished guest passed into the city until the President entered his quarters for repose an hour later he received a continual ovation. His route was through an ocean of human faces and the vast throng stretched out into the side streets as far as the eye could see.

All ideas of confining the delighted people to the curbstones was abandoned before the presidential party entered, and as it proceeded through the streets in vehicles the acclaiming multitude touched the very wheels of the carriages and good-naturedly elbowed for room in which to raise and wave flags and other emblems of a national nature.

It was a few minutes past 9 o'clock when the headlight of the presidential special glistened on the great bridge separating Nebraska and Iowa. The thousands surrounding the station greeted the appearance of the locomotive with shouts prolonged. The steam whistles and bells of the city took up the acclaim and for a few minutes the whole city resounded with a perfect medley of discordant sounds. President McKinley was ready to alight almost as the train came to a halt, and before the platoon of police could press back the crowd which closed around the presidential special. The members of the reception committee boarded the train in Council Bluffs and to them the President remarked upon the ease of the journey, adding: "Such a welcome would make any one forget the fatigue of a thousand such journeys."

Second Train Arrives.

Scarcely had greetings been exchanged when the army and navy special arrived. The two trains had crossed the State practically as two sections, running the last 100 miles almost in sight of each other. As the occupants of the two trains mingled on the platform the reception committee assigned the visitors to carriages, and the procession moved toward the center of the city. President McKinley, Mayor Frank E. Moores of Omaha and President Wattles of the exposition occupied the front carriages, and others spread out for a distance of several hundred yards. King Ak-Sar-Ben and 500 of his knights, composing the secret entertainment organization of Omaha, acted as escorts to the President. They formed a cavalcade that added much to the beauty of the procession. The Ak-Sar-Ben knights formed into platoons as outriders, escorting each carriage in fours.

Thus the procession passed north on Tenth street to Farnam and west on Farnam to the city hall, where the distinguished guests alighted to witness the festivities of the evening. Every turn of the wheels gave the President new surprises as to the magnitude and enthusiasm of Omaha's peace jubilee crowd. The cavalcade only tried to keep the jubilant crowds back six feet from the carriages of the chief executive and his party, but even this was futile, and the vehicles were impeded in their progress by the weight of human bodies. When the army chiefs' vehicle passed the shouts and wild acclaim of the crowd was scarcely less than that with which the President was greeted.

CROWDS ALONG THE WAY.

Ovation Given the President by People of Illinois and Iowa.

Wherever the presidential train stopped in Illinois and Iowa the demonstrations were enthusiastic beyond precedent. At the stations through which the trains rushed at full speed the enthusiasm was not less evident, but the people were compelled to content themselves with a cheer and were rewarded by a wave of the hand.

The presidential train arrived in Chicago about 7 o'clock in the morning over the Pennsylvania road and was swung around to the Chicago and Northwestern by the belt line. The engine which pulled the presidential train out of Chicago was one of the most powerful ever made, and was bedecked with flags and bunting until it looked like a triumphal car.

The President's journey through Illinois and Iowa was a continuous ovation. The first stop was made at Dekalb, and here the President spoke a few words in response to the crowd's enthusiastic welcome. At Clinton, Iowa, a great crowd was at the station when President McKinley's train rolled in. Senator Allison joined the presidential party here. The President appeared on the rear platform and was received with tremendous cheers. The President left the train for the first time at Cedar Rapids. A platform elaborately decorated stood near the track, and from here Mr. McKinley delivered an address which brought cheers from 10,000 lusty throats.

SAMPSON GETS THE CREDIT.

Battle of Santiago Won Upon Plans Prepared by Him.

Admiral Sampson has been officially given the credit for destroying the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera off Santiago July 3. This was done in the report of the commission of naval officers appointed to settle the merits of the Sampson-Schley controversy.

Briefly stated, the board found that the battle was fought and won upon plans prepared by Sampson; that any directing of the movements of ships by Schley during the battle was inconsiderable; that the New York had no active part in the fight; that the Brooklyn was not engaged at so close quarters as represented in the first report; that the brunt of the fighting was borne by the Oregon, the Texas and the Iowa; that the New York was more than nine miles from the Colon when that ship surrendered, and between four and five miles from the nearest of her sister ships engaged; that the average range of the ships most engaged was about a mile and a half; that no American ship at any time during the battle was within a mile of an unsurrendered Spanish ship.

ROBBERS MAKE BIG HAUL.

Waldron, Ill., Safe Is Blown Open and Looted.

Promissory notes, some of them negotiable, valued at $17,000, and $50 in money was the booty secured by expert robbers who forced open the door of H. Y. Swan's office in the village of Waldron, Ill., and blew open the safe with dynamite. From the skillful manner in which the work was performed Chicago men are suspected. A hole was drilled in the safe door and the combination blown out. The hinges were torn off. Portions of a burglar's kit were found on the floor with some tools that had been taken from a blacksmith shop close at hand, forcibly entered by the thieves.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Farmer's Plan to Prevent a Railroad Crossing His Farm — Natural Gas Wrecks a Barber Shop—Run Down by an Engine.

The new railroad being constructed from Muncie to Converse, under the name of the C., I. & E., has encountered all kinds of difficulties in securing the right of way from Fairmount west. Farmer Patterson, living seven miles west of the city, made an attempt to wreck the construction train in a spirit of resentment for crossing his land. It was necessary to institute proceedings in court against him in order to get the right of way. On turning a curve the engine was confronted with a huge pile of fence rails and logs, while a ditch six feet wide had been dug under the track and Patterson himself was standing guard with a shotgun. The train crew refilled the ditch while Patterson was gone for assistance, and passed on through the farm.

Handfuls of Worms.

At Bourbon, John Winebrenner was stung recently by a bee and immediately began to swell, reaching such immense proportions that he was almost unrecognizable. A physician prescribed the usual antidotes, and in a few days miniature worms began issuing from the places where the medicine was applied, and that condition has kept up for three days. Great handfuls ooze from the boy's body whenever it is pressed by instruments, and the swelling does not decrease. Physicians are baffled, claiming it the first case ever known.

Blows a Barber Shop Skyward.

W. H. West's barber shop in Hazelwood was blown to the four winds by a terrific gas explosion. Natural gas had accumulated under the building. David Boutsell, a barber who was in the place, happened to drop a match into the sink. The gas caught the flame and the next instant there was a crash. Boutsell was picked up on the railroad track some fifteen or twenty feet from where the building stood. His injuries are slight.

The Fatal Crossings.

A Panhandle train struck a buggy at the Franklin street crossing at Knightstown, and Ollie Stevens, George Waldron and Hugh McFadden, of Carthage, were mangled in the wreck. Stevens was killed, and Waldron and McFadden are badly injured, but may recover. Stevens and McFadden were carried on the pilot of the engine to the station, and were found in the buggy top.

Burglar Escapes with $4,400.

Two burglars were discovered in the hardware store of George Eddy, at Goshen, the other night, by Officer Monroe. One escaped; but the other was overtaken by officers and placed in jail. In the morning $4,400 was missing and is supposed to be in the possession of the escaped burglar.

Within Our Borders.

At Garrett Jesse Chaney murdered his divorced wife and then turned the pistol upon himself, inflicting a fatal wound.

Bert Moorhead was drowned in Lake Maxinkuckee by the capsizing of a boat. He was attending Culver Military Academy.

The Newport Milling Company received an order last week from a New York firm for 5,800 barrels of corn goods for exportation.

Harry F. Kain, aged 19, recently discharged from the 161st Indiana regiment on account of illness, was found dead in bed at Richmond.

Mrs. Ida Howard has sued the Vandalia Railroad for $5,000 at Crawfordsville on account of injuries received in a collission near Waveland.

Olley Jenness, a freight brakeman on the Chicago division, was killed at the Howard street crossing at Union City, while attempting to make a coupling.

The shoe store of W. E. Fitzpatrick at Whiteland, containing the postoffice, was burglarized. About $75 worth of shoes and some six or seven dollars in cash was taken.

The home of Banker A. G. Lupton at Hartford City was burglarized recently. The silverware was examined, but the thieves left a note saying it was plated and of no great value.

The farmers of Sugar Creek township, Vigo County, are adopting drastic measures to be rid of the epidemic of hog cholera. Within a few days more than one hundred head have died.

The men's furnishing store owned by W. T. Moore & Co. of Mitchell was broken into the other night and about $400 worth of clothing and shoes taken. A wagon was used to haul the plunder.

Mrs. Louis Brown and daughter Lizzie were dangerously injured by being thrown from a carriage in a runaway at Lafayette. Louis Thelan aged 3, was run over and his injuries may result fatally.

Howard Clark and Mattie Mahoney were shot to death in Spencer County, about six miles above Rockport, by three officers from Owensboro, Ky., while resisting arrest. Clark killed Patrolman Joe Hefferman at Louisville, Ky., Aug. 12.

A sensational scene was created at the Elwood jail when Mrs. William Houck came from Orestes and faced her husband, who had been fined $54.10 and sent to jail for thirty days for enticing little Josie Piel from her Orestes home. Mrs. Houck entered the jail and upbraided Houck for conduct and for taking $9.50 of her cash. She worked herself into a frenzy and suddenly drew a 32-caliber revolver, which she pointed full at Houck's breast, not a foot distant. Sergeant Mooney sprang forward and knocked the revolver aside and took it from her, saving Houck's life. She was fined and Houck paid it with the cash he had taken.

At Princeton, Arthur Swaim, with a shotgun seriously wounded his uncle, George Harris. Swaim is 17 years old and was arrested by the police shortly after the affair.

The Greensburg free street fair closed with ten thousand people on the streets. The brilliant display of fireworks wound up a week of festivities. The fair cost the merchants $15,000.

Howard Clark, who was wanted in Louisville for murder and burglary, and his girl, Hattie Mahone, were both killed while resisting arrest on the Indiana side of the river, near Owensboro, Ky.

Company G of the 159th regiment, Indiana volunteers, gave a drill and sham battle at Brownstown and was witnessed by 3,000 people.

At Auburn, Jesse Chaney of Garrett shot his wife and then attempted suicide. Mrs. Chaney was killed instantly. Her husband is paralyzed and cannot live.

Boone County has the distinction of being the first county in the State to erect suitable monuments over the graves of Revolutionary soldiers buried in the local cemeteries. So far the County Commissioners have made appropriations for eight of these monuments, and six tombstones have already been unveiled with appropriate ceremonies.

AT THE STATION.

A tiny tot in a torn blue dress,
With tear-stained face and eyes of brown,
A doll which receives an odd caress,
A little stocking that's fallen down;
Shyly looks but with wistful air,
At the regiment slowly passing by,
But she doesn't recognize any one there,
And she drops her doll and begins to cry.

I gently ask in a soothing tone,
As I stoop and kiss the tearful face;
"Who are you watching for here, alone,
In this great big, noisy, crowded place?"
Slowly she raises her tear-wet eyes,
Then sobbingly whispers: "I's 'ittle May,
An' I wanted to tate my papa by sup'ise,
For 'is wegiment's tomin' home today."
"Dear little girl, you must not cry,
Papa will be right along, never fear"—
But before I can finish she darts me by,
Quick brushing away a vagrant tear—
And into the arms of one passing then,
Dressed in a faded suit of blue,
She climbs to his neck, I call her, when
She turns to wave me a last adieu.

Polly's Papa's Home-Coming.

A War Episode.

By Wilson McAlister.

"Are you a soldier?" The old man who sat facing the litle girl looked at his wife and smiled encouragingly.

"Yes. I am a soldier."

"Why aint you fighting, then?" and the child laid down the popcorn candy and wiped the sticky kernels from her lips.

Inside the car it was close and hot. The rain had begun at Washington and the windows had been closed to keep the seats dry. The child had tired of watching the water form in pools on the window, break into rivers and trickle slowly down to the sea at the bottom of the pane. Through the clouded glass she had looked at the dreary, wet landscape until her eyes ached. Then she turned to the old man for entertainment and information.

"If you are a soldier why ain't you dressed like one and why ain't you fighting, like my papa?"

"The colonel fought all through the other war, dear," answered the old lady, pleasantly, "and——"

"I know," put in the child eagerly, "he couldn't be spared. Uncle John couldn't be spared, either. That's why my papa went away."

"How are you getting along, little woman?"

A man had come in from a front car and sat down by the child's side.

"All right, Uncle John," answered the child, and she took his rough hand in hers and pressed it affectionately.

"How's the popcorn?"

"Pretty good; but it isn't as good as Aunt Mary makes."

"Well, I guess not. Tain't every one that can pop corn like Aunt Mary. Shall I get you some more, or mebbe you want some candy? I seen a boy with some a little while ago."

"I don't want any candy, Uncle John. When are we going to get home?"

"In a little while. I hope she won't bother you," she added to the old man, as he rose to go. "We've been down to Georgia to see her papa and she's right tired. I'll be back, Polly, after a while."

"That's my Uncle John," exclaimed the child, as the man left the car. "He didn't go to the war because he couldn't be spared. You see, grandpa said some one had to stay home and do the work. Uncle John, he lives with me and grandpa and pap and Aunt Mary. He stayed home."

"Why didn't your papa stay home?"

"He said he could be spared better than Uncle John."

"Where is your mama, little girl?" asked the old lady, after a pause.

"She's dead. I never saw my mamma, but Aunt Mary says I look like her. I'm not sure, though. I asked papa one day, and he said he hoped not. Have you got a dog? I'v got a great, big dog and his name is Tom. He carries my basket to school, and he can swim. I've got a colt, and Uncle John says he'll break him for me when he is old enough. I've got some doves and lots of chickens."

"We haven't any dogs and horses," said the old lady; "we live in New York and we can't keep pets there."

"I don't like New York," answered the child, gravely.

"What do you know about New York? Did you ever live there?"

"No, but papa did, and so did mamma. I was borned there, but I've lived with Uncle John ever since I was a little baby. Papa hates everybody that lives in New York. Once when I was a little girl a man came up to Uncle John's in a great big carriage with two horses and he had a beautiful lady with him. They drove up right to the kitchen door and asked for a glass of milk for the lady. Uncle John took it out to her, and when she saw him she just screamed awful loud, and they made the horses just run out of the gate. Uncle John was terrible mad, and said if papa'd been there he'd shot him. They came from New York, and I guess that's why papa didn't like them. Can you paint pictures?"

"No, my child," returned the old man. "Why do you ask?"

"My papa can. He is a beautiful painter. Uncle John says that if he wanted to he could make money enough to pay off the mortgage in no time. But he doesn't like to paint. Once he painted a picture of me and a man gave him a hundred dollars for it. Aunt Mary wanted to keep the picture but papa sold it. He said it reminded him. What does reminded mean?"

"Does that horse look like your colt?" asked the old lady irrelevantly as she wiped her eyes.

The child peered through the window intently. "I don't see any horse. My colt is named Dick, after papa. He is a bay, and has a white star in his forehead. Did you have a uniform when you were a soldier? (This to the colonel.) My papa's uniform is just lovely. It has gold buttons on it, and he's got a bag just like I carry to school, only it's longer and rounder, and he's got a great, big gun, almost as long as—as—this car almost. It's so heavy I can't lift, anyhow. Was you ever in camp?"

"A great many times," answered the old soldier. "I lived in camps for nearly twenty years."

"My, but that's a long time!" continued the child. "I'm only seven—going on eight. My papa was only in camp two weeks. I was out to see him once. He looked just splendid only it took an awful long time to see him. He was in the middle of a whole lot of soldiers standing in a line, but he looked better than any of em, because he wears his hair so long. Don't you like long hair? Aunt Mary made some hair for my dolly, but it wouldn't stay on. It was really true hair. She cut it from my cousin Kitty. Kitty's dead before I was found. But it kept coming off no matter how tight we sewed it on, and it didn't match. My dolly's rag, you know. It's a beautiful dolly. Grandma used to play with it when she was a little girl. It's named Polly, after her and me. Papa said he's get me a real wax doll when he comes back. I wish he was back now—not for the doll, though," she added with a little blush, "but because I love him. He tells me such beautiful stories."

"That's nice," put in the old lady, "do you remember any of them?"

"All of them, every one. He told me one just before he went away. It was about a little girl who was borned in the country just like me, and she grew up a beautiful woman. She could sing and play on the piano and melodeon. Once upon a time a young beautiful man came to her house and asked her to go to the city with him. He told her he would give her silk dresses and a gold ring, a bangle bracelet, a big album, and lots of things if she'd only go to the city with him. He said she could do anything she wanted to. She needn't milk or churn or feed the chickens, or make bread or set the table or wash the dishes or sweep or dust. She could do just presactly what she wanted to. And she thought, and thought, and thought."

"Did she go with him?"

"No, indeed. She thought and thought and then she stayed at home and married the farmer's son and lived happy ever afterward. Isn't that a nice story? I know lots more. I——"

"I wouldn't tell any more stories just now," interrupted the old lady, not unkindly, "I'm afraid it will make you tired, dear. Don't you want to lie down in my lap and let me sing a pretty song to you?"

"I like singing," returned the child, "but I ain't a bit sleepy."

So she made room for the old lady by her side, and after much fussing laid her curly head in her lap and closed her eyes, while the old lady softly sang about "Old Mother Hubbard" and "Little Boy Blue" in a sweet, low voice, that quivered a little on the high notes, but was very musical for all that. And before the next stop she was fast asleep.

"Poor little tot!" repeated the old lady, and she pressed the child closer to her.

So the long afternoon wore on, until at last the train reached the broad marshes of Jersey City. The other passengers were putting on their coats and hats and taking their parcels down from the rack and just as the old lady was about to rouse the child the man from the front car came in.

"I'm very much obliged to you," he said warmly. "I hope she didn't bother you. We change cars here for home. We've been down to Atlanta to meet her father, but we got there too late. He's in the baggage car now. She doesn't know it yet. I didn't have the heart to tell her. Come on, Polly," and he took the child gently by the hand. "Come on Polly, dearie. We are going home now to Aunt Mary and grandpapa. Come on."

"I—I want my papa," cried the child softly, as she rubbed her eyes. "Will he be home when we get there?"

"Jersey City! All out!" called the brakeman from the end of the car.

"Good-by and thank you!" said Uncle John.

"Good-by!" added Polly, smiling through her tears.

"Poor little tot!" said the colonel, and the old lady, his wife.

The Superstition About Friday.

The superstition that it is bad luck to be hanged on Friday will probably stand the test of time, but otherwise the evil fame of the day is pretty well dissipated—at least that seems to be the case in New Orleans. Not very many years ago the passenger traffic out of this city showed a startling contraction every Friday, and the regularity of the decline left no doubt as to the cause. At present Friday is about as good a business day as any other for the transportation lines, and one prominent railroad man declares that it is peculiarly favored by fortune. "I had the curiosity to look into the subject recently," he said, "and in eight years, which was as far back as my data went, I found that the accident record of Friday was the second lowest of any day of the week. Of course, one may take any day of either the week or the month and discover all manner of horrible things that have happened in the past, but I have never been able to find a reason why Friday should be marked for special stigma. It is an absurd fact, however, that railroad people were formerly obliged to take account of the superstition in making a forecast of business. A new Orleans jeweler had something interesting to tell along the same line. "The Friday idea is about extinct," he said, "but the jewelry trade was certainly affected by it in the past. I have known lots of people who wouldn't think of buying anything intended as a gift on Friday, especially if it was to be engraved, but nowadays one seldom hears anything of the kind. I suppose the world is getting more practical.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

MOUNT VESUVIUS, the most famous volcano in the world's history, which, as every schoolboy knows, destroyed the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum, is again in eruption and great alarm is felt for the safety of life and property in the vicinity of the volcano. The flow of lava goes on unchecked, and if the eruption continues on the alarming scale it has lately reached it will cause frightful misery and immense damage. The lava torrent near the crater, which has a width of half a mile, divides into three principal streams, each seventy to eighty yards wide. These as they pour down the mountain side, again subdivide into numerous smaller streams. They advance at the rate of forty yards an hour, submerging everything in their path, searing the vegetation in the vicinity as though fire had passed over it. An enormous quantity of lava keeps pouring out of the crater. It has filled Vetrana valley, a deep ravine, and ashes lie several inches thick for a long distance down the sides of the mountain and on the adjacent villages. The inhabitants of these villages are in a state of suspense, not knowing what moment the volcano may burst forth in all its fury and bury them the same as it did the inhabitants of Pompeii over 1,800 years ago.

The slope of the mountain is one of the most thickly populated districts in the world. The fertility of the soil is unsurpassed, four crops a year being gardened in the best parts.

The spectacle at night is one of indescribable grandeur, and travelers from all parts of Europe flock to see the volcano in action. The faint, palpitating glow that nominally marks the great crater is exchanged for a vivid tongue of light, colored at times almost like a rainbow, illuminating the heavens and reflected with exquisite effect in the waters of the bay. These manifestations are accompanied by deep rumblings and thunderous subterrantions, but the average is about 4,000 feet. Its great crater is some 2,000 feet in diameter and about 500 feet deep. It consists of two distinct parts. The ean explosions, followed by great outpourings of lava and ashes. The fresh lava streams moving down the mountain side, steadily encroaching more and more on the cultivated regions, have already caused extensive loss. Several new craters have appeared around the central one, and from these the lava also flows.

Vesuvius' Turbulent History.

Mount Vesuvius lies eight miles from Naples, the largest city of Italy, and overlooks the Bay of Naples. At its base Vesuvius is thirty miles in circumference. Its height varies after its erupnorth side is a lofty, semi-circular cliff, called Monte Somma, which has a prehistoric crater. It is separated from the active volcano by a deep valley several hundred feet wide.

The Vesuvius of the ancients was a truncated cone, with a base of eight or nine miles and a height of 4,000 feet. At its summit was a depressed plain, three miles in diameter. On this plain Spartacus, the gladiator, fought Claudius Pulcher. There is no record of an eruption of Vesuvius prior to A. D. 79, although the latter-day scientists have proved that it must have been active before that time. At the beginning of the Christian era the sides of the Vesuvius were covered with fields and vines, and its crater was overgrown with wild grapes. It is certain that the people living near it at that time had not the slightest idea that it was an active volcano, for the writings of Pliny the Younger and Tacitus show that it gave warning for thirteen years before the great eruption. There were a series of earthquakes and tremendous seismic disturbances.

The great historic eruption took place in August, 79 years after Christ. The lava poured down the mountain side in tremendous streams and buried Herculaneum, at the west base; Pompeii, on the southeast side; Stabiae, on the south side, and Castellamare, which was beyond Stabiae. These cities were inundated and forgotten until centuries after, when the remains were dug up and gave the moderns a perfect insight into the manners and customs of the time of the big eruption. For centuries Vesuvius was quiet. People who lived about it forgot that it had once buried cities and killed thousands. Again did vines cover the crater and its sides were cultivated fields. There had been six months of earthquakes, but these were not accepted as a warning.

ONE OF THE LAVA BEDS.

Vesuvius burst forth in mighty fury on December 16, 1631, suddenly and unexpectedly. It continued until February, 1632. There was a tremendous flow of lava mingled with water, resulting from the melting of the snow and mud. Torre Annunziata, Torre del Greco, Resina and Portia were almost wholly destroyed, and it is estimated that 18,000 people lost their lives. There was another eruption in 1660, but only ashes and steam, which formed mud torrents, came forth.

One of the very grand eruptions occurred in 1779. Huge stones were projected several thousand feet into the air in a cloud of white vapor, with large masses of molten rock. Huge streams of lava poured down the mountain side, carrying death and destruction. In 1794 it burst forth again and Torre del Greco was once more destroyed. In October 1822, an outbreak ruptured the top of the cone, making a crater three miles in circumference and 1,000 feet deep. Since this time Vesuvius has never been wholly quiet. Eruptions have occurred periodically, of more or less violence. In 1855 lava flowed for twenty-seven days, destroying miles of cultivated fields and many houses, but the people fled in time to save their lives. There were eruptions in 1858 and in 1861, which were of little consequence. There were greater flows of lava in 1867 and again in 1872. The eruption in the latter year was very violent, the streets of Naples being covered inches deep with a black sand. There have been other eruptions since that time, which have done more or less damage, but none has been of great importance.

FOLDING STOVE.

Clever Invention of Chicagoans Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Hunters, campers and those who delight in out-of-door sports are interested in an invention which is the work of two young Chicagoans who have sought to overcome some of the perplexities of "roughing it."

The affair is a small folding gasoline stove which can be placed in a camping outfit without taking up any room to speak of. Its dimensions are 7 by 7 by 4 inches and it weighs 4½ pounds.

LATEST IDEA IN CAMP STOVES.

There is a tank attached for the oil, which is forced into the burner by air pressure from a small rubber pump.

An Apt Reply.

A student recently asked the president of Oberlin College if he could not take a shorter course than that prescribed by the institution. "Oh, yes," was the reply, "but that depends upon what you want to make of yourself. When God wants to make an oak he takes a hundred years, but when he wants to make a squash he takes six months."

"How do you manage to keep so friendly with Mrs. Tiff?" asked Mrs. Teeters of Miss Twitters. "I never use her telephone," replied the astute young lady.—Judge.

THE NEW FRENCH FIELD GUN.

It Is One of the Deadliest Agencies of Destruction Yet Devised by Man.

The secret about the new gun of the French army has leaked out, and it is now known that the French have a very deadly weapon. The gun is of 2.95 inches caliber. The barrel is of nickel steel, and the breech mechanism is based on the screw principle, simplified so that it can be closed quickly enough to make the cannon a rapid firearm. The ammunition is in the form of a complete cartridge, made of drawn brass. The weapon is a single-loader, as may be imagined from its size, and in order to secure rapidity of fire it must be served by at least four men. In practice the gun is served by a gunner who passes the cartridges to a man who stands on the left side of the carriage. He in turn passes it to the gunner, who sits behind the breech. The latter is charged with opening the breech, inserting the ammunition and closing the breech. The breech in closing cocks a hammer. By the right side of the gunner charged with loading the gun sits the gunner, who is charged with aiming and firing it. The discharging of the hammer is done with the ordinary line known technically as the lanyard.

Behind the gun carriage is another soldier, who with a lever turns the gun if it needs to be swung far on one side or the other, but the ordinary aiming is done by the gunner on the carriage.

NEW FRENCH RAPID FIRE FIELD GUN.

A valuable feature of the French gun is the apparatus to take up the recoil, so that the carriage is not moved by it.

With a full force of men the weapon can discharge twenty shots a minute, which is an enormous amount of fire considering the size of the ammunition. The projectiles are shrapnel, each loaded with 250 leaden bullets. The bursting charge is mellinite. The bullets are scattered with terrific force by the explosion of this terrific explosive. Thus in one minute the new gun can throw 5,000 bullets, covering a radius so great that it can put an entire battery out of action or even destroy it utterly at a range of from 5,000 to 6,000 yards. As the shells can be set to explode at a mark directly overhead of the enemy, they can demolish even a battery under cover of trenches.

A FARM OF 21,700 ACRES.

It Is Not the Only One Owned by Missouri's Millionaire Farmer.

The phenomenal success of David Rankin, of Tarkio, Mo., proves that fortunes can be made in farming as well as in other lines of industry. Mr. Rankin is known as the "millionaire farmer." He is worth $5,000,000, and it all resulted from an original investment of $52. That was in 1846, when, at the age of 21, he was given a colt by his father. He sold the colt for $52, invested the money in calves and rented a farm. His first investment brought good results and he bought a farm. At the age of 25 he owned eighty acres, clear of debt. Step by step he added to his possessions, until after being fifteen years in the business he owned 4,000 acres. At the same time he continued to deal in cattle, until he had 12,000 to 15,000 head. When he had acquired 10,000 acres of land in Missouri and 4,000 in

DAVID RANKIN.

Nebraska he was not yet satisfied. That was in 1885. He went to Atchison County, Mo., and bought 21,700 acres, which he divided into fourteen ranches. He built his home near by, in the city of Tarkio, and every day he rides out over his great estate, interviewing his superintendents and watching the progress of crops.

Of course hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of men are required in the management of Mr. Rankin's immense farm—cowboys, plowmen, gardeners, builders and practical farmers. An idea of the immensity of his business can be gained by the man who cares to sit for an hour or two, in the shade of his five-story brick barn in Tarkio, and watch wagon after wagon, with four and six horse teams hitched to them, and with two pairs of sideboards on them, loaded to their utmost capacity with oats, wheat and corn, driven into the yard.

Smoking Before a Battle.

Soldiers returning from the war in Cuba had many stories to tell of the comfort they took in a pipe of tobacco. In too many cases it was about all the comfort they experienced until they reached home and friends once more. A story of tobacco on the battlefield is told by an officer of the British royal horse guards, who took part in the charge of the "Blues" at Tel-el-Kebir, Egypt. During a bivouac in the early hours of the morning, just before the engagement commenced, orders were issued against smoking. Some of the troopers, however, dug little holes in the sand, in which they buried their heads, in order to enjoy a few whiffs of a pipe. The order to mount was suddenly and softly given. In a minute the squadrons were mounted and riding off, and were almost at once engaged with the enemy's outposts. The well-known charge followed, and when the troop corporal majors came out to call the roll of their men one of them still had a short pipe between his lips. The charge had been dashing, and the soldier's disobedience was wisely overlooked.

ANCIENT STATUS OF ACTORS.

They Were Classed Among "Rogues, Vagabonds and Sturdy Beggars."

There is a common idea that actors are by law considered as vagabonds, the historic basis being a contemplation of the statutes regarding vagrancy. These statutes, crude and general in terms as were all or most of the early enactments, having been made and renewed between the twenty-third year of Edward III. and the fifth year of Queen Elizabeth, were variously repealed and consolidated in 1572, the act being the 14th Elizabeth, chapter 5. In this act strolling players unlicensed are certainly classed among "rogues, vagabonds and sturdie beggars," who are in the preamble of the act termed "outrageous enemies to the common weall," the penalty on conviction being "that then immediatelie he or she shall be adjudged to be grievousile whipped and burnt through the gristle of the right eare with a hot yron of the compasse of an inch about"—a punishment only to be abated by some responsible householder taking him, or her, into service for a full year under proper recognizance. A second offense became a felony.

The cause of the act "expressing what person and persons shall bee so extended within this branch to be rogues, vagabonds, and sturdie beggars" includes the following: "Pretended proctors, gamesters, persons 'faining themselves to have knowledge in phisnomie, palmestrie, or other abused sciences,' quasi-labourers who will not work, unlicensed jugglers, pedlars, tinkers, pettie chapmen, counterfeetours, and users of licenses and passports, shipmen pretending losses at sea." The following inclusion deals directly with the subject of actors: "All fencers, beare wardes, common players in interludes, and minstrels, not belonging to any baron of the realme, or towards any honourable personage of greater degree * * * which shall wander abroad and have not licenses of two justices of the peace of the least, whereof one bee of the quorum where and in what shire they shall happen to wander."—The Nineteenth Century.

100-Mile Ride Under a Train.

A Great Northern workman, employed in the locomotive department at King's Cross, has just had the thrilling experience of riding underneath a railway carriage from London to Grantham, a distance of over 100 miles. He was lying on the rods under one of the coaches of the 2 o'clock express from Kings' Cross—one of the fastest trains on the Great Northern system—attending to the brake gearing, when the train started. It had acquired a good speed before he realized his perilous position. From the place in which he lay it was impossible for him to alight with the train in motion, and the man was well aware that the train did not stop until it reached Grantham. Therefore, there was nothing for it but to make himself as comfortable as possible, and after about two hours, when Grantham was reached, he emerged from his singular quarters apparently little the worse for his adventure.—Liverpool Mercury.

True Blue.

Every reader is familiar with the phrase "true blue," but very few know aught of its origin. Its first assumption was by the Scotch Covenanters in opposition to the scarlet badge of Charles I., and hence it was taken by the troops of Leslie and Montrose in 1639. The adoption of the color was one of those religious pedantries in which the Covenanters affected a pharisaical observance of the Scriptural letter and the usages of the Hebrews, and thus as they named their children Habakkuk and Zerubabel and their chapels Zion and Ebenezer, they decorated their persons with blue ribbons because the following precept was given in the law of Moses: "Speak unto the children of Israel and bid them that they make them fringes in the borders of their garments, thoroughout their generations, and that they put upon the fringe of the borders a ribbon of blue."

Schley's First Born.

Lieutenant, now Rear Admiral Schley did not see his first born, a son, until the boy was 14 years old. A few weeks after his marriage the young commander was ordered to China, where his duties on the Asiatic station demanded his constant attention for fully fifteen years. By one of the manipulations known only to the superior courtesy in vogue in the navy, he was assigned from China to a European naval station, and had been fortunate in having his wife accept her husband's invitation to cross the Atlantic ocean and bring over his son, for the first sight of a father's proud eyes.

Iron Mountain.

Near the city of Durango, Mexico, is an iron mountain 640 feet high, and the iron is from 60 to 70 per cent. pure. The metallic mass spreads in all directions. The entire deposit is estimated to be sufficient to supply all the iron required in the world for 1,000 years.

Some Questions with a Point.

Those who are denying that Platter and Stroh are drinking men, may now explain why Stroh went to a certain saloon in Auburn, Monday, and paid a debt of over $50. The question also arises: If it was not for drinks, what was it for? Was it for money borrowed to gamble with? We never heard that Stroh gambled. Was it for himself or for Platter that he paid this money? And it is told us on pretty good authority that Platter's debt at the same place is still unpaid unless it has been fixed up since Monday.

Spain Learns Something

At Paris yesterday the joint peace commission of Americans and Spaniards had some hot talk. We refused to consider the debt of Cuba, no matter what was done with that island. The Spanish member then claimed we were trying to compel them to repudiate a part of the Cuban debt, and added that before they would do that they would give up the Philippines. Our commissioners replied to this, that the United States would demand the surrender of the Philippines any way, no matter what became of the Cuban debt. This plain statement, the first that has been made so far, seemed to frighten the Spaniards, and they got together in a whispered conference, and then asked for an adjournment to give them time to telegraph home to the government of Madrid. So it appears they are beginning to realize that we are in earnest, Of one thing they may be sure, we will not pay their Cuban debt. It also appears that we are going merely to occupy Cuba till such a time as the island can be safely allowed to run its own affairs.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct. 16, 1898.

The weather has moderated considerably during the past forty-eight hours. We have had no rains since Thursday evening, and that only amounted to a cold drizzle. With a good gas fire, close barns, nice clean dry straw and plenty of bed-clothes, everything is a "summer garden in winter." The boys are "actually getting fat" in disregard to all hardships undergone during the past six months. Company K's sick report is merely composed of convalescents, who only report at the hospital for a few finishing touches to their impaired, mosquito-bitten physiognomies. In disregard to all conflicting reports, the health of the men in camp is exceedingly fair, in truth, the sick report falls away below the average. It is a fact that quite a number of men were unable to report at the expiration of the furlough; and all attribute that to be a basis for reports of that character. We do not wish to convey the impression by the above remarks that there is "no sickness at all." but to only relieve the minds of those interested as to its seriousness. There is no new sickness at all with the exception of a few bad colds contracted during the rainy spell upon our return. We wish to beg pardon if we should mention the "Burnett Cafe" too often, but it is a temptation hard to resist, as it lies nearest our hearts (?)—stomachs. But there is one incident which generally occurs during the serving of meals. There is a small tin pan about the size of a saucer and about an inch deep placed at every man's plate—though generally empty—for oatmeal or rice. Now, of course, the men expect an after dish or desert of some kind, and as a matter of course eat their fill of "substantials," and sit back a few moments in appreciative expectancy for the "extra," but no extra heaves in sight. The men grow very impatient and to attract the attention of the waiters beat on the tables with their tin plates and end up by stamping their feet, and of all the racket and uproar you cannot begin to imagine. No one can realize how much fun it affords any one to participate in the beating of a thousand tin pans and the stomping of two thousand feet, unless they attend the Burnett Cafe. We wish that some of the old veterans could enjoy some of these "up-to-date" camp outbreaks. It would do their old hearts good. But underneath all of this enjoyment, you can see that the men are impatient to be mustered out. There has not been near the progress made during the week that was expected. There is a great deal more to do than was anticipated, and everything must be done "just exactly right." Things have to pass through so many hands. For instance, the men of each company turn in their ordinance stuff to the captain, who receipts them in full for every article. Every article is checked up in parts, for example, knapsack, the shoulder straps, blanket straps, canteen and canteen straps, rifle and rifle sling, haversack and straps, knives, forks, cup, spoon, and plates are all checked up under different heads, and you are credited or charged up for articles in part—there being a list price for every part or article in whole. The captain is receipted by the government. The government holds the captains responsible and they the men. So, in the final settlement, in making out the pay roll, if you are short in anything, it is deducted from your pay.

We understand that the state has refused to accept the uniforms and other stuff—which was furnished the militia—that was turned in by the regiment on receipt of clothing, etc., from the government, and have presented an account against each man, who had been furnished these things by the state, of about ten dollars. Of course this has raised great indignation among the men, as in all events the men will receive small enough pay for their services. The members of the regiment will try and impress their various legislative representatives of this injustice and have them to make an appropriation the "first thing" when the legislature convenes next. It is reported that prominent lawyers have offered to fight the cause, if every member of the regiment will "donate one dollar apiece to the cause." But this does not lay well on their stomachs, as they might come out $11 short in place of $10. Besides they have more confidence in the results of an investigation by state representatives. The people should not grow impatient if the boys should do a little extra murmuring, for all of these little disagreabilities are very provoking. The men will also be charged for overpay. You will remember that the men received both state and government pay during fourteen days in April, which amounts to about seven dollars. It seems from the movement of things now that the men will do exceedingly well to come out even in the end. All men mustered in here will have to pay their own way home—another steal. Well, now you may bet, the boys will do some "tall kicking" themselves at the polls during the coming election, if candidates do not promise to do some careful investigating if they are elected. Political party cuts no figure in this deal. The man who promises to do the job gets the support. The physical examinations is still in progress, and judging from time devoted to each man and the size of the medical corps, it will take several days to complete the work. There will be room for complaint by the men that they did not receive proper attention by the examiners. For they spare no pains in acquiring knowledge of their health.

The muster out date is fixed for October 25th. Of course that does not signify it will take until the 25th, to muster us out, but have only given themselves ample time to do the work right.

BOUGHT GREEN GOODS

Paulding People Should Read The Exposes in the Courier

(Toledo Bee)

Lake and Snellenberger are partners in the poultry business in Payne, Paulding county, Ohio. A few days ago Lake received one of the regulation green good letters and was taken up with it that he showed it to his partner. It offered $13,000 in counterfeit money for $1,000 in United States currency, and the proposition seemed so large they could not resist. So as they had been directed to do, they telegraphed to D. A. Fullerton, 76 Montgomery street, Jersey City, which is the Western Union telegrap office, telling when they would arrive.

The swindlers met them at the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western depot. yesterday, and by way of Fishkill, Coney Island and other points, took them to a saloon in Long Island City. There three men appeared with a big bag of money and the $13,000 was counted out and put in a tin box by Snellenberger. He turned over $1,000. After a time a box which he thought contained the counterfeit money was given him and was told to go home as quickly as possible.

As he and his partner stood awaiting for a boat at the Cortland street ferry a stranger come up. "I am onto you," said the man. "I'm a government detective and you've got counterfeit money there. But Christmas is coming and I'll let you off for $50."

The partners paid him and thought they escaped easily. They missed their train in Jersey City, and returning to New York stopped at 175 West street last night. This morning they again started home. They had been told not to open the box until they were in Ohio, but their curiosity led them to look into it while they were yet in the Pennsylvania station. They found $13 in bills wrapped around a quantity of waste paper. Then they appealed to the police and asked aid in finding the men.

More About the Shortage.

Since our last, we recall that the republican papers of the county claimed that part of Stroh's shortage, was money that belonged in the clerk's office and therefore he should not be charged with it. We disposed of that by stating a fact that all money that come into the sheriff's hands, whether they go to the clerk or elsewhere, should be turned over. But, having fixed that, we recall that Stroh was compelled to turn over about $90 that fall, for fees he should have collected, but did not. He would have a writ for instance, to serve on a man, and as he wanted that man's vote, he would tell the voter he would throw off the costs that a sheriff usually charges. This was a great scheme, and might have worked all right, had the fees gone directly into the pocket of the sheriff as under the old law. But it don't now. These fees belonged to the county and should have been collected and turned over to the county. It was like using another man's money, and when it was found he had been throwing off fees that belonged to the county, in order to get votes, he was hauled up and made to pay those fees into the hand of the clerk. Now, who kept those books, he or Platter? The people thould consult together and decide whether they want this sort of work continued in that office.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Special to the Courier

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct 18.—Harry Herring, private in Company F, South Bend, died last night in his quarters about 7:30 of a congestive chill. Private Herring was just convalescing from typhoid malarial fever and, in all probability, would have gotten well but owing to the sudden change of the weather took a relapse and expired. His death at this period, and being so sudden created great sadness in the regiment, and, no doubt, his death occurring so near being mustered out will tend to create greater sadness in his family. His remains were conveyed to Indianapolis last night where proper arrangement was made for his burial.

We can truthfully say that yesterday was one of the most disagreeable days experienced in our army life. Cold wind blew and hard rains fell continually from 9 a. m. yeaterday until past midnight. These decided changes and rains we are afraid will work havoc to the health of the men if they are not mustered out soon. With utmost care it is hard for the men to take proper care of themselves.

President McKinley will visit Indianapolis next Friday, and it is reported that the 157th and 158th regiments will be ordered to the city as guards of honor. If the 157th receives that distinction, they will have to redraw their arms, as they have been turned in.

The 159th has received an extension of furlough for twenty-three days, until November 10th.

The boys think it would be much nicer for the President to "ride out to the camp" than for them to "walk to the city and back." But we suppose McKinley will use his own pleasure in regard to that. The boys are afraid they will have to blush if the President in making an address, "through modesty," should recount the "heroic deeds" performed by Indiana soldiery. A wreath of Palmetto roots intermingled with an occasional pick or shovel would make a suggestine as well as an appropriate decoration for the place in which he speaks.

Great Men's Sons.

It is probable that much of the incompetency developed in military matters during the Spanish war, is due to favoritism in placing the sons of noted or prominent men in soft positions such as staff officers, and places in the commissary and quartermaster's departments. The sons of great men are generally poor sticks and not a few of them have bad habits that render them unfit for business. This has always been true, and knowing this, the authorities at Washington should not have put them into these responsible places. Here is where much of the trouble came in. Their people had a political pull with the administration and no one seemed to care whether the men so appointed would do their work or not, that food medical and hospital supplies, clothing etc, that a hardworking and careful officer could easy have sent to the camps and hospitals, were allowed to remain in store houses, or be sent astray, or be sent on some later train, all because the officer whose duty it was to see to this was too lazy or too indifferent, or was off at some party, or on an excursion, or was drunk We can name scores of thes sprigs of greatness who haxe been in these important places. We blame the administration for appointing them. And it makes no difference whether the administration was trying to pay an obligation to some influental republican or desired to win the favor of influental democrats, the result in either case was disastrous and demoralizing. There is today, many a vacantchair in homes all over this country, made so by mixing up politics in this war.

Cuban Elections.

The Cubans are to hold their national election Oct. 29. It is believed that Gen. Maximo Gomez will be made president and the present temporary president, Bartolome Maso, will be made vice-president. In that case, it is probable that Gen. Calixto Garcia, will be secretary of war. And we suppose they also expect American soldiers to stay and sustain the new government.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

Terrible Accident at Waterloo—Bert Duncan Killed.

Frank Duncan, of Smithfield, was here this forenoon and brought word of a terrible accident. This morning at about six o'clock a horribly mangled body was found by the Lake Shore track just west of the crossing at Waterloo. The section men brought word to town and the remains were soon identified as those of Bert Duncan, whose father, W. B. Duncan, lives near Columbus, in Cherokee county, Kansas. He had been here all summer on a visit with friends here and at Elkhart. He was now coming down from Elkhart on a freight train that comes through in the night, and it is supposed jumped off too soon. The body was cut entirely in two, near the hips, the legs lying inside the track and the head part was found on the grass outside. His remains were carefully prepared for burial and his father telegraphed for. He was about twenty-six years old and a very worthy young men. He was a cousin of Frank and George Duncan, and of the other young members of that family, his father being a brother of George, Andy, John, Ben and Theodore Duncan.

Help Him To Do It.

Charles Bartels wants to have some more improvements made on the old cemetery, and would like to have those with friends there, and all others who can, to come and help him. He asks them to meet him at the cemetery on Monday Oct. 31, and do what they can, or make arrangements for it. He wants to have the grounds around by the fence graded up in nice shape, the tombstones straightened up where needed, and fence properly painted so it shall not get rusty. This work can be done by volunteer help in this way, and they will thus save paying out money. He also suggests that some of the farmer friends, could bring in trees and these could be planted around the grounds or even at places within, all tending to improve the looks of the cemetery. He also, wishes to say, that some of money signed on subscription, is still unpaid and he urges that this be attended to soon. Mr. Bartles is determined to bring the old cemetery up to the fine condition of Evergreen, and has so far succeeded admirably.

Orrin Miller at Rest

Tuesday's Daily.

At ten o'clock, this forenoon, the funeral of Orrin Miller was held at the home of his father L. J. Miller, in the presence of a large number of friends from town and country. The sermon was by Rev. J. D. Brosy of the Lutheran church but Rev. T. M. Guild of the M. E. church was also present, The services were impressive and the words of the speaker feeling, especially in his allusions to the early years and schooldays of the deceased. And there were present two of his former teachers, Mr. McIntosh and Mr. Steves, both of whom agree that Orrin was a good student and pupil. He was born in Jackson township a little over 40 years ago, namely, Oct, 8, 1858 At the close of the services, he was laid to rest in Woodlawn where also lie the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Borst, and Mrs. Miller mother.

COURT

Since our last report, the chief work done, has been on the case of Miller vs Wabash road, at the loss of that willow farm, the nature of which we have already given. Yesterday afternoon, the defense began, and their witnesses are now being examined. Of course they don't make out that willow farm as valuable as Mr. Miller did. It will probably last several days before the jury gets it.

Other work disposed of since our last, may be noted. Young Derthick from Waterloo was dismissed the charge being malicious trespass. Young Miller charged with the same, boards with the Sheriff 120 days for it.

Edna and Wm Eby were divorced, as were also. David and Sidney Husselman. The case of Edward Orr, vs McIntosh to recover value of a forged county order is dismissed. Alva Brandon's case vs Minneapolis Threshing Machine Co. is sent to Federal Court,

OBITUARY.

Orrin Miller was born in Jackson township, DeKalb Co. Ind., Oct. 8, 1858, and departed this life at the home of his parents on Jackson-st Oct, 16, 1898, at the age of 40 years and 8 days. When a boy five years old he moved with his parents to Corunna, Ind, where they lived about 18 years. When out of school, Orrin assisted his father at the railroad station, and was ever an untiring son in his work. After the family came to Auburn, Ind. he again took his place at the freight house, helping his father in the grain seed business. Orrin was an affectionate and dutiful son; he was kind hearted and would do any favor for others if in his power to do so. He was always jolly and cheerful, and greeted his friends with a smile when he met them. Orrin was a hardworking and industrious young man, and obedient son and a loving brother. In the month of March, last, he was taken with a stroke of parylysis from which he partially rallied, but never recovered. After 8 months of severe suffering he passed into the spirit world, Orrin leaves to mourn his death, a father and mother and one sister, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the residence on Jackson-st yesterday Oct. 10 at 10 a. m. Interment took place in Woodlawn cemetery.

J. D. BROSY, officiating.

MARRIED.

On last Sunday morning Oct. 16, Mr. Delbert D. Jackson of [DeKalb] this county, and Miss Cora F. Wood of Huntertown, were united by the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. James Houghton. The brief and impressive ceremony which made them husband and wife took place in the minister's home in the presence of a small number of friends. The bride was beautifully dressed in white crape and silk. The groom wore the conventional black. Both young people are of exceptional character and highly respected. Both are members of the Huntertown Universalist church of which Mr. Houghton is pastor. A large circle of friends wish them the greatest happiness, They will reside on the farm of Mr. Jackson's father a few miles south of this city in Butler township.

Accidentally Shot.

Two boys 10 and 15 years old named Stucker, says the Columbia City Post, living near the line between Noble and Whitley county, went out to hunt rabbits, taking a shot gun. In the course of time a rabbit was started. It circled around the boys, who were perhaps 20 feet apart. The elder boy, Stewart, had the gun and pointing it at the rabbit, kept turning around, and when in range with his brother pulled the trigger. The entire charge lodged in the younger boy's breast.

He fell to the ground and before his brother could get him home, death resulted. The older boy is nearly crazed with grief, but of course it was purely accidental. However, it will serve to impress other boys of the danger in handling fire arms.

Some Monster Corn.

(North Liberty Newe)

One of the largest ears of corn ever grown in St. Joseph county was brought to town from D. W. Houser's farm, east of this place, this week. The ear of corn is of the Bloody Butcher variety and is quite well filled. It is 15 inches long and 8 inches in circumferance. The ear contains 16 rows and has 1,100 grains. Five dollars is offered for an ear that will discount this one in length.

DIDN'T NEED STAMPS

Every certificate of nomination filed with election officers this year, has had affixed to it, three 10-cent revenue stamps, it having been decided by the state election officers, that this must be done. Now comes a decision from Washington, that the stamps were not necessary. Of course they will do no harm and Uncle Sam will be so much richer. The candidates for the various offices generally paid for the stamps.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS—IMPORTANT.

The Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, have requested us to announce that they have several thousand sets of the finest coin silver-plated War Memorial Spoons left over from their recent distribution. They will mail, postpaid, a full set of six of these spoons to every subscriber to the COURIER, who will send name and address—a postal card will do. If, on receipt of the spoons, you find them the most exquisitely beautiful specimens of the silversmith's art you ever saw, and worth $3.00, remit 78 cents, as payment in full, within 30 days; if not pleased return spoons immediately. Each spoon is of a different design—after-dinner coffee size—showing soldiers in camp in Cuba, Morro Castle, and four U. S. Battleships. They are imperishable mementoes of the late war, and every subscriber should accept this most remarkable offer and obtain a set before it is too late. All that's necessary is to say you're a subscriber to the COURIER (this is important) and that you accept Memorial spoon offer. Address QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 357 W. Harrison St., Chicago.

PARIS EXPOSITION IN 1900.

Some Good and Novel Entertainments to Be Provided.

What shall we see in Paris in 1900? In all probability some of the following attractions, says Cassier's: First, a panorama-diorama, entitled "Le Tour du Monde," by the celebrated marine artist, M. Louis Dumoulin; second, "The History of Costume," by the well-known costumer, M. Felix. Next will come the "Palace of Optics and the Moon at One Meter," thanks to a huge refracting telescope, due to M. Deloncle; "An Aquarium Theater," by M. Guillaume, and "A Panorama of Sea Voyages in Distant Lands," by M. Hugo d'Alesi. We are to have a grand mining exhibition beneath the Trocadero palace; an Indian village, with numerous pagodas and pretty bayaderes; a reproduction of ancient Alexandria; a kingdom of Siam; a Javanese theater, and last, but not least, a "Street of Paris," in which eminent Montmartre talents are to be allowed full liberty. Here will be established, no doubt, the gayest spot of the exhibition, and the clever artists and poets who have migrated from the popular Parisian hill to the boulevards will revive, in the interior of the exhibition, the "Black Cat Cabaret" and other resorts famed for wit, song and good beer. It is impossible at this early stage to write in detail of all these things in preparation for the exhibition, because most of the authors are liable to make alterations in the plans which they have submitted before the eventful spring of 1900. From an engineering point of view, perhaps one of the most novel features of the exhibition will be the movable platform, or railway. A road of this kind existed at the Chicago exhibition and also at a more recent exhibition in Berlin. But it seems to be reserved for Paris to put the movable platform to practical use. In 1900 this novel mode of traction is to be introduced in the shape of an elevated railway within the limits of the exposition. There will be two platforms, one running at a speed of about two and one-half miles an hour, the other at a speed of about five miles. Visitors will experience no more difficulty or inconvenience in stepping from the less speedy platform to the faster one than they will in stepping from the motionless stations on to the slow platform. These stations will, naturally, be placed on the side of the platform that moves at slow speed.

The Casualties of Our Recent War.

From the first our war with Spain was a series of rapid surprises, with everything favoring this country. Now that hostilities have terminated, it is possible to consider what is probably the most surprising feature of the whole struggle—the American losses in killed and wounded. Beginning with the first attempt to land troops in Cuba, and ending with the surrender of Manila, it is found that the navy had one officer and eighteen men killed and three officers and forty men wounded, and the army, twenty-three officers and 231 men killed and eighty-seven officers and 1316 men wounded, a total of twenty-four officers and 249 men killed, and ninety officers and 1356 men wounded. It may be said that almost all of the American casualties occurred in the three days' operations before Santiago de Cuba. Spanish casualties are unknown, yet we may assert that many single battles in our civil war were fought with greater losses in killed and wounded than the entire casualties on both sides in our war against Spain.

BUTLER.

The Butler Record persists in his claim that the Canning Co. list $3000, on account of their inability to run the factory three or four days during the street fair, and says the superintendent told him so. Unlike him I will not question the veracity of either of them but submit a few figures. Figures won't lie you know, but I may lie with figures. If they lost $3000 in four days, they would lose $750 per day, or they would make $750 per day, if running. Assuming their expenses at $250, per nearly double the actual expense, would leave a net profit of $500 per day, and running 60 days would earn a net profit of $30000. Assuming that they had 200 acres of tomatoes and that they yielded 10 tons per acre, would make 2000 tons, at $6 per ton would be $12000, dedict this from the $30000. value of product, we h a profit of $18000. Therefore the producer, who is a member of the company, would receive directly from the company $60 per acre for his product and his share of the $18000 profit or $90 an acre for profit, or $150 per acre for growing tomatoes. Have figures lied or have I only lied with figures?

Last Thursday night about ten o'clock our people were alarmed at the fire whistle. The streets were soon thronged with people attired in all sorts of hasty made toilets. The fire was located in the Aunt Polly Willard dwelling on West Oak street, it was controlled by Jerome Brown. It had gained much headway before the fire company could apply water, so the house was badly wrecked. The loss is perhaps covered by insurance in J. A. Campbel's agency. It was occupied by Mort Brown, who suffered severely, but had no insurence,

Otis Metcalf, son of Charles Metcalf living three miles northeast of Butler, and a soldier in the U. S. Regular Army, about 18 years old and unmarried died last week and was buried last Sunday. His funeral took place the M. E. church, conducted by Rev. Frech. About every seat in the church was taken. Mr. Metcalf came home recently after an absence of ten or more years, only to die soon after.

Herman Repp of Glenn, Michigan, a nephew of J. A. Campbells and Chancy Daily of the same place are visiting Butler friends, they came across on wheels and encountered rain and mud, and had a very hard trip. They go from here to Nan Wert, Ohio.

Catarrh is a local and constitutional disease. Lincoln's Constitutional Catarrh Cure (a tonic and blood purifier, price, 75 cents.) and Lincoln's Catarrh Balm (price 50 cts.) contains no mercury or cocaine, used in connection are constitutional and local remedies. The above amount is offered if they fail to cure.

Columbus, Ohio, March 24, 1898.
LINCOLN MEDICINE CO., Columbus, O.:
Gentlemen:—I have suffered with Catarrh since 1880 and have expended over $100 for different remedies. I have taken offensive scabs from my nose an inch in length, and half the size of my finger. I have used one-half jar of Lincoln's Catarrh Balm and one bottle of Lincoln's Constitutional Catarrh Cure. I can now breathe naturally. The scabs in my nose have disappeared and I feel better than I have for years. I have received more benefit from Lincoln's Constitutional Catarrh Cure and Lincoln's Catarrh Balm than from all other remedies combined.

—Pierceton Record:—Little Donald Humphreys, who is now living with his uncle, T. A. Hoover, happened to be out in the yard Balloon Day just as Prof. Love was descending with his parachute. The little fellow knew nothing about a balloon ascension and running into the house he exclaimed excitedly, "Tum out and see, Dod is tummin down."

—St. Joe News:—It is a little difficult to tell which was the most surprised last week, Uncle Dave Andress or his friends. They tried to surprise him with a birthday party, and he up and gave them a greater surprise by getting married. Uncle Dave got the best of the crowd and everybody wishes him and his estimable bride a prosperous and happy married life.

—Waterloo Press:—J. E. Dilgard, secretary of the DeKalb County Farmer's Institute was called to Lafayette, Tuesday, to attend a meeting under the management of the experiment station of the officers of county institutes throughout the state. Questions of interest to farmers will be discussed, and the plans for the institutes agreed upon. It will be remembered that the DeKalb County Institute will be held again at Corunna.

—Week before last and the previous, the Waterloo Press and the Butler Record were very indignant at what the COURIER said about Stroh and Platter. Our next issue made the matter so plain that no one could get around it unless he could show proof. Since then, these two organs have put in their time very industriously talking about C. Jackman, C. C. Walter, the populists, and about the Silver Dawn about territorial expansion and about the number of tomatoes lost by the Butler street fair. They have also ridiculed the complaints of the soldiers about neglect and ill-treatment. But not a word about Stroh or Platter. Evidently, they have had a chance to get at the facts.

What It Was.

"Just listen how they are pounding the floor with their feet," said the tragedian behind the curtain. "Yes, said the leading ingenue, "that is the stamp of public approval."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wednesday, the 12th, a few friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Israel Layman, her 22nd birthday. It was a complete surprise. Those present were: Fred Morr and wife, Lester Cobler and wife, Thomas Morr and wife, Mrs. John Hull and son Fredie, Mrs. Sam George, Mrs. Eliza George, Mrs. Abe Culbertson, Mrs. George Layman and Mrs. Jim George.

Mr. Dave Wyatt and his brother Israel have traded farms.

There were quite a number of people at the box social over to Hay school house Friday evening.

Mrs. Thomas Morr spent Sunday with her grandfather, V. Johnson.

Mr. Fred Morr made a business trip to Auburn Saturday.

Modern Wars of Brief Durations.

The war between Spain and the United States was ended on Aug. 12, having run a course of less than four months. All recent wars in which important members of the world's family of nations have been pitted against each other have been of a short and decisive character. Last year's war between Turkey and Greece began April 17 and was terminated by a truce preliminary to a final peace treaty at the end of four and a half weeks. The war between Japan and China began on July 25, 1894, and was ended by the utter defeat of China after eight months. The great war of Russia against Turkey, which began April 24, 1877, came to an end with the Russian army lying just outside of Constantinople nine months later. The Franco-Prussian war, which began July 23, 1870, found the Prussians making peace at Versailles on Jan. 28, 1871. Birmarck's war of 1866, in which Prussia made an attack against Austria, lasted only seven weeks.

—There will be a public sale at auction of the furniture etc., of the Brunswick Hotel at the Junction recently occupied by Phillip Watters, on Saturday, October 29, beginning at 10 a. m. It will be remembered that hotel was burned, but the furniture was mostly saved in good shape.

—Among the many scenic effects in the big production of Mr. Jas. H. Wallick's "A Guilty Mother," in the weird, beautiful and startling scene in which Oakley Tower is struck by lightning during the realistic thunder storm. This great original emotional drama will be the attraction at Henry's Opera House Monday evening Oct. 24.

—The adopted daughter of the late Nathan Squires of Jackson township was taken suddenly, Sunday morning with what seems to be a serious fit of apoplexy. She was just getting ready to go to Sunday school and that evening was very low. We have not heard since as to her conditions She is said to be a most estimable young lady, and a large circle of friends hope for her recovery.

—We spoke a few days ago about the success of M. B. Masters in raising big sweet potatoes. We have some larger ones now of the later digging, that are astonishing for size. He picked out sixteen that together weighed 47 pounds, which goes to show there were not many small ones in the patch. The sixteen were from one row, fifty feet long.

LIFE'S VICISSITUDES.

Tragic Fate of a Stranger in an Unknown Land.

Among the many patients treated at the Memorial Hospital at Johnstown, Pa., the most notable one is Mr. Gustave Carlson, a Swede, who has been an inmate of that institution since July, handless and footless. He is thousands of miles from home and relatives. It was an earnest endeavor to make this long journey that brought him to Johnstown. Mr. Carlson came to America in 1891, and is aged about 29 years. In 1893 he got employment in the woods of Minnesota, and in 1895 went to the lumber fields of Michigan, and during the blizzard of 1896, on Jan. 5, he lost his way in the woods and lay in the snow for many hours before he was discovered, and on being taken to a hospital the doctors found it necessary to amputate both hands and feet to save his life. After his money was all gone entrance was secured for him in a public hospital in Chicago, where he remained for several months. Then it was necessary to perform an additional operation, and when he was finally discharged he was able to walk on his knees. In this way he tried to make his way to New York, hoping there to find some means of securing passage across the Atlantic, his family having written to him that if he could get home they would not let him want for anything, but had not the money to pay his passage. He traveled as best he could, riding on freight trains and walking when he could not ride, until he reached Johnstown, when his knees became sore, and he applied at the police station for lodging, being unable to go any further. That day his one knee broke open and discharged pus. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, where he has been since. Lately, however, some of Johnstown's leading citizens have taken up a subscription to buy him cork legs and pay his way home.

A Steel Bird's Nest.

In the natural history museum at Soleure, in Switzerland, may be seen a bird's nest made wholly of steel wire. There is at Soleure a considerable number of watchmakers, and in their yards are pieces of cast-off or broken watch-springs. This debris a bird thought proper to use for the construction of its nest. One day a watchmaker observed in a tree in his yard a very queer-looking nest. He examined it closely, and saw that it had been made entirely out of watch springs. It was more than a decimeter (2-5 in.) wide and was perfectly adapted to its object. When the brood had been raised the nest was taken down and given to the museum, where it is a striking example of the adaptiveness of birds in taking advantage of circumstances in building their nests.—Cosmos.

ITINERARY OF PRESIDENT M'KINLEY'S WESTERN TRIP.

IN THE GRASP OF FEVER.

Yellow Jack's Tentacles Spread Over Mississippi.

Without the intervention of frost the spread of yellow fever over the entire State of Mississippi seems a certainty. Each night's report indicates how surely and rapidly the disease is getting the whole State into its clutches. The continuance of the present warm weather will guarantee a further spread, which the resources of the State Board seem unable to stop. The disease is firmly rooted in all the different sections of Mississippi and its appearance in counties adjoining those already in the grasp of the fever is only a question of a short time. The State Board of Health has, of course, long ago despaired of confining the infection, and is now devoting itself more to the general work of relief and securing of nurses for the places that are stricken. It is still waging a stubborn but hopeless fight against the rapid advance and whenever a new place is reported a State inspector is sent at once with orders to isolate and cordon the town. As a general thing, however, the exposure has usually been too widespread to render this inspection of any great value.

The appeal of the Governor of the State to the Federal Government for relief had the effect of arousing neighboring States to the necessities of the situation. About $2,000 was raised in Memphis in one day for general distribution in the shape of food and supplies. The helpless destitution of negro reconcentradoes continues in Jackson and other towns without material alleviation. They crowd as close to the guard line as possible when anyone goes down near the cordoned district and beg eagerly for money and supplies. Many without families have managed to get out and away. Helpless, ignorant creatures, they cannot understand why they should be sacrificed for the general good.

The executive department of the State government is located at Brandon, Miss., a small station on the Queen and Crescent road twelve miles from Jackson. Jackson is the city most affected, and the virulence of the disease among negroes has demonstrated that they are no more immune than white people. The mortality remains small, only five deaths having been recorded so far at the State capital. In the smaller towns, however, new cases are reported daily in totally unexpected quarters, and in some places have caused a panic. Realizing that its efforts were unavailing, the Mississippi State Board of Health has appealed for aid to the Federal Government.

Since the cordoning of the yellow fever infected districts and even towns with a strict guard the condition of affairs has rapidly grown worse. More than 6,000 people, according to official figures, are in absolute need of food, not to mention the necessity for nurses. The acute stage that the situation has reached is proved by the official appeal for aid to the President of the United States issued by the State Board of Health.

The panic continues. A grewsome illustration of the state of public feeling was reported by Dr. Harrison, health officer of Le Flore County. A tramp entered the neighborhood of Phillips, a small inland town in that county, three days ago. He was taken sick, and sought refuge in a negro church, where he remained two days before he was discovered, and his sickness diagnosed by Dr. Harrison as yellow fever. The whole neighborhood was in a panic. Jackson was wired for an expert to come and confirm the diagnosis. None of the citizens would go near the patient, who was in a dying condition. Dr. Harrison's practice compelled him to leave him for several hours alone. When he returned the church was in ashes, and the tramp consumed in the flames.

The yellow fever reports show a total of 465 cases in Louisiana this summer, and thirty deaths and 351 cases in Mississippi and thirty-five deaths.

NAVY'S SMALL RECORD OF LOST

Seventeen Men Killed and Sixty-seven Wounded in Spanish War.

A tabulated statement of the casualties of the war with Spain has been sent to Secretary Long by the surgeon general of the navy. The statement begins with the action at Manila, May 1, and includes the actions off Cienfuegos, Cardenas, San Juan, Porto Rico, Guantanamo, Santiago, June 22 and July 3; the fight of the Eagle, July 12; the Bancroft, Aug. 2; the Amphitrite, Aug. 6, and the Yankee, Aug. 11. Altogether there were seventeen killed and sixty-seven wounded. Only one man died subsequently, as a result of his wounds; fifty-four men were discharged and returned to duty; six were invalided from the service, and six continue under treatment.

It is remarkable that of the ten men wounded in the battle of July 3 eight had ear drums burst. This is explained by the fact that in all other actions the men put cotton in their ears, but when Cervera's fleet came out they did not have time to take this precaution. The greatest number of casualties in a single engagement was at Guantanamo.

QUAY UNDER BONDS.

Pennsylvania Senator and His Son Charged with Misuse of Money.

United States Senator Quay, his son Richard R. Quay and Charles H. McKee of Pittsburg, law partner of Lieut. Gov. Walter Lyon, appeared before Magistrate Jermon in the Central Station Court in Philadelphia Wednesday afternoon to answer to the charge of conspiracy in the alleged misuse of money, with John S. Hopkins, former cashier of the People's Bank, who committed suicide soon after the failure of the bank in March last. After a hearing lasting three hours Senator Quay and his son and Mr. McKee were bound over for appearance at the next term of court. Bail was fixed at $5,000 in each case, David H. Lane, a local political leader, going on the bond. The case now goes on the list for trial at the term of court beginning in November.

Movements in the Soudan.

Re-enforcements have been ordered from Omdurman to Ghedaret, where the force under Col. Parsons has repulsed another dervish attack with slight loss. There is no news from Fashoda, but in all probability Maj. Marchand will shortly evacuate his position there.

Old-Mah-Quad.

This old Indian, captured by Gen. Bacon's force, has a reputation of the worst kind, even among his own people. He has often boasted of the whites he would kill if opportunity offered. The picture shows him seated on an old barrel, with the pipe of peace in one hand and his Indian war club in the other.

DATE NOW FIXED.

Spaniards Must Give Up All the Cuban Custom Houses on Dec. 1.

The situation over the failure of the Spanish Government to agree to withdraw its forces quickly from Cuba has become serious, and it may be necessary for the United States to adopt stringent measures to compel the Spaniards to adhere to the conditions of the peace protocol. The administration is determined not to grant the Spanish beyond Dec. 1 in which to surrender authority to the American representatives. That decision has been communicated to the American members of the Havana evacuation commission, and the Spanish commissioners will be informed that further delay will not be tolerated.

The United States will not insist on evacuation of the island by all the Spanish forces by the date fixed, but on Dec. 1 the American military commanders in Cuba will take possession of all custom house and other public buildings in their several districts. If it shall be necessary to use force to accomplish this, force will be used. The administration is hopeful that the Spanish authorities will bow to the inevitable when they have learned what the United States Government proposes to do, and all trouble will be averted.

From reports of the American commissioners it is evident to the President and his cabinet that the Spanish commissioners are pursuing dilatory tactics for the sole purpose of holding on to the revenues of Cuba as long as possible. With the exception of Santiago, the principal ports of Cuba are still in the possession of the Spaniards, who hold the custom houses and collect duties.

The present attitude of the Spanish members of the evacuation commission is such, however, that they may attempt to make trouble if American troops are landed at Havana and other important ports. Although the administration is confident that this defiant disposition will change when the Spaniards realize how determined this Government is, every preparation will be made to meet any emergency that may be presented.

Maj. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's Seventh army corps will be in possession of the city of Havana long before the date on which the custom house there must be surrendered. His troops will go into camp on the outskirts of the city, but will practically assume authority over the capital when they arrive.

SIX PUT TO DEATH.

Chinese Councilors Who Advocated Reforms Have Their Heads Cut Off.

The Chinese embassy at London is in receipt of a dispatch from Pekin saying that greatest harmony prevails between the emperor and dowager empress. The dispatch adds that the latter, seeing the danger of rushing sweeping reforms, consented to advise the emperor in the general management of affairs and as to the best way of introducing reforms. Continuing, the dispatch says circumstances have shown it to be necessary that six councilors who were urging the emperor to undertake inopportune reforms be put to death. After referring to the punishment of the others, the dispatch says that since his dismissal from the Tsung-Li-Yamen, Li Hung Chang has abstained from participating in public affairs.

GEN. GRANVILLE M. DODGE.

President of the Commission Which Is Investigating Army Scandals.

Gen. Granville M. Dodge, president of the commission that is inquiring into the management of the war, is one of the most distinguished of the soldiers produced by the United States. So highly did his old comrades rate his military and manly character that they gave him the position of president of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee in succession to Gen. Sherman.

Gen. Dodge was born at Danvers, Mass., in 1831. His youth was spent on a farm in the pure air and in that physical labor which gives men strong constitutions. In 1846 he entered Norwich University, and was graduated four years later as a civil engineer. In 1857 he entered the service of the Illinois Central, and later that of the Rock Island, and was afterward employed by the Government in the surveys of the Pacific Railroad.

About this time Gen. Dodge established the banking and trading house of Baldwin & Dodge at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and he has never given up his residence in that city, although he spends much of his time in New York.

Gen. Dodge went to the civil war as colonel of the Fourth Iowa infantry, and was severely wounded in the Missouri campaign. When he recovered he was made a brigadier general and placed in command of the Second division in Kentucky. After the war Gen. Dodge was made chief engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad. As engineer, as Congressman, as director of the grand railroad construction across the continent, he evinced as much genius and vim as he had when a soldier.

AFTER THE SCALPERS.

Crusade Inaugurated Against Men Who Sell Cut-Rate Tickets.

A concerted movement against the entire system of ticket scalping was inaugurated at Chicago Wednesday. The National Association of Merchants and Travelers tendered a banquet to representative railroad men, at which the subject of ticket scalping was gone over in all its details. Over 250 guests were present, and John V. Farwell, Jr., presided. Both railroad and business men dwelt upon the menace to the commerce and trade of the country from the business of ticket brokerage, and resolutions were adopted authorizing the organization of a central anti-ticket scalping committee with subcommittees and representation from all the States. The coming session of Congress will be the objective point, and energies will be bent in the direction of securing drastic legislation against the scalping trade.

FEVER SCARE HURTS RAILROADS

Illinois Central Losing $15,000 a Day by the Quarantine.

It is estimated that the Illinois Central Railroad is losing $15,000 a day on its Southern business as a result of the stringent yellow fever quarantine. It has completely tied up the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley division and has badly hampered all traffic on the main line, taking off all the passenger trains except the double through vestibule service. The effect upon the railroads is a more serious question than the fever itself, which is of a very mild type. Other railroads running into New Orleans are hampered in much the same way. Passenger coaches on all the roads are locked tight after leaving the New Orleans depot until they get through the States of Alabama, Mississippi and parts of Tennessee and Texas.

To Put Down Socialists.

The Vorwaerts of Berlin publishes an order issued by the Prussian minister to the Governor of Erfurt complaining of the leniency shown by the police in the recent election disturbances and enjoining the police in future to act resolutely, using the edge and not the flat of their swords if rioters refuse to disperse. This order is believed to be directd against the socialists, and is likely to produce a sensation. The order also enjoins the energetic use of firearms and prohibits the firing of blanks.

IN THE BROOMCORN BELT.

Crop Proves Profitable in Certain Parts of Illinois.

The busy day for the broomcorn grower is harvest time. The time extends from the 1st of August until Oct. 1. This is arranged by the time of planting, which is during the months of May and June. The farmer plants his broomcorn so that it will ripen at different times during the harvesting period. Great judgment must be used in cutting or harvesting it. If it is cut before ready it will not weigh well and the fiber is not up to standard. Then if it is ripe, or nearly so, it will be colored and that will detract from the price. The ground is ployed and thoroughly pulerized before planting. The cultivating is after the manner of Indian corn. When ready to harvest the farmer gathers his force.

A man walks between two rows breaking the stalks and laying them across each other so as to form a table about three feet high. A man passes along on each side of the table and cuts off the heads or tops of the broomcorn. From four to eight inches of the stalk is left with each head. The tool used for cutting broomcorn is a knife similar to the ordinary shoe knife. The breaking of these tables serves two purposes. It places the heads in position so they may be cut off readily and form a place to lay the heads. Four rows of heads are placed on each table. Teams pass through the field between the table rows and the corn is loaded and hauled to the thrashing place. Here it is placed on long tables, which extend to the seeder. On these tables it is straightened out and placed on a carrier belt, which carries it through the seeder. From the seeder it is carried to a barn or shed prepared with shelving, where it is scattered out and left to dry from two to four weeks. When sufficiently dry it is placed in bales of 200 to 300 pounds each.

It requires a large amount of additional farm help and coming at a time of the year when the farm work of other kinds is slack a great body of men from the adjoining country flocks to the broomcorn fields. The broom manufacturer visits the farmer and purchasers the crop. Sometimes he depends upon a broomcorn broker. It is sold by the farmer at so much per ton. The price varies from $50 to $100 per ton. A ton is the product of from two to three acres. In recent years a large part is manufactured in the broomcorn belt. This broomcorn belt covers but a small part of Illinois. It extends from Neoga on the south to Tuscola on the north, and from Shelbyville on the west to Paris on the east. Broomcorn is not the exclusive crop in this belt, for other crops are grown.

BROOM CORN HARVEST OF ILLINOIS.

THE BRONCHO BUSTER.

A Model of Remington's Masterpiece Presented to Col. Roosevelt.

Probably no commander of troops in the war with Spain more completely won the love and admiration of his men than did Col. Roosevelt, of the Rough Riders. His dash and courage in the face of death compelled their respect while his watchful care for their welfare won their affectionate regard. When, on resigning his office of colonel, he bade farewell to his soldiers at Camp Wikoff, there were tears on many a bronzed cheek which for years had known nothing tenderer than the blazing sun and alkali dust of the southwestern plains. His men as a testimonial presented him with a miniature from Remington's Broncho Buster, an engraving of which we present.

Remington, who has spent many years on "the frontier," has made the mustang of the West famous because of the originality and the vigor shown in his work. Being taxed one day with exaggeration in his treatment of the broncho, and a sneering remark being made that his drawings proved that he knew nothing about the shape of a horse, the artist, who knew the animal in every particular and point, determined to demonstrate that the sneer was unmerited. Thereupon he modeled the Broncho Buster, which has been admitted to be the most animated bronze figure of a horse ever produced, and which has added fresh laurels to those already won by the talented artist.

A NEW POMPEII.

Discovered by Excavators on the Site of Ancient Priene.

This title is perhaps an exaggeration, but it is certain that if the published reports are true, the German archaeologists who are excavating on the site of ancient Priene have made a discovery of the highest interest. It is well known that Priene is in Asia Minor, and that the modern city of Samsoun occupies its ancient site. Several years ago an English expedition unearthed and studied the temple of Minerva, the chief sanctuary of the city, built by order of Alexander; but its ruins, although interesting, were abandoned, and they have since been despoiled by the inhabitants of the neighborhood. In 1895 the Germans resumed the exploration of the region in behalf of the Berlin Museum, at the expense of the Prussian government and under the direction of a young architect, Wilhelm Wilberg. The work of excavation is already sufficiently advanced to enable us to judge of its rare importance; a whole city is being unearthed, in almost as good preservation as Pompeii. And this is the more important because up to the present no similar discovery has ever been made that gives precise indications of the general arrangement of a Greek city, of its public monuments, or its individual dwellings. The city thus exhumed is assuredly of the period of greatest Greek beauty; the streets cross at right angles and are laid out with the greatest regularity, and we can identify colonnades, theaters, market places, shops and houses with their decorations and interior arrangement. South of the temple of Minerva has been found the agora, surrounded with great colonnades, while opening on one of its corners is a small square edifice somewhat resembling a theater and constituting perhaps the place of meeting of the city council. It is in admirable preservation, and sixteen rows of seats can be seen still in place. Worthy of note is a vault in one of the walls—a thing extraordinarily rare in Greek architecture. We should add, in closing, that among the structures that have been entirely exhumed is a theater whose scene is intact, which will doubtless solve some of the problems connected with this special part of the Greek theaters.—Literary Digest.

In Just One Minute.

An educated parrot gave rise to a law suit in Montana, recently. The man that owned the parrot was making a great deal of noise in his house one night, and a lady who lived next door, becoming annoyed, asked him to keep still. In reply, she was told to "shut up," and then followed a perfect volley of abuse out of one of the windows. The lady retired into her house, and the next day had the man arrested. His defense was that he had not said a word, but the parrot had, and, of course, he had no control over the voice of the bird. He added, that, since the magistrate seemed skeptical, he had brought the parrot into court, and would have it give an exhibition of its powers. This the parrot proceeded to do, and in one minutes insulted everybody in the room. The magistrate promptly dismissed the case, but told the man that such a rascally bird ought to be strangled on general principles.

MR. DOOLEY.

The Indian War.

"Gin'ral Sherman was wan iv th' smartest men we iver had," said Mr. Dooley. "He said so many bright things. 'Twas him said: 'War is hell,' an' that's wan iv th' finest sayin's I know annything about. 'War is hell,' 'tis a thrue wurrud an' a fine sintiment. An' Gin'ral Sherman says: 'Th' only good Indyun is a dead Indyun.' An' that's a good sayin', too. So, be th' powers, we've started in again to improve th' race, an' if we can get in Gatlin' guns enough befure th' winter's snows we'll tur-rn thim Chippewhys into a cimitry branch iv th' Young Men's Christyan Association. We will so.

"Ye see, Hinnissy, th' Indyun is bound f'r to give way to th' onward march iv white civilization. I come along an' I find ol' Snakes-in-His-Gaiters livin' quiet an' dacint in a new frame house. Thinks I: 'Tis a shame f'r to lave this savage man in possession iv this fine abode, an' him not able f'r to vote an' without a frind on th' polis foorce.' So says I: 'Snakes,' I says, 'get along,' says I, 'I want yer house an' ye best move out west iv th' thracks an' dig a hole f'h ye'erself,' I says. 'Divvle th' fut will I step out iv this house,' says Snakes. 'I built it an' I have th' law on me side,' he says. 'F'r why should I take Mary Ann, an' Terence an' Honoria, an' Robert Immitt Snakes an' all me little Snakes an' rustle out west iv th' thracks,' he says, 'far frim th' bones iv me ancestors,' he says, 'an' beyond th' watherpipe extinsion,' he says. 'Because,' says I, 'I am th' walkin' dilygate iv white civilization,' I says. 'I'm jist as civilized as you,' says Snakes. 'I wear pants,' he says, 'an' a plug hat,' he says. 'Ye might wear tin pairs,' says I, 'an' all at wanst,' I says, 'an' ye'd still be a savage,' says I, 'an' I'd be civilized,' I says, 'if I hadn't on so much as a bangle bracelet,' I says. 'So get out,' says I, 'f'r th' pianny movers is outside r-ready to go to wurruk,' I says.

"Well, Snakes he fires a shtove lid at me an' I go down to th' polis station an' says I: 'Loot,' I says, 'they'se a dhrunken Indyun not voting up near th' mills an' he's carryin' on outrageous an' he won't let me hang me pitchers on his wall,' says I. 'Vile savage,' says th' loot. 'I'll tache him to myspict th' rules iv civilization,' he says. An' he takes out a wagon load an' goes afther Snakes. Well, me frind Snakes gives him battle, an' knowin' th' premises well he's able to put up a gr-reat fight, but afther awhile they rip him away an' have him in th' pathrol wagon with a man settin' on his head. An' thin he's put undher bonds to kep the peace, an' they sind him out west iv th' thracks an' I move into th' house an' tear out th' front an' start a faro bank. Some day whin I git tired or Schwartzmeister makes his lunch too sthrong f'r competition, I'll go afther Snakes again.

"Th' on'y hope f'r th' Indyun is to put his house on rollers an' kep a team hitched to it, an' whin he sees a white man to start f'r th' settin' sun. He's rooned whin he has a cellar. He ought to put all th' plugged dollars that he gets from th' agent an' be pickin' blueberries into rowlin' stock. If he knew annything about balloons he'd have a chanst, but we white men, Hinnissy, has all th' balloons. But, annyhow, he's doomed, as Hogan says. Th' onward march iv th' white civilization with morgedges an' other modhren improvements is slowly but surely, as Hogan says, chasin' him out, an' th' last iv him'll be livin' in a divin' bell somewhere out in th' Pac-ific ocean."

"Well," said Mr. Hennessy, the stout philanthropist, "I think so, an' thin again, I dinnaw. I don't think we threat thim r-right. If I was th' government I'd take what they got, but I'd say: 'Here, take this tin dollar bill an' go out an' dhrink ye'ersilf to death,' I'd say. They ought to have some show."

"Well," said Mr. Dooley, "if ye feel that way ye ought to go an' inlist as an Indyun."—Chicago Journal.

WILL NOT RELEASE PRISONERS.

Filippinos Will Not Cheaply Relinquish Dearly-Bought Conquests.

The national assembly at Malolos, at a recent sitting, voted Aguinaldo a civil list of $75,000, but Aguinaldo declined to receive anything until the army should have been paid. An attempt was made by Palerno, the speaker of the house, to have inserted a clause granting him an allowance because of his office, but the proposal was rejected. The Spanish community is endeavoring to secure the enforcement of the release of prisoners. Personal investigations made in the province emphasize the determination of the insurgents to obtain a specific guarantee of favorable terms before releasing the prisoners now in their hands, and it is certain that they will never cheaply relinquish their dearly bought conquests.

A pair of fancy coach horses were sold in the St. Louis market recently for $4,200. They were sold to an Englishman who will take them to London for exhibition purposes. Well-bred horses are profitable.

The great broom corn crops in the southern parts of Nebraska and northern Kansas have been gathered and marketed. In McPherson County, Kan., as much as $50 a ton has been paid for the best crop. This is an excellent figure.

The Kansas corn crop for 1898 is estimated at 127,500,000 bushels. This is an average of 17.6 bushels per acre, a little less than last year. The crop in what is known as the corn belt portion of the State is very light. There will be 4,760,000 acres in the Kansas wheat field this year.

There is every prospect of a glut in the horse market. Of the thousands of horses and mules bought by the Government for army use, very few were lost in service and many are now eating their heads off and it is likely will be rapidly sold. The army mule must be mustered out with the soldiers.

REGAINED HEALTH.

Gratifying Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Happy Women.

"I Owe You My Life."

Mrs. E. Woolhiser, Mills, Neb., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I owe my life to your Vegetable Compound. The doctors said I had consumption and nothing could be done for me. My menstruation had stopped and they said my blood was turning to water. I had several doctors. They all said I could not live. I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me right away; menses returned and I have gained in weight. I have better health than I have had for years. It is wonderful what your Compound has done for me."

"I Feel Like a New Person."

Mrs. Geo. Leach, 1609 Belle St., Alton, Ill., writes:

"Before I began to take your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer from womb trouble. Menses would appear two and three times in a month, causing me to be so weak I could not stand. I could neither sleep nor eat, and looked so badly my friends hardly knew me.

"I took doctor's medicine but did not derive much benefit from it. My druggist gave me one of your little books, and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel like a new person. I would not give your Compound for all the doctors' medicine in the world. I can not praise it enough."

What Noah Did.

While teaching a class in Sunday school recently the teacher asked: "What was Noah supposed to be doing when the animals were going into the ark?"

She received several answers. At last a little girl put up her hand.

"Well," she asked, "what do you say?"

"Taking the tickets, miss," said she. —Tid-Bits.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your Grocer to-day to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it like it. GRAIN-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. ¼ the price of coffee. 15c. and 25 cts. per package. Sold by all grocers.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Rob the Ants.

In times of scarcity the South African natives sometimes rob the ants' nests, and as much as five bushels of grain have been taken from a single nest.

The Most Common of All.

The most common of all ailments from sports of all kinds are sprains and bruises. The most common and surest cure of them is by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, which is prompt in its action.

When a great man dies, for years the light he leaves behind him lies on the paths of men.—Longfellow.

Lane's Family Medicine
Moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary. Acts gently on the liver and kidneys. Cures sick headache. Price 25 and 50c.

A man cannot leave a better legacy to the world than a well-educated family.—Thomas Scott.

It Hangs On

If it was only health, we might let it cling.

But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.

And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

loosens the grasp of your cough. The congestion of the throat and lungs is removed; all inflammation is subdued; the parts are put perfectly at rest and the cough drops away. It has no diseased tissues on which to hang.

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster draws out inflammation of the lungs.

TOPICS FOR FARMERS

A DEPARTMENT PREPARED FOR OUR RURAL FRIENDS.

Essential Prerequisites to Success in Subsoiling—How to Handle Bees—Intelligence of the Horse—New Use for Tomatoes—Farm Notes.

Plowing of any kind, including subsoiling, should be gradual, and not a sudden deepening over the former cultivation of the land, writes W. F. Massey in Home and Farm. Thorough drainage and aeration is one of the essential prerequisites to success in subsoiling. If the subsoil needs drainage there is little benefit to be derived from subsoiling, as it will run back together as soon as the subsoiling has been done. Then, too, where the immediate subsoil is a mellow, yellow clay, there is less evidence of benefit from subsoiling than where it is a hard, red clay, such as we have here, and such as is common in the uplands of Georgia. One of the greatest benefits to be expected from a good subsoiling of a hard clay soil is in its allowing the roots of the peas and other legumes to penetrate deeper, and hence to draw more mineral matters from the subsoil for the benefit of the upper layer. There are few tracts of the worn uplands in the South which can, with safety, be turned to the depth proposed at once, and before we can turn such soils safely to the depth of ten inches, or even less, the aeration of the subsoil must be done, and in no way that I know of can it be done except by the subsoiling of the hard pan just below the former run of the plow. I feel perfectly certain that little benefit will be noticed in the first crop from subsoiling where the land can safely be comminuted to the depth of eight or ten inches, and I would not care to subsoil any of our lands deeper than twelve inches, for this is as deep as it ever need be. Land that can be plowed to the depth of eight or ten inches without turning any of the "cold, clammy subsoil," needs very little subsoiling.

Handling Bees.

A good many people do not keep bees because they have a notion that bees do not like them. It has been pretty well established that in the matter of likes and dislikes everybody is alike to bees. The most successful bee-keeper is the one who wears a veil all the time, and goes among the bees with a calm determination not to strike wildly at the air if one of the colony begins to buzz about his ears.

Bees are not at all averse to a hostile declaration, and are ready at all times to sacrifice themselves in a fight with any animate being. The best way to handle bees is to take advantage of their weak spots, and bees are in the best condition to manipulate when they are approached through their stomachs. Smoke is the most convenient thing to use in raising an alarm in a colony of bees. As soon as smoke begins to enter the hive every bee attacks the stores of the colony and eats all the honey it can hold. If the colony is gently smoked, and left to itself for a few minutes, it can be handled by any one. This is equally applicable to all bees when handling them, but some breeds of bees are more aggressive than others. The native black bees are liable to go out of their way to sting a man, but Italians rarely make the first move toward battle. For this reason Italians should be chosen in selecting a breed. Another good reason for choosing them is that they are the best breed. —Farmer's Voice.

Horse Intelligence.

While the army mule is almost invariably more intelligent than he is suspected of being, the horse occasionally exhibits unexpected aptitudes, as Col. Roosevelt found out. The Colonel, with a number of the rough riders, had been training the horses to lie down at a signal given by a certain pressure and a certain twist to the reins. At first Col. Roosevelt's horse didn't quite catch the idea, but it soon learned and it didn't forget. Shortly after the lesson, the Colonel rode back to his tent, where he found a number of friends waiting for him. Before he had time to dismount they came up and began talking to him on some subject in which he was much interested. Now, it is characteristic of the famous soldier that when he becomes interested in a subject, it engrosses his entire attention. As he talked he began to make gestures and to move in his saddle. Presently he chanced upon a combination of movement and gesture that meant more to his horse than to his hearers. That intelligent animal began to give way under him, sank slowly down and left the animated speaker stranded in the midst of a sentence, with both feet on the ground, straddled well apart, and a prostrate horse between them. In a moment his was the picture of amazement. Then he remembered, spoke to the horse, which got up, and resumed the conversation, remarking that the animal didn't seem to be feeling well.—New York Sun.

New Use for the Tomato.

Cosmos, a French scientific review, says that a South American farmer has recently made an accidental discovery of great value to gardeners and florists. It was to the effect that leaves of the tomato plant will drive insects away from other plants. He covered the tomato leaves over some young shrubs he wished to protect from the sun and from small insects, and was delighted to find that the latter cleared out as soon as they got the odor of the tomato leaves. He then extended the same treatment to an entire row of young peach trees, and his success was complete. To render the process more simple he tried a decoction of the fresh tomato leaves as a spray on other trees and shrubs, and found that he had a perfectly effective weapon. He also found that a spray of the same kind would keep flies off his horses.

Care of Heifers.

The development of a heifer depends very much on the intelligence of the owner. Some owners indulge in a fattening, others in a starvation policy. By the latter the animal is stunted and its digestion impaired, so that it is little good for any particular purpose; by the former she is fit only for the butcher. If you feed on grass, which is a flesh and fat producing food, she may be expected to yield little else than milow. Abundance of succulent nutritious food will stimulate the glands that carry the milk. Ensilage is good feed for heifers, mixed with a dry clover hay, or wheat bran mixed with corn ensilage is better.

And then a heifer should be bred early, and if she drops her first calf at a year and a half old she will be all the better milker. She should be fed liberally with food that will make growth rather than fatten. Do not feed with corn, but some oats may be given, if the milk production is large enough to keep the heifer thin in flesh. As already stated, intelligence is needed in the development of a heifer to a profitable dairy cow. Every farmer should give the matter more thought than has heretofore been the case, bearing in mind that fall calves thrive better and make better cows than those dropped in the spring.

The Soil Over Underdrains.

Always in digging an underdrain the lowest subsoil, often cold, hard and without vegetable mould, is more or less mixed with that dug near the surface, and which is usually richer. In filling the ditch this mixture continues, so that the soil that was dug from the bottom of the ditch may often be in the last spadeful thrown in. Yet we never knew this to make any difference. Always crops of any kind show a better growth directly over the drain than they do on either side, even during the first season's growth. After a year or two the good effect of the drain extends to land on either side, as the soil freezes deeper when surplus water is removed from it, and the roots of plants can go deeper for moisture or plant food.

The Hired Man's Wooing.

He wooed the farmer's daughter,
In the cornfield on the hill;
He wooed her in the morning,
And at noon was wooing still;
The corn waved all around them,
On the ground the pumpkins lay,
And the sun cast lengthy shadows,
Yet he sweetly wooed away.

He wooed the farmer's daughter,
He was young and she was fair;
Love was in the leaves that rustled,
Love was in the scented air;
He wooed her in the cornfield,
That was all he did all day—
He was paid for shocking corn stalks,
But the farmer was away.
—Cleveland Leader.

Apples for Cooking.

There are many sour apples that contain more saccharine matter than those that are called "sweet" only because they lack acidity. And there is some malic acid in the varieties that are called sweet. It is the combination of sweet with acidity that makes the richest and best flavored apples either for eating raw or for cooking. Commonly, only those that are very distinctly acid have a good flavor when cooked, and they should be acid enough to require considerable sugar in cooking.

To Make Farming Pay.

While farmers with large areas sometimes claim that "farming don't pay," other farmers manage to live and save something on ten acres. One of the successful farmers on a small farm made it a rule when he went to market to bring home more money than he carried. His rule was to endeavor to sell, in value, more than he purchased, and to grow everything on the farm for his own use that the land would produce.

Don't Starve Your Land.

No kind of land should become poor from cropping. Every time a crop is removed something should be applied to the land. There may be a sufficiency of manure, but fertilizers are now much cheaper than formerly, owing to increased sources for procuring them. On farms where live stock can be made profitable the ground should become richer every year, and the crop should be larger to correspond.

Farm Notes.

Fire is the best agent to use in getting rid of insects and their eggs. Every limb removed and all leaves and refuse under the trees should be burned and lime scattered on the surface of the ground.

Some growers burn the strawberry beds as soon as the ground is frozen, and then mulch the rows with clean straw or salt hay. By so doing weeds that have died down are cleared away and many seeds on the surface of the ground are destroyed.

It does not always pay to hold potatoes over, as hauling, shrinkage and decay during the time they are held will more than offset the extra price unless prices are very high. Then there is storage room to provide and labor incurred to caring for the tubers during the winter.

Ornamental trees serve to beautify a homestead and perform the part of windbrakes, but they pay because they add to the value of the farm. Paint is also a valuable adjunct in farming, as it gives the buildings an attractive appearance and assists in preserving them.

The importance of using plenty of seed may be mentioned from the fact that only 30 per cent. germinates on the average. The conditions of the soil, kind of seed, its age, and depth of planting must be considered, but the rule to be observed is to use rather more seed than too little.

An excellent time to select seed corn is when it is being husked. All seed corn should be kept in a dry place, and if hung up where the air can circulate through it, so much the better. In some sections seed corn is injured in winter by severe cold, but this danger is not so great if the seed is kept dry.

A special crop for the use of poultry is millet seed. The use of such seed for that purpose increases the number of eggs and enables the farmer to get a good price for his seed by keeping large numbers of hens. The yield is about twenty bushels per acre, and it can be grown on nearly all kinds of soils.

The amount of green food that can be grown on one acre is enormous. Experiments have shown that on an acre there may be grown 14 tons of pea vines, 24 tons of peas and oats (grown together), 37 tons of green corn, and 3 tons of second-growth clover. An acre of green food will provide more than will 5 acres of ordinary pasture.

GUARD THE CHILDREN'S EARS.

Serious Harm Often Done Through the Carelessness of Parents.

A high English medical authority, Sir William Dalby, has recently written a treatise on the preservation of the hearing, in which he speaks with strongest terms of reprobation of the "cruel and iniquitous practice of boxing children's ears."

Blows on the head of any sort are apt to be permanently injurious, and any one who has studied physiology, however superficially, will readily understand how easily a violent box on the ear may rupture the ear drum and perhaps produce incurable dearness. There are many such cases on record, and parents who do not understand the danger of such chastisement will do well to take heed and avoid it.

It is more startling to be told that a drop of laudanum put into the ear to relieve earache may produce permanent trouble; nevertheless it is so. Nothing of any sort should be injected into the ear except by medical advice. If laudanum and glycerine are used they should be put on a bit of cotton wool, and care must be taken not to put the cotton in too far. The best aurists positively forbid syringing the ears, and where it is necessary to cleanse them prescribe surgical cotton twisted on the end of a wire, the wire being carefully covered and the cotton projecting of an inch beyond it. Even then the cotton must be carefully and tenderly applied.

In case of earache the only safe home remedy is a hot water bag, or, better yet, a roasted onion, very hot, done up first in newspaper and then in flannel and applied on the outside over the ear.

In bathing, especially in the surf, cotton wool should be put into the ears, otherwise a sudden and violent influx of water may do serious harm.—Philadelphia Times.

THE MAJOR'S EXPERIENCE.

From the Detroit Free Press.

One of the stanchest supporters of the deep-water way from the Great Lakes to the ocean is Major A. C. Bishop, of 715 Third avenue, Detroit, a civil engineer of wide experience and considerable prominence in his profession. He was assistant engineer on the Hudson River Railroad in 1850, and has since conducted large engineering operations. He has been located in Detroit since 1815, and has a large acquaintance among the business men and citizens of this city.

Two years ago, for the first time, Major Bishop was in the hospital. For two months he had the best of medical attendance, but when he was discharged he was not like the Major Bishop of old. When asked regarding his health, he said: "When I had my last spell of sickness and came out of the hospital I was a sorry sight. I could not gain my strength, and could not walk over a block for several weeks.

Major Bishop.

"I noticed some articles in the newspapers regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which convinced me that they were worth trying and bought two boxes. I did not take them for my complexion but for strength. After using them I felt better, and know they did me worlds of good. I am pleased to recommend them to invalids who need a tonic or to build up a shattered constitution.

"A. C. BISHOP."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this eighth day of January, 1898.

ROBERT E. HULL, JR., Notary Public.

Dear.

It is natural for a rich man to become familiar with a professional man he hires and to address his physician as "My dear doctor." But to his solicitor he would not say, "My dear lawyer!" although the legal man's fee would be quite as good.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Piso Company, Warren, Pa.:

Gentlemen: Piso's Cure for Consumption was recommended to my mother by a friend, and I got it, although not having much faith in patent medicines. For over thirty years mother has had a most racking cough whenever she takes the least cold, and no medicines have ever been able to touch it. She took your medicine two days, and her cough stopped entirely—has not even had a hacking since—and she sleeps better and feels better than she has in years. I want to tender you my most grateful thanks. We shall never be without Piso's Cure for Consumption in the house. Respectfully yours, MRS. N. F. SPEEDLING.

Charles Darwin was so weak in health that but for the wife and children who saved him from trouble and gave him the leisure of a peaceful home, he would probably never have made his great discoveries.

West Indian Land Crabs.

It is said that land crabs of the West Indies once every year leave their native home in multitudes, and in regular order march down to the sea. When in the water they frequently fasten seaweeds on their backs to hide themselves, and the growths selected are always in perfect harmony with the surroundings.

Wheat $2 a Bushel.

Some farmers are holding their wheat because they think the price will go to $2 a bushel. The price, however, may go down and thus great losses will follow. Regulars in War.

The battle of Santiago was fought chiefly by the regulars of the United States army, and a proper inscription will be made upon their regimental flags. In the civil war the small regular army was almost wiped out. It was distributed in the various corps and took part in nearly every great battle in the East and West. Their losses included 2,205 officers and men killed or mortally wounded in action, and more than 3,000 died from disease. At Gettysburg two regular brigades lost nearly half their number killed and wounded. The Fifteenth Infantry lost during the Civil War 97 killed; 420 were wounded; 61 died of wounds and 50 died in prison. The American regular army has a splendid [illegible]

The Queen and Her Daughter.

Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, was ever of an independent and high-spirited nature, and, as a child, was not always easy to manage. The person to whom she submitted (generally) with grace, and whom she avoided displeasing, was her English governess. The magic influence of this lady has been attributed to the judicious use of the word "darling"—in English. When Wilhelmina was obstreperous and was addressed in sorrowful tones as "darling," she was generally charmed to obedience. She always kept the notion of being queen constantly in mind, and when opposed in any way would murmur, "Ah, when I am queen, then I shall be mistress."

Many delightful stories are afloat about the girl's pride, which the Queen-Regent Emma often found it necessary to check. Here is one of them. The following parley occurred early one morning between mother and child, as the young queen sought entrance to her mother's room:

Wilhelmina. (Knocks.)

Queen-Regent—Who is there?

Wilhelmina—The queen.

Queen-Regent—Can't come in.

(Wilhelmina reflects for a moment, then knocks again.)

Queen-Regent—Who is there?

Wilhelmina—Your daughter.

Queen-Regent (in a caressing voice)—Come in, darling.—Sketch.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand.

These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.

What are these remedies? Fresh air, proper food and

Two Military Leaders

One of the most interesting features of the war with Spain is the pictorial history which the artists and photographers of Harper's Weekly have given us. Nothing has escaped them, from the marching of troops down Broadway prior starting for the front, to pictures of the men under fire. They have suffered the hardships of camp-life, and have exposed themselves to Spanish bullets, in order that the world may see, week by week, just what has happened afloat and on shore. Even when in camp they cannot rest for there is alw some interesting scene to "snap"—a group of soldiers or a consultation of generals, such as the one we reproduce to-day from the Weekly. It was a taken in the camp before Santiago, at the moment Generals Miles and Shafter were discussing the surrender of the city.

GENERALS MILES AND SHAFTER DISCUSSING THE SURRENDER OF SANTIAGO.

At a meeting of the South Bend Typographical Union a committee was appointed to secure pledges for all the candidates for election for county officers to get their printing done in St Joseph county and not send it to outside offices as has been done and at a time when many printers, residents and taxpayers in the county, were unable to get work owing to a scarcity of work at the printing offices.

The One Hundredth

The Old One Hundredth boys had a good meeting at Garrett yesterday, as reported by Dr. Swarts, although business prevented his being with them but a couple of hours. There were about seventy of the members present besides a number from other regiments One of them came from Southwestern Kansas to shake hands with comrades again.

HE TELLS US WHY

His Life Was Nearly Wrecked, Also How the Wreck Was Averted by

Dr. WHEELER'S NERVE VITALIZER

How often we hear the invalid say, "The first of my trouble was sleeplessness. I could not get the needed rest." The same cause will shatter health while the world lasts. As long as people will neglect nature and fail to satisfy the urgent call for sleep during health they must expect a rebellious nature to refuse to respond when the nervous system is weakened from any cause. When you feel debilitated, fretful, despondent, worried, or cannot secure the full eight hours sleep prescribed by nature, use Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer at once. Build up your nervous system before it's too late. Geo. Halstead, clerk at Jefferson House, Toledo, tells in the following words what it did for him: "I consider Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer a remarkable medicine for nervous troubles; I will tell you why. While living in Lima I worked nights; my sleep during the day was not regular or restful. I became very nervous, irritable, and all run down The doctors failed to help me, so also did other medicine which I used. A friendly druggist told me of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer. I tried it and it worked like a charm. I was able to secure restful sleep after the first dose. My appetite returned and I regained my lost flesh, and was very soon perfectly well. I have recommended it to a great many and results were equally beneficial."

BOB WHITE.

The Game Bird of America and the Favorite Everywhere.

[A paper read at the rhetorical exercises of the eighth grade of the Auburn Public Schools, Oct. 7, 1898.]

Of all the game birds of America none is better appreciated by the sportsman, than the quail. He is a genus of gallinaceous birds nearly allied to partridges, but having a more slender bill, a shorter tail, longer wings and no spurs.

He may be found from southern Maine and Canada to the gulf and from the Atlantic to the high central plains.

He is known by various names. In the north he is called quail and in the south and west he is partridge. Everywhere he is known as "Bob White."

The first and second quills of the wing are about as long as the third which is the longest.

The quail of Europe is a smaller and more dumpy bird than our quail. His flesh is darker and his plumage is dull. He does not form into coveys, but flocks. In the month of April he crosses the Mediterranean to the European shores and islands, returning to Africa in the autumn.

It is said that the quail has running seasons. In October when joining a flock, he leaves the region of his birth and travels on foot in a southernly direction until he reaches the banks of streams and bays, where he remains till November, when he returns to his former haunts.

In the month of May they build their simple nests, formed of a slight depression in the ground lined with dried leaves and soft grasses. The nest may be found under a bunch of grass, beneath a small bush or along fences and sometimes in the open fields of wheat and clover.

The quail lays from one dozen to two dozen eggs which are brilliant white. In three or four weeks the little downy young leave the eggs, and even with pieces of egg shell sticking on their back, they go with their parents to be taught to search for food. They feed on the seeds of various grasses, weeds and berries.

If a rain should come on or the cold wind blow, the mother calls her chicks under her wing, where they nestle safe from the chilling storm. When night comes on, she takes her little ones to some place removed from the thicket where prowl the fox and the weasel.

Soon after being hatched, the young, in running, assist themselves with their tiny wings.

When a flock of quails have been fired at they scatter out from one another and are wild. They cannot be found very easily without a dog. When a quail has been shot and only crippled so they can run, they will run into the weeds and grass and hide.

If you would find an old quail and her young ones, she would hide her little ones and come and fall at your feet uttering a noise. She will run and flutter and seem to try to be caught and cheat your outstretched hand, and affect to be wing broken and wounded, and yet have just strength enough to tumble along until she has drawn you a safe distance from her children.

When too large to gather under the mother's wings, they take their flight at night-fall from the stubble fields where they have been feeding, and thus breaking the scent, drop down in a compact cloud into some open space under a bush, and they cosily huddle up to one another so as to form a circle with their heads outward so they can see on all sides and can spring out at any moment from this nest to evade any foe that may steal on them during the night.

The quail is protected by the law only during the month of November.

The quail is seven inches in length and weighs from 6 to 9 ounces. It lives from three to five years

Remembered Blue Jeans.

Gov. "Blue Jeans" Williams, who was elected governor of Indiana in 1876, had a warm place in the hearts of the common people. He cared little or nothing for the half-sneers of such as thought him nothing but an uncultured farmer. He proved a good governor, and the people who met him once, always remember his plain, kind ways. So we clip an item referring to him which we find in a recent copy of the Goshen Democrat:

Governor Mounton Monday received a letter addressed to Governor James D Williams, Indianapolis, Ind. Governor Williams has been dead eighteen years, but the writer, Mrs. Rose Cochran of Salem, Fulton county, Arkansas, evidently thought he was still governor of Indiana. The letter asked that Governor Williams tell the writer what sort of man John H. Hunter, of the Co-operative Knitting Company was. She said he had written to her offering her work on condition that she bought one of his knitting machines. In conclusion she said.

"I will not send him the money until you advise me to, as so many men tell things in their advertisements when they dont mean to do so at all." Governor Mount accepted the legacy from Governor Williams and answered the letter as conscientiously as the dead Governor himself would have done.

Champion The Cause Of Indiana

Of all the persons in the world that the people have a right to expect something good from it is from the township trustee. They give him the power to levy taxes, to collect the same, and to spend the same as he cheoses or sees fit. To do the most good for the most people is his sworn obligation. Then, if knowledge is wealth and power and satisfaction, it is knowledge that the people want; and the knowledge they most need is to know themselves and their surroundings. It would seem that no more favorable opportunity could be had for the public official than an opportunity to buy for the schools the recorded history of the people whom he is seeking to serve,

The chosen work of the "Indianian," a Hoosier magazine, devoted to the Hoosier, to local and current history, is to ask ten questions on Indiana history each month, to duplicate these questions eight times, to send the "Indianian" to all the teachers in the State, and to ask each one to distribute these coupons in the homes. Doing this will make the histories twice as valuable as they otherwise would be, and at the end of the school year it will have done a service for the State the equal of which has never yet been performed. Kindly estimate the result of placing 15,000 copies of the "Indianian" in the schools, with eight coupons with ten questions each detached from each copy and sent into the homes. Each home figured at a membership of five, and we have something over 600,000 people interested at once. This in itself is sufficient to warrant the trustees in taking an earnest stand in behalf of the "Indianian" and the history questions. They can do this cause a great good and at the same time do a greater good for the people and the State,

Urging this effort should not be necessary.

AN ADDITIONAL INDUCEMENT.

The B, L. Blair Co., of which B. L. Blair, publisher of the "Indianian," is President, offers a large list of prizes for the best essays by school children and teachers on Indiana history topics.

Beats the Klondike.

Mr. A. C. Thomas, of Marysville, Texas., has found a more valuable discovery than has yet been made in the Klondike. For years he suffered untold agony from consumption, accompanied by hemorrhages; and was absolutely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. He declares that gold is of little value in comparison with this marvelous cure; would have it even if it cost a hundred dollars a bottle. Asthma, Bronchitis and all all throat and lung affections are positively cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Regular size 50 cts. and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure or price refunded. 2

OBITUARY

Nelson a infant son of Frank and Sophia Grogg, was born April 11, 1898, and departed this life Oct. 12th 1898, at the early age of six months. Nelson was a bright and lovable child. He was like a beautiful rose, unfolding his beauty as the days passed by. He entwined himself around the hearts of his parents, brothers and sisters by his loving disposition and sweet smiles. The flower that began to bloom so beautifully in this world, has been destroyed by death. He is now blooming in a heavenly clime, where death cannot come, and where hearts are not made sad. Our sorrows here will be turned into eternal joy by and by if faithful unto death. Little Nelson leaves to mourn his death a mother, father, four brothers and three sisters, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the Union Church five miles west of Auburn, Interment took place in the Union cemetery.. Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

A Croup Cure

is what many a mother is looking for; something absolutely safe and reliable, that will disarm her terror of that dread rattling, strangling cough, so fearful to the mother, so fatal to the child. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a croup cure that can be relied on. Thousands say so.

MRS. W. J. DICKSON ("Stanford Eveleth") writes from Truro, N. S.:—

"That terror of mothers, the startling, croupy cough, never alarmed me so long as I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house."

"We have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in our family for years. Once when our boy had a severe attack of croup, we thought that he would die. But we broke up the attack by using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."

R. H. COX, Plaucheville, La.

KILLED INSTANTLY.

[Kendallville Sun]

A sad accident happened yesterday afternoon near Tamarack lake northwest of this city, in which the fourteen-year-old son of Levi Smith lost his life. A party of young men residing in the vicinity of Tamarack lake, consisting of Pen Fruhm, Walter Winegart, James and Garfield Smith, formed a hunting party and went to the Butler woods near the lake yesterday afternoon. While scouring the woods for game Garfield Smith, the youngest one of the party, went into a cluster of brush, it is thought, to scare up some birds. He entered the brush in a stooped position and as the birds took flight rose up to a standing position just as Walter Winegart blazed away with his shot gun at the departing game. The full load struck young Smith in the forehead, killing him instantly. The boys gathered the prostrate form of their dead companion and hastily started with him to the home of his parents who reside one-half mile west of Fruhms corners. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith of this city were passing along the road just as his companions came out of the woods into an open wheat field with the prostrate form, conveying it to the home of his parents. The brother of the dead boy told the circumstance of the accident to Mr. Smith in a sorrowful and truthful manner while the rest of his companions listened in a cast down and much affected manner. The parents of the poor are in poor circumstances, have a large family, and it seems more than their share of trouble, as only a few months ago their home and its contents were destroyed by fire.

NOTICE OF INSOLVENCY

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Ellen Jane Muhn, Deceased.
IN THE DEKALB CIRCUIT COURT.
No. 775.

Notice is hereby given that upon petition filed in said Court by George E. Muhn, Administrator of said estate, setting up the insufficiency of the estate of said decedent to pay the debts and liabilities thereof, the Judge of said Court did, on the 7th day of October, 1898, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and order the same to be settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore notified of such insolvency, and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance.

Witness, the Clerk and seal of said Court, at Auburn, Indiana, this 7th day of October, 1898.

MICHAEL F. LONG, Clerk.

Wednesday's Daily.

—A number of our Rebekah ladies meet at Mrs. Kiblinger's this evening to go to Waterloo, where the lodge has invited their sisters from this place and Butler.

—A letter from John D. Lannum reports him now at Toledo and in good health. He is employed in the furniture department of W. L. Milner & Co., one of the largest dealers of that line in the city and likes his place well.

—Mrs. J. M. Kimsey, of Toledo, Mrs. Judge Penfield and Mrs. J. A. Barns were guests of Mrs. Mary Boyer at dinner today. Mrs. Kimsey is an old Waterloo neighbor and the ladies were glad of an opportunity to visit with her.

—One Minute Cough Cure surprises people by its quick cures and children may take it in large quantities without the least danger. It has won for itself the best reputation of any preparation used today for colds, croup, tickling in the throat or obstinate coughs. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—D. D. Snyder came up from Danville today and will be here and at Angola a week or so. He came partly on account of the sickness of his brother, S. C. Snyder, who is still confined to his bed. He leaves the family at Danville in good health. Tonight he will go up to Angola to stay with the relatives there a day or two.

Thursday's Daily.

—For Fertilizers, see Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind. 31—tf

Mrs. Susanna Altenberg went to Ithica, Mich, today to visit relatives.

—John Cool who went from here to Roann a few months ago, is now located at Peru.

—The Greenler Company is now getting a great many logs over the railroads.

—John Wilkinson of Fort Wayne, is in the city, a witness in the Wabash case now on trial.

—S. J. Tarney went to Mentone today to attend the reunion of his regiment, the 74th, which is held there today.

—Mrs. Gill of Waterloo and Mrs. Dingel, wife of the M. E. pastor of the same place, made this office a brief call Tuesday.

—Wm. Nelson of Newville township was a caller yesterday. He was here on business connected with the estate of the late Wm. Grill.

—DeWitts' sawmill shows a big lot of logs on hand now, and they are busy cutting them out into lumber. Who says the oak timber is all gone?

—John Pepple and wife returned yesterday from their visit with relatives in Ohio. They will not return to their home at Smithville, Texas, till about Nov. 1.

—Auburn has several young men who are employed on Wabash trains. We noticed on the Local freight today. two who are brakemen, Billy Gauley and Russell McDonald.

—Geo. Hurni and Pearl Andress were married last evening at the home of the bride at St. Joe. Both are employes at Bishop's cigar factory. The COURIER wishes them all possible happiness.

—The Eckhart Carriage Company have been making a sample wagon for Watson's livery stable at Warsaw, and Steele & Son have been putting on the lettering etc, on the back. Outsiders can always get the highest class work in Auburn.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Hon. Frank Powers, the democratic candidate for judge was in town yesterday calling on friends. He is making a very effective canvass and makes a good impression wherever he goes. We believe he would make an excellent judge and attend to the duties of the office conscientiously.

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Robert Coe was in town today, as he had no school, having dismissed for the funeral of Frank Grogg's baby. It died yesterday, and the funeral was at two this afternoon. Mr. Coe's school is in the Grogg neighborhood, Dist. No, 11 in Richland. It is his first school teaching, but we hear he is succeeding well.

—J. E. Rose went to Pittsburg, Monday, and returned Tuesday evening, having gone to attend the great triennial conclave of the Knights-Templar, of which he is a member. He says there was a large attendance and they had a good time. The parade was large and of course very beautiful where so many white plumed Knights are marching.

Friday's Daily.

—A Foster has thanks for recent advance subscriptions. He never gets behind in this matter.

—New York city has 103 grammar schools, sixty primary schools, twenty-nine evening schools and four evening high schools, ninty-six in all.

—MARRIED:—at the Lutheran Parsonage last evening, Oct. 13, by J. D. Brosy, George N. Moore and Lillie E. Green. Both are from Butler, Ind.

—Orrin Miller passed a very bad night last night, and did not get any sleep. He seems to be wearing out slowly, but certainly. His family have no hopes now.

—If Uncle Sam takes control of the Philippines, all or only in part, it makes the construction of the Nicaragua canal a positive necessity. Neither is complete without the other.

—St. Joe News:—Chastine Johnson is becoming quite famous for his ability to enlarge pictures from cabinet pictures. He does good work and is meeting with a good degree of success and seems to give satisfaction to those who patronize him.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—M. B. Masters is one of the most successful farmers here, at least he has had big crops on the pieces he farms in East Auburn. About the biggest sweet potatoes we ever saw, were raised by him over there. They are simply wonderful, and the patch that was intended for one family is yielding for several.

Saturday's Daily.

—W. C. Carmer was in town yesterday.

—Father Young was in the city this week, calling on friends.

—Oliver T. Morton, youngest son of the late Oliver P. Morton is dead.

—Mrs, Catherine Becker, of Corunna, was among our callers today and has thanks for subscription to the WEEKLY.

—I. N. Cool, of Logansport, is visiting the old Auburn neighbors at present. He brings word that the folks are all well.

—Geo. Weeks, of Edon, Ohio, was a caller today. Sorry we were not here to meet him. He was for some time, a valued employe of this office.

—Mrs. Barns' brotner, J. R. Lamson of Washington, D. C, went west over the B & O. at 4 p. m today. He goes to visit the relatives in Nebraska.

—Mrs. L. D. Nelson, of Jackson township was in town over night and took her son who is teaching at the Junction, to the institute at Jackson Center.

—Mrs. Sarah Campbell, of Anderson, returned home on the afternoon train after a week's visit with parents Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Tarney and other friends in this city.

The Angola Herald reports that Miss Ada Mountz is now recovering. She is a sister of Howard Mountz of Garrett and of whom we recently spoke as being seriously ill.

—Mrs. E Foster of Knoxville, Iowa, came here last evening to visit her brother, L. Bowers and family. As they have not met for sixteen years the meeting was one of mutual joy.

—When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Billy Clark goes back to his regiment next week, but will stop a day or two in Chicago to see the big peace jubilee and take a look at the Fourth regulars in the procession. His own regiment, the Twentieth is at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

—Herman Brown writes from Wolcottville that he begins his work in the school there on Monday. He is in charge of the Grammar Department of the High School. He says they have one of the finest six-room school buildings in the state. Mr. Brown is a rising young teacher and we hope to head a good report of his work al his new location.

—The qualifications of voters in the state of Indiana are six months in the state, sixty days in the county and thirty days in the precinct. The election this year occurs on Nov. 8, and all persons removing from one county to another after Sept. 8, will not be entitled to vote; and all persons removing from one precinct to another after October 8, will lose their vote.

—An odd a looking potato as we have seen this year, is on show in the window of Kruger's grocery on South Main-st. It is built up a good deal like a goose, and reminds one of those curious animals one sees in the books on Zoology and Geology. These prehistoric animals with the jawbreaking names such as "ichthyosaurus" etc, would almost recognize a relative if they could come back to earth and see this tuber.

—Cyrus Markley of Ashland Co. Ohio, called today in company with his brother-in-law Perry Romine, with whom he has been visiting a week or so. Both gentlemen are veterans of the rebellion. Mr. Romine was member of the Ohio 23d, the regiment in which were President McKinley and a number of other distinguished men. Mr. Markley was in the 2nd Ohio, and began his serious fightingat Bull Run, and so on through many hard fought battles till the close, being several times wounded.

NOTICE OF INSOLVENCY

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Ellen Jane Muhn, Deceased.
IN THE DEKALB CIRCUIT COURT.
No. 775.

Notice is hereby given that upon petition filed in said Court by George E. Muhn, Administrator of said estate, setting up the insufficiency of the estate of said decedent to pay the debts and liabilities thereof, the Judge of said Court did, on the 7th day of October, 1898, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and order the same to be settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore notified of such insolvency, and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance.

Witness, the Clerk and seal of said Court, at Auburn, Indiana, this 7th day of October, 1898.

MICHAEL F. LONG, Clerk,

D. M. LINK, Att'y.

OBITUARY

Paul Franklin, infant son of P. J. and Anna Reinhart was born in Auburn, Ind,, Jan 10, 1898 and died in Jackson township Thursday Oct. 20, at the age of nine months and ten days. Thus another precious gem has been taken to heaven to sparkle in the crown of Jesus. The separation from these little ones is painful, but the meeting by and by will be joyous. When we find out our loved ones, crowned glorified and blest we shall wonder why we wift at all. Little Paul leaves to mourn his death a mother and father besides many friends Mr, and Mrs. Reinhart will be remembered by the people of Auburn, who one year ago run the Union bakery, first door east of Hoff's grocery store. The funeral services were conducted from the Lutheran church at Sedan, this forenoon at 10:30 o'clock, Interment took place in Cedar Lake cemetery about 6 miles north of Auburn. Rev. J. Brosy officiating.

Voting Precincts

At the June session, 1897, the Board of Commissioners made a new voting precinct in Union township, making five in all. They are now to be known by number and are bounded as follows:

PRECINCT NO. 1.

Commencing on the north boundary line of Union Township at a point where the same is crossed by the center line of the Auburn and Waterloo road; thence southwesterly along the center line of the highway to a point where the same intersects the center line of North street in the town of Auburn; thence west on the center line of said North street to the intersection thereof with the center line of Jackson street in said town; thence south on the center line of Jackson street to the intersection thereof with the center line of Third street in said town; thence east on the center line of Third street to the center line of Main street in said town; thence south on the center line of Main street to the intersection thereof with the center line of Eighth street in said town; thence east on the center line of Eighth street produced east to the intersection thereof with the center line of Cedar street in said town; thence north on the center line of Cedar street to the intersection of the center line of Seventh street thence east on the center line of 7th-st the east line of the incorporated limits of the town of Auburn; thence east on the north boundary line of the south tier of sections of said Union township to the east boundary line of said township; thence north on said east boundary line of said township to the north boundary line thereof; thence west to the place of beginning.

PRECINCT NO. 2.

All that portion of the township bounded on the west and north by the township lines, on the east by the west boundary line of precinct No. 1, as above described, on the south by a line commencing at the intersection of Fifth and Main streets in said town, running thence west on the center line of said Fifth street to the center line of Depot street; thence southwesterly along the center line of said Depot street to the center line of Seventh street, thence west on center line of a highway to the west line of said township.

PRECINCT NO. 3.

Bounded on the north by the south boundary line of precincts Nos. 1 and 2 above described, on the east by the west boundary line of precinct No. 1 and Cedar street of said town of Auburn, on the south by Union street of said town and the center line of Union street projected west to the west boundary line of said township, on the west by said west line of said township

PRECINCT NO. 4.

All that portion of the township lying south of precinct No. 3 and west of Main street in said town and the Ft. Wayne and Coldwater road.

PRECINCT NO. 5.

All the balance of the township shall constitute No. 5.

A Perfect Performance.

At a variety entertainment given in aid of a popular institution, one of the "turns" was a ventriloquist. As this gentleman was recognized as one of the cleverest members of his profession, his appearance was looked forward to with much interest. At last it came. The stage attendants carried on to the stage three dressed figures seated in chairs as usual. The professor followed, and then went through an astonishing performance. No one could detect a muscle of his face move during the laughable dialogues, and the changes of voice seemed marvelous. On retiring the applause was deafening, and the ventriloquist had to return again and again to thank the audience for their appreciation. A couple of minutes or so after, when the audience were talking among themselves as to how it was done, they were thunderstruck to see the three figures get up from the chairs and walk off the stage also; but on realizing how completely they had been "sold," the laughter was uproarious. The professor had got three of his friends to take the place of his usual "lay" figures for that night only.

Will They Do It?

Three county tickets are now in the field, democratic, republican and prohibition. There is no chance for the election of the prohibition ticket, though its names are the names of worthy men. The officers elected will be democrats and two populists or they will be republicans. The chances are all in favor of the democratic ticket and in all probability they will be elected as their ticket is by far the most deserving. So, we ask: Will these men, whoever may get the offices, send their printing to outside offices? Are they, after asking the support of their party papers, going to turn around after election and give the patronage to outside parties that should be given to home parties? Will they do it? We have been in the various campaigns a dozen times, and it has generally worked exactly this way. Democrats or republicans coming into office have found the office, often stocked up with printed matter enough to last them the term. We call to mind two minor cases. At two different times, first a recorder entered on his office, came to the COURIER office, got his letter heads and envelopes printed and was satisfied that they were good enough, and that he had done his duty. But on about the same day his goods were sent from this office, there came by express from Burford at Indianapolis, a big lot of finely lithographed letter heads and envelopes, that had been ordered by his predecessor, without his knowledge. So the county had to pay both bills. A term or two later, exactly the same thing occured in the coming in of a new treasurer. And yet, all this work can be done at home except the larger books of record, etc. If we were put into an office in any county, we would feel it our duty to give out at home, every cent of work there was. Por the home offices could even furnish these large records by getting them of some reliable house, and could save the county a big sum of money; and yet get a little commission themselves. What voter is there, who says this plan would not be right. We say these things not as a threat or warning, but to show what would be an act of the barest justice and what the people will expect,

Watch to be Given Away.

I will give a ticket with every dozen Cabinets in Platino or Dull finish on a Lady's or Gentleman's Gold watch to be drawn on Xmas eve, as a Xmas present to the lucky holder. Now is the time to have your Xmas Pictures taken, don't wait until one or two weeks before Xmas, to have your Negatives made. To take effect at once.

Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. It is liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."

Little Wanderers at Home.

The following complete report of the party in charge of the eighteen little children will be read with interest by every father and mother among our readers.

On October 14th we left Boston with eighteen little children. eleven boys and seven girls. One left us at Carey, O., one was placed at Butler. With 16 we arrived in Auburn Saturday evening.

We were welcomed by a large concourse of people, and received with kind hospitality at the Hollister House by Mr. and Mrs. Hollister, whose generosity made it possible for us to enjoy the comforts and conveniences of this well kept hotel. On the Sabbath, four services were held in the different churches.

On Monday morning at 9 o'clock the Baptist church was filled with people, moved by deep sympathy and tender interest to assist in the work of placing the Little Wanderers in homes. All but one, left with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckhart on approbation, have been placed in good families recommended by a clergyman and two reputable citizens under an agreement signed by husband and wife that they will be treated as sons and daughters. They are not legally adopted but may be; but they are to be treated as though born in these families. We have become deeply interested in these children. We have not sought for homes of wealth, although providentially some have found such, but I have reason to believe that as good character, governmental power, and parental love may be found in the humblest as in the wealthiest homes, and it is the elements of family life which develop character, and it is character we want our children to have—moral and christian character.

The following is the complete list of families taking these children:

Frank Henderson, boy 7 years, Auburn
O. C. Wolfe, girl 4 years, Auburn.
C. S. Thompson, boy 9 years, Ashley.
Fremont Smith, boy 6 years, Auburn.
R. J. Koch, boy 11 years, St. Joe.
W. A. Rose, girl 9 years, Mt. Hope.
G. B. Souder, girl 11 years, Butler.
Ross McKinley, boy 7 years, Auburn.
Geo. W. Lackey, boy 6 years, Auburn.
F. Roby, girl 6 years, Auburn.
Leman Hine, boy 7 years, Auburn.
Solomon Sattison, girl 9 yrs., Butler.
Wm. A. Thomas, boy 5 years, Auburn.
Chas. E. Crain, gi l 14 years, Carey, O.
Martin Muhn, girl 8 years, Auburn.
F. A. Moody, boy 8 years, Auburn.
W. H. McCrory, boy 6 years, Auburn
Charles Eckhart. boy 7 years, Auburn.

After giving the list of places the children have found, the managers, add the following remarks, which we hope will be carefully read by all concerned:

Can I do anything more to insure their happinass? So by the kindness of the editor I give you my advice:

1. Teach your little boy and girl to obey you in every little thing. Do not say you cannot make them mind, you can if you will. They have been taught obedience in the home, not by cruelty, but by firmness. Now they must be taught to obey you.

2. Teach them gratitude. Institutional education can teach them this but very imperfectly. Everthing is done for them and they cannot do much in return. Now patiently teach them to do for you. They have not been accustomed to work, you must teach them. It is due you that they appreciate what you do for them, but they must learn it little by little.

3. Do not allow them to run the streets—to be out evenings and you not know where they are. The education of the streets is all bad for children.

4. Do not pity and pet them until they begin to get the upperhand of you for then a time will come when you will be obliged to turn over a new leaf and try to bring them into subjection, and you will have a difficult job on hand.

5. Some of the children are old enough to remember the past, Don't revive it by quizzing and questioning them. If you want to know anything more write to the superintendent. All communication with relatives is forbidden except through the Home. If a child wishes to write to relatives, if you cannot divert them, let them, but it must be through the Home.

6. Read over your agreement and keep it. It has been wisely drawn up. Whenever a difficult and doubtful case comes up, ask yourself, "what would I do if this were my born child?" That thing do.

7. Exercise a firm, consistent Christian family government and do not forget you have God to help you.

I return my sincere thanks to you, to the Christian ministers, to the trustees of the Baptist church to Mr. and Mrs. Hollister of the hotel for their patience, kindness and generosity, to the kindness and generosity, the friends who have most judiciously and faithfully helped me in selecting these good homes and protected me from placing chidren with incompetent and improper persons, and to the Christian ladies and kind friends who have so generously entertained the children. A more cordial reception has never been accorded us in any place, and I feel especially grateful to the press; it has helped us in many ways.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Special to the Courier

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct. 19.—Things are looking much brighter now in regard to the state's account against those who were issued clothing, etc, by the state prior to their ententing actively in the recent campaign. Officers of the regiment and state authorities met in council yesterday at Indianapolis. We understand they agreed to cancel the account; also donating the fourteen days overpay received during the month of April. We think this action on the part of Gov, Mount and other authorities will meet the full approbation of the people of Indiana. The fact of the matters is, the uniforms had been in the state militia service for several years, and were, more or less, unfit for use. And, also, it would be a very hard matter to do justice by all, as the regiment is composed of so so many different elements. If the regiment was composed solly of militiamen, then it would be an easy matter, but over half of the men are volunteer recruits, and had no prior connection whatever with the state militia. Even if they had, it would be only right and due the men to compensate them for loyalty to state and services rendered. The gas supply is hardly sufficient to keep things comfortable, and is closed off quite often for repairs, etc. It seems as if there is a great deal of complaint in the city over the insufficiency. The company furnishing the gas claim that they have been unable to proper piping to connect new wells with, but promise to have things in good order within a very few days. All company commissary stuff was turned in this morning. There has been no shortage so far checked up against Company K. This we owe to the efficiency and carefulness of our commissary Sergeants, Chas, Picker and Will Brown. It seems as if other companies have not fared so well.

Mrs. John A. Logan.

Women from time immemorial have shared in the joys and sorrows of mankind. In all ages the gentler sex have borne their part of the burdens of life. Loyal to the stronger sex, they have followed their fate, whether in war or peace. In all wars American women, writes Mrs. John A. Logan, in her article on "Woman's Part in the War with Spain," in Harper's Bazar, have been foremost in sacrifice and potent service for their country. The heroines of the Revolution have been as much revered as the greatest heroes of that immortal strife for liberty. The war "1812," the war with Mexico, and the rebellion of 1861 had their heroines, whose courage and endurance of hardships at home, in the hospitals, and on the field rivalled that of the "Joans" of other ages.

MRS. JOHN A. LOGAN.

In the years of sweet peace since Appomattox American women, North and South, have been busy binding up the wounds, effacing the scars, and smoothing the pathway of progress and unity. They have wrought incessantly in all the fields of civilization. They have trampled down prejudice and ignorance, and have kept abreast of the advancement of the times. Christianity, education, and philanthropy have occupied them constantly, whetting to the keenest edge their finer sensibilities; a wall of anguish from any source has received a prompt response. Local and national calamities have enlisted their indefatigable efforts for relief.

French Firing.

The French Mediterranean squadron, consisting of six vessels, gave an exhibition of firing in the presence of the minister of marine, M. Lockroy, at Toulon, the other day, the range being two miles. The ships fired 350 shells at a wooden ship before setting her on fire and sinking her. The result was not considered very satisfactory.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Anarchy Prevails.

A dispatch from Manila says: The cruiser Boston and the collier Nero, which on October 5 were ordered to proceed to Hong Kong, in connection with the recent disturbances around Pekin, arrived at Amoy, the island of that name in the Province of Fo Kien, opposite Fomosa, the former short of coal, and the latter with her cargo afire.

Well authenticated reports have reached here of a terrible state of anarchy in the southern Philippines. The Spaniards there are cooped up in the principal towns.

The Americans continue capturing the rebel vessels as they arrive at Cavite. Two were captured this week.

More Warlike.

Paris special: A remarkable change has come over French opinion on the Fashoda question during the last forty-eight hours. The attitude of the public is more inflamed and more defiant. This is due to the tone of the British press and the threatening speech of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks Beach, which the Autorite calls a provocation that is almost a threat of war.

In Government circles the disposition seems to be to resist the British demands. The reported policy of France, as definitly stated to Great Britain, includes the retention of Fashoda.

Cashier Gone.

Louisville special: It has developed that Charles G. Henning, individual bookkeeper at the Bank of Louisville, is a defaulter in a sum ranging between $8,000 and $10,000 and that he has fled from the city. Henning's downfall is said to be due to wine, women and a broken engagement with a St. Louis girl. The marriage was prevented on account of a difference in religion, Henning being a Protestant and she a Catholic. Henning was one of the bank's most trusted employes.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

A boiler in the sawmill of Thomas Noltmeyer, at Freelandsville, near Vincennes, Ind., exploded, killing Engineer Frank Jarrell and badly injuring George Brover and Will Robbins. It tore Jarrell to pieces. It was the second time a boiler in the sawmill exploded, killing a man each time.

Yellow Fever Victim.

Among the new cases of yellow fever at Baton Rouge, La., is that of Mrs. Foster, wife of the Governor. The latter refused to leave the State capital when the fever started, believing it would be undignified in a Governor to desert the capital. He remained with his wife and six children.

Death from Yellow Fever in Ohio.

The case of yellow fever in Paris Township, Trumbull County, Ohio, resulted in the death of the victim, Miss Blanche Beck, aged 28 years. There have been no other developments of the disease. Miss Beck recently fled from Mississippi, coming to this country from Tennessee.

Russia To Rule.

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Shanghai says that the native merchants refuse to contract for English goods for Northern China, declaring that that part of the country will be Russian territory in the spring.

Aged Woman Murdered.

Mrs. Cornelius Stevens, aged 57 years, was found murdered at her home in Carrs Hollow, N. Y. Her head and face were battered with some heavy instrument. She had apparently lain where she was found for several days.

Dynamite Kills Three.

Three men were killed at Duluth by an explosion of dynamite. They are: Henry Scherf, John Stevenson and Michael Vail. They were working on the Government canal blowing up an old hulk.

Tugboat Blown Up.

The towboat Rescue, belonging to the Jutte & Co., was blown up at lock No. 3, near Elizabeth, Pa. Capt. Sedell was killed and nine of the crew were injured, none seriously.

Child Cremated.

A child of James Guthrie of Haverhill, near Ironton, Ohio, was burned to death. The mother was out gathering wood. The house and contents are a total loss.

Disastrous Floods.

Buda Pest special: The lower district of the city of Fieum is overflooded, a rise in the River Fieumar causing a damage of 2,000,000 florins.

Lake Steamers Collide.

In a collision with the steamer Olympia at the harbor entrance at Columbus, O., the tug Smith went to the bottom of the lake. Capt. William Colter and Patrick Donaldson, engineer, escaped. Fireman McCarthy was in the hold and went down with the boat.

Army Changes.

A telegram from Lexington, Ky., says: Gen. Wilson has assumed command here. Gen. Brackenridge will return to Washington and assume the duties of Inspector General of the army.

Charge Conspiracy to Murder.

A charge of conspiracy to murder and murder has been brought against the officials of the Chicago-Virden Coal Company and the guards employed by them. This is the first move on the part of the strikers to take the fight against the mine owners into the courts.

Victory for Hiram S. Maxim.

The case of Helen Leighton, or "Nellie Malcolm," against Hiram S. Maxim, the famous gun inventor, has collapsed. She claimed to be the legal wife of Maxim and had him arrested on charges of bigamy and abandonment. The charge was proven false.

DR. SEAMAN TO THE COMMISSION.

Tells of the Porto Rico Campaign and the Trip of the Obdam.

Dr. Louis S. Seaman was the principal witness before the war investigating commission Thursday. He complained that the commissary supplies furnished the troops in Porto Rico were unsuited to the demands of a tropical climate and that they were especially unfit for hospital use. He said he had been in charge of the 200 convalescents brought North on the Obdam and had been unable to secure suitable supplies for them from the Government depots. He confessed, however, that he had made no formal written requisition, but had acted upon statements made to him informally to the effect that no commutation of rations would be allowed. He refused to reply to some questions.

NINE PERISH ON BOARD SHIP.

The British Vessel Blengfall Burned Off Margate, England.

The British ship Blengfell, Capt. Johnson, from New York Sept. 19 for London, was destroyed by fire off Margate, England. Nine of those aboard, including the captain and a pilot, perished. The Blengfell was four miles off the coast when she was suddenly enveloped in flames and smoke poured from her hatchways. Two lifeboats immediately put off to her assistance, but before they reached her both masts fell and she was burned to the water's edge. The vessel burned so quickly that her crew had no time to lower the boats.

STOLE $56,000 IN WAR BONDS.

Burglars Seek a Reward for the Return of Their Booty.

Minneapolis burglars a week ago robbed the safe of the Consolidated Milling and Hardwood Company of $56,000 worth of United States bonds. The matter was kept secret for several days, when it was placed in the hands of the police, despite a warning not to do so. President George Christian received a letter offering to return the bonds if a reward was offered in one of the local papers. This was done and $25 was offered. Another letter followed, saying this was too small, and demanding a larger reward.

FANNY DAVENPORT'S WILL.

Bequests to Her Own Relatives Foot Up to Only $55,000.

Fanny Davenport's vast estate, valued at from $350,000 to $600,000, is given almost in its entirety to her husband, Melbourne MacDowell. The will was made in 1892 and leaves to Mr. MacDowell the bulk of the riches accumulated by his wife. There are some special bequests, but the aggregate of these does not begin to cut much of a figure in comparison with the amount to which Mr. MacDowell will succeed, being altogether only about $55,000.

Ghouls Rob the Drowned.

A dispatch from Falmouth says that the bodies of the victims recovered from the wreck of the steamer Mohegan have been robbed by unknown people. An American, Dr. Fallows, according to the correspondent, tucked a bundle of £50 notes in his breast when the Mohegan struck. His body was subsequently found, but the notes were missing. Several of them were afterward put in circulation and the police are investigating the affair. The distressing scenes witnessed at the offices of the Atlantic Transport Company when the news of the wreck first became known to those who had friends or relatives on board have not abated. There were many weeping women at the company's offices, several with infants in their arms, and all appealing for news of the missing. Most of them were the wives of members of the crew. Some of them went away still hoping that their husbands had been rescued, but the majority gave way to despair.

Autumn Business Good.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "With actual payments through clearing houses 19.2 per cent larger than in the same week of 1892 it cannot be said that business is in any sense falling off, and yet many are complaining because the amount realized as profit is smaller than was formerly realized in good times. In almost every branch of business trade is now transacted on a narrower margin of profit than in any other time of fair prosperity. Failures for the week were 205 in the United States, against 223 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 36 last year." Bradstreet's says: "At most Western centers an improvement in the retail and jobbing trade is seasonable dry goods, clothing and shoes is reported. Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 4,729,995 bushels, against 5,897,224 last week. Corn exports aggregate 2,706,292, as against 3,364,710 last week."

Negroes from Virden Abandoned.

Fifty-seven negroes, intended for the mines at Virden, and who were aboard the train attacked by the miners, were set adrift in St. Louis to get back to Birmingham the best way they could. After the guards were unloaded at the Union station the train was pulled down into the yards, where the negroes were told to get out by the conductor. He marched them back up the tracks and into the general waiting rooms, where he left them. The negroes were perfectly helpless, having no friends and no money.

Captain Sinks with His Ship.

The schooner Churchill of Chicago, laden with iron ore from Lake Superior, foundered in the middle of Lake Michigan, off Waukegan, at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, and the captain and one sailor were carried down with the sinking boat. The mate, three other seamen and the woman cook were rescued.

Wire Drawers' Strike Is Off

By a unanimous vote at a meeting of the striking wire-drawers, held in Cleveland, the strike was declared off. Superintendent Nye announced that all the old employes who desired to return to work could do so as far as there were vacancies.

American Enterprise Invades England.

The representative of a Pittsburg company is negotiating for twenty acres of land on the banks of the Manchester ship canal, England, where it is proposed to erect a manufactory of non-corrosive metal which will employ 5,000 men.

Seek Thirty-six Years' Pay.

Members of Washington artillery, which was mustered into service in 1860, who claim they were never mustered out, have organized to collect thirty-six years' pay, amounting to $185,656.

Negroes Are Sent Away.

The negroes who were unloaded in Springfield after the Virden riot Wednesday were secretly conveyed out of the city Thursday afternoon under guard of the militia.

Becomes a Father at 92.

Captain Henry O'Neill, aged 92, a Mexican and civil war veteran, and for many years a famous member of the Louisville police force, is for the first time, a father.

Harold Frederick Is Dead.

Harold Frederic, the noted journalist, correspondent and author, died at Henley, England, of heart disease. His death was not expected.

Vote Is 31 Yeas to 21 Nays.

Important action was taken by the respective bodies of the Episcopalian council in Washington on two subjects which have caused much discussion during the deliberations of those two bodies. The house of bishops, by a vote of 31 to 24, rejected propositions bearing on the subject of remarriage of divorced persons, designed to take the place of those now in existence. The present canons on that subject, therefore, remain in force. During the business session of the deputies the standard Bible came up for discussion and steps were taken to guard this standard by constitutional provisions. The Rev. Dr. Fulton of Philadelphia had submitted a series of queries as to the existence of a standard Bible, to which a committee reported that the church had a standard—namely, that published in 1812 and adopted in general convention in 1823; that no alterations had been made since then and that the exclusive use of the standard Bible was obligatory. In view of the report a resolution was adopted directing the preparation of a suitable constitutional provision establishing the standard Bible and fixing the manner of its alteration.

MAN DIES TO AVOID CAPTURE.

Mysterious Suicide in the Public Library at Omaha, Neb.

At the public library in Omaha there developed a mystery that promises to assume huge proportions before it is solved. An unknown man committed suicide there. Everything points to the fact that he was a burglar who had secreted himself in the building with the intention of robbing the priceless collection of the Byron Reed donation. When detection and capture confronted the man he coolly placed a revolver to his temple and fired a bullet into his brain. The body bears all the evidence of a man of prominence and culture. There is nothing by which it might be identified. He was evidently a Russian and by some slight marks on the clothes is believed to have been a Russian nobleman.

NOBLE HOBO.

Austrian Count Who Is Writing a History of Human Life.

Rocco Dianovich, a count of royal Austrian blood, according to his story, who is known in every country of the habitable globe as "the Noble Hobo," is in Pittsburg on the last trip about the world, which has consumed thirty-five years. He says he is gathering facts for a history of human life, and goes about on foot to better obtain the data he requires. He says he will publish his book in New York and return to Austria, where his mother and brother still live.

BLIZZARD IN THE WEST.

Heavy Snow Storm Interferes with Traffic of All Kinds.

A genuine blizzard prevailed in the Southwest and West Monday. A heavy, wet snow fell, and, driven by a strong wind, prostrated wires in all directions and caused delay to railway traffic. The snow followed twenty-four hours of steady rain. The sidewalks were covered three inches deep with slush. There was a decided fall in the temperature, and the suddenness of the storm, coming upon the track of the Indian summer weather, will undoubtedly cause great suffering, especially on the ranges covered with cattle.

MADRID SEES A NEW LIGHT.

Reported Formation of Cuban Bond-Buying Syndicate Gives Cheer.

It is regarded in Madrid as a good sign that a large Anglo-American syndicate is being formed to buy up Cuban bonds. This, of course, is interpreted as evidence that a satisfactory arrangement is at hand. There is good reason for supposing that the big cannon mounted at Havana will fall to the Americans.

Knights Defeat the Plan.

Executive business occupied the fourth and closing day's session of the grand encampment, Knights Templar, at Pittsburg. The special order of business was consideration of the proposed revision of the constitution. The most important amendment proposed was the one to locate the grand encampment headquarters at Washington, D. C. This was voted down by a large majority.

Curtailment in Cotton Goods.

A majority of the Fall River, Mass., cotton manufacturers have ratified the pooling agreement and the policy of curtailing production. The agreement calls for four weeks' curtailment of production in the next three months.

Buys Colorado Coal Mines.

A New York syndicate has completed negotiations for all the properties of the Victor Coal and Coke Company in southern Colorado, consisting of several miles of mines and coke ovens. The price runs up into the millions.

Flag Flies Over Porto Rico.

At noon Tuesday the United States flag was raised upon the palace at El Morro, San Juan, Porto Rico, and the final ceremony of the delivery of the island to the United States Government was performed.

Four Blown to Pieces.

Four workmen constituting the crew of a large freight engine on the Wilmington and North[illegible] railw[illegible] were blown to pieces. The locomotive boiler blew up, hurling the crew into the air.

STATE STREET IN CHICAGO DURING THE JUBILEE ILLUMINATION.

CHICAGO'S PEACE PARADE.

Great Military and Civic Display a Climax to the Jubilee Festivities.

The crowning spectacular feature of the week's peace jubilee celebration in Chicago occurred Wednesday, when the great military and civil parade passed through the streets of the business section, and was reviewed from a stand in front of the Union League Club by the President, Gens. Miles, Shafter and Chaffee, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, the Chinese and Corean ministers and other dignitaries.

The weather was very disagreeable, threatening rain at any moment, with a cutting wind from the lake, which chilled the sightseers not extra warmly clothed. But these things seemed to have no effect on the numbers and enthusiasm of the throngs which packed the sidewalks throughout the entire line of march, filled the numerous stands and every available point of view from the windows and roofs of tall buildings on either side. A wave of cheers greeted the marchers in line, particularly the military part of it, and more peculiarly the soldiers and sailors returned from Cuba.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the police hustled every vehicle off the streets, including the street cars, in the entire district between Van Buren street off the south and the river on the north, the lake on the east and the river on the west, and they were kept off till the parade was over.

The storm of the previous three days had marred the decorations, but they were mostly restored and the entire district was ablaze with bunting. It is estimated that thirty thousand men were in line.

BALL NETS A LARGE SUM.

Needy Soldiers Will Benefit from Chicago's Society Function.

Twenty-two thousand dollars was raised for the families of the soldiers and sailors who are in straitened circumstances as a result of the late war by the Chicago jubilee ball at the Auditorium. It was a brilliant and enthusiastic society function, graced by the presence of the President of the United States, army and navy heroes, and many other notables. The gowns of the women were of the richest, and the uniforms and peculiar, highly colored costumes added attractiveness to the scene. The welcome accorded President McKinley was hearty and prolonged. The President's boxes and those occupied by the diplomatic corps were draped with flags.

SKINNING HUMAN BODIES.

Excitement at San Francisco Over Doings of Medical Students.

San Francisco is somewhat excited over the revelations concerning the skinning of bodies at the Cooper Medical Institute, the medical department of the State University, and the dissecting room of the city and county hospital. According to indisputable evidence young physicians in the employ of the health department of the city and students at the medical schools mentioned have been engaged in the ghoulish practice of skinning cadavers for months past, and regular stations have been located where the skins are taken to be tanned and manufactured into keepsakes.

DEWEY REMAINS ON GUARD.

Was Asked to Go to Paris, but Will Stay at Manila.

Secretary Long said that the reports that Admiral Dewey would return to the United States were erroneous, as the Navy Department had no such information. It has been suggested to Admiral Dewey several times that he go to Paris to advise the American peace commission on the situation in the Philippines, but he has adhered to his purpose to remain at Manila until the Philippine question has been settled or all danger of trouble there has passed.

INDIANS BROUGHT TO TIME.

Rations Cut Off Because They Kept Children from School.

The various Indian agents in Oklahoma have followed in the footsteps of Maj. A. E. Woodson, agent for the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, and refused to issue rations to the Indians unless they send their children to the Government schools, and the schools are filling up. An Indian loves his Government rations, but he dislikes to send his offspring to a Government school.

KLONDIKE OUTPUT $8,000,000.

Receipts of Seattle Assay Office and San Francisco Mint.

The clean-up of the Seattle assay office and the San Francisco mint of the season's output of the Klondike district yields $8,000,000. Superintendent Wing of the former said that his office had taken in $4,400,000 and the San Francisco mint $3,800,000. Besides this, it is estimated that dust equaling $500,000 was sent to Philadelphia, Denver and Helena.

FRANCE PREPARES FOR WAR.

Ships Fitting Out and Foundries Working Overtime.

L'Echo de Paris says that despite official denial it is in a position to reassert that French men-of-war are being fitted out and provisioned at Toulon, and that various cruisers have been ordered to prepare for sailing. Officers have been ordered to join their respective ships, and the men in the arsenals are working overtime.

Cutting Away the Forests.

As an evidence of how rapidly the forests of Pennsylvania are being cut away it is cited that in 1888 Westmoreland County had 153,717 acres of timber land, and within the past ten years there has been a decrease of over 30,000 of this timber area.

NABS A BAD GANG.

Sheriff After a Desperate Battle, Captures Kansas Robbers.

After a desperate fight, lasting nearly three hours, Sheriff Mackey of Salina County, Kansas, and his posse of five deputies made the most important capture of bank robbers that has been made in years. The officers believe they have the gang that has been causing so much trouble all over the State, especially the western part, within the past two months. "Blackey Clark," one of the robbers, and who is thought to be the most noted crook, was fatally shot in the back, and others of the gang were wounded. Deputy Sheriff Lykens was hit in the arm by a bullet.

Each party was partially sheltered by trees, and over 300 rounds of ammunition were used. The battle took place in the edge of the timber just out of Salina, where the robbers, who were mounted, had been to purchase feed and ammunition. Sheriff Mackey called to the robbers to halt, but they returned his request with a volley which felled the sheriff's horse. He got behind the dead animal and the officers opened fire. "Blackey Clark" was the first one hit, and with a shriek he fell. His comrades, under a hot fire, rushed out and brought him to a place of safety, where he lay until the robbers finally surrendered.

STORM HAMPERS FARMERS.

Plowing and Thrashing Stopped by the Snow and Rain.

Reports from various points in Minnesota and the Dakotas say farming operations are much impeded by snow and rain. Kennedy, Minn., had twenty consecutive hours of snow and rain. Thousands of acres of wheat and flax are still in shock, and the fields are so soft that machinery cannot be moved. It is too wet to plow, and less than 50 per cent of the plowing is done. Lisbon, Minn., reports from six inches to a foot of snow on the ground; thrashing stopped and the prospects for resumption far from promising. Considerable flax in scattered localities is still on the ground. At Marion Junction, S. D., the snow was accompanied by a strong northwest wind, drifting it badly. Aberdeen, S. D., says a strong northwest wind has been blowing, and it is snowing hard. At Tyndall, S. D., several inches of snow has fallen, and it lies in heavy drifts.

NAVY IN NEED OF MORE MEN.

Department Wants to Re-Establish the Foreign Stations.

The Navy Department is hampered in its desire to re-establish the foreign naval stations by the limited number of full-term men in the service. The enlisted force now includes about 8,000 men, who enlisted for the war only, and it is necessary to keep them on the North Atlantic or home station on account of the probability that peace will soon be officially declared, and they will be entitled to their discharge papers. Nearly all of the 12,500 long-term men of the regular navy are with Dewey's fleet or on battleships of the North Atlantic station. It will be necessary to place some of the armored vessels out of commission if the ships are sent to foreign stations, and the department wants to keep all battleships and armored cruisers in active service.

EXPLOSION IN ASHTABULA.

Caused by a British Shell Fired During 1812.

During the war of 1812 a British warship fired several shots at Ashtabula, Ohio. Some of these have been preserved as relics. The other day one of them accidentally got into a heap of scrap iron at the Phoenix iron works. It went into the furnace, and a terrific explosion followed. The furnace doors were blown to atoms. The workmen were in other parts of the foundry, and no one was injured.

TORTURE OF TWO FARMERS.

Robbers Bind Them with Wire and Burn Their Feet.

On Sunday masked robbers visited the residence of two old farmers named Murphy and Bartley, and their nephew, near Cascade, Iowa, and, after binding them with wire, held candles to the soles of their feet to compel them to give up their money. They tortured the men all day, but secured only $6.

WILL NOT FREE SPAIN.

America Recognizes Only Cuban Municipal Indebtedness.

The American peace commissioners have been instructed to recognize and give standing to Cuban municipal indebtedness. This is not an important matter from a financial standpoint, as the amount cannot be large, but it is peculiarly significant in view of the stand taken by the commissioners in regard to the so-called "Cuban debt." They rejected the Cuban debt proposition largely on the theory that the money represented by the bonds was not expended for the benefit of the people of the island, and, therefore, should not be a burden on the new Government. Pursuing the same line of argument, it is held that money borrowed by the cities of Cuba was spent locally and directly for the benefit of the communities, and should therefore be continued as a lien upon the property upon which the loans were originally made. The logic which frees the island from obligation in connection with that portion of the Spanish bonded indebtedness labeled the "Cuban debt" clearly establishes the validity of the distinctly municipal debts as a continuing claim. There is no data at hand to show the aggregate amount of the Cuban city indebtedness, but it cannot be monumental, as investors would not make extravagant advances on that sort of security.

BANK DOORS CLOSED.

German National of Pittsburg Goes Into Liquidation.

The German National Bank of Pittsburg has closed its doors. The directors, in a public statement, announce that the bank is solvent and that all depositors will be paid in full. The suspension of the bank can be traced directly to two causes—the carrying of too many securities of the Natalie Coal and Coke Company and heavy loans to Charles Burkdorf, until recently cashier, and Adolphus Groetzinger, the present president, on insufficient collateral. The suspension of the bank was precipitated by the confession on Monday last of Adolphus, William C. and O. H. Groetzinger and A. Groetzinger & Sons to Edward Groetzinger of judgments aggregating $490,725.42.

ROBBED HIS GOLD DUST.

Seventy Pounds of Metal Stolen from a Klondiker.

Charles B. Montague, who has just returned from the Klondike, was robbed of seventy pounds of gold dust, valued at $17,500, on the train coming from Portland to San Francisco. Montague had all his treasure in one valise, which he concealed in the section of the Pullman occupied by his wife and himself.

EPIDEMIC NEARS ITS END.

Back Bone of the Yellow Fever in Mississippi Broken.

The force of yellow fever in Mississippi is broken, and if the weather remains cool next week will mark the end of the epidemic. Small towns are discarding the shotgun and quarantine guards are looking for other work.

Novel Court Decision.

A novel decision has been given by a New York jury in the Supreme Court in the suit of Mrs. Grace Frezevant against Mrs. Mary L. Frezevant, claiming $50,000 for alienating her husband's affections. The verdict was as follows: "A rich woman cannot alienate the affections of another woman's husband if he is poor. For, being poor, he will try to win the affections of the rich woman, and she should not further suffer, pecuniarily, if she reciprocates the poor man's love, real or pretended."

The Separate Coach Law.

Railroads by a new South Carolina law are required to provide separate passenger coaches for whites and blacks, except in the case of vestibuled trains. Accordingly the Southern Railway has decided to run most of its trains in vestibule form, finding this method cheaper and more convenient than to provide separate sets of cars.

Is After the Divorce "Trade."

Kansas' divorce laws are to be "reformed." The law now requires a residence of one year in the State before a divorce can be secured. It is to be changed to three months.

WHEAT IS IN DANGER.

MILLIONS OF BUSHELS STANDING IN THE FIELDS.

Rain and Snow in North Dakota and Manitoba Threatens to Destroy the Entire Unthrashed Crop—Northwest Farmers Are in Despair.

Reports from the wheat fields of North Dakota and Manitoba are of the most discouraging character. It has been either raining or snowing for nine days. In Manitoba only about 8,000,000 bushels of wheat of a crop of 26,000,000 bushels has been thrashed, and the balance, standing in stacks and shocks, is threatened with destruction. Farmers almost despair of saving the balance of these crops. The barley and oat crops are also all out in the fields.

The rain and snow throughout the Red river valley and North Dakota caught many of the farmers with their grain unthrashed, and the present prospect is that much of it will remain in the stack until spring. This is especially the case in the interior townships and localities at a distance from the railways and villages. Just what the loss will be it is impossible to estimate, but it is safe to say that the greater portion of that which remains in the shock throughout the winter will be of little value except for fodder.

Samples of wheat brought to Minneapolis which had been exposed to the rain were so thoroughly bleached and swollen as to resemble the Washington and Oregon product. Such grain will have to be dried out and cleaned before its value can be determined. The estimates on the number of bushels thus affected in Manitoba is 7,000,000. On the same basis 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels would be damaged in the Red river valley and North Dakota, and the total loss may amount to several million dollars.

The bad weather has very materially affected the general movement of the crop. Farmers are unable to come to market, and the elevator men cannot handle the crop expeditiously. Many of the mills in the Northwest are running day and night, and the stock on hand has been considerably reduced. All in all the Northwestern crop has largely deteriorated from the early estimates.

TORPEDO-BOAT KILLS SEVEN.

Trial Trip of the Davis Near Portland Results in Explosion.

Seven men were killed by an explosion on the torpedo boat Davis, which was making her official trial trip on the Columbia river Thursday. The accident occurred near Skamokawa, about seventy-five miles from Portland, Ore.

The Davis started from Walker's island to run two hours at a minimum speed of twenty-two knots. Everything went well until Skamokawa was reached. Suddenly an explosion occurred and the engine room was filled with boiling water and steam, enveloping the men at work in there. A river steamer happened along just after the accident. The Davis' passengers and the killed were transferred to her and she towed the disabled torpedo boat to Astoria.

The Davis was built by Wolff & Zwicker of Portland and this trip was to be the final one for acceptance by the Navy Department. The boiler was of tubular pattern and was designed to carry 250 pounds of steam pressure. Through some defect some of the tubes gave way. This filled the closed firehold with steam and the men there were caught like rats in a trap. As the boat had not been accepted the loss falls upon the builders. None of the men killed was in the Government service. All were employes of the builders.

RUNNING DAY AND NIGHT.

Minneapolis Mills Break All Records in Making Flour.

The Minneapolis flour mills are engaged at present in breaking all previous records, and the wheels are whirling night and day, Sundays not excepted. The desire to get as much flour through as possible before navigation closes is partially responsible, but there are also many orders to fill. One of the large local companies was obliged recently to purchase 25,000 barrels of flour from the Pillsbury company to keep up with the demand.

BLANCO WAS IN A PLOT.

Intended to Proclaim Spanish-American Republic in Cuba.

According to a private telegram received in Washington from Havana, Captain General Blanco, Gen. Pando and other prominent Spaniards had, at the time of the surrender of Santiago, organized a plot to proclaim a Spanish-American republic in Cuba. The preliminary steps had all been taken, and had the plot succeeded the United States might have had another war on hand.

Egyptian Geological Survey.

For more than a year now the Egyptian Government has been carrying on an important geological survey in the mountains along by the Red Sea and in the Sinai Peninsula. English geologists are engaged in the work, and their duty is to investigate the mineral possibilities of the country, report on matters of archaeological interest, draw maps, etc. The places they explore have not, in some cases, been visited for perhaps 2,000 years, and they are finding many evidences of mineral wealth, including old emerald mines.

Compressed Air Motors.

Compressed air as a motive power is to be practically applied very soon in New York on a somewhat extensive scale. By the last of February some twenty-two cars will be put on the lines handling the West Twenty-third and East Thirty-fourth street ferry traffic, all propelled by this power. The storage reservoirs will be expected to carry enough energy to send each car at least twenty miles.

Volunteers Claim Bounty.

Missouri did not do much for her volunteers before they went to war. Missouri paid her men nothing. Now some lawyers have discovered in the statutes a provision that the State shall pay each man a bounty of 75 per cent of his total Government pay, say $80 per man.

Plug Tobacco Plan Fails.

The plan to form a plug tobacco trust has failed. It is said the American Tobacco Company broke faith with the small concerns. It is said a combination of union manufacturers will be formed.

News of Minor Note.

The directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company have re-elected the old officers.

Congress will be asked at its next session to provide for the defenses of Porto Rico and Hawaii.

The captain and crew of the steamer Sea Ghost were killed and eaten by Solomon Island natives.

The railroads are said to be planning a movement for a reduction of price for riding in Pullman cars.

Capt. James Goldsbury of Warwick, Mass., who reached his 100th birthday Feb. 19, 1897, is dead.

KING WHEAT.

You may tell of your armored cruisers,
And your great ships of the line;
And swift or slow may steamers go
Across the billowy brine.
Like thunder may the cannon boom
To greet their flags unfurled,
And for an hour they may have power
To rule the frightened world.

From ocean shore to ocean shore
Lie lines of gleaming steel,
And night or day, we hear alway
The ring of rushing wheel;
Though buffalo have left the plain,
And Indian tents are furled,
Nor steam nor hand at wealth's command
Can rule the busy world.

But where the hillside rises fair
In terraces of green,
And on the plain, where wind and rain
Sweep fields of golden sheen,
Where sturdy yellow stalks arise,
With bannered heads unfurled,
Here you may greet the great King Wheat,
The ruler of the world.

Oh, hills may shake and vales resound
Beneath the flying car,
And driven by steam and winds a-beam
Our ships ride fast and far;
Cities may crumble 'neath the guns
Which guard our flag unfurled,
Yet all shall greet—at last—King Wheat,
For hunger rules the world.
—Ninette M. Lowater, in Youth's Companion.

MY SIN.

When I was a young man I fell in love, as young men generally do, with the girl who came handiest. This particular girl happened to be Belle Burton, and I devoted myself to her, rode with her, boated with her (it was a country place where we met), walked with her, talked with her, begged her for the roses she wore in her hair and tried (in vain), for I was no poet, to make sonnets not only to her "eyebrows," but to her hair, her cheeks and her lily white hands. In fact, I went through the pretty dream of first love as most young people do, and it ended, as it generally does, in an unpleasant awakening.

One day a stage arrived at the hotel with a dozen dashing New Yorkers for passengers. The next, one of them obtained an introduction to Belle Burton. There was no doubt whatever that he was handsomer than men usually are, or that his grace and accomplishments were equal to his personal charms. Handsome Arnold he was generally called, and girls went into raptures over his large, long-lashed eyes and blonde mustache, and men feared his broad shoulders, deep chest and splendid proportions. For my part, I hated him from the first, for no sooner had he appeared upon the carpet than Belle seemed utterly to forget my very existence.

I suppose she had never cared anything about me, but she had flirted with me while there was no better fun to be had, and I was old enough to know that the man she loves is the one no woman ever flirts with. With Arnold she was rather graver than with most men, but her eyes sparkled as he approached her. She blushed when his name was mentioned, and cared for nothing in which he had not some share. In fact, it was as plain that she was in love with him as that he was devoted to her; and there was no doubt in any one's mind that all this would end in a wedding. It was a good thing, said the old people, for poor Belle Burton "had nothing." For my part, it seemed to me that all the luck was Arnold's.

I had never thought myself very ill-looking before, but now I was wretchedly conscious of all sorts of deficiencies. I looked in the glass many times a day. I spent half my time criticising my countenance, and longing vainly for the charms of handsome Arnold. I could not hope to possess them, even should I use all the hair oil and cosmetics of the advertising columns of the daily paper, and bribe to my aid the tailor who best understood the art of padding shoulders; but next to having a fairy transformation effected for my benefit, I should have been pleased to see Arnold lose his beauty. I hope I've been forgiven for it. I scarcely can forgive myself, but I could have prayed that some ban might fall upon him—that he might break his limbs, or catch the small-pox or somehow spoil his complexion or figure.

I was not a wicked young fiend by nature, but love, which, when it prospers, is the most humanizing emotion of the soul, is most likely to develop all the evil emotions of one's nature when it comes to grief.

I should have taken my departure and put myself out of the way of hourly torture, but I did not do so wisely. I lingered about the place and did small things to spite the happy pair—intruded on their tete-a-tetes, managed to force the society of some excellent and loquacious matron or some troublesome child upon them, looked daggers of contempt at him and forgot to pass the butter to her. At last a grand chance for annoying him occurred. He was a good rider and proud of his accomplishment, and he had a restive, nervous animal which he boasted no one could ride but himself. I had heard him declare himself perfect master of the creature, who had never given him serious trouble save once, when suddenly brought into the presence of an artist, who was sketching under a white umbrella.

"That," said handsome Arnold, "was something Prince could not understand and it made him forget who held the bridle."

As he came prancing up to the gate, or rode away with an air, I used to wish for an artist with a white umbrella. I desired to see that fellow unseated and ingloriously turned into the mud. That would have made me happy; and once when he had offended me more than ever by his gallant style of riding, I sauntered out into the fields—cursing him in my inmost soul—when what should I spy in the middle of the grass, intent upon a bunch of clover, but a fat pre-Raphaelite artist, in a white suit, a flapping hat and a white sketching umbrella that would have frightened the clergyman's gray mare, who was nearly as old as himself, into being a runaway.

I rushed toward this artist with enthusiasm. I took off my hat to him. I said:

"Sir, I rejoice that one of your glorious profession has at last visited us. You love the minute, I see. Have you noticed the spiderwebs on the blackberry bushes at the turn of the lane, the dew sparkling on the silvery film, the delicious fruit glowing beneath—have you seen that, sir?"

The pre-Raphaelite artist scratched his head with his brush, and said:

"Well, no, I ain't."

"Will you come and see it, sir?" I said. "Will you make it immortal on your canvas?"

The pre-Raphaelite artist replied:

'Well, I wouldn't mind."

I did not care what he said, so that he came. My object was not art, it was the white umbrella. I desired to have him seated where the eyes of handsome Arnold's restive Prince would fall upon him as he turned the corner of the garden walk, and to that very spot I beguiled my artist and there stationed him, and when he had settled with Chinese precision to his spiderwebs and blackberries, hid myself behind a tree to enjoy the comic scene I fully expected would follow.

I heard handsome Arnold bid adieu to the ladies. I heard the patter of his horse's feet upon the road, and in a moment more I saw him come gayly on, a smile upon his handsome face, a rich color on his cheek—youth, health, strength and happiness expressed in every curve and outline of his statuesque form. The next instant Prince had seen the white artist and the white umbrella. And then—then, heaven forgive me, not the amusing spectacle of handsome Arnold's discomfiture that I had hoped to see. He kept his seat, while Prince, rearing and plunging, dashed wildly away with him toward a precipitous path along the cliff side, and vanished like a mad thing, with his rider still upon his back, going straight toward a certain awful precipice which overhung the rocky river shore below.

I cannot go on. They picked him up just alive, no more, at the foot of the precipice; and they carried him, a mere mass of broken bones and bleeding flesh, back to the great hotel. Late at night I crept softly upstairs on my way to bed, and passing Belle Burton's door, heard those slow, heavy sobs that tell of a breaking heart issuing thence.

"He cannot live," the messenger had said, and I was, perhaps, doubly a murderer. I thought seriously of adding to my crime by committing suicide that awful night.

But poor Arnold did live. He had a wonderful constitution, unbroken, as all the men who knew him knew, by dissipation of any kind, and it is hard to kill such a man. He lived, and strength returned to him at last; but no one would ever call him handsome Arnold any more. He had fallen on his face on the horrible jagged rocks, and during his illness all his bonny brown hair had turned gray. No one would know him, they told me; and so powerfully had his beauty and his sweetness affected even men of coarse natures that they uttered these words for the most part with tears in their eyes. As for myself, I would far rather have seen a ghost.

Yet the sight was forced on me. One day I received a note from him, asking me to come to the hotel, and it was signed—Henry Arnold.

I had no choice. I could not refuse. I went to him.

As I saw him seated in a great easy-chair in the room to which the waiter showed me—as he rose and advanced toward me, and I saw that he limped heavily—I wonder that I did not die. I felt the blood leaving my face, and I saw the hot flush rise to his, as he noticed the shock he gave me.

But he only said:

"Sit down. It is kind of you to come."

I staggered to a chair and I saw nothing for a while; yet through it all, I wondered what he thought of my strange conduct, and hated myself for my weakness.

At last he spoke:

"I see how I—how my appearance affects you," he said, very sadly. "It is a horrible thing that I am trying to grow used to. I wish I had broken my neck. Of course, any man would, under the circumstances. But I did not ask you to come that I might say that to you. I want you to take a note from me to a lady at your aunt's house, if you will be so kind. I choose you because you are, as it were, one of the family, and you will be very careful and—kind, I know. It is Miss Belle Burton. I hoped to marry her one day. Of course all that is over now. No one would—no woman could—overlook my hideous appearance."

His voice broke a little, but he went on bravely:

"So I have written to her. I do not want her to see me, and I shall go abroad in a week or so, and—you'll tell her you—you've seen me, you know. I have loved her very much. I always shall; and this is terribly hard."

He broke down entirely there, and took a letter from his bosom and put it into my hand.

"Give it to her," he said and turned away.

I took it from his hand and left him.

I went straight to Belle Burton. I found her in the garden, and I told her from whom I came and gave her the missive. She read it through gravely, but without tears. Then she looked at me with eyes that had such a solemn, holy look in them as one would hope to see in an angel's.

"Edward," she said, "he says he is frightfully altered; is it so?"

"Yes," I answered.

"Do you know what he has written?" she said, softly.

"I guess what it is."

"My poor boy!" said she. "As if anything would change me but a change in his heart. Will you take me to him, Edward? I must go at once."

"Command me," I said.

She caught up the wide straw hat on the bench beside her and drew on her gloves, and took my arm. I never loved her so well as I did then, but, for once, it was with a perfectly unselfish love. I knew what she was about to do and I blessed her for it.

And so I took her to him; my hand opened the door of his room for her; my eyes saw—yes and gladly—that however that changed face might affect others, it only made her love for him more tender. I saw her rush into his arms and hide her head on his shoulders; and then I went softly away and hid myself where no one could see me, and cried like a baby.

Ah! well, that is a good while ago, and they have been very happy. The big fellow is almost as graceful as ever, and as for his face—I do not think it would matter much to me what my face was if any one loved it as well as Belle does his.

I go to see them sometimes, and my mad fancy of kneeling down and confessing my share in the horrible affair of the past is quite abandoned. Besides, Belle's daughter is sixteen now, and if an old fellow of thirty-six—ah! well, who knows what may happen in the future. Only that would be another story quite, and I need not tell it here. It is written, it is written.

HORN-DEVOURING LARVAE.

Soft-Bodied Insects Which Eat Holes in Living Animals' Horns.

A curious fact which for many years has proved a bone of contention among scientific men has just been decided. Sportsmen and naturalists when hunting in India and Africa have from time to time had brought under their notice the horns of various species of deer and buffalo which have been more or less perforated by insects. On careful examination it was found that the little creatures which tunneled and made their home in the hard fibre of the horn were the caterpillars, or larvae of a moth, belonging to the same family as the common and all too familiar clothes moth.

From their diminutive size, the moths belonging to this family have received the name of tineidae, and it has been observed that they are all more or less given to making their homes in strange places during the larval stage of their existence. The little larvae of our old enemy the clothes moth, for instance, make for themselves protective cylinders out of the cloth they so greedily devour.

Sometimes these tubes present a very curious appearance, owing to their having enlarged as the insect has grown and different colored materials used for the new portions of the old case. The larvae of another branch of this family deck themselves out with floral garments, the calyx of the flower of the common marjoram being a very popular dress, while others are of a mining disposition and love to excavate elaborate tunnels in the leaves of the honeysuckle.

Strange as these habits appear, it is yet more wonderful that a species of these soft-bodied insects should be capable of boring so hard a substance as the antlers of a deer. During the forty-five or fifty years that these horn-devouring larvae have been under observation the various stages of their existence have been successfully noted, from the laying of the egg upon the horn by the mother moth to the final appearance of her offspring as perfect male and female insects.

The larvae, on emerging from the egg, bore down into the horn, and when they have eaten their fill and are ready for their chrysalis sleep they tunnel up to the surface, so that they may have a convenient exit by which to make their escape when the pupal sleep is over and they have become perfect moths.

But, although so much of their life-history was known, there still remained one problem unsolved. This knotty question was that no one knew for certain whether these larvae attacked the horns and antlers of the buffalo and deer while the animals were alive or only after death. After many years of speculation and conflicting opinions it has at last been conclusively proven that these insects do infest the horns of living quadrupeds, for the news has just come to hand that both the larvae and chrysalis have been taken from the horns within an hour of the death of the animals to which they belonged.

Why Mitford Cried.

Many and various are the good things which a grateful public has attributed to Horne Tooke. Even among those whom Paty du Clam and Brunetiere call "the Intellectuals," few seem to have left such a legion of footprints on the sands of "bonhomie." Here is the latest discovered and exploited in the British press:

"Lord Eldon, when attorney-general, was in the habit of closing his speeches with some remarks justifying his own character. At the trial of Horne Tooke, speaking of his own reputation, he said: 'It is the little inheritance I have to leave my children, and, by Heaven's help, I will leave it unimpaired.' Here he shed tears, and to the astonishment of those present Mitford, the solicitor-general, began to weep. 'Just look at Mitford,' said a bystander to Horne Tooke—'what on earth is he crying for?' Tooke replied, 'He is crying to think what a small inheritance Eldon's children are likely to get.'"—Detroit Free Press.

General Wheeler's Remark.

One of the brightest things said about the pro-Cuban war, or any other war, was dropped by "Fighting Joe" Wheeler the other day at the Windsor Hotel reception to Mrs. Grant. "The strength of American arms in war comes solely from the soldiers' memory of the women they have left behind." The old soldier is as gallant as he is brave. He has a happy faculty of saying the right thing at the right time, and of doing it.—New York Press.

Prices During Siege of Manila.

The blockade and siege sent prices skyward in Manila. Hotel rates rose from $3 to $7 (Mexican) a day, beer from 10 to 30 cents a glass, flour from $2 to $20 for fifty pounds. Meat could not be obtained at any price.

WONDERFUL CAREER.

HOW MR. JAMES J. HILL ROSE THROUGH VARIOUS GRADES.

From Freight Handler to Be One of the Nation's Railroad Kings and Twenty-five Times a Millionaire—Some of His Characteristics.

For many years in the Northwest they have regarded James J. Hill as the embodiment of success and a great railroad king. Men who have worked for Jim Hill say he is a "holy terror." His objurgations (his father had cut him out out for a Presbyterian minister) are more profuse and horror-inspiring than those of the most profane pirate that ever lived. He is tireless and he expects everyone else to be so also. He is accuracy itself and he tolerates no slipshod business whatever. His memory is all embracing and minute, and he abhors a man who cannot recollect. He won't have anyone around him who is not personally to his liking, no matter how efficient the man may be. Some Great Northern employes say he would rather discharge a man than eat, and they have to count noses at the main office and all along the line every day to see "who's alive."

JAMES J. HILL.

James J. Hill began to work for himself when he was 15 years old. He left school to go to work in a country store in the little Ontario village of Rockwood, and in the intervals of weighing out groceries he read Caesar, and dreamed that some day he would be a great soldier or a great literary man. Now, at the age of 60, he finds that fate has made him a millionaire railroad man. His fleets of merchant steamers have blackened the skies over the great lakes with their smoke, and his railroads have reached out from the inland seas to the Pacific.

When he was 18 years old Mr. Hill took his Caesar and what little money he had saved and started out to seek his fortune. He began in New England and went west until he arrived at St. Paul, then a town of 5,000 inhabitants. There he stopped and there he has remained and grown rich. He found not only fortune and power, but his wife in St. Paul. When he got his first job there and was employed about the docks of the line of Mississippi steamers known as the "Diamond Jo Line," he saw an Irish damsel of beauty and brains whose sweet and womanly qualities at once attracted him. He still believed that some day he was to achieve fame, the dreams of martial glory or literary renown haunting him, and never in his direst poverty did he cease his self-education. He got a fairly good job as shipping clerk and at once arranged for the education of the Irish damsel who had won his heart. When her education was complete he was in a position to marry her, and he did, and the ending was like that of the good old three-volume novel, "They lived happy ever afterward."

When the civil war broke out Mr. Hill thought that the day had come when dreams he had dreamed over Caesar's commentaries were about to become realities, and he actively engaged in raising a company of cavalry. The State of Minnesota, however, refused to accept the services of the company, and once more Mr. Hill returned to commercial life.

RAILWAY AND STEAMSHIP LINES CONTROLLED BY JAMES J. HILL.

HOME OF J. J. HILL.

All the time he went forward. From freight handler to shipping clerk, from shipping clerk to agent, and then as a partner in a freight and transportation business, he rose like the boys in the story books until he reached a place where he was able to carry out his plans for the reorganization of the St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, which steel highway now reaches from lake to ocean. At the age of 45 he became the president of what is now known as the Great Northern Railway. His success had been rapid when he once got fairly started. Even at the age of 27 he was agent of the Northwestern Packet Company and known as one of the solid business men of St. Paul. Now he is 60—and a man cannot be said to be old at that age.

Mr. Hill has a house in St. Paul which cost him half a million to build. The house, the grounds, the greenhouses, etc., and the works of art which the house contains are said to be altogether worth nearly two millions. The paintings alone in the house are valued at over $100,000. When Mr. Hill built his house in St. Paul he gave at the same time $500,000 to found a college for the education of Catholic priests. About eight miles out of St. Paul Mr. Hill has a summer home which is complete in its equipments, and where he spends with his family the hot months.

Hill saw more clearly than any one else in St. Paul that the Northwest must develop tremendously, and that the way to win great wealth most rapidly was to go into the transportation business. He wasn't yet ready to begin railroading, but he did the next best thing. He started the famous line of Red River carts between St. Cloud, at the head of Mississippi navigation, and Pembina, away up to the northwest, on the Red River of the north, near the Canadian border. For a time he ran a line of steamers on the Red River in connection with the carts, and thus forced the powerful Hudson Bay Company to divide its trade with him. Something that no one else has ever done unless it was the first John Jacob Astor.

When he became manager of the St. Paul & Pacific Railroad he set out to learn and did learn the entire workings of the business. The strain was heavy upon his health, but he made the railroad pay from the start.

Then he set about extending his own road to the great Western ocean. Having reorganized the St. Paul & Pacific as the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba, he set out in the winter by himself, with three or four dogs as his only companions, to explore the route to the Pacific which he meant to follow. His outfit included only the dogs, a small canoe, a sled, two or three boxes of sausage, coffee, hardtack, camp cooking utensils and a rifle. He kept his bearings by the sun and compass by day and the north star and compass by night. As much of his route was through territory peopled by hostile Indians, he often slept in the light and traveled in the darkness. Sometimes he lay to for a few hours in a cave dug by himself in the snow. He supplemented his packed provisions by what game he could shoot. When he couldn't shoot anything he would melt snow in his camp kettle, make coffee and get along on coffee, sausage and hardtack. Sometimes he would walk, sometimes ride on his sled hauled by the dogs and sometimes navigate the streams with his canoe. He rode horseback over some stretches, procuring saddle animals as best he could.

The open air and exercise of that memorable trip made a new man of him, and when it was finished he had found a peerless route for his road. When Hill had his road roughly laid out he sent civil engineers over the route, put 10,000 men grading and laying track, and built the whole line with hardly a break at a rate of not far from a mile a day. Such a thing was never done before and never will be done again.

Hill in politics has always been a Democrat and is a great admirer of Cleveland. He is said to be worth $25,000,000. Besides his railroads he has a fine line of lake steamers. His stock farm contains 4,000 acres. He owns many sections of land in various States. He is interested in several New York financial institutions. He has done all he set out to do and a good deal more, and his career is apparently not yet closed, by a good many years.

Mr. Hill controls 14,000 miles of railroad with 30,000 employes who receive in wages annually $15,000,000.

Electric Fish.

Some interesting facts have recently been compiled with reference to fishes which have the power of generating electric discharges. Of the fifty species of fishes possessing organs capable of giving electric discharges, three have a particular interest. These are the torpedo fish, which is found in the Bay of Biscay, and belongs to the skate family; the electric eel of the Orinoco; and the thunderer fish, found in the Nile and other African waters. The charge is developed by some chemical process occurring in the plate in which the electric nerve filaments end, and in some instances the discharge is from the head to the tail, while in the case of other fishes the reverse is true. In a full-sized electric eel or gymnotus, the voltage is probably from 300 to 800 volts, and is easily capable of stunning a man. The momentary currents are sufficient to deflect a galvanometer or magnetize a needle. It is to be noted that the generation and intensity of the discharge are under the control of the animal, which is apparently in no way affected by the action. Also, there are no insulating materials in the fish, and the greatest economy is shown in the generation of the electrical energy.

The Slums of Madrid.

Madrid abounds in slums, which are even greater eyesores than those of Whitechapel. There are labyrinths of narrow old streets, bordered by the most uninviting hovels, and from the squalor of these abodes spring the components of ferocious mobs which are the bane of the city.

BARBAROUS TORTURE.

How a Chinese Mandarin Punished Some Thieves.

One night, writes an Oriental traveler, we halted at a place called Hungay, a small town in the Yunnan province of China; population about 5,000; products, fleas and other small deer. We were making a hurried escape from the wretched place when Lowe suddenly missed his camera. Five minutes before starting it was strapped on the machine, but now it was gone. A swift run was made to the inn. Had the landlord seen it? No, he had not; and besides he didn't want to be disturbed, for he was eating rice. Had anybody seen the camera? Not a soul. There was nothing for it but a visit to the mandarin at the yamen or court. He was a kindly young fellow of about our own age. He listened quietly while the loss was explained, and when he understood there had been thieving, he turned the color of paper with rage.

PUNISHING A THIEF.

A troop of soldiery was dispatched to the inn with orders to arrest everybody. There is a Chinese proverb about the advisability of the dead keeping out of hell, and the living out of yamens. Landlord, cook, sweeper, stable cleaner and all the hangers-on were, however, marched to the yamen in chains, and every one was trembling with fright. There was much confused jabbering. In the end one of the men marched away, but in ten minutes he was brought back with the camera. His countenance proclaimed him an arrant rogue, and when the mandarin saw that the leather case had been cut open with a knife, and was informed that three photographic appliances were still missing, his rage was unbounded. Putting on his magisterial robes, he sentenced the thief to be thrashed. He held up one hand as an inquiry if fifty strokes would be sufficient punishment. Plenty, intimated the foreigner. Down was the man pitched on his face, the legs tied, the flesh bared, and heavy fell the blows.

"Well," said Lowe, "as I've been put to considerable inconvenience over this rascal, I think I'll take a snapshot of his thrashing." And one was taken. The beating went on and on, and the culprit screamed, and blood was running from the wounds on his limbs. "Hasn't he had the fifty yet?" was asked. "Fifty! Why, his punishment is 500 strokes, and he has not had 400 yet." A plea was put forward for mercy. But the mandarin, with his lips tight, would not listen. It was no good telling him that the quality of mercy was not strained, or that it droppeth like the dew from heaven, or that it became the monarch better than his crown. He was paid to punish offenders, and he was going to punish them. However, it was soon all over, and the wretch lay on the ground groaning, writhing and bleeding.

Then in marched the soldiery with five other men heavily manacled. The prisoners fell on their knees and put their foreheads on the ground. The mandarin hecked the lot like a Parisian judge. He fixed on one as the ringleader of the robbery. If 500 stripes was the punishment of an accomplice, what must be the chastisement of the thief in chief? Torture was reserved for him. He was made to sit on his haunches. His wrists were tied tightly in front of his knees, and a pole was stuck between his arms and legs and then rested on two tables, so that the culprit swung head downward. Strong twine was slip-knotted about each big toe, and two of the soldiers pulled apart. This necessarily brought a tremendous strain on the roped wrists. They blackened immediately. The agony must have been excruciating, for the man screamed. He began curling and twisting, but a soldier went forward and put his foot on the thief's dragging pigtail and so kept his head down. The victim foamed at the mouth, and whenever he was on the point of losing consciousness he was raised up by the queue to give him breathing space, swung head-downward again, and the twine about his toes tugged. It was in vain for the foreigner to appeal that the barbarous torture should cease. There was nothing for it but to forsake the sickening and revolting spectacle.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS.

She Is the Only Link Between Her Husband and the Present.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis, by the death of her daughter Winnie, is left as the last real link connecting the name of Jefferson Davis with the present. Mrs. Davis is in the seventies and in rare good health for so old a woman. She is a fine type of the old school Southern lady, and, of course, her life is wedded to the past. For years the routine of her life has remained unchanged. She lived in and for her daughter, the "daughter of the confederacy." For a long time Mrs. Davis and Winnie were visitors during the summer at Narragansett Pier, where they drew around them a select company of Confederate colonels and wealthy men from the South who loved the associations suggested by the widow and the daughter of the late Confederate President. Mrs. Davis received every day, and her evenings, almost without exception, were spent in her favorite game of backgammon. For wit and taste Mrs. Davis has few equals, and although she suffers from a slight lameness she has never allowed her physical weakness to interfere with her good temper or her kindly disposition. What this high-bred old lady will do without her loved and loving daughter, who was her inseparable companion, is hard to tell. In her sorrow she has the sympahty of all her wide circle of friends.

WEAPONS OF THE FILIPINOS.

These Island Savages Are Very Skillful in Their Use.

Before the people of Spain and some Americans began to bestow firearms on the Filipinos they relied entirely on their deadly knives. These knives—daggers and krises as they are called—are exceedingly nasty weapons in the hands of artists. Every savage race has its own style of knife. The Filipinos have one or two which are peculiarly interesting.

These savages are wonderfully skillful in handling their strange weapons, as the Spanish know now, and the Americans will probably learn later. They are small in size, but, like the Apache, are strong, full of endurance and bold enough to oppose their primitive weapons to those of the most modern make. The knives are small, finely carved and highly prized. They are much sought by curio hunters.

Perhaps the most deadly of all the Philippine weapons are the daggers carried by the chiefs. These are made of iron, mostly of a poor quality, and are about eighteen inches long. They are crooked or wavering in shape, with a rough, uneven surface. The edges are as sharp as a razor; the point almost like that of a needle, and they are carried in a case, which fits the blade to perfection. The cases are made of hard wood, the handles bearing beautifully carved inscriptions, representing the name of the chief and tribe. These crooked daggers are carried exclusively by the chiefs, the right to possess them being considered a great honor in the native country.

The kris is a dagger slightly longer than that carried by the chief, measuring nearly two feet, with a sharp curved blade. There are numerous varieties of these, the blades differing a trifle in size and shape. The kris is regarded by the native Filipino as the most important of all his belongings, and his uses of it are many and varied. The more savage tribes first lasso the foe, and after dragging it on the ground until exhausted or dead, use the knife to sever the head from the body, the former being taken as a prize. The native is very careful to keep his weapon in good condition, and uses it in a number of ways, as the occasion may require. In decapitating he approaches the enemy from the rear, striking a little below the base of the brain. A single blow powerfully dealt will nearly always accomplish the work, but in every case robs the opponent of all power.

BULLETINS OF VICTORY.

None Has Yet Improved on Caesar's Veni! Vidi! Vici!

Not a few of the great commanders of different countries have, when announcing a victory, endeavored to improve on Caesar's famous "Veni, vidi, vici," but the present war has as yet produced nothing striking of this sort. Some of the messages of the past are worth recalling. John Sobieski, when sending the Mussulman standards captured before Vienna to the Pope, also sent this message: "I came, I saw, God conquered." It is related of the Russian Gen. Suwarrow, when yet a major and in command of an outpost, that he desired to attack the enemy, but that this was forbidden under pain of death by the commander-in-chief. Judging that the attack should not be delayed, Suwarrow dared to disobey orders, encountered the enemy, defeated them, and then sent this message to the commander-in-chief: "As a soldier I deserve death for disobeying my orders; as a Russian, I have done my duty; the enemy is no more." This was forwarded by the commander-in-chief to the Empress, who in reply sent this dispatch to Suwarrow: "As a soldier, I leave you to the mercy of the commander-in-chief; as a Russian I congratulate you as my lieutenant colonel." Later on in his career, when he had captured Prague, he wrote thus to the Empress: "Hurrah! Prague! Suwarrow!" And Catharine, equally terse, again promoted him, thus: "Bravo! Field marshal! Suwarrow!"

Turenne announced the victory of Dunen, by which Dunkirk was retaken from the Spaniards, in these words: "The enemy came, was beaten, I am tired, good-night." Perhaps the shortest message ever sent by a commander was the one word Sir Charles Napier chose wherewith to announce his victory at Hyderabad, in the province of Scinde. It was "Peccavi" (I have sinned).—London Mail.

WAR IN CUBA.

E. H. Hathaway was here Saturday evening and called on friends including Harry Trentman and D. M. Link. He used to be the district agent or manager for the Chicago Record, but when the Spanish war broke out, he got a position on the Record as one of their war correspondents in Cuba. He took the now famous "Record Newsboy" Kavanagh, with him from Elkhart, and was one of the first persons who landed with Shafter's men to take Santiago. He was in the hottest and thickest of that campaign, and was the first man to give Hobson a paper from the outside world, when the latter was released from the Spanish prison. He also met many noted Spaniards, and has letters or autographs of a number, including Blanco and Toral. He had with him here a lot of mementoes of the war, including Spanish swords, machetes, rifle shells and the like. He left a couple of the shells with Harry Trentman, and as they are so much different from the shells we are familiar with, it will pay to take a look at them. After the fighting stopped, Mr. Hathaway came home and after a visit at his birthplace, Boston, took in the Peace Jubilee at Chicago, and is now on his way back to Cuba, where the Record sends him to travel in the interior and write about it. He left here on the evening east bound B. & O. train Saturday.

THe Phillipine Islands.

These island are nearer to China than most people think, being only a few hundred miles from the mainland of Asia. They extend very close to Borneo on the south, and all about to the southward are the scores of islands, large and small, extending to Australia, hence the great variety of races found in the Philippines. There are about 1200 of the islands, many of them being quite small. The largest is Luzon, on which is Manila. It is also the most northern. The eight next in size are Panay, Zebu, Leyte, Boho, Negros, Samar, Mindanao and Mindoro. Gold, coal and other minerals are found in considerable quantities, and this reminds us that those who speak of our holding Manila and the island of Luzon only, so as to have a coaling station, do not understand the conditions. If we hold that island only, we would be obliged to ship the coal from the United States. But if we keep all the islands we can get abundance of coal right there, for the island of Zebu especially has plenty of it. So we might as well make up our minds to take all or none. The Spainards started the first colony on these islands in 1565.

NOTICE

I desire to announce to the public that I have arranged for an educational exhibit for the district schools of DeKalb county, at my flower garden at Sedan Indiana. The work sent in from each township will be arranged in separate departments so the teachers from each township can examine the work done by each township. This I think will be an interesting feature of the many attractions at my pleasure resort. The work done in each branch must be done with pen and ink, on legal or foolscap paper, which will be bound in book form, each branch will be bound separate. All work must be signed by teacher and pupil having the number of the district and township. I will send a report to this paper each month to be published so the teachers of the district schools will know the amount of work sent in each month. I have engaged Mr. E. H. Luttman to assist me to arrange the work.

Yours truly,
SIMON HAINES.

HOW TO VOTE.

No stamp is used now, but a blue pencil instead. The Rooster, Eagle, etc. are not in a big square, but in a big circle. If you vote a straight ticket, take the pencil and make a cross in the big circle on the rooster or eagle, or whatever ticket you vote. If you do not vote a straight ticket, then you must not put a cross in the big circle, leave that alone and go down the list of names and put a cross in the little square at the left of each name you wish to vote for on any ticket. This is plain and easy. But if you doubt whether you understand it the best thing is to vote a straight ticket, for then you have to make only one cross and that is in the big circle. There are three separate ballots to be voted. The state ballot is red and generally the people vote that straight. The local ballot is white and this contains the congressman, judge, prosecutor and all the county ticket. Then there is the third ticket, which is the township, this is yellow and contains the candidates for justice and constable only. So while you are in the booth, you vote each one, fold up each one as usual and come out and hand all three to the inspector and give the pencil back to the clerk.

FROM CAMP MOUNT

Special to the Courier.

CAMP MOUNT, IND. Oct. 21 1898.—Today marks an event in the lines of members of the 157th, 158th Indiana regiments and Battery A of Indianapolis, that may well be considered an exceptional one in every sense—the President's review. This morning at 8 o'clock the two regiments of infantry and one of battery were lined up in light marching order in front of quarters, and by half past nine o'clock all had boarded the street cars for Indianapolis, arriving at Washington street about ten o'clock. The regiment lined up in platoon front about two hundred yards west of the depot, where they awaited the arrival of President McKinley. The President arrived at 10:50 over the Lake Erie & Western from Chicago, where he attended the Peace Jubilee during the past five days. The reception and review was a grand success in every respect, and the demonstrations and homage shown on the part of the people assembled, was in every degree complimenting, and no one could doubt the President's appreciation, as it was fully acknowledged by genial smiles and nos of recognition. The city was a bewildering mass of colors and made more fantastic and impressive by continual strains of music. The day was indeed one of demonstrations, a crash and jam, and your correspondent only regrets that he was situated so he was unable to give a more lucid and better description of the affair. The parade advanced westward on Washington street about eleven o'clock, and was brilliant and impressive in its make-up. The parade was headed by several mounted police in dress uniforms, wearing yellow gloves. The first carriage was that of President and Mrs. McKinley, Senator Fairbanks and wife, the advance and rear guards of honor were composed of two companies of the 158th Indiana. The carriage was elegantly decorated in national colors and was drawn by eight beautiful iron-grey horses, led by eight footmen. Following the President's carriage came Gov. Mount and Mayor Taggart, accompanied by carriages containing the reception committee and guests of honor. The regiments, battery, city and regimental bands, and several different orders advanced in the rear. The parade proceeded to the monument—which was draped in bunting—thence through principal streets in the heart of the city, returning again to the soldiers monument, where the soldiers in regimental front pass in President's review. The parade occupied two hours.

The 157th carried no arms and order of march was composed of poncho neatly rolled with lining turned out and carried over the left shoulder and under the right arm, making a very neat and presentable appearance. Even if the weather was cold and rainy and the boys did without their dinners, everyone enjoyed the occasion immensely and congratulated themselves on the opportunity of seeing the President of the United States. The people of Indianapolis are equal to any demonstration, as was preeminently shown today.

In summing up everything the 157th Indiana's experience since it was mustered in May 10th has been a continual feast of rare opportunities, two-to-one countermanding every hardship and disagreeable feature of service. The regiment has passed the physical examination—the last being examined this afternoon. The weather cold and wet, and most of the boys affected with bad colds. Excepting this, everything moves without a jar, and the boys are looking forward with anticipated pleasure of returning home within a very few days.

Tricky Spaniards.

The Spanish authorities in Havana, are selling off and shipping away all the war material they can, in spite of the protest of our commissioners there. Arms and ammunition, and valuable modern cannon, including some new Krupp cannon, are among the things they have already sold, and by the time we get possession, the fortications will be as bare as a plucked goose. It is probable, there is no way to stop them except by force, for it seems that the "protocal" under which we are now waiting for a settlement of the terms of peace, did not exactly forbid such a course. It is likely no one but the Spaniards themselves thought such a disagreeable and tricky course would be taken. No honorable nation would go to work to dispose of the property that had been virtually captured, and was only waiting to be turned over in due form. But you cannot always tell what a Spaniard will do. The President would be justified in sending a fleet to Havana at once, and prevent any more of this property from being sent away.

The Willow Case

The taking of testimony had closed on Monday, and the attorney had been making their arguments. At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Roby gave his charge to the jury and then at a little after 4 p. m. yesterday, the jury retired to talk it over. It took till six this morning to decide it, when they brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, Miller for $1237,02. He had brought suit for $40,000.

Birds of DeKalb County.

[Given as a talk at rhetorical exercises in the 8th grade of our public schools, Oct. 7, 1898.]

The immediate distinguishing marks in the bird is its form in general, their feather covering and producing their young enclosed in eggs.

One of the marks in birds is the wing which is a modification of the arm in man and the fore limb of the quadruped, but covered with feathers instead of hair.

The bones of the bird are not filled with marrow as those of animals but are hollow and filled with air; thus giving it great strength as well as lightness, for we all know that a hollow bar will stand a great deal more than a solid one made of the same material. The bone of a goose weighing barely half as much as that of a rabbit of the same size after the marrow has been extracted. It is very interesting to notice the way the bones of the wing are placed together, so arranged as to produce both great lightness and strength.

Many people make a great mistake in regard as to locating the bones in the bird and classification of the joints. Many people think that the part which grasps the perch is the foot, which is not, it is only the toes or the phlanges; that joint half way between the perch and the body is generally called the knee, and that feathered portion which proceeds from the body is the thigh Now this is all wrong. The generally supposed knee is not the knee, but may be compared to the heel joint so that the whole foot reaches half way between the body and the perch, but if it were the knee it would be compelled to be bent backward, which no properly formed knee ever did or ever will do. The generally supposed thigh is not the thigh, but may be well compared to that part of the leg in man between the ankle and knee.

The knee and thigh is placed high up against the body and is that part of the fowl which is severed from the body when it is carved for serving.

Many people have spoken of the pleasant life of the bird. Poets have sung of it, and many mothers have expressed their wishes to have the life of a bird. But when we think that only about one-tenth of the nests mature their young, this wish is lessened. There is a strong instinct in the mother bird, and she often perished with the nest. There is hardly a bird that dies a natural death. From the time the eggs are laid until the birds are flown, the nest is in constant danger of "Indians" in the form of hawks, owls, jays, weasels and the sporting school boy.

THE OWL.

The owl, a large head and large glassy eyes are distinguishing marks of the owl. It gathers its food by night and sleeps in the day time. Its food consists chiefly of fowls, rats, etc. Its plumage is very heavy to protect it from the cold, which in turn is covered with a heavy growth of down to prevent the rustling of the feathers, thus allowing it to catch its prey. On most all owls there is a large growth or bunch of feathers at the top of the head much resembling horns, thus giving to one class of owls the name of horn owl. Their nest is built in the hollow or hole of a tree. They lay four eggs of which but two are seldom known to hatch.

THE BARN OWL.

The barn owl. This little bird is the greatest ratter and mouser known. Those who nail its carcass against the side of the barn, are destroying one of their best friends. Its eggs are four in number and often there are half grown young ones in the nest, when new eggs are laid. Its length is about twelve inches. One is surprised to know how small a bird it is when deprived of its plumage, being little or no larger than a pigeon. Its color is of a bright yellowish brown. When attacked it falls upon its back and fights furiously with its claws. The cry of the owl is very hard on the nerves. It has caused many a manly cheek to pale and his hair stand on end. Such was the experience of the Pilgrims that they were up all night ready to spring into the branches at any time for fear of wild animals, which was nothing but the cry of the owl. This gave rise to the old saying, "I was not raised in the woods to be scared by an owl."

THE HAWK.

The hawk is also an enemy of other fowls, even the farmer's poultry yard. Its voice is very harsh and hard on the nerves and always produces a panic among other fowls. Its length is from eighteen to twenty inches. Its color is of a dirty brown. Its nest is built in the tops of the tallest trees as all other thieving birds, knowing that larger animals long to get their nest and life. Its eggs are from four to six in number and of a grayish color.

THE BLUE JAY.

This bird is at one time a brilliant, dashing joker and at another a silent, murderous thief. He has a way of getting among the birds that it is rightly said that he is pretending to be on good terms with each bird and murderous to all. His voice is not unlike that of the blood-thirsty hawk. He builds his nest about twenty feet from the ground. It lays from four to five eggs of a greenish color. The jay is of a bright blue color, his wing almost shining.

Next we come to the song birds.

THE ROBIN.

This bird has by its fearless conduct won renown by almost all kinds of men. Every country seems to protect him Even in America this bird lives unharmed. Even the sporting school boy spares its life. All it has to fear is some greenhorn of a hunter who cannot shoot anything else? I do not know why this bird should have such protection, unless it is on account of the tale connected to it of the "Babes in the Woods." Its nest is built in trees, bushes, vines and crevices of old walls. Its eggs are four to five in number. They are of a pale gray color covered with reddish spots.

In the winter when the insects are dead and the worms are buried beneath the snow, it is then that the robin flies to the home of man for shelter, and when he has once gained admittance he is very jealous, and will not allow another bird to come near, and if it does, he attacks him fiercely and drives him off.

THE WREN.

This little bird also has some of the same protection as the robin. Although it may be hopping about within a few inches of the end of the gun, yet few are crul enough to take its life. I do not know why this bird should have such protection unless it is on account of the little verse connected with it, that "the robin and the wren is God Almighty's cock and hen" I do not know why these two birds should have this honor placed upon them, both very quarrelsome, and all others excluded, unless it is on account of the story connected with the robin about the babes in the woods and the wren makes a good rhyme. But be what it may, if it serves for their protection, I wish that many more had a similar rhyme, Its nest is built in bushes and sheds. The scarecrow is a good place for the nest of this fearless little bird. Its eggs are four to five in number, of a bluish color, covered with brown spots. The wren is of a brown color.

THE CANARY.

This little bird is well known that it needs but little description. In fact, there is but little chance of studying its natural life, owing to the way that it is reared in this country. But, if we were to go to the Canary and Cape Verde islands, the home of the canary, we could study the natural way of its living. It often produces from seven to ten broods in a year. After it is in captivity for a few generations it loses its brilliant color and its sweetness of song.

THE BLACKBIRDS.

This bird is rightly classed among our song birds. Its jetty color is too well known to need discription. It is a very timid bird, and when disturbed on one side of a bush it will fly out on the other with a loud cry of alarm. It builds its nest in a hedge or right in the center of a jolly bush where it is safe from all danger, except the weasel and the sporting school boy. Its eggs are five in number and of a bluish green color covered with brown spots. Its food is that of worms, insects and cherries, when they are ripe, but the loss of cherries is regained by its destruction of worms and insects.

THE SONG THRUSH.

This bird is rightly classed among our finest songsters. Its pure, rich notes may be heard in the month of January, when most all other birds are silent or have flown.

If it were not for the song of the thrush, it would need protection for its aid to the garden, by its destruction of worms, insects, snales, etc, It is amusing to watch the thrush unearth a grub. When he alights he listens until he hears it, then he makes a couple hops near it which the grub takes for his enemy, the mole, and comes to the surface when he is immediately devoured by the thrush. He rids the snale of its shell by striking it against a stone, when he finds a good place he takes more there, so heaps of broken shells may be found where the snale has been at work.

Its nest is built in the thickest bush, better concealment could not be found, and to make this more perfect, the male bird when he does his singing he does not sit close to the nest, but sits twenty, thirty, and sometimes as far as forty rods away, upon the top of the tallest tree in the vicinity. Its eggs are four or five in number, and of a bluish green color covered with bright reddish brown spots.

THE WOODPECKER.

This bird receives his name from the occupation he followes. It is found in all parts of the globe except Australia. It feeds upon worms and insects of which it finds buried in the trunks of decaying trees and stumps. Its tongue is long and slender and can be inserted a great ways in a small hole and secure any worm or insect that it may find. To make this more effective, the tongue is slightly barbed and is covered with agummy liquid which holds any small thing it may touch. Many people think this bird injures the trees, but it does not. It will not penetrate a solid body but looks for a decaying or decayed place in the tree when it immediately sets to work to get the food which he knows is beneath the bark. Thus taking out the worms and insects which would kill the tree if left in.

The color of the woodpecker is well known. Its bluish black back and tail; its white tipped wings and red head. It is about seven inches in length. Its nest is built in a hole in the trunk of a tree or stump. Its eggs white as all other eggs that are laid in the trunks of trees.

THE HUMMING BIRD.

This beautiful little bird is a native of America and is found nowhere else. It receives its name from the humming noise it makes when in motion it is seldom seen quiet. It is is of a bluish black or green color. Watch the golden hue as it turns in the sunshine while poising over a flower; watch the brilliant streak as it darts from one place to another. There is no bird that fills the most despondent heart with joy like the humming bird. Waterton says, "Though least in size, the glittering mantle of the humming bird entitles it to the first place on the list of the birds of the new world."

The tongue is long and slender allowing it to be inserted in the deepest flower, thus enabling it to get the honey upon which it subsists,

There several kinds of birds ranging from the size of the swift or swallow down to that of a bumble bee. That of this county is about two inches in length. Its nest is very small as one may know by the size of the bird. Its nest is built in a bush and is made of wool, down, etc. Its eggs are two to four in number. It is easily tamed and has been known to be domesticated in two hours after its capture and return, after it has been released, for the dainties it had received in captivity.

In summing up, the bird is a vertebrate but does not suckle its young. The young are not produced in an actively animated state, but enclosed in an egg, which is developed by constant warmth. Generally this warmth is produced by the mother bird, but there is one kind in Australia which buries the eggs in the decaying vegetation and is developed by the heat produced by decay.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Special to the Courier

CAMP MOUNT, IND, Oct, 25.—The present outlook strongly indicates that to get out within two weeks we will be doing exceedingly well. Every time we get in position to give our muster out its few finishing touches, one thing or another bobs up to delay the matter.

An order was issued this morning stopping work on muster out and final payment roll, It seems as if there has been considerable complaint expressed by members of the regiment on the injustice of having to pay their way home So Lieut, Col. May telegraphed a few days since to Washington for information. About three days later a reply was received stating that no transportation would be granted. But it seems as if it had since passed into the hands of the war department, which immediately telegraphed that transportation would be given upon proper application, certifying when and where the companies were first organized for the militia and the number of members thereof. The commander of each company has to file this certificate, and will read something like the following:

"Company K, 157th Ind., Vol., U. S. A. enrolled and assembled at Auburn, Ind., April 26, 1898. (original Company.)

Twenty-six recruits assembled and mustered in the U. S. Service at Auburn, Ind., June 23-24. 1898, by Lieut. H. K, Scott. Joined command at Port Tampa City, Fla., June 27, 1898. (Names of Recruits.)

I hereby certify upon honor that the above and foregoing is a true and complete list of my Company, and that said company was enrolled and assembled and mustered as stated therein.

JAMES F. LAHNUM,
Commanding Company K.
157th Ind. Vol. U. S. A.

You can readily see by the above that our power to procure justice for their men. While it may have been unfair for us to pay our own transportation, yet it would have been much cheaper in the long run for us to have done so, as it will cause several days delay in mustering out the regiment, when we could have been at home promoting our various avocations. Besides the matter of transportation would have been insignificant, as rates of one cent per mile or half fare could have been procured.

Quite a number of Company K boys, among whom was your correspondent, visited Crown Hill Cemetery this morning. The grounds are beautiful and the monuments and vaults as an average are elegants pieces of sculpture and art. The also ascended Crown Hill and took a birds-eye view of the cemetery and city. The weather has been much warmer during the past few days, and heavy rain began to fall about noon to day, which promises more cold weather to follow. Several of the boys have engaged themselves to neighboring farmers to husk corn at six cents per shock. We men are growing weary of this kind of life and employ themselves in many different ways for relief.

"A Breezy Time"

Fitz and Webster in "A Breezy Time" will be the attaction at the Opera House next Saturday. A flash, and a crash, a whirl and a swish, an electric magnetic, systematic combine of grotesque, eccentric and pretty figures extolling a veritable cyclone of fresh, breezy acts and tuneful melodies loaded with the distilled essence of parody and fun. That's "A Breezy Time" to a dot. How the two clever comiques, Miss Webster and Mr. Fitz ever succeded in gathering such a quantity of clever materials and so many bright ideas for an evenings entertainment is a pleasant surprise to the most habitual theater goer. No hitch or break, wait or delay mars the continuous charge of action.

SOME PUMPKINS

The Indiana Furniture Company at Ft. Wayne recently, offered a premium for the heaviest and largest pumpkin brought to their store by an Allen county farmer. Saturday the award was made. A man named Brunkhart of near Harlan was the winner. His pumpkin weighed 160 lbs, and he got a bedroom set worth $25. There were ten prizes given, and the pumpkins weighed 135, 129, 122½, 119½ 115, 106½. 100, 98 and 94 pounds, the other sranging lower. There were 75 entries and the store looked like the agricultural department at a fair.

Levi Brandaberry Dead

The sad news comes this morning that Levi Brandaberry is dead. Monday in the morning, as he was running a corn husker at Dan. Gingerich's in some way his arm caught in the machine and was crushed. It was amputated, but the shock was so great, he grew worse las tnight and died this morn He was one of the most highly respected citizens of Smithfield township.

His tongue clove to the roof of his mouth. "I—I—that is," he faltered, you——" And then he suddenly caught her to his bosom. "You know what I would say!" he cried. Frigidly she disengaged herself. "Another missing word fake," she muttered, pale, but calm.—Detroit Journal.

Missionary Claims Against Turkey.

Our government is again formally pressing upon Turkey the claims of American missionaries for property destroyed at Harpoot and elsewhere in Asia Minor during the anti-Armenian riots more than two years ago. Recently the Turkish government replied, disclaiming all responsibility for the riots, but our government has notified Turkey that this repudiation of responsibility cannot be accepted. The fact that Turkish soldiers in uniform took part in the riots strengthens the claim for redress.

THE TORPEDO-BOAT "PORTER" IN ACTION

Torpedo-Boats in the War.

When the U. S. torpedo-boat Porter started across to Havana on April 22d, it was rough—rough even for the Gulf Stream—and that day and night showed that the life on board was going to be a struggle with nature—a test of physical endurance. The Porter's motion in such a sharp sea as runs nearly all the time off the coast of Cuba was, to say the least, uncomfortable. The roll was from thirty to forty-five degrees each way, and twenty-five times a minute, with occasionally an extra roll thrown in, which went beyond the registering limit of the indicators, and made one wonder why the boat took the trouble to come back, it seemed so much easier just to go on all the way round.

To rest and sleep in such conditions was very difficult, and only possible when physical exhaustion overcame every other feeling, and then the sleep was so broken that it illfitted one to renew the exacting duties of handling the delicate mechanisms of the boats, or exercise the cool judgment and instant decision demanded by the service.

In addition to the other sufferings of the men, the heat below deck was such that no one went there except on duty. The life was on deck; those on duty at their posts were on there feet; the remainder, if not struggling with their very simple meals, were trying to get some sleep, stretched out and wedged in between torpedo-tubes and rails, or in some place that prevented their sliding around.

The discomforts and the trials borne by the crews of these little craft during this period will never be known, nor could be appreciated by any persons but those who were in the service. Some idea of them can be gleaned from the article on "Torpedo-boat service" that Lieutenant J. C. Fremont, U. S. N., commanding the Porter, contributes to HARPER'S MAGAZINE for November.

Monday's Daily.

—For reliable insurance at lowest rates, See J. N. Wilson, Successor to B. M. Hastings.

—Harry Weamer of the Hudson Gazette was a caller last Friday. He is pleased with his new location.

—Furness Myers, son of W. P. Myers of Kendallville, formerly of Auburn, was married last week to a Miss Kister of Butler.

—Mr. and Mr. Benj. Hamilton of St. Joe were callers Saturday afternoon, paying subscription way ahead, for which they have thanks.

—It now seems to be the proper thing to call them "patriotic democrats" if they say there was no suffering among the soldiers in the recent war.

—Perry Long also reports a second crop of raspberries, and we see by a clipping we have, that St. Joe boasts a second crop of elderberries. St. Joe is ahead.

—T. C. Elson, of Berrien Springs, is here visiting his son-in-law Simp Johnson and wife. He has many old old neighbors to visit also, including the COURIER folks.

—WANTED:—Elm stave bolts 12 inches in diameter and over. They must be sound, straight and free from knots. Price $2.00 per cord. tf
THE GREENLER CO.

—Baby photographs a specialty at Lybarger's Gallery North Main, Auburn.

—St. Joe is again agitating the question of incorporating the town. There is a difference of opinion among the people, as might be expected, for there are some things in favor of the thing and some things against it.

—Truth wears well. People have learned that DeWitt's Little Early Risers are reliable little pills for regulating the bowels, curing constipation and sick headache. They don't gripe. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Mrs. Franklin Bowers, of Bucyrus, Ohio, came here Saturday afternoon and is the guest of her husband's brother L. Bowers and wife. The visit also gives her the opportunity of meeting Mr. Bower's sister from Iowa who is also here now.

—B. F. Billiter, of Huntington, accompanied by his wife, is here. They are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cal. Husselman. The two gentleman made the COURIER a brief call todaw. They are fellow workers in Farmers institutes, and old-time friends.

—Republican papers that are publishing such scandalous accounts of suffering and neglect of soldiers in the Rebellion, should be careful, It is now called "slandering your government," At least those very papers call it that in regard to the present war

—St. Joe News:—This has been quite a season for second crops, and the latest we have heard of is the elderberry, Mrs. Dr. Bowman picked enough second crop elderberries the other day to make a pie. We can vouch for it being a good pie too, as we helped to eat it

—One Minute Cough Cure surprises people by its quick cures and children may take it in large quantities without the least danger. It has won for itself the best reputation of any preparation used today for colds, croup, tickling in the throat or obstinate coughs. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—The Dispatch, in common with many other republican papers, keeps saying that Col. Bryan asked to be mustered out so he could go home. But now comes the war department and says Col, Bryan has not asked to be mustered out, but simply asked to have the sick men in his regiment, the 3rd Nebraska, mustered out or else sent home on a furlough to let them get well. Now will these papers publish what the war department says.

—John Weamer, who lives northeast of town near J. L. Ferguson's, was here today and reported a fatal lamp accident similiar to the sad one that happened in Auburn. The accident happened Oct. 5, in one of their houses at Chicago Junction. The wife of the tenant was so badly burned by the exploding lamp, that she died after a week or so of great suffering. She was buried Oct. 16. The damage to the house, was small and covered by insurance.

—The four wells are now fully connected with the pumps, in the water works station and the water rises up into the pumps. The boilers are being put in and in another week, may be ready to run. The building is being rapidly finished. Long and Brandon have the ceiling and wainscoting nearly done, and it is a neat job. The casing of fire brick around the boilers is to be put up and then Picker Bros. will be about done with their work.

CHICKEN PIE SOCIAL.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a chicken pie social at the basement, Friday evening from 5 to 7.

BILL OF FARE.

Chicken Pie Mashed Potatoes
Bread and Butter
Cold Slaw Pickles
Cranberry Sauce
Cake and Jelly Tea and Coffee.

Warranted Heart Cure.

Dr. Huggins' Specific Heart Cure. A most reliable remedy for palpitation heart weakness, irregular action, heart pains and all heart disorders. Warranted to please or money refunded. Dr. Huggins, Columbus, Ohio, or at Fischler & Son's. 25 cents.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bush were in town today.

—Adam Deetz, of Helmer, was a welcome caller at this office today.

—We are under obligation again to Daniel Magginis for favors this week.

—Read the boundaries of your precincts in the COURIER. This will show you where to vote.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Frank Rush is doing the spouting for Wm. Huffman's house south of town, A load of the finished work was taken out there Monday.

—Frank Willis of the Press was in today. He reports that his son Ed is slowly regaining his health, a piece of news we are very glad to hear.

—The ladies of the north and south section of the Presbyterian church will give a social and supper in the church basement on Friday evening of this week.

—LOST.—A black and white pig weighing about 50 pounds. Finder will be suitably rewarded by sending word to Hugh Antrup at Auburn Junction.

—Before you buy a Buggy or Surrey, call on us and examine our line of Eckharts, they are the finest and best made and our prices are right. Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind.

—Colorado probably produced more gold this year than the Klondyke region all told. And it has many mines not yet developed. Our people would do well to stay at home.

—The Grain Drill for a farmer to buy is the Superior Single Disc Drill. It will work in trashy ground where Hoe Drills will not work. Call and see us before you buy. Culbertson & Boland.

—Gus Reinhart, of near Newville, is one of our latest new subscribers. He has some bright boys who want the best reading matter and news, and so he gets the COURIER. We always had a warm side for that kind of boys.

—You invite disappointment when you experiment, DeWitt's Little Early Risers are pleasant, easy, thorough little pills. They cure constipation and headache just as sure as you take them. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Jacob Bishop of New Era was a caller today and paid up till way into next year as usual. He says he has some corn that will show longer ears than any we have here as yet. And what is better, he has saved his corn in fair shape.

—A stubborn cough or tickling in the throat yields to One Minute Cough Cure. Harmless in effect, touches the right spot, reliable and just what is wanted. It acts at once. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. Beuret went to Fort Wayne this afternoon to attend the funeral of a brother-in-law, Geo. A. Litto, who died at 6 p. m. Sunday. The funeral is at the cathedral there tomorrow at 9 a. m. They will return on the evening train tomorrow.

—John Weamer's wife has been sick for about six weeks. They live on the J. W. Ferguson place a few miles from town, and report a few of the finest peaches grown in the county. They were on young trees. They also had a few good apples, also on young trees.

—Mrs. Frank Blattner and little daughter Dorothy of Tacoma, Wash., arrived in the city this afternoon, and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs, H. B, McCord for a few days. She has been visiting her husband's people in Toledo and is now on her way home to the far west coast.

—Oliver Warstler of Jackson was here Monday, and brought in two and a half quarts of fine red raspberries of the second crop. He sold them to Geo. Henderson. This is the third little invoice of second crop berries he has brought to town, and he could have gathered more but has been so busy with other work.

—Sig. Kann of Ligonier was in town today. He is now a full fledged traveling man, but not long ago was helping to fill the columns of the Ligonier Daily Bulletin. He has the true ring and fire of a genuine newspaper man. And it would not greatly surprise us to see our young friend some day throw away his gripsack and mount the tripod.

—Joseph Stafford was some hurt at the Wabash grain elevator last evening. While at work there his foot slipped and he partly fell into one of the grain chutes. He managed to get out and hobble home, but for a time was in pretty bod shape. But it might have been much worse. The accident happened about six in the evening.

—Peter Lochner and wife came back from Argos this morning, where they had visited the family of his brother, John C. Lochner of the Reflector, over Sunday. They found the people there all well and doing well. They came back Monday to South Whitley where they had to change to the Wabash road making it necessary to stay over to catch the morning train.

—Geo. Lanning and Bert Robbins were at Chicago and across the street from the reviewing stand where the President and also Gen. Miles and Shafter were, In a talk with Mr. Lanning the other day he says they could plainly see Gen. Shafter and Gen. Miles, and that they shook hands with great cordiality, and that the story that Shafter refused to shake hands with Miles is all false. We are glad to record this, for it would have been foolish for these two famous leaders to quarrel after the splendid campaign in Cuba.

Wednesday's Daily.

—J. K Stafford was in town yesterday.

—Election is one week from Tuesday next.

—Taxpaying time closes one week from Monday.

—Mrs. Alpheus Wheelock is very sick at present.

—Nan Phillips of Ashley was in town today, looking as natural as life.

—Mr. Eli Myers was among our callers and advanced his subscription to another year.

—Jerry Carmer is planting some fine maples in front of his home on West Seventh st.

—An obituary of Lafayette Buss, was received too late for this week but will appear in the next.

—Nov. 5 the Lake Shore Ry, has a very low rate excursion to Chicago. Particulars in another column.

—Cheap excursion to Chicago over Lake Shore Ry. Nov. 5 See bills or other column for particulars.

—There was frost in the south a week ago, clear down to the Gulf of Mexico. But up in this part of the north, we have not yet had a hard frost.

—If you went a good winter shoe for a little money go to Shull's Shoe store, a regular $1.50 calf shoe for 1.19.

—Hon. C. M. Brown and Cyrus Jackman, will speak at Butler Center Friday evening.

—Samuel Lutz, an old Waterloo neighbor, accompanied by his grandson, was a caller this week and chipped in quite liberally to encourage the COURIER, That's what counts.

—There are three weeks left yet of this term of court, after this week, the last day of term being Saturday, Nov. 19. This will, we suppose be Judge Reby's closing term as a new judge will be elected Nov. 8.

—H. H. Slaybaugh for several years trustee of Fairfield was a caller today. He sends the COURIER to his brother Daniel, who now lives at South Bend, but will be well remembered by the people in the north part of the country.

—A. N. Wilson reports his sales of boots and shoes for the last few days, as ahead of anylike number of days before. We are glad to hear it and it also shows the benefits of advertisitg in the COURIER. Read the new advertisement he has this week.

—Warships will probably be sent to Havana at once, to stop the illegal sale of Spanish cannon and other war material there, as well as to check the growing insolence of the Spaniards. It appears we have gained but little from our series of brilliant victories, except our foothold in Porto Rico, where very little fighting was done.

—Stroh has been denying that he would be Platter's deputy. But only today, he asked a democrat to vote for Platter. Stroh is all the time working for Platter. Does he expect to be his deputy, or is he anxious to have Platter elected so the books will not have to be turned over? We advise the taxpayers to elect Hathaway and have the books turned over.

—Ed. Koons started this afternoon over the B. & O. for the far west. He goes to Helena, Montana, where he has a responsible position in charge of the shoe department in a large, general retail store. He goes to his new responsibilities well qualified by long experience, and especially by his most recent employment in the great house of Marshall Field in Chicago. He leaves here, many friends whose earnest good wishes will follow him.

BUTLER.

A son and a daughter of Dr. Kester's were married last week.

The M. E, church was well filled last Sunday. Quarterly meeting service is fixed for next Sabbath.

Mr. Hathaway, Garrett's heavy candidate for Sheiriff spent considerable time in Butler and vicinity last week.

The Butler races that were to have taken place last Friday were postponed on account of a soft touch, caused by day rain.

Rumors are afloat of a change in one of our large business establishments. A popular clerk, is likely to become a proprietor.

Rev. John H. Crouse has very materially improved his property on East Green street, and will have a tasty home when completed.

William H. Wilson sold his personal property at a public sale last Saturday preparatory to moving to Toledo to enter the service of a Traction Co.

The campaign, drawing rapidly to a close has thus far been one of extreme apathy. When a candidate happens to appear the inquiry passes around as to whether he is a democrat or a republican.

Lewis Planson, an old resident of Butler, but a mountaineer in the Rockie for the past twenty years, is still trying his fortunes in the mines, with only meager hopes of ultimate success.

Daniel Rhodes and old acquaintance of Conrad Gehrings who has been visiting with for the past few weeks, became suddenly ill last Saturday and died at his house last Sunday morning. His funeral took place from Mr. Gehrings residence last Monday, Rev. Frech officiating.

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October, our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85, hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear, at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

WILSON,
The Shoe Man.

Some people complain about the wear of their Shoes, but they are not those who wear those waterproof Dongola Shoes sold by Wilson.

A Fair Proposition.

If ladies will go to each shoe store in town and take home a pair of their $2 50 or even $3.00 shoes marked in plain figures and go to Wilson's and ask for a pair of his famous $2.00 shoes. Then if you do not believe that Wilson can and does save you from 50c to $1.00 a yair on such shoes why then its our treat.

Warm Slippers.

We bought a lot of Ladies, Misses and Childrens slippers and notice our seven is before the nine—79c is the price at Wilson's.

Rubber Footwear

is often a source of much annoyance. Buy them at last years prices of Wilson, who keeps more rubbers than any one else hereabouts having sold over 4,000 pairs last year. Wilson has the goods as well as the prices.

Felt and Knit Boots.

Buy them where you have an assortment to pick from, the best makes guaranteed and prices are right. Wilson is the man who keeps them.

Arctics and Overshoes.

Tis often difficult to get a fit. Don't go in to any store and accept of a poor fit. Come to us and we are right in the swim with more styles and more toes than can be found in the county. Wilson's is the place and prices are right.

School Shoes.

Mothers and Fathers often worry about the large amount of cash it takes to buy school shoes for their children. Come in and let us pick you out what is needed and our word for it your money back if they don't wear, at Wilson's.

POLITICS OF THE DAY

CAUSES OF HARD TIMES.

There was a time when, with a much smaller population and much less wealth than we have now, we had no difficulties in the treasury—no deficiency of revenue and, what was of much more consequence, no distress among the people. If the causes which produce the present difficulties with the people can be removed, we certainly will return to the old condition of prosperity and happiness. It would seem that there should be no difficulty in finding out what changes have occurred and in ascertaining beyond question the cause of our present troubles. There must be something radically wrong somewhere if the richest and freest nation on the globe is in such a condition of absolute helplessness and dependence as the President of the United States seems to consider us now. In this country the people are the source not only of power, but also of all wealth and prosperity. When they are prosperous business will flourish, all branches of commerce will be active, and no financial difficulties will come to the treasury except as the result of insufficient revenue laws; but no revenue system, no matter how wisely or judiciously formed, can provide revenue unless there is commerce and active business. A time of industrial depression and commercial stagnation must be and ought to be a time of embarrassment for the Government. The laws we now have on the statute books will, with the revival of business, provide ample revenue. The change needed is not in the revenue laws, but in the financial condition of the people at large. Whatever embarrassments the Government may now have to encounter are the result of the depressed condition of all branches of business and the unsatisfactory condition of the people generally. If we can devise a means of relieving these, there will be no difficulty about the condition of the Government or of the revenues.—From James K. Jones' speech, in the United States Senate.

Supply and Demand.

We all recognize the principle of supply and demand when it is applied to the commodities. Then why should we not recognize it when applied to gold and silver? There existed for centuries, at least in some nations, the right of any person to take gold and silver bullion to the mint or mill of the government and have it coined into legal tender money. Would not the taking away of that right as to one metal affect not only its value but also that of the other? Suppose the nations of the world were to conclude, from a scientific inquiry, that it was unhealthy to eat wheat bread, and that as a sanitary measure they should pass laws that millers should no longer grind wheat? If that law could be enforced, what effect would it have upon the price of wheat? Every one knows that the minute that law took effect wheat would sink lower and lower in value until it reached a price equal to what it would be worth to feed to animals. Why? Because the very demand for which wheat had been raised was destroyed, and consequently its value must be fixed by the next thing for which it is demanded. What effect would this same law have upon the price of corn? You know that the minute that law took effect corn would begin to rise rapidly and go higher and higher in price until it reached double its former value. Why? Because the enormous demand which existed for wheat and corn had been transferred to corn alone; and as the demand for corn had been doubled, it must of necessity double the value thereof. Gold and silver are metals that are subject to the same law of supply and demand, and consequently must yield in price as the demand is removed from one and shifted to the other.

What Is Money?

Money is as necessary to the masses as blood is to the human system. With a full supply of money to transact the legitimate business of the nation, the prosperity of the people is assured. Then comes up the question, what is money? All civilized nations establish their own standards of money. While England has her pounds, shillings and pence, France has her franc, while we adopted the standard of the British system. Since the establishment of this republic, all our money has been represented by the dollar, be the transaction great or small. In no case is the eagle mentioned. The silver dollar is our standard and shall remain so.

Characteristically Erratic.

Col. Roosevelt, with immaculate gravity, warned the audience he addressed in New York City the other night that the United States, in continuing to act on the advice of George Washington as regards the expansion of its territory, were in danger of lapsing into the condition of China. We are inclined to wonder if the Colonel thinks he makes votes by this kind of talk or if it is only the exhibition of that erratic quality in him as a man of judgment which has contributed to lose him public confidence in his previous career.—Boston Herald.

On the Defensive.

Republican orators have settled down to the work of defending the administration. It is not so much a campaign of apology for the corruption and favoritism of the administration as it is one of justification, but which needs an immense amount of explaining and defending. This means that the policy of the administration is not to be changed in any way, but the people are to be made to believe that the administration knows better than they what is good for the country.—Kansas City Times.

The Trusts Are Prosperous.

It is a poor sort of a day that does not witness the formation of a trust of huge proportions. Among the late born into the family is the wall paper trust, thirty-five or forty millions dollars' capital, and it is boldly stated that prices of wall paper will advance 25 to 50 per cent. The plug tobacco trust is now expected to make its appearance in a few days, "made necessary by the low price of plug tobacco," and so the dance goes on. But it is all right; the people like them; they read in some trust-subsidized paper that "trusts are a good thing," and that settles it. Higher prices for nails, steel, coal, crackers, oil, wall paper, tobacco and countless other things count for nothing when considered alongside the virtues of trusts and the blessings they shower upon the people. It is a pleasure to be robbed by such sweet, mild-mannered villains; and it is better to let them select, elect and control all public officers, for they are in "the business of governing," and know how to do it.—Farm, Stock and Home.

Protection an Incubus.

The American manufacturer not only has natural resources at his command, but also possesses skilled labor and superior machinery, and in the combination of these two factors he can control the world's markets. In view of such conditions how absurd to keep up the cry of protection to home industries. We have but to throw off the incumbrance of high tariff in order to go forth and conquer the whole commercial world. Even with this handicap the vigorous young giant of American industry is making rapid headway. The policy of protection is fast becoming an anomaly for this commercially expanding nation. Our erstwhile "infant industries" have outgrown their swaddling clothes.—Detroit Free Press.

Why Not?

Here is a subject for farmers to discuss at the institutes this winter. There is no class more interested in the currency question than the farmers. You are told that money is plenty, in fact lying idle in the banks, who are anxious to loan it to you in their paper promises, but you must engage to pay it back in gold. You can't object, as your sanction is necessary to their existence, and the national treasury sets them the example by locking up such vast amounts of gold, silver and greenbacks representing money in the treasury. Why not coin all the gold and silver as fast as it comes from the mines and pay the soldiers, and thus put it in circulation?

The Next Congress.

The chances of Democratic control of the next House of Representatives seems to be growing as the date for the Congressional elections draw near. Like the campaign of two years ago, to the middle West is to be left the final decision. The Democrats are claiming things in that section with much more confidence than the Republicans, but perhaps there it yet a chance for Hanna's barrel to get in its work. It appears to be conceded by Republicans that their only chance is through the use of a great corruption fund. What a travesty upon popular government.—Atlanta Constitution.

Possible Renewal of the War.

Vexatious delays indicate that Spain is not prepared to yield all that is demanded of her, and that she is playing for delay, in the vain hope that something may happen, such as a general upheaval, or the assistance of another power, which might save to her some of her dependencies. The reluctance to abandon Cuba is particularly marked, and the fact that there are still fully 150,000 Spanish troops in that island makes it barely possible that further resistance there might be tried. While hoping for the best, it would be a mistake for the administration not to prepare for the worst.—New Orleans Picayune.

Day of Reckoning Coming.

Among other things that the present administration will have to stand inquiry into sooner or later is the cause of the recent Indian outbreak in Minnesota. We pretty well know the cause of the outbreak of corruption in the War Department. Perhaps there may have been some "sound business methods" in the Interior Department that would repay investigation. Hitherto peaceable Chippewa Indians would not be liable to insurrection without some reason that it behooves the country to know about. What a winter of scandal and wrecked reputations we are moving toward!—Washington Times.

Why Restricted Free Trade?

At a banquet recently given by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, resolutions were adopted in which the national government is asked to establish free trade between this country and Cuba, the Philippine islands and Porto Rico. It is not explained why the Illinois Manufacturers' Association drew the line there. Surely if free trade is a good thing it should not be confined to a few islands, where our trade relations can at best be but small.—Denver Post.

Effect on Labor of Restoring Silver.

Let us have all the silver we can possibly get converted into money. It will not lie idle. It will be used to buy lands, buy labor, build houses, build factories, build railroads, and carry on business. It will be that much new blood and will give us an activity and a prosperity better than we have yet seen. The laborer will be the first to feel its benefits, for there will be an immediate demand for his services—not only will all be employed, but wages will go up.

Infamy in the Legislature.

There has never been a more open and notorious sale of privileges to monopolies and corporations in any State than was exhibited by the Legislature of Illinois in the passage of the Allen-Humphreys-Yerkes bill. And John Riley Tanner approved of this shameless prostitution by placing the sign manual of his office upon the back of these infamous violations of a people's trust.—St. Louis Republic.

Arrest of Quay.

The lapse of a man in high station, whom everybody has considered above suspicion, is deplorable, and sometimes tragic; but it is inevitable that such individual lapses shall occasionally occur, and they are not a disgrace to the community. Quay, arraigned on a criminal charge, even though it is not proved, shows Pennsylvania up to the world in an infinitely worse light than would the actual conviction of a man in whom the people had been deceived. The people of Pennsylvania have not been deceived in Quay. They have known perfectly all along what kind of a man he was.—Baltimore News.

Too Much Leniency Shown.

We have yet to hear that responsibility for the horrors of the transport-ships has been fixed upon anybody, yet to hear of any cashiering of officers whose gross neglect of the rudiments of sanitation made fever epidemics in the camps inevitable, yet to hear that contractors have been heavily mulcted for failure to furnish supplies of the stipulated quality and quantity at the places and times agreed upon. But news has come not infrequently of men in the ranks shot dead for breaches of discipline. The severity may have been justifiable. How about the leniency?—New York Times.

Alger Making War on Miles.

It is said that Alger loses no opportunity to snub Gen. Miles, going so far as to not consult the latter in the campaign against the Pillager Indians at Bear Lake. This is no surprise after the petty malice exhibited by the publication of a misrepresentative paragraph from a private letter as a means of getting even with a courageous critic of the War Department.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Tariff and the Woolen Industry.

The Republican papers are trying hard to trace the stagnation in the woolen industry to the Wilson tariff. Strange that the mills should have done a prosperous business while that tariff was in force and that suspensions and assignments should have begun just as the Republican orators were beginning to call attention to the splendid fruits of Dingleyism.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

There Are Others.

The foreign military critics who were with our army and navy in Cuba testify to the splendid valor of the American soldier and sailor, but they think poorly of the generalship of the campaign or of the commissary, medical and transportation service. They haven't got any of the advantage of us, however, in entertaining these opinions.—Houston Post.

Foxy from Experience.

The wisdom of the Postoffice Department in refusing to publish the report of the investigation of the sale of postoffices in Pennsylvania will be acknowledged by all the old campaigners of the party. Investigations just before an election are sometimes depressing.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

No Star Chamber for Lo.

The fact that the Minnesota Indians insist that when they go into council with the white men the correspondents of the newspapers be present to hear their side of the story shows there has been some development of the "untutored mind."—Syracuse Standard.

Step Up and Settle.

After surveying the field Mark Hanna concludes that it will cost $2,000,000 to save the next House of Congress to the Republican party. Order out the fat fryers!—Boston Globe.

Lay the Blame on Tanner.

Governor Tanner of Illinois continues to shed disgrace on his high office.—Boston Herald.

The Govetnor's position as to imported miners may wear well in politics, but it will hardly be acceptable in riots.—Peoria Journal.

To him alone is due primarily all the blame for a tragedy which every true friend of labor will sincerely deplore.—New York Mail and Express.

If Tanner had responded to the appeal of the Sheriff he would probably have prevented the bloodshed and forced all concerned to remain within their rights as citizens.—Sioux City (Iowa) Tribune.

The tragedy at Virden, Ill., might have been prevented had not Governor Tanner tried to steer a middle course between the dictates of the law and the desire for popularity.—Boston Transcript.

It was his duty to preserve the peace and let legislatures and courts attend to the rights and wrongs of the question. He chose the demagogue's part, and the results place him in no creditable light.—Minneapolis Times.

The conclusion is unavoidable that if Governor Tanner had anticipated the trouble at Virden by supplying an adequate force for the protection of all life and property threatened this clash would not have occurred.—Buffalo Express.

As long as it is possible to place a John R. Tanner in the Governor's chair of a great State the domestic problems of this nation are not solved, and there is no civic patriotism and philanthropy to spare in uplifting distant barbarians.—Detroit Free Press.

The events which led to this bloody affair lay the guilt for these deaths at the Governor's door. If there is no law in the State of Illinois to reach this arch-criminal and wholesale murderer, then God help the State of Illinois!—New York Press.

Had he acted promptly and effectively at the outset of the trouble he might have held down both company and strikers with a firm hand and have at all events preserved the peace at Virden, which was his primary duty.—Washington Star.

If a party of disorderly miners were preparing to prevent these laborers from working, it was the duty of the State's executive to take all precautions against riot and anarchy. Governor Tanner chose to ignore his duty.—Indianapolis News.

Governor Tanner of Illinois has established a unique method in dealing with riots. He waits until the riot has taken place and a number of men have been killed, then he makes a move to send troops to disarm both sides and restore peace.—Kansas City Star.

The part taken by the Governor of the State is not pleasant to contemplate for those who like to think that the Executive derives his authority solely from the law, and has no right to inject into it his personal prejudices or ambitions.—New York Times.

WHICH OF THESE HANDS HAVE YOU?

No. 1. Uncouth Hand—The uncouth, boorish or common hand, is heavy, with very short fingers, which look as though they had a swelling at the ends. The hand has no symmetry. The thumb is very short and the general appearance of the hand is repulsive and obnoxious.

No. 2. Ideal Hand—The ideal hand has straight fingers that run to a point, with pink nails. The thumb has a strong root or base, a very symmetrical form and runs to a decided point. The person with such a hand is self-sacrificing in his nature and would die for an ideal or principle. This hand is that of poets, great reformers and religious enthusiasts.

No. 3. Artistic Hand—The artistic hand has a small and narrow shape. It is fleshy, with short fingers and the muscles are hardly visible. The finger joints are perfectly smooth and fingers tapering. The hand has an effeminate appearance and is that of artists, sculptors and people of remarkably refined tastes.

No. 4. Scientific Hand—The scientific or mathematical hand has the following outlines and characters: The hand should show on the upper surface a flat and broad construction and should have rather long fingers, inclined to be straight, knotty in the joints and round at the point. The thumb has a very strong and determined base, and while being rather long is also rounded at the end.

No. 5. Self-confessed Murderer's Hand—The hand shown in the illustration is that of a well-known murderess, who confessed she had stabbed her husband through love of another man. It is noticeable that the upper part of the hand is extremely short and angular. The index finger is bent in such a shape that it almost overlaps the middle finger. The chief point in connection with this hand is the extreme length of the middle finger. The finger nails are very short and thin, which characteristic indicates weakness, treachery and trickery.

No. 6. Kleptical Hands—The kleptical hand has these characteristics: The thumb is somewhat elongated and varies but slightly in its shape from the root to the tip. The knuckles of the hand are somewhat coarse and the extreme ends of the fingers have an inward inclination. The nails are usually short and thin.

No. 7. Ordinary Criminal—The ordinary criminal's hand has a peculiarly rough shape, the thumb being very plump and short, while the fingers are uneven and heavy. The small finger is turned inward and bluntness is the hand's chief characteristic.

OOM PAUL AT HOME.

Description of an Interview Held with Him by an American Traveler.

Charles Kilpatrick, the one-legged trick cyclist, interestingly describes an interview he had with Ooom Paul, the great President of the Boer republic, Africa.

"President Krueger," he says, "can speak English quite as well as Dutch, but declined to speak to me in my own language, and a Boer named Waldeck acted as our interpreter. After introductions the President said to the interpreter in Dutch: 'Ask him how he lost his leg.' 'Run over by a train,' I replied, and this was translated. 'Tell him he is marvelously expert for a one-legged man,' said Krüger. 'Tell him,' said I, 'that he is very kind to say so.' 'Tell him,' said Kruger, 'that I am always happy to meet an American—one of his great race.' 'Tell him,' said I to the buffer on the fender, or whatever you want to call him, 'that we had two men in America that were greater than any three men that ever set foot on earth.' 'Ask him,' said Kruger, 'who they are.' 'George Washington,' said I, 'and Abraham Lincoln.'

"The old man glared at the interpreter with an awful face. He did not look at me at all, but, to tell you the truth, I was terribly awed. Now, Kruger speaks in a tone that would do considerable credit to a large-sized megaphone. But in making his reply to my last shot he doubled the volume of his voice and almost put me to flight. 'Tell the young man,' roared Oom Paul, 'that I know more about the history of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln than he does!' I thought I had gone far enough after that, and I then made some remarks I thought complimentary to the Boers, and the President made a sign that the interview was over. He was sitting on his porch, and he arose and went within. Waldeck and I turned to leave, but as we were going Mr. Kruger came back and gave Waldeck an English sovereign with instructions to have it properly engraved and presented to me as a gift from the President of the Transvaal. I thoroughly appreciated the gift, and the story was told about town. The next day an English newspaper edited by an Englishman and an Irishman came out with an editorial about the matter, in which it was stated that this was the first time Paul Kruger was ever known to give away anything."

PAUL KRUGER.

A NEGLECTED TOMB.

Last Resting Place of Zachary Taylor, Soldier and President.

Of all the Presidents of the United States the grave of none is more neglected than that of the hero of Palo Alto, Zachary Taylor. Though only a few miles from Louisville, the place is seldom visited, though a handsome monument marks the place where the remains lie. The place is unkempt and fast going to ruin. It is overrun with weeds. One can barely find the path which leads from the broken stone wall to the tomb, while ivy and long grass have run riot, making walking difficult.

The father of Zachary Taylor was a soldier of the revolution, and came to Kentucky when Zachary was a mere lad. He settled on a farm, which is yet the Taylor homestead, though now occupied by a family in no manner related. The Taylor burying ground occupies one corner of the lot.

The fact that Zachary Taylor, when a lad of 23, left the farm to enter the army as first lieutenant of the Seventh Infantry and remained away from his home until elected to the Presidency, dying soon afterward, may account for the little interest taken in his memory in Louisville. Kentucky saw but little of the soldier, and knowing him little in life worships him less in death.

The monument to Zachary Taylor, which stands in a wild confusion of vegetable growth, is forty-five feet high and is surmounted by a life-sized statue in marble. One inscription reads, "I have endeavored to do my duty. I am ready to die. My only regret is for the friends I leave behind me."

There are other inscriptions dealing with the events in which President Taylor participated. Some distance from the monument is the tomb in which the President lies buried. It is of brick and faces the rising sun. Spiders have worked a myriad of cobwebs around the door, the corners being hidden. Ivy is banked on either side and extends all over the tomb and for fifty feet in each direction. The grass is more than knee high. On a slab of marble above the door is the simple inscription, "Z. Taylor. Born November 24, 1784. Died July 9, 1850."

Vaccination.

In the German army only six or seven cases of small-pox occur annually, and there can be little doubt that this almost complete immunity from a disease which formerly decimated continental armies is due to the thorough way in which vaccination is carried out. All recruits are revaccinated, and the regulations prescribe that there shall be at least ten punctures in each arm. A further confirmation of this view may be found in the fact that the one soldier who died from small-pox in the period from 1874 to 1887 was a man who was twice unsuccessfully revaccinated when recruited. There can be no doubt that other diseases are sometimes communicated through the medium of the vaccine lymph, but the unprejudiced observer will probably arrive at the conclusion that these form but a very insignificant fraction of the number of small-pox cases which would ensue from the abolition of vaccination. There are, no doubt, many objections to either human or animal lymph, and we look forward to the time when the cultivation of vaccine virus shall take place in a sterilized medium which can transmit no other disease.

How to Avoid Coughing.

A physician who is connected with an institution in which there are many children says: "There is nothing more irritable to a cough than coughing. For some time I had been so fully assured of this that I determined for one minute at least to lessen the number of coughs heard in a certain ward in a hospital of the institution. By the promise of rewards and punishments I succeeded in inducing them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough, and in a little while I was myself surprised to see how some of the children entirely recovered from the disease.

"Constant coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body; so long as it is done the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from this process. The nitrogen which is thus refined acts as an anodyne to the mucous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal. At the same time a suitable medicine will aid nature in her efforts to recuperate."—New York Examiner.

A Natural Mud Pie Foundry.

Uncle Sam has a freak artesian well on the Brule Indian agency that is attracting widespread attention, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. It threw a six-inch stream of water when it was first opened, and, for several years thereafter, but for about eight months it has been engaged in making mud pies. Since that time an endless chain of blue clay six inches in diameter has been forced up through the pipe, rising slowly above the casing to a height of ten feet, and then toppling over on the ground. The eruption continues night and day, and the amount of clay so far forced up from the bowels of the earth has made it necessary for the Government to employ a man to care for the premises. Very little water comes up with the clay. A noticeable peculiarity of this well is that the clay rises more rapidly previous to the advent of windy weather, resuming its steady, even grind again on the return of pleasant weather.

WORLD'S ONLY WOMAN JOCKEY

Mrs. Bagwill of Nevada, Rides Just Like a Man.

Carson City, Nev., is famous for its silver mines and for having been the scene of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. Now its citizens are laying claims for further fame, for it is a fact that that city is the home and birthplace of the only woman jockey in the world. The name of this new rival of Sloane and Maher, and she, by the way, is young and pretty, is Mrs. W. A. Bagwill. She has been riding professionally for about a year and rode her last race at Reno, Nev., on Sept. 19. Of the three horses first under the wire the last of the trio was ridden by Mrs. Bagwill, who, sitting astride, plied whip and spur in masterly style, and though her animal was beaten clearly outrode her competitors.

Her experience as a jockey has not been very extensive as yet, she having ridden in five races only; but in proportion to her attempt Mrs. Bagwill's success has been remarkable. Of the five races in which she has ridden twice has her horse come in a winner, and never has she ridden "outside" of the money.

Mrs. Bagwill's first attempt was at Carson City about one year ago. Then she rode third to Coates, sometimes known as "Pizen," and Feathergill. She was greatly elated with this result, even though she did not win, and determined to continue her efforts until she might take rank with the top-notchers in the business.

She is 24 years of age and has been married for five years. She is of medium stature, petite in figure, but well proportioned and weighs 101 pounds. She is very modest, demure and unassuming. When on the street she dresses in plain black, and from her appearance none would imagine that she ever assumed the part of a jockey.

MRS. W. H. BAGWILL.

In the saddle, when ready for a race, Mrs. Bagwill wears bifurcated skirts, not so wide or loose as to catch too much wind and thereby impede the progress of her horse, but fitting neatly. She rides astride, well forward over the horse's foreshoulders, and with whip, spurs and steady hand pilots her mount like a veteran.

The Price.

Gen. Lefebre was one of Napoleon's generals who rose from the ranks, and was finally made a marshal and Duke of Dantzig. After this elevation he met an old acquaintance, who congratulated him in a rather sneering tone.

"Yes," said Lefebre, readily, "I am Duke of Dantzig and also a marshal, while you are a poor clerk; but if you wish to change places with me I'll accept the bargain at cost price. Do you know how many shots I've been exposed to before I won my epaulettes? Twenty thousand; that's all. I've heard more cannon rear than there are stitches in my uniform. I will place you in the courtyard of my hotel and expose you to the chances of 20,000 shot and shell at a hundred paces. If you escape alive you shall have my sabre, plume, scarf and orders; all my honors shall be yours when you have bought them as I bought them." The clerk begged to be excused.

Abstemiousness at Night.

A writer in Italia Termale declares it as his opinion that many persons who remain thin and weakly, in spite of all precautions in regard to diet, etc., owe the fact largely to habitual abstemiousness at night. The digestive organs, he asserts, have no need for repose, provided, always, that the quantity of nourishment taken within the twenty-four hours does not go beyond the normal limit—the fact that the intervals between meals are short working no inconvenience, but, on the contrary, tending to the avoidance of feebleness, which is the natural result of an interval extended to too great a length. Further, according to this writer, feeble persons, those also who are lean and emaciated, and, above all, such as sufferers from insomnia, owe it to themselves not to retire without taking some nourishment into the stomach, such as simple bread and butter, a glass of milk, a few biscuits or crackers.

The trouble with the charity that begins at home is that it seldom gets any farther.

A girl seldom troubles herself to light the gas when an old flame calls.

Some Rare Birds.

We have many kinds of fowls described in the American Standard, but we have not exhausted the world's stock by any means. Here are two kinds which are remarkable for their grotesqueness. The Sultans are all fuss and feathers, and the military style of the cock's head-dress is amusing along with the air of importance put on by this bird. The golden Paduas have an unbalanced look, which throws doubts on their business abilities. Indeed we would put our faith on the Transylvania hen, whose attention seems to be given to worms and its favorite grub, rather than to any claim it may have to beauty. The Sultans are pure white;

the Paduas are laced or spangled with golden yellow and black and white, and the Transylvania have bare red-skinned necks and brown plumage on the body.

Keeping Milk Too Cold.

A representative of a Maine creamery has been testing the skim milk of its patrons, and taking the temperature of the tank in which the deep cans were placed for cooling and raising the cream. Very much to his surprise, he found that many of them keep their milk too cool. He found the skim milk most free from butter fat when the temperature was nearest to 45 degrees. At 36 degrees there was from one to two-tenths of 1 per cent. more of butter fat in the skim milk than when it was kept at 45 degrees, or near that point.

Novel Self-Closing Gate.

An invention has recently been patented by Dr. Peyton B. Green, of Wytheville, Va., in which a simple and ingenious device is provided for closing a gate automatically.

Referring to the accompanying engraving, it will be observed that, on the top bar of the gate, a roller is journaled which is engaged by an inclined rod fulcrumed at its lower end on a fixed support set at a proper distance from the hinge-post. A weight is held on the rod and can be fastened in any desired position by means of a set screw. To prevent the rod from leaving the roller when opening and closing the gate, the bracket in which the roller is journaled is provided with a loop.

When the gate is swung open the free end of the rod travels over the friction roller and assumes nearly a vertical position. As soon as the gate is released, the weight of the rod pressing against the roller closes the gate. By changing the position of the weight, the gate can be closed with more or less force.

Seed Corn.

Select the seed corn while the stalks are standing in the field. Much can be done by selection. Over 160 bushels of corn were raised on an acre in Nelson County, Va., by a former member of Congress by selection of seed. Some stalks contained from five to seven ears,, and grew to a height of fourteen feet. This may appear remarkable, and may not be repeated, but it shows that in order to secure the largest yields the seed corn must be selected every year until the variety is made better.

Turnips Growing After Frost.

The turnip crop is so hardy that light frosts not only do not kill the leaves, but possibly by destroying weeds that have before interfered with their growth, they seem often to make the turnips grow faster. The roots sometimes double in size after an early frost followed by warm, moist weather. There is also an improvement in the quality of turnips after freezing weather, and it is usually a mistake to harvest the crop until the surface soil in the field has once been frozen.

Fast Husking.

Whether a man shall all his life be a fast or slow husker depends very much on how he begins. If he is always slow and easy, and does not try to husk fast, he will get this habit so fixed that try as he may he will not get rid of it. Yet the husker must avoid all nervousness. That may make him seem to work fast, but he will make many false motions, and the work will go on much slower than it looks. The fastest huskers say the secret of this work is to have strong hands, thumbs and fingers, and to make every motion tell.

Weaning the Colt.

A spring colt ought to be weaned before the pastures have been destroyed by frost. At the same time it should be used to taking a little grain twice a day while it is still running at pasture. The oat is, of course, the best grain for colts, as it is also for the horse. It does not take much oats or meal to keep a young colt thriftily growing during its first winter. If oats and corn are ground together, without the cob, and some wheat bran is added, it will, in most cases, make a better ration fed with cut hay than could be got from feeding oats alone. No corn and cob meal should be fed to young colts, or, in fact, to any young animal. The cob is extremely hard to digest, and at least for all young stock has not enough nutrition to compensate for the danger from using it.

Salt the Manure Heap.

Salt in the manure heaps will prove beneficial. As kainit contains a large proportion of salt and also a percentage of crude sulphate of potash, it may be mixed with the manure by turning the heap over, care being taken that all portions of the manure be sprinkled with the kainit. It prevents loss of ammonia to a certain extent, and adds potash to the manure, while salt attracts moisture and serves as an aid to prevent "fire-fanging" of the manure. Whenever manure is turned over the coarse materials should be placed in the center in order that they may be more quickly decomposed.

Grape Vines in Fence Corners.

A great many fences are of no use as barriers, because they surround lots that are never pastured. It was on one such that years ago we saw a farmer trying to train a grape vine and make a trellis of it. Of course all the work of cultivating the vine which was planted in the corner of an old worm fence had to be done by hand with spade and hoe. But the experiment succeeded until the fence rotted under the mass of vines which covered it. Then the farmer was obliged to build a trellis for his vine, which he might better have done at first.—Exchange.

Corn Meal vs. Shorts for Feeding Pigs

Experiments at the Indiana station to determine the comparative value of pure corn meal and a ration consisting of equal parts of corn meal and shorts showed that there was practically no difference in the two foods when used for fattening pork. The corn meal used cost 65 cents per 100 pounds and the shorts 70 cents.

Good Guernsey Cow.

Princess May XII., imported 4-year-old Guernsey cow, owned by J. N. Greenshields, Danville, Que., won first prize at the New England State Fair, 1898, and first at the Industrial Fair, 1898.

Contaminated Milk.

When milk has become contaminated from outside influences we can usually determine the cause readily, but we are not always able to so easily determine causes when the trouble has been with the source of supply—the cow herself. We are conquering this difficulty, however. When a cow is diseased the milk is the first thing to become affected, and an expert can determine by microscopical examination the approach of garget or milk fever a week before there is any outward sign.—Exchange.

Cutworm Remedy.

Cutworms can not be exterminated in one season. An excellent plan is to plow the land very early in the spring about 6 inches or more deep, leaving the land unharrowed (rough), so as to permit the frost to enter. The cutworm can endure frost, but if brought to the surface succumbs to dampness and alternate freezing and thawing of the land. Land so treated for two or three years, and kept in cultivation, will be cleared of them.—Pennsylvania Record.

Care of Bees.

Feed only the best of granulated sugar for winter provisions. Poor feed is unhealthy and will result in loss.

Feed sparingly at first in order that the queen may occupy the center combs with brood, and then increase the quantity.

A worker bee is hatched in twenty-one days from the time the egg is laid. Queens in sixteen, and drones in twenty-four days.

It is a good plan at this time to requeen every colony that has in any way a defective queen.

Arrangements must be made so that the bees can pass from one comb to another without going around in order to secure food in winter.

The best plan to make strong colonies is by good feeding. The next best plan is to unite all weak colonies in good season.

The objections to uniting swarms during the day is that it tends to produce robbing and causes the bees united to war among themselves.

In any colony that during the month of September is found queenless, a laying queen should be introduced, as it is not safe to depend upon their rearing one from the brood given them.

THE HOUSEHOLD

A Good Soap for the Hands.

An almond soap is the best to use for the hands. Always select a white soap, as colors are sometimes dangerous. Any one can make almond soap by melting a piece of white curd soap and adding the same quantity of powdered almonds to it. Then add a teaspoonful of bismuth and mix the whole well together. This makes a soap and cosmetic all in one. Another excellent soap for the hands may be made by melting a piece of white curd soap, adding the same quantity of glycerin. Mix well together, adding a small quantity of powdered almonds, honey and almond oil.

ranged in the manner shown to give proper support to the seat, so that it will not break or come apart. A little cushion gives a comfortable seat, while the back may be upholstered if one desires to add the finishing touches.

Dinner Table Lights.

A woman who has carefully studied the effects of light at her dinners says that unshaded candles in high-old-fashioned candelabra, that branch out in many directions, are absolutely the perfection of light for a table, and are, too, a most becoming light to the faces of the guests gathered around it. The candelabra should be tall enough to carry the lights fairly high. The pretty candle shades so much in use are decorative to the furnishings of the table, but they prevent the most effective and becoming light.

Chelsea Sauce.

Twenty-four large, ripe tomatoes, eight good-sized white onions, six pods red pepper, three pints very best vinegar, eight tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, one-half tea cup salt, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one of allspice, one of nutmeg and one of cloves. Peel the tomatoes and chop up the onions. Boil all together well. Seal up while hot. Many think this sauce superior to tomato catsup. You can strain this or not. I never strain it. It is very refreshing in soups.

Frozen Peaches.

Mash and make very sweet the peaches. Make a rich custard; fill old teacups half full of peaches, then fill up with custard. When they have molded by being on the ice to stiffen, remove from the cups; if too hard, wrap a warm cloth around the outside, turn the peach end to the fruit saucer, then thinly ice the top of the custard with currant or strawberry jelly or jam. Place on ice again until ready for use.

Canning Tomatoes.

Peel the tomatoes, but do not scald. Cut out the cores. Cook in a granite dish in their own juice. Salt them when you put them on to cook, and cook perfectly done; then put them in tin cans and put the cans on the stove. Cover with the lids, but do not seal until they come to a boil. This expels the air. Take off lid, dry the grooves around the top, cover quickly, seal and keep in a cool dark place.

An Old-Time Dish.

Put slices of bread, the crusts and broken pieces, into a hot oven until they are well browned, then break them and put into a saucepan with enough boiling milk, well seasoned with salt and butter, to cover the bread. Simmer slowly for an hour or two, adding milk as it boils away, or is absorbed by the bread. Serve hot, and you will have a wholesome and palatable dish.

Carrot Salad.

Wash and scrape tender, rich-colored carrots; throw them into fast-boiling water, and boil until soft; cut them into very thin slices; put them into a glass bowl and sprinkle with sifted loaf sugar; add the juice of a large lemon and a wineglassful of olive oil; garnish the dish with very thin slices of lemon and any kind of green salad leaves.

Creamed Eggs.

Break six eggs in a graniteware saucepan, add a half cup of cream and a piece of butter. Stir while cooking. When cooked to a jelly serve hot with buttered toast. Care must be taken not to let them scorch. Asbestos plates will avoid this danger.

A Delicate Sandwich.

Mince either cold chicken or veal very fine, mixing celery in with it; when well minced and mixed, cut thin slices of bread, pare off the crust and butter; place the mixture between the buttered slices, only using salt as seasoning.

Home Cleaning.

Yellow oil stains left by the sewing machine will easily be removed in the wash if they are first rubbed over with a little liquid ammonia.

To whiten the kitchen table, spread it all over with a thin paste made of chloride of lime and hot water; leave on all night and in the morning wash off.

A teaspoonful of ammonia to a cupful of water will clean gold or silver jewelry. A few drops on the under side of a diamond will clean it immediately, making it very brilliant.

To remove iron rust from marble, use a solution of one part of nitric acid in twenty-five parts of water. Apply carefully to the spots only, then rinse with water and ammonia.

To clean a sponge, to a pint of hot water add a pennyworth of salts of lemon. In this steep the sponge till clean. It will be ready for use after having been rinsed in clear wate

Most Curious of Plants.

Perhaps the most curious fad pursued by the wealthy land owners of England is the training of various vines and shrubs to represent human figures and pieces of household furniture, like chairs and tables. In one case a large brush had been pruned and trained until it assumed the shape of a round table laden with spirit decanters and wine glasses, perfect in every detail. A famous group of shrub people are the Siamese twins and the Princess of Wales. Thousands of people have gone to the estate where these unique shrubs are planted and paid an admission to see them at close range.

None to Send.

The steamer rolled and pitched in the waves.

"Deah boy," groaned Cholly, at the end of his first hour on shipboard, "promise me you will send my remains home to my people!"

A second hour passed.

"Deah boys" feebly moaned Cholly, "you needn't send my remains home. There won't be any."—Hamilton Times.

STORIES OF RELIEF.

Two Letters to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. John Williams, Englishtown, N. J., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I cannot begin to tell you how I suffered before taking your remedies. I was so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without falling. I had womb trouble and such a bearing-down feeling; also suffered with my back and limbs, pain in womb, inflammation of the bladder, piles and indigestion. Before I had taken one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great deal better, and after taking two and one-half bottles and half a box of your Liver Pills I was cured. If more would take your medicine they would not have to suffer so much."

Mrs. Joseph Peterson, 513 East St., Warren, Pa., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

"I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me."

Very Different.

"Didn't you tell me that new gown of yours cost $40?"

"No, Robert; I told you it cost $39.98."—Detroit Free Press.

Lucky Runaway.

Mrs. Samuel Stafford had what might be called a lucky runaway this morning. We call it lucky because she was not seriously hurt. She had driven to town with a covered buggy to deliver some geese to A. P. Green, the dealer at the south end. As she drove up near the Wabash depot, to wait for Mr. Green, an engine was doing some switching and the puffing frightened her horse, and it started to run. Not being able to control it the horse ran among a lot of logs lying near, and she was thrown out. Some men caught the horse, but it was found the top had been torn clear off the buggy, though not much injured otherwise. Mrs. Stafford escaped without serious injury except some bruises, and having got the buggy righted up, drove home all right. But running as they did, among those logs, it is a wonder she was not seriously hurt.

FINGER MASHED

Ed. Chase, one of the Chase Construction Co. men, got a finger mashed yesterday. He was helping the men to store away some of their material in a barn, and having a piece of plank or timber dropped on his hand in a way as to crush the end of the second finger on the right hand. He came up town and had Dr. Baxter remove a portion of the crushed point of the finger, but he will have a pretty sore hand for a time.

Fill Orders for Sweden.

As we have often said, "give our people an even chance" and they don't need a "protective tariff" to enable them to compete with any people on earth. We see by the following item in the Goshen Times, that the Ariel Bicycle Co. of that city are sending wheels to Sweden. It says:

"Recently the Ariel Company received an order for 150 wheels from its agent in Stockholm, Sweden. It is highly amusing to see all the equipment which the people of continental Europe demand for their wheels. All the bicycles in this order are equipped with brakes and front and rear mud guards. Ladies' wheels are usually equipped with a rear guard, but it has been years since any one saw a man's wheel in this country carrying a mud guard. Our cousins across the water are slow. They would probably hate to trust the strength of the light racing wheels which run over the roads here.

All the wheels in this order will carry name plates, having the words "American Ariel" in place of the word Ariel. All the wheels will carry Morgan & Wright tires. This order is a general clearing up for the company. All the '97 models of men's in the stock are required to fill the order, and it will be necessary to build about 15 additional men's wheels to finish the in voice. There are 50 ladies' wheels included in the shipment. The stock on hand now is very limited, and the Ariel Co. starts on the new year's business with very few old timers on hand. The year's business promises well.

A CLEVER TRICK

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can try it who has Lame Back and Weak Kidneys, Malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to Liver and Kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures Constipation, Headache, Fainting Spells, Sleeplessness and Melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cent bottle at H. B. McCord's Drugstore. 3

GOOD IDEA.

Missouri Volunteer soldiers have a soft snap in the matter of pay. There is an old state law that says that when state militia are called into the service of the United States, that the state itself must pay them three-fourths as much per month as the general government does. Thus if the general government pays them $16 a month, the state must add $12 a month, making a total of $26 a month. This will give to each private sent out by Missouri, $70 for the time so far, in addition to what Uncle Sam gives them. It will be a nice thing for the men just now.

FEED STORE.

Having bought the feed store of Francis Kosht, south of jail, our patrons will always find us with a good stock of hay, straw, corn, oats, chop, bran, flour, middlings, cornmeal, buckwheat flour, poultry food, stock food, potatoes, timothy and clover seed, etc., etc. Also pay highest market prices for hay and other farm products in our line. Where Daughters Dress Alike.

In Yucatan, Central America, sisters dress precisely alike, even to the tying of a bow, the turn of a button, or the flower in the hair. In the tropics large families are the rule, and any day you may see in that country girls in groups of from three to a baker's dozen who belong to the same family, as their clothes will show. It is thus easy to distinguish the members of a family anywhere, and not infrequently sisters are called by their favorite flower or color. In Anam men and women wear their hair in the same way and dress almost alike. Earrings and finger rings are worn by women only. Lapp men and women dress alike. The men and women of the Cree tribe of Indians dress alike, but can be distinguished by the ornamentation of their leggings, that of the men being vertical and that of the women horizontal. — Philadelphia Times.

Mortality in the French Army.

A recent number of Le Journal Official of Paris publishes a report of the minister of war to President Faure concerning the sanitary condition of the French army, maintained for a period of ten years, including 1897. After showing what means have been taken to preserve the health of the garrisons, as well as of the colonial troops, the report shows that for the year 1896 and 1897 there were less deaths in the French army than for any other twelve months in times of peace. The mortality, which was 10.55 for every 1,000 in 1875 fell in 1896 and 1897 to 4.56. Another important point in the report shows that the garrisons which cannot be supplied with natural, pure water have elaborate and adequate apparatus for distilling the liquid in infinite quantities. These apparatus are portable, and are easily taken with the troops on their maneuvers.

Missionary Claims Against Turkey.

Our government is again formally pressing upon Turkey the claims of American missionaries for property destroyed at Harpoot and elsewhere in Asia Minor during the anti-Armenian riots more than two years ago. Recently the Turkish government replied, disclaiming all responsibility for the riots, but our government has notified Turkey that this repudiation of responsibility cannot be accepted. The fact that Turkish soldiers in uniform took part in the riots strengthens the claim for redress.

War Echoes

Rumors of a battle between the American troops and those of the native insurgents in the Philippines are without foundation. But our cruisers are picking up all the rebel vessels that come near or that can be found, for it is certain they will be nothing but pirates. The situation, otherwise has not changed. It begin to look as if we would have to hold these islands for a time whether we wish to or not. It would not do to let the half savage tribes loose. So there is a feeling gaining ground there in favor of placing themselves under our protection. We are seeing that laws are enforced, and that persons and property are safe.

IN CUBA.

Good order prevails in all parts where we hold possession, and laws are carefully enforced. The health of troops and the country seems to be improving. Spanish soldiers have been given by their government, the privilege of being mustered out, instead of being taken home. At least 15,000 men have accepted this. Cuban insurgent soldiers are slowly going home to work, which reduces the Cuban army, and may in time wipe it out.

POTO RICO.

In Porto Rico, we are in full control. We keep in office, the local officers, such as mayors, justices and the like, but they are under our control. We are appointing postmasters and mail carriers and postal men generally, and will soon look after the schools. They seem to like our ways. Gen. Brooke is in chief command with Gen. Henry in chage of the south district and Gen. Fred Grant, the north.

After Many Days.

Good deeds are never lost no matter when, or where or how, or by whom, they were done. Readers of the COURIER will remember our report of the trial of Geo. H. Reed some time ago, and his sentence to the penitentiary. He was one of the inmates of the jail when visits were paid to them by a number of worthy people in Auburn, and prayer meetings were held, result in the conversion of several of the prisoners. Mr. Reed recently wrote home, and the letter found its way into the Kendallville Sun and we here re-produce it.

DEAR FRIEND:—I write to let you know that I am still alive and serving my Master. They can take my liberty, but not the glory and blessing of His love. I suppose that there are some people who are glad that I am gone and behind bars. Tell those people that I thank God that I was put there and that I thank them for their gladness. Please notify those that I owe that every cent shall be paid them, dollar for dollar, when I get my liberty and I will show them that G. H. Reed can be a man as well as a drunken sot. With the help of the Load it is wonderful what a man can do. Kendallville has a good many Christians as well as Auburd and they are working for that heavenly reward. Think of the souls that can be saved with a few kind words and a little kindness and the happiness they can give poor souls with the Lord's help. Auburn has a soul saving club, of which about twelve or fifteen members visited the jail, where I was saved and baptised. Blessing my enemies as well as my friends, I remain

Changes in London Posts.

London's postal department has decided to expend the sum of £200,000 on a scheme which makes provision for dealing more efficiently with the ever increasing postal work in the city and provides better accommodation for the telegraph and postoffice staffs. Three new buildings will be erected at once. The east block of the St. Martin le Grand buildings will be demolished and a new structure will be erected suited to modern requirements. This will involve an expenditure of £150,000. The department has also purchased business premises in many streets, which will be demolished and handsome buildings erected which are designed to accommodate 3,000 telegraph clerks. This will also give space for dining and cloak rooms for these men. A large postoffice will be built in the East Strand.

Good Bicycle Tires.

Bessie Rose, a Carthage (Mo.) girl, has a bicycle the tires of which have not been pumped up for over a year, though in constant use. She rode it through Italy, Austria, Switzerland, Greece, Sicily, England and France after its tires had been coated on the inside with a mucilaginous substance and then inflated. The tires are still as hard as they were when Miss Rose started on her trip.

STUBBORN COLDS

A stubborn cold is easily taken; it sticks to some people all winter and very often develops into bronchitis or consumption. You should cure a cold promptly by taking Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. This celebrated remedy is acknowledged to be most efficient and reliable for all affections of the throat and lungs. It cures a cold at once.

Public Statement From A Public Man

Hon. W. H. Ohley, Ex-Secretary of State of West Virginia, writes an open letter.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Mar. 9, 1898.

To whom it may concern:

"I most heartily recommend Pe-ru-na as of great benefit in cases of catarrh. It is especially beneficial wherever the mucous membranes are affected. As a tonic it certainly has no superior."

W. H. OHLEY, Ex-Secretary of State.

Hon. W. H. OHLEY.

Pe-ru-na has cured thousands of obstinate cases of catarrh, and is perhaps the only efficient remedy in existence for catarrhal diseases; but there are countless multitudes of people who are still struggling with catarrh and need help. To such as these the unqualified recommendation of Pe-ru-na by Ex-Secretary Ohley is directed. Pe-ru-na is scientific and purely vegetable. All druggists sell it.

A Chinese Declination.

China is the only country in the world where editors give a thoroughly satisfactory reason for the return of manuscript. Here is a sample letter, sent by a Peking editor to a would-be contributor to his journal:

"Illustrious brother of the sun and moon! Look upon thy slave who rolls at thy feet, who kisses the earth before thee and demands of thy charity permission to speak and live.

"We have read thy manuscript with delight. By the bones of our ancestors we swear that never have we encountered such a masterpiece. Should we print it his Majesty the Emperor would order us to take it as a criterion and never again to print anything which was not equal to it. As that would not be possible before ten thousand years, all trembling we return thy manuscript and beg of thee ten thousand pardons. See—my hand is at my feet and I am the slave of thy servant. THE EDITOR."

MILLIONS GIVEN AWAY

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on H. B. McCord Druggist, and get a trial bottle free. Regular size 50 cents and $1. Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded. 3

France Wants Our Coal.

Coal has reached an enormous price in France this summer because of the labor troubles in England. At retail it sells for 45 to 50 francs ($8.68 to $9.65) a ton, and people don't know where their winter supply is coming from. This news comes from our consul at La Rochelle, who reports that American coal would be acceptable there.

—Myra VanAuken returned to her work at Hope Hospital at Fort Wayne this morning.

—It is reliably reported that thirty-five only, turned out to hear Judge Taylor at Garrett the other evening.

—Arthur Sisson, of Battle Creek, Mich., has been here a few days a guest of his uncle, M. B. Masters, his mother being a sister of Mr. Masters.

—Mesdames Rose, Caldwell Matheny and Silver returned from Angola this morning, where they had been attending the meeting of the Eastern Stars.

—Geo. Newcomer, of Waterloo, was a caller today, and paid his COURIER ahead. He was in town to pay his taxes, and remembered the Old Reliable at the same time.

—There are some fine roses in town this fall. We noticed the other day, the lovely ones at the residence of G. W. Lackey at the north end. They are as pretty as the ones that bloomed in the spring.

—Bird Spitler went to Fort Wayne on the three o'clock train to act as best man at the Hamilton and Koehler wedding which is to take place at the St. John Lutheran church at 6 o'clock this evening.

—Mrs. Alvia Baker and Mrs. Fred Wilks, of Auburn, visited their parents Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Henly, last Wednesday. Mrs. Era Henly and son Earl, who had been visiting at Auburn, returned with them.—Hicksville News.

—Fort Wayne is working to get a beet sugar establishment provided farmers will engage to raise the beets. They must not forget that it takes a large capital to carry it on successfully, but if they have the capital there is a good profit.

—John Pepple and his wife were callers last evening. We had not seen Mrs. Pepple since the day she was married and went to Texas. We are pleased to see both looking so well and to find she is well suited with her home in the south to which they will soon return.

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—John A. Burbank of Richmond, Ind., had been in Europe for a time and had engaged passage in the ill-fated steamer, Mohegan. But he got in a hurry to come home and would not wait, but took passage on an earlier steamer. Now he is glad he did so. He would probably now be in the bottom of the sea.

—C. S. Shultz, was a caller today. He brings word that the splendid corn crop is being rapidly injured by the extreme wet weather we are having. The fodder is nearly ruined and the ears are rotting and moulding. We are very sorry to hear this, as we were all rejoicing over the biggest crop of corn ever raised in DeKalb county.

—The ladies of the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist church, will give a supper in the lecture room Friday evening, Oct. 21, from 5 to 7 p. m., mite 15cts. Come and help a worthy cause. All welcome. Bill of fare consists of the following: Roast pork, Boston baked beans, mashed potatoes, cold slaw, pickles, bread and butter, cranberry sauce, cake and coffee.

Friday's Daily.

—Mrs. Sam Fisher of Toledo, is a guest in the family of J. W. Smith.

—Mrs. Eli Cochran returned today from Bluffton where she been visiting friends.

—W. H. Bickel, of Fairfield, has thanks for favors today. He paid his taxes and the COURIER

—James Baxter and wife rejoice over the advent of a nine pound boy this morning, and congratulations are in order.

—Henry N. Shipe, of Hudson, was here today and advanced his subscription and that of Henry Stomm, for which both have thanks.

—Daniel Herrick democratic candidate for recorder, and Frank Seiler, for auditor, are here today. Also, Oscar Denison, republican candidate for clerk. It is a busy time now for candidates.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—We are sorry to hear many accounts that confirm the great losses now falling on our big corn crop One man yesterday speaking of it, says they found about a third of Mr. Shull's corn spoiled in the shock. In addition to the wet sour weather, it appears that no hard frost has yet struck this section to cure the fodder and dry up the juices of corn. It is said that a good frost is a great help to save corn crop.

—Hon. S. M. Ralston candidate for secretary of state on the democratic ticket, took dinner yesterday with the family of A. J. Ralston. Mr. Ralston took him to the 12-25 train on the B. & O., as he went to Albion where he had an appointment last evening. Mr. Ralston is a man of high character and attainments and makes a good impression wherever he goes. He addressed an audience of about 250 at Garrett Wednesday evening. Mr. Ralston is probably of the same original stock at the Ralstons here, although the exact relationship is not known. Each family traces its family back to the same part of Pennsylvania.

Saturday's Daily.

—For Fertilizers, see Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind. 31—tf

—Read the program of the Richland township S. S. institute.

—Mrs. Hattie Milard returned from her visit to Chicago today.

—Ask any druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for the year 1899.

—Will Snyder and wife and little boy, of Rockford, Ill., are here visiting S. C. Snyder.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Elson returned from a week's visit with relatives at Hicksville today.

—The man who discovers a sure cure for hog cholera will have a better thing than a claim in Klondyke.

—Mrs. Stella Hague came home from Kendallville last evening and will be the guest of her parents over Sunday.

—The area of the Hawaiian Islands is placed at 6,740 square miles, or in all of them, about one-fifth the size of Indiana.

—P. P. Lochner and wife of Jackson township went to Argos today noon, to visit his brother John and family over Sunday.

—In spite of bad weather, the great peace jubilee at Chicago has been a success. The crowds that went there, were enormous.

—The Battleships Oregon and Iowa have sailed for Manila. It is a long, hard, journey, but the Oregon has done it once and can again.

Kendallville was unable to hold a council meeting Monday night as so many of the city fathers were seeing the sights in Chicago.

Miss Myrtle Snyder, of Antwerp, Ohio, arrived today and will remain the greater part of the winter with her cousin, Mrs S. S. Potter.

—John Huston, of Jackson township, has typhoid fever and is quite sick, his wife and daughter, Ettie, also had the fever but are better at this writing.

—The Episcopalian church has made a new diocese in this state, and appointed a bishop. He will have his residence and headquarters at Michigan City.

—S. H. Barton and sister went through town today, going to make a visit with the family of John Williams, who now lives in the south part of Butler township.

—Miss Mary E. Essig was a welcome caller and advanced her subscription for another year. Miss Essig is one of our teachers and has been successful in her chosen calling.

—There is now talk of enlisting several thousand of the Cuban insurgent soldiers and giving them American officers, and make them useful in keeping order in the wilder parts of Cuba.

—Michigan fruit growers say a new disease has attacked the peach trees. It is called "little peaches," because it stops the growth of the fruit before it gets half the proper size. It is doing great damage.

—When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Edward Miser, the COURIER'S enterprising carrier boy for Waterloo, was here today and made us a brief business call. We are pleased to see the success with which he carries out his part of the work.

—We gladly place on our exchange list. "The Milford Mail." It is now in the hands of J. P. Prickett, so long the publisher of the Albion New Era. He is a born newspaper man and a gentleman as well, just as all newspaper men should be.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—There was quite a little surprise party gotten up on Rue Murray on South VanBuren-st last evening, it being his 16th birthday. About fifteen or twenty young friends were gathered there and passed an agreeable evening. Light refreshments were were served adding to the enjoyment of the occasion.

—Lagrange Standard:—The corn stalk is in a fair way for increased usefulness. After the ear, the husk and tops are removed for grain and fodder, the pith of the stalk by a new process is made into cellulose, for use in ship building, and now by a later invention, the shive of the stalk is made into a fine quality of paper. No part is lost.

—Geo. Escoll Sellers of Missionary Ridge near Chattanooga is the original of Twain's "Col. Mulberry Sellers" in the "Gilded Age." He appears to be an eccentric fellow. Recently he went before the court and adopted as his legal child and heir, a widow named Louisa Grimner who is seventy five years old. This is the oldest "child" on record, probably.

—We had a pleasant chat today with two of our Fairfield friends, E. D. Smith and I. S. Miller. Mr. Miller lives in the corner of the county, his land joining Steuben on the north and Noble on the west, and corners on Lagrange. But he is satisfied to live in DeKalb. By the way, both these gentlemen stand high on the books of the Old Reliable COURIER. Mr. Smith being paid to the middle of '99 and Mr. Miller six months farther on. This makes his receipt read, "January 1, 1900" We believe he is the first in the county to get that figure, though we are not sure. We think there is a name or two of our distant subscribers who have reached it.

Shafter and Miles.

It is said that Gen. Shafter refused to shake hands with his superior officer, Gen. Miles, on the public reviewing stand at Chicago, Wednesday. If this is so, it will not hurt Gen. Miles, but lower Shafter greatly, no matter what cause of coldness may exist. He should have remembered that he is not a Gen. Sherman, with a character and reputation that will stand such a strain. He should know, too, that he has had no such good cause as Sherman had. We shall be sorry to see Gen. Shafter tarnish his well earned laurels by such a foolish course.

Death Beat A Cycle.

[Lagrange Sentinel]

The saddest race that has been run on a bicycle against death was that in which young William Fitzhugh of Kendallville, rode from that city to Sturgis, Mich., over thirty-five miles, last Tuesday night, and reached his destination in two hours and ten minutes, only half a minute after his mother died. His wheel broke down en route, or he would have seen her alive. The night was very dark when Fitzhugh in response to a telegram saying that his mother was rapidly sinking, mounted his wheel as the quickest method of reaching her and sped away. On and on he rode, through the inky darkness and over roads of every description. When within two miles of Sturgis, however, his bicycle broke down and Fitzhugh hastened on afoot, reaching his destination at midnight, just 30 seconds after his mother had breathed her last. Grim death had won the race by half a minute.

FROM CAMP MOUNT.

Special to the Courier

CAMP MOUNT, IND., Oct, 28.—

The weather for the past few days has been very nice, only a little to frosty and brisk for out door pleasure. The boys are employing themselves in a great many ways to pass the time away. Forgoing parties leave camp every day morning and scour the adjoining neighborhood within a radius of five miles or more, and with surprising success, too. They never return without their blouses swelled out with apples, walnuts, pears or something of that nature. There is one feature about army life that is more noticeable and amusing than any other and that is men will resort to the simplest and most child like play for amusement. They hardly go so far as to play with dolls but every company has a goodly number of cats, puppy dogs, goats and other pets, which receive great attention and courtesy. We often hear old people wish to be "boys again," or say "boys will be boys." It is truthfully demonstrated in the army in both ways. You see men in the service advanced in life resorting to boy's frolic in great earnestness and enjoyment; also boys who will be boys under any and all circumstance. It is a consoling fact, too, that we men can partake of these enjoyments without being branded as being "simple." And in another sense it is recreating and very beneficial to be able to throw aside the conventional cloak of "severe" manhood and enter with all vim into these sports. In doing so we resurrect happy reminicences of days that are past, and live in the past at present. You are able after participating in such exercises to sleep with a clear conscience, and realize to the fullest extent the import of the poets words, "Only to be a Boy Again". If we had time and space all could mention a great many more pleasant and fascinating features connected with a soldier's life. To merely look at the life of a soldier, all seems severe and faultlessly austere but when we experience it we find a great many privileges that only the army promotes; also an undercurrent of enjoyments presented nowhere else. A few months of active, army life presents many valuable experiences that, if used, will add priceless additions towards a successful life.

Favorable conditions exist now for an early muster out. Securing of free transportation did not cause near the delay nor occupy half the time that was expected. Work was resumed within a few hours after orders were received to that effect. We owe this to the immediate action of the war department in granting transportation. We receive one day's pay and ration money for every twenty miles traveled going home. No individual transportation will be granted. We mean by this, that all transportation will be paid to where the companies originated. Members of Company K will receive about five dollars apiece. This make a very nice addition to their final payment, as rates of one cent per mile or half fare be secured.

Muster out rolls are fast nearing completion. Company K was exceptionally fortunate last June in receiving among her recruits Milo D. Husselman. "Hussie" as the boys call him—was immediately appointed company clerk by the captain, and with his experience and efficiency in clerical work, it places Company K in advantage of most all companies in the regiment, as men of clerical experience are very scarce. Milo joined the service as a common soldier, but has more than filled his mission as a soldier in this capacity. Notwithstanding all this, he has done his share of other duty as well, and can shoulder a gun and drill as acurate as any of us. We say "bravo" Milo, "good and faithful servant," you have earned every cent of your fifteen-sixty per month. From present outlook and no hinderances we will be mustered out by next Wednesday.

Thursday's Daily.

COURT

Court is running slowly, the Judge standing ready to do such work as is ready. On Monday there are some criminal cases to come up. One against Rinehart of Waterloo for keeping or allowing to be kept, a house of repute. Anna Shingler has been released on a writ of habeas corpus. M, I, Groh and Mary A, Groh have adopted Geo. C. Grunder, but the name Grunder is to be retained. Much work has been done on the estate docket and much more started on the way.

WILL GET THE BALLOTS

Clerk Long went to Indianapolis this forenoon to get the state ballots, which are now ready. Of course he will not bring them in his pocket, for they are very heavy, weighing several hundred pounds. They are carefully boxed up, delivered to him in a formal way, taking his receipt, and then are put into the care of the express companies who are bound to deliver them at Auburn and into Mr. Long's custody here. Later on, he delivers to the various inspectors, the state ballots for that precinct.

Wanted an Audience.

Judge Taylor, it appears has some enemies in Auburn as well as some friends. And so it would appear that when he found he was to speak here, he could not be certain of an audience, So, he had the Auburn committee set its type-writers to work, copying and sending out invitations to all the republican voters whose names they had. This meant several hundred. The following is the letter; and it shows what ingenious methods may be used to force out reluctant voters.

AUBURN, IND., Oct. 27th, 1898.

MR .....

Auburn, Indiana.

DEAR SIR:—I herewith hand you a copy of Judge Robert S. Taylor's personal invitation to attend his meeting Saturday evening, October 29th, at the Armory.

Bring your lady with you.

Yours respectfully,

M. E. GRISWOLD, Secretary.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Oct. 26, 1898.

DEAR SIR:—I beg to invite you to attend my meeting at the Armory in Auburn on Saturday evening, Oct. 29, at 7:30, when I shall try to speak of matters of interest to us all.

R. S. TAYLOR.

CYRUS JACKMAN

Cyrus Jackman candidate for prosecutor was here yesterday. He is making active canvass, and as far as we have heard, a frank and manly one. He goes to the voter, asks his support and tells him, that if elected, he will do the work of that office properly and as economically as possible. He will not get high priced help, in fact will get no help unless it is absolutely necessary, and that is not often the case. Those who have been calling Mr. Jackman a yound man, will be surprised to learn that he has had more practice than Mr. Rhoads had previous to the latter's election to the office of prosecutor. And he manages his cases for himself. There will not be $1800 paid out for help as has been done in the last two or three years. He is a DeKalb boy, and though now living at Angola, much of his personal interests are still in this county, where his people all live. A vote for Jackman means a vote for better management of that office.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undertermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drugstore. Regular size 0c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed. 4

Hobos With Money.

The North Manchester Journal says that tramps who camp on the outskirts of that town are frequently observed to flash large sums of money. One tough looking hobo, who did not appear to have encountered a square meal in the last year, showed a roll of thirteen $50 bills, while another one exhibited $520 in gold coin. There is a suspicion that they know more about recent bank robberies in this and adjoining states than they would care to relate to a petit jury.

Scrofula is Snake-Like in its subtlety. It lies hidden for years in the ambush of the blood, and when it strikes it voids its venom alike on strength and beauty, disfiguring the one and undermining the other.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

is a specific for scrofula in its worst and most malignant forms. Scrofula is a blood disease. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifying medicine. Mineral medicines only drive scrofula below the surface. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a vegetable remedy and it eradicates the disease. There is no remedy for scrofula equal to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"I was cured of a long-standing case of scrofula by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The disease first manifested itself when I was a child, by breaking out in red blotches all over my body. I was not free from the trouble until I took several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. That effected a permanent cure."—MRS. E. H. SNYDER, Lehighton, Pa.

What Do They Want?

The Butler Record and all the county republican papers have been furnished an article on county finances. The first part of it is made up of reports of money collected and paid out each year for several years. This we presume is correct, but means nothing as a part of the county officers have been republican. But at the close of each article is a false statement. It says, "The democrats and populists do not say they have agreed on a plan to pay off the debt." But the commissioners have caused several statements to be made lately on which th COURIER has freely commented, They distinctly say they reduced the county levy only 5 cents, because they wanted to raise money enough to pay off the rest of the debt next year, probably in May. At the close, their article says the county levy should be a third used to pay off the debt and then the next levy can be reduced one third. As this is exactly what the two populist members of the board have stated they would do, and what Mr. Shultz, the democratic candidate says he will do if elected, we can't see what our republican friends have to find fault about. We have not however, heard any expression yet from Mr. Bateman.

What Makes Delay.

One cause of the delay at Camp Mount is the decision of the government to pay the expenses of the boys to the home town where the company was first organized and started for war. That means that Co. K will have their fare paid to Auburn. This expense will be paid to the men in cash, at the rate of 4 cents a mile, which would be about $6 to get to Auburn. They are also allowed 30 cents for every 20 miles traveled. The origin of this is that 20 miles is estimated as a days march and they are allowed 30 cents a day for subsistence. This 30 cents for each 20 miles for Co. K will be about $4.50. This will give each man in the Co. about $10 over and above his regular pay. It is not now believed the boys will be home until election day, and possibly not then.

Cuban Iron Mines.

The iron mines at Baiquiri, Cuba, are being opened once more, the first load of ore having reached Baltimore this week. This iron is of a peculiar nature and much sought after in making steel by the rapid processes. The mines are owned by Americans and we have used them several years, till the Cuban troubles stopped the working. It was on the piers of this company, that we landed our first troops for the capture of Santiago. It is said that only 150 men are now at work, though over 500 were employed before the war. The trouble seems to be that the Cubans do not like to work as long as Uncle Sam gives them free rations, This should be stopped, at least as far able bodied men are concerned.

New Hunting Law.

Wisconsin has a new hunting law that has some queer features. In regard to killing deer, there are only twenty days, beginning Nov. 1, when it is lawful to kill them, And a hunter must take out a license that will identify him, and on which are two coupons, and when he ships a deer home, the express company tears off a coupon. And as there are but two coupons, he cannot ship a third deer. This limits him to killing two only. If such a law had been in force in Indiana fifty years ago, we might still have a few of these lovely animals left.

Served Her Right.

[Valparaiso Vidette]

While the preacher waited at the altar, the assembled company wondered and the bride fainted, Harry Keldare, of Midvale, refused to proceed with his marriage to Miss Genevieve Ransom, a popular society miss, simply because the lady would smoke cigarettes.

JOSEPH JONES DEAD

We have a copy of the Coffeyville, Kansas, Daily Journal containing an article on the death of Joseph Jones once a well known citizen of this county, his home being near Sedan.

Joseph A. Jones was born in Miami Co. Ohio, April 1, 1835, and died at his home at Coffeyville Kansas, Oct. 5, '98 At an early age, he moved with his people to Allen County, Ind., and there Nov. 23, 1854, he was married to Miss Philena E. DeLong, who survives him Soon after marriage, they moved to DeKalb county where they lived till 1880 when they went to Coffeyville. In July 1862, he joined Co. D 74th infantry, and was in the service nearly three years. Soon after his enlistment he was taken sick and was left on the roadside four miles south of Bowling Green to die, but being taken up and carefully nursed by confederates soon recovered and after a furlough transferred to the Mississppi Marine brigade in which he finished his service. He had been a member of the M. E. church since 1864. At the time of his death, he was chaplain of Post No. 153 G. A. R. Coffeyville, and has also been an active Sunday school and church officer. Many DeKalb county people will remember him.

HOW TO VOTE.

No stamp is used now, but a blue pencil instead. The Rooster, Eagle, etc. are not in a big square, but in a big circle. If you vote a straight ticket, take the pencil and make a cross in the big circle on the rooster or eagle, or whatever ticket you vote. If you do not vote a straight ticket, then you must not put a cross in the big circle, leave that alone and go down the list of names and put a cross in the little square at the left of each name you wish to vote for on any ticket. This is plain and easy. But if you doubt whether you understand it the best thing is to vote a straight ticket, for then you have to make only one cross and that is in the big circle. There are three separate ballots to be voted. The state ballot is red and generally the people vote that straight. The local ballot is white and this contains the congressman, judge, prosecutor and all the county ticket. Then there is the third ticket, which is the township, this is yellow and contains the candidates for justice and constable only. So, while you are in the booth, you vote each one, fold up each one as usual and come out and hand all three to the inspector and give the pencil back to the clerk.

YELLOW JAUNDCE CURED.

Suffering humanity should be supplied with every means possible for its relief. It is with pleasure we publish the following: "This is to certify that I was a terrible sufferer from Yellow Jaundice for over six months, and was treated by some of the best physicians in our city and all to no avail. Dr. Bell our druggist recommended Electric Bitters; and after taking two bottles, I was entirely cured. I now take great pleasure in recommending them to any person suffering from this terrible malady. I am gratefully yours, M. A. Hogarty, Lexington, Ky." Sold by H. B. McCord druggist.

Levi Brandaberry.

We copy from the Waterloo Press the following article to show more fully the sad circumstances surrounding the tragic death of Mr. Brandaberry.

Monday, Oct. 24, while Mr. Levi Brandaberry was feeding a corn shredder and husker at work on Dan Gingrich's farm, northeast of Waterloo, in Franklin Twp., his left hand was caught in the rollers, and before the machine lever could be reversed, the arm up to the elbow had been shredded, and the cords so fastened in the machine, that they had to be cut off, before he could be removed. Dr. Fanning and son of Butler were called, and the arm amputated within a few inches of the shoulder. The strain on the system was terrible. He is a man about sixty years old, quite a strong man, well circumstanced in life, and was joint owner with Lower Bros, of the machine. These machines have but recently come into use, and they are high geared and run with high rate of speed. The accident is most unfortunate, and casts a sorrow over the happy home.

Since writing the above, we learn that Mr. B., died at four o'clocd yesterday morning, and the funeral will probably occur tomorrow. It seems that the force of the machine carried him off his feet, and the bones of the arm stopped the machine. It was impossible to extricate him from his perilous condition, and an effort was made to take the machine apart, but it became necessary to cut off his arm, which Mr J. C. Hodges did with his pocket knife, the unfortunate man with remarkable grit, enduring the trying ordeal without anesthetics or stimulants. The remains were taken from Mr. Gingrich's home yesterday to the home of the deceased, and Undertaker Ettinger prepared the body for interment.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

New Fever Outbreak.

The impression that the yellow fever had been practically blotted out by the recent cold weather and frosts was dissipated by reports from the far South that the epidemic has taken a new lease of life in two localities. The weather again turned warm and to this is the new state of affairs chargeable. Four deaths have occurred in Natchez, Miss., in the past few days, being those of prominent citizens, and new cases are developing daily. The fever is now in every ward and on almost every street in the city. Madison, Miss., reports six new cases of fever. The State of Texas has withdrawn its quarantine restrictions against Louisiana and Mississippi, except as to infected points.

French Cabinet Gossip.

Nothing definite has yet been settled in connection with the formation of a new French cabinet. The air, however, is full of ministerial lists, in which the name of M. Ribot figures prominently. He is said to be the favorite candidate of the Elysee palace and it is generally believed President Faure will appeal to him to form a cabinet of Republican concentration, with M. Delcasse remaining in the Foreign Office.

Such a cabinet would not oppose a revision of the trial of Dreyfus.

M. Ribot has always been regarded as being favorable to a re-opening of the case.

Wrecked in a Storm.

The loss of the steamer L. R. Doty, with her entire crew during the recent great storm on Lake Michigan, has now been conceded. Wreckage brought to Chicago has been fully identified by Capt. Ellison, of the steamer George Williams, which belongs to the same line, as having come from the Doty. The Olive Jeannette, which the Doty had in tow, has been towed into Chicago. Her crew confirm the loss of the steamer.

The steamer L. R. Doty was owned by the Cuyahoga Transit Company of Cleveland. She carried a crew of sixteen men, and all went down with the vessel.

Sampson Shows Sand.

Admiral Sampson has taken an energetic stand with regard to the evacuation of Cuba. He objects to granting Spaniards all the time they wish. It has leaked out that a few days ago, while Gen. Parrado of the Spanish Commission, was talking about it being a physical impossibility for the Spaniards to evacuate in less than four or six months, Sampson suddenly arose and said: "Evacuation can be carried out in forty days, and it must be done."

Conquering Hero.

Gen. Kitchener arrived in London and was greeted by the Commander-in-chief of the British forces, Lord Wolsley and other high military officials. The grenadiers formed a guard of honor at the railroad station and Gen. Kitchener received an ovation from the enormous throngs of people who assembled to welcome him back from Egypt. The scene of enthusiasm was almost unprecedented.

They Want the Maine.

The Navy Department is considering a bona fide offer to raise the Maine. It is made by the Acme Wrecking Company of San Francisco, who propose, if the Government will give them a clear title to the vessel, to undertake the job wholly without expense or responsibility on the Government's part. If they succeed, the vessel is to belong to them.

Light Seal Catch.

Victoria (B. C.) special: The official statement of the sealing industry for the season just closed shows a total of but 27,935 skins for the fleet of 350 schooners, by far the lightest catch in years; also fewer schooners have been employed. The catch is divided thus: Asiatic coast, 440; British Columbia coast, 10,955; Bering Sea, 17,370.

Killed by an Explosion.

At Houghton, Mich., Boiler No 8, of the Calumet and Hecla stamping mill exploded, instantly killing John Gillies and Joseph Boiree, employes of the mill, and William Nelion, of the Bruce Mines, Ont., who was visiting Gillies. Daniel La Francer was also fatally injured. The cause of the explosion was not ascertained.

Two Men Hanged.

A Houston, Texas, telegram says: At Richmond, Texas, Manuel Morris and Peter Autre, negroes, were hanged from a double gallows. Morris murdered a 6-year-old blind girl, and afterward confessed the crime. Autre assassinated his mistress.

Song Birds' Friends.

A call has been issued to bird fanciers in Columbus, Ohio, to meet and organize a club to protect the song birds of the State. It is the intention to gain members for this club throughout the State.

More Indian Troubles.

Warned by the recent serious uprising in Minnesota, the War Department will maintain garrisons of soldiers at all regular army posts where the Indian reservations exists. The order has been issued directing the Sixth Regular Infantry to proceed at once from Fort Thomas, Ky., to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.

McIntyre Must Go.

The President has approved the sentence of the court martial dismissing from the naval service Chaplain McIntyre of the Oregon, for remarks made in a lecture at Denver reflecting on Admiral Sampson and others.

Crisis in France.

The French Cabinet, being defeated in the Chamber of Deputies, hastily resigned. Their action was preceded by wild scenes and conflicts between the military and civil factions. It is the general impression that President Faure will invite Alexandre Ribot to form a cabinet.

Paris special: A mob of the members of the Patriotic League smashed the windows and glass stair-case of a shop whose owner is said to be a Jew, at the corner of Rue Auber and Rue Scribe. The vigilance committee of the Socialist party has issued a manifesto condemning the action of Gen. Chanoine and denouncing the make-believe Republicans who strangled the debate in the Chamber and created a crisis. The committee has decided to organize all the Socialists and revolutionary Republican forces in the country against the military and clerical reaction. Altogether some 250 arrests have been made.

Storm's Havoc.

The steamer H. A. Tuttle, grain laden from Chicago, sank in the mouth of the river at Michigan City, Ind., a total wreck. The crew was taken off. The schooner Aberdeen, the consort of the Tuttle, was cast adrift on Lake Michigan laboring heavily. Her whereabouts is unknown. The Tuttle is owned by the Nicholas Transit Company of Cleveland. Her insurance valuation is $72,000; her cargo consisted of 76,000 bushels of corn, insured for $27,000. The schooner Aberdeen was worth $47,000, and her cargo of corn insured for $25,000.

The steamer E. F. Gould went ashore at Oscoda, Mich., in a furious gale and lies within a few rods of the George Steel. The crew was taken ashore by life savers. The Gould will in all probability go to pieces.

Three Men Injured.

An explosion occurred at the sawmill owned by Humphrey Gaunitt, at 1812 West Second street, Marion, Ind. The boiler, which had been repeatedly condemned, let go, wrecking the building and seriously, and probably fatally, injuring three workmen, James Moore, William Swafford and Daniel Adams. All are married and have families. Swafford is unconscious, and it is thought that he is injured internally. Pieces of the boiler, brick and other debris were thrown for two squares in all directions, and houses in the immediate vicinity of the mill were badly wrecked.

Initiation Trick at University of Michigan.

The faculty of the University of Michigan is investigating a case of initiation into the mysteries of one of the fraternities. A freshman candidate, whose name is concealed, after being blindfolded, was taken to a railroad sidetrack near the Michigan Central track and tied to the rails. He was left there until the through passenger came, and as it thundered down upon him he screamed and struggled and finally lost consciousness just as the train went by a few feet from him. The freshman has since been delirious.

Reports from Ohio Gold Field.

Excitement over the discovery of the gold mine near Malvern, Ohio, continues unabated. A big crusher is nearly ready for operation. Various geologists to whom samples of the gold-bearing rock have been sent, report that it contains gold in paying quantities. The gold, it is estimated, will run from $14 to $40 per ton of rock. Experienced gold miners who have arrived and prospected say gold exists in paying quantities.

Tragedy at Sea.

A special from Warsaw, Va., says: Capt. James Crocket, commander on an oyster boat, was killed and his mate seriously wounded by a negro cook near Colonial Beach. After the quarrel the crew report that the negro jumped overboard and was drowned. It is the supposition, however, that he was killed and thrown over board by the enraged crew.

Insurgents Withdraw.

Manila special: The insurgents have peaceably withdrawn to the distance desired by the American officers except in Galoocan, the northern suburb of Manila. The Sixth Artillery will go to Galoocan this week. It is probable that there will be no opposition to this movement.

Counted As American.

President McKinley has sanctioned the project advanced by Ferdinand W. Peck, Commissioner General for the United States of the Paris Exposition, that Cuba, Porto Rico and Hawaii shall be represented in the American section of the exposition.

France Retreats.

A report is in circulation in the city that the Rothschilds have been informed that France has agreed to evacuate Fashoda, but the Foreign Office has no information on this subject. The activity in naval preparations continues on both sides of the channel.

Poisoned by Canned Goods.

W. T. McFerrin, wife and daughter, Miss Mamie of East Connersville, Ind., and Miss Mamie Rice, their guest, of Hamilton, Ohio, were poisoned by eating canned goods. They will recover.

Sixty Japanese Drowned.

Kobe (Japan) special: The Japanese steamer Mijagala was sunk almost immediately after having been in collision with the Japanese steamer Kinshiu-Maru. Sixty Japanese were drowned.

FRANCE IN FERMENT.

PARIS DISRUPTED OVER THE DREYFUS CASE.

Minister of War Resigns in a Fit of Passion—Angry Mob Burns Kiosks—Days of the Third Republic Believed to Be Numbered.

The world has been treated to a new illustration of the fickle, volatile character of the French nation in the sudden dissolution of the Brisson ministry after an existence of only a few months. The result was precipitated by the spectacular performance of Gen. Chanoine in resigning the portfolio of minister of war, which was placed in his hands as the successor of Gen. Zurlinden only a few weeks ago.

PREMIER BRISSON.

The situation is all the more surprising in view of the pressing nature of the controversy with England over the Fashoda affair. This seems to have been completely lost sight of in the excitement over the Dreyfus case, for which the army is chiefly if not wholly responsible. The sudden act of Chanoine is attributed to the hounding to which he has been subjected by army officials, who are apparently more eager to carry on an anti-Semitic war in the streets of Paris than to meet a foreign enemy in central Africa.

The first inference is that this sudden irruption of the volcanic elements which constitute so large a portion of the governing factions in the French Republic will operate to the direct advantage of Great Britain. While the French leaders are torn to pieces with their dissensions over internal affairs, England, with all parties united and harmonious in support of its foreign policy, will go on strengthening itself and preparing for any emergency that may occur either in the Soudan or nearer home.

As the downfall of the Brisson ministry is apparently traceable directly to the hostility of the army to the steps which have been taken looking to a revision of the Dreyfus case, the natural effect will be to undo what has been done in that direction, as it is not in the nature of a French court to do anything distasteful to both the Government and the army. For the present army influence is superior to justice and the people, and if the forms of revision should be gone through with the result is likely to be merely a repetition of the perversions of justice which have been witnessed in the past. It is safe to say that this will be the inevitable outcome should the new cabinet be of the character foreshadowed by the tumultuous proceedings in the Chamber of Deputies on Tuesday, when the rallying cry was "Vive l'armee" and "Down with the Jews."

Gen. Chanoine, in announcing his resignation, repeated the declaration of his predecessor, Gen. Zurlinden, that Dreyfus was guilty. Premier Brisson then took the tribune and in a forcible speech appealed to the chamber for support in maintaining the supremacy of the civil power. M. Brisson protested against the manner of Gen. Chanoine's resignation, declaring it to be contrary to all precedent. He then demanded an adjournment of the chamber in order to enable him to consult with his colleagues, and the sitting was suspended amid great excitement.

M. DELCASSE. GEN. CHANOINE.

Later in the day vast crowds gathered in the Place de la Concorde and began a violent demonstration. The mob burned several kiosks on the Place de la Concorde. A fight occurred on the Boulevard Montmartre between the police and the anti-Jewish rioters and several of the mob had their heads broken. Another serious conflict resulted from a demonstration made by a number of royalists, who assembled in front of the military club. The royalist flag was snatched from the hands of the man carrying it and a violent tussle followed. The excitement in the streets continued throughout the evening, the mob deliriously "downing" traitors, Jews and M. Brisson until they were hoarse. Arrests are made on the slightest provocation. The following day France was practically without a government.

The disgraceful scenes and excitement temporarily put aside the Fashoda incident and the fear of war arising therefrom. Throughout the disturbing events Tuesday not a word or thought was devoted to the war crisis. This distracted country is completely absorbed in her appalling domestic troubles, and the people at large scarcely recognize the existence of the Fashoda dispute. In some quarters it is believed the days of the third French republic are numbered and another cataclysm in the history of the country is at hand.

STORM ON THE LAKES.

Wild Wind and Waves Work Terrible Havoc.

From all over the great lakes Wednesday came tales of wrecks, dangers and narrow escapes in the terrific gale of Tuesday night. The storm was defined by the weather authorities as a cyclone, with its center between Chicago and Grand Haven, Mich. Tales of numerous wrecks and dangers came from all points in the southern portion of Lake Michigan.

These reports not only told of vessels wrecked and cargoes lost, but many reports were made by captains who made port in safety, telling of vessels in distress sighted when the seas were so high and the wind so fierce as to make any attempt at rescue impossible. It will be several days before all the dreadful story of the storm can be learned.

So far as Chicago is concerned, the storm was the most disastrous of recent years, not excepting the great gale of May, 1894. Old tugmen say that the waves were higher than at any time since 1889, when the lake shore road and a part of Lincoln Park were washed away. Lincoln Park Commissioners estimate the damage done by the storm at $30,000.

Fisk Hall, the large new building of the Northwestern University, was for a time in great danger of serious injury from the high waves. The wall that was built out into the lake to protect the building from just such storms was washed away at a loss of $5,000. The steamer H. A. Tuttle, laden with grain from Chicago, went down off Michigan City, the crew being taken off by life savers.

COMING ELECTIONS.

Officers Who Are to Be Chosen in the Various States.

The elections will be held Tuesday, Nov. 8. The elections for Representatives in Congress will be held in all States but three, namely, Maine, Vermont and Oregon, which have elected their Representatives. In some of the States the elections will have more significance, because of their bearing upon the selection of United States Senators. Reference to some of the most important elections follows:

New York will elect Governor and Legislature. A successor to Senator Murphy is to be elected by the Legislature.

West Virginia will elect a Legislature to find a successor to Senator Faulkner. New Jersey will elect a Governor and Legislature, to find a successor to Senator Smith. Nebraska will elect a Governor and Legislature, with the seat of Senator Allen at stake. Missouri will elect a Legislature and Supreme judge, the Legislature to name Senator Cockrell's successor. California will elect a Governor and Legislature, and the latter will choose a successor to Senator White.

Indiana will elect a Legislature to choose a successor to Senator Turpie, and will also select a Secretary of State.

Illinois will choose one-half the State Senate and a State Treasurer. The State Senators will vote upon the successor of Senator Cullom, whose term expires in 1901.

Massachusetts will elect a Governor and Legislature, the latter to name a successor to Senator Lodge.

Michigan will elect a Governor and Legislature, and the Legislature will select a successor to Senator Burrows.

Minnesota will elect a Governor and Legislature, in which will be involved the naming of Senator Davis' successor.

Wisconsin will elect a Governor, Legislature, and the seat of Senator Mitchell is in the issue. In Washington, Tennessee, Utah, Wyoming, Delaware, Connecticut, Texas, North Dakota and Nevada, a United States Senatorship is concerned in the legislative elections.

MONEY FOR COAST DEFENSE.

Report of Gen. Wilson Asks for Additional Appropriation.

The annual report of Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, U. S. A., covers all operations connected with fortifications and river and harbor improvements during the past year.

In consequence of the war with Spain, and the possibilities of hostile attack upon our coasts, Gen. Wilson says pressing demands of business interests required the erection of seacoast batteries at numerous points not contemplated in the scheme of national defense. It may be confidently asserted, he adds, that the completion of the projects upon which operations are now in progress will practically insure the safety of our principal harbors and seacoast cities against attacks from the sea.

Five hundred heavy guns, about 700 rapid fire guns of various sizes and about 1,000 mortars are still to be mounted at an approximate cost of $55,000,000. Gen. Wilson asks Congress for $4,917,500 for fortifications' work to be expended next year.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

SIR HERBERT KITCHENER.

Sir Horatio Herbert Kitchener, the sirdar of the Egyptian army and the new hero of the Soudan, is a young man—being but 47—for the high place he has won by merit in the military service of his country. He was born in Ireland, and at 20 was a lieutenant. By 1888 he had been advanced to the rank of colonel. He spent eight years surveying in the Holy Land, during which he picked up a very fair knowledge of colloquial Arabic. This, together with his knowledge of the native character, went far toward his success in the Soudan.

When Kitchener went to Egypt as one of the officers appointed to assist Sir Evelyn Wood in the formation of an Egyptian army most of the work fell to his lot owing to his familiarity with the fellaheen. It was his humane and shrewd management of the Egyptians that enabled the sirdar to lead them victoriously against the mahdists all along the Nile to the glorious triumph at Omdurman and the taking of Fashoda.

An adequate story of the sirdar's life would read like one of Scott's romances of the East. His wanderings in Palestine, the Soudan, Erzeroum, Africa and elsewhere have been filled with thrilling episodes. He has been shot at by Bedouins, almost murdered in Palestine, nearly hanged for being a spy, but his delight has been to penetrate dens of villainy to find out at all hazards the mysteries of the Orient for himself. He has disguised himself a score of times, and has thrown dice with death to further some military plan of his own. Such is the sirdar.

LOOKS AS THOUGH SOMETHING WOULD HAVE TO GIVE.

—Detroit Journal.

BEGS FOR MERCY.

Spain Abandons Claims to Concessions on Cuban Debt.

The cable announces that Spain has at last abandoned her attitude of claiming any concessions in Cuba and Porto Rico as a matter of right, and has now simply thrown herself on the mercy of her conqueror. The Spanish representatives did this at Wednesday's session of the joint peace commission in Paris, acting under instructions from Madrid.

They pointed out that only by some relief from the Cuban debt could the complete ruin of Spain be averted, and submitted facts and figures in proof of their declaration. The cable containing this information was received in Washington while the President was in Philadelphia attending the peace jubilee, and Secretary Hay immediately sent the cablegram by his executive clerk on a special train.

SERIOUS FOR FARMERS.

Discouraging Outlook in the Northern Part of Dakota.

Reports from the northern part of North Dakota as to the wheat situation are most discouraging. In some localities less than 25 per cent of the wheat has been thrashed, and the continued bad weather makes the situation so much worse. In some localities there was a fight on what was deemed the excessive charge of the thrashers. The price was not reduced and the contest has resulted in the farmers losing thousands of dollars to save a cent or two per bushel. The weather has been so bad that the harvest hands refused to sleep in straw stacks any longer and are leaving the country rapidly. This will reduce the help so much that many of the machines will be unable to start up even when the weather does improve.

STORM'S HAVOC ON THE LAKE SHORE AT CHICAGO.

ACCEPTS THE TERMS.

SPAIN AGREES TO ASSUME THE CUBAN DEBT.

Stubborn Dons Have Bowed to Your Uncle Sam and It Is Now Believed that Peace Negotiations Will Proceed More Rapidly.

It was announced in Washington Friday morning that the peace negotiations in Paris were proceeding satisfactorily, and that Spain had accepted the terms of the United States in regard to the Cuban debt, and all matters within the province of the joint commission excepting the disposition of the Philippines.

The articles of the protocol settled are:

1. The cession of Porto Rico to the United States.

2. The relinquishment of all sovereignty over Cuba and dependent islands, and the cession of Cuba to the United States for its pacification and the establishment of a stable government.

3. This country assuming no portion of the Cuban debt.

4. The cession to the United States of an island (Guam) in the Ladrone group.

5. The withdrawal of Spain's forces from the western hemisphere (now going on).

The one article to be decided is that providing that the United States shall occupy, and hold the harbor and city of Manila and Subig bay until a peace commission determines the rights of both Spain and the United States in the Philippines.

The negotiations were nearly wrecked on the Cuban debt snag. The Americans were unyielding in their refusal to assume a single dollar of that debt, despite the threats of the Spaniards to break off the proceedings. Finally, the Americans remaining obdurate, Senor Montero Rios, head of the Spanish commission, telegraphed his resignation to Madrid, and affairs became extremely critical. Had his resignation been accepted, the other Spanish commissioners would have followed suit, and the peace negotiations would have come to an abrupt end. This result was averted by the action of the Queen Regent in begging Rios to continue.

As a last resort, the Spanish commissioners begged for mercy, declaring that should Spain be compelled to assume the whole of the Cuban debt, it would mean her utter financial ruin. This appeal was sent to President McKinley, and resulted in the midnight cabinet meeting in Philadelphia Wednesday night. The president and his advisers decided again that Spain must assume the debt, and the Spanish commissioners were forced to accept the inevitable.

WARSHIPS TO CUBA.

Havana Harbor Is to Be Dragged for Mines.

The President has decided that American warships shall be stationed in Havana harbor, as requested by Admiral Sampson and other members of the evacuation commission. The delay has been due to official reluctance to expose national vessels and sailors to a possible repetition of the Maine horror. It was deemed discreet to await convincing assurances from the Spanish authorities that no torpedoes remained which might be exploded by disgruntled civilians or revengeful Spanish soldiers. These assurances have now been forthcoming, but, nevertheless, every precaution against rascality will be exercised.

The naval administration has for some time been engaged in equipping the Eagle and Vixen at the Norfolk navy yard, ostensibly for surveying duty, but in reality these vessels have been provided with apparatus for dragging Havana harbor for possible mines, and they will be promptly dispatched to carry out their purpose. It is not intended to send any of the larger armorclads to Cuba.

STEAMER DOTY LOST.

She and Her Entire Crew Are at the Bottom of Lake Michigan.

The magnificent lake steamer L. R. Doty is lost. Her crew of eighteen or nineteen perished, beyond reasonable doubt, in Tuesday's hurricane. The wreckage brought in to Chicago by the tug Prodigy was fully identified. The Olive Jeannette, the consort of the Doty, was towed into port Friday morning. On Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock the towline between her and the steamer snapped. Then the two were as nearly as can be figured thirty-five miles off Milwaukee. From that time the Doty's story will never be told. The fearful but vain fight of eighteen or nineteen men for their lives in the wild hurricane will remain an unwritten page in the history of lake disasters. Even where they found their graves will never be known.

NATIVES OF CUBA MAY ENLIST.

Plan to Add Spaniards and Cubans to United States Army.

In his annual report Secretary Alger will recommend that Cubans and Spaniards who are now in Cuba be enlisted in the United States army for the purpose of doing garrison duty on the island. It is estimated that there are about 15,000 Spanish soldiers who will remain in Cuba, and that a large percentage of this number will seek enlistment in the ranks of the regular army. It is also estimated that there are about 60,000 Cuban insurgents who would gladly accept service in the American army.

A DIET OF GLASS.

Mrs. Sanderson's Servant Tells How Aged Victim Was Killed.

At the first day's hearing of the sensational Sanderson murder case at Battle Creek, Mich., the chief witness for the State testified. This witness is Marie Robertson, the former servant of Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson. She told in detail the story of how Mrs. Mary Butterfield Sanderson fed her aged husband daily on ground glass, which finally tore his vitals away. The witness said that the accused woman had told her she loathed her aged husband, whom she designated an "old fool."

STARVATION OF A STUDENT.

Death of a Trinity College Man Caused by Lack of Food.

James N. Allen, a Trinity College student of the class of 1902, died at Hartford, Conn., Tuesday of starvation after having made a heroic effort to work his way through college on a dollar a week. He got along on a little more than $1 a week, eating only bread and coffee and carefully guarding his poverty from his fellow students. The room he occupied was given to him and furnished by President Smith.

THREATENS TO SHOOT.

Governor Tanner Will Make Trouble for Imported Labor.

"I reiterate that I will not tolerate this wholesale importation of foreigners into Illinois. And if I hear that a mob is to be brought into this State, such as was taken into Virden, I care not on what railroad it comes or for whom, I will meet it at the State line and shoot it to pieces with Gatling guns."

So declared Gov. Tanner in a speech delivered before 1,200 auditors gathered at the Knights of Pythias hall in Madison, Ill. The Governor blamed the mine operators for the loss of life at Virden.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Highwaymen Captured at Kokomo—Waldron Depot Burned by an Incendiary—Fatal Train Wreck—Sawmill Boiler Explodes.

Late the other night the Kokomo police had a battle with a gang of highwaymen and captured six, one of them getting shot in the hip. They were waylaying shopkeepers en route home. The stolen money was recovered. The men gave their names as William H. Fisher, Frank Fisher and George Cook, 82 Erie street, Cleveland; William Myers, 1014 Pine street, St. Louis; William Boyd, Lima, O.; David Roberts, Oneida, N. Y. William Fisher, the leader, was shot, the others surrendering. They claim to be iron basketmakers recently employed at the Variety iron works, Superior street, Cleveland.

Work of Incendiaries at Waldron.

Fire destroyed the freight and passenger depot at Waldron. The freight department was filled with goods, all of which were consumed, some of them being very valuable. The town has no fire protection except a few hand extinguishers. Citizens turned out and saved other buildings. A tramp had been put off the train there the day before, and threatened to get even with the railroad company. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

Two Men Killed in a Wreck.

A south-bound freight train on the Vandalia was wrecked at Honey creek by the breaking of a coupling pin. When the engine and forward section of the train slowed up at the creek the rear section crashed into it, demolishing five cars and badly wrecking eleven others, killing two men who were riding on the bumpers. The men are supposed to be Albert Gibb of Elkhart and John Metzler of Wakarusa.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

The boiler in the sawmill owned by Thomas Noltemeyer of Freelandsville exploded, killing the engineer, Frank Jerel, and seriously injuring Will Robbins and George Boyer. Jerel was blown about thirty feet and was badly mangled. He leaves a family.

Within Our Borders.

On account of diphtheria the schools at Royerton have been closed.

At Brazil, Newton Fisher shot and badly wounded Charles Gross.

Jasper W. McLead was crushed to death at Brazil by two sawlogs falling across his body.

The Wood & Williams Company, furniture dealers in Terre Haute, have made an assignment.

John Powell, an alleged housebreaker and thief, was shot while fleeing from the police at Columbus.

Jesse Reynolds of Olean was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shotgun while rabbit hunting.

Samuel Bates, employed at the coal mine at Fontanet, was killed by a falling tree which he was cutting.

The Standard Oil Company has abandoned the attempt to run the independent companies out of Terre Haute.

Uniformed secret orders of Kokomo, headed by the Knights of Pythias, have decided to build an auditorium.

The Indianapolis postoffice receipts for September were $34,288, an increase of $1,402 over the corresponding month in 1897.

The fifth pair of twins was born to Mr. and Mrs. Luther Fish, living near Anderson. The father is 42 and the mother 38 years old.

The Salvation army was arrested for holding services on the streets at Columbus. Some of the business men complain that it is a nuisance.

Frank P. Wright, a farmer, living near Edinburg, has a variety of coffee bean that matures perfectly and yields abundantly in this latitude.

Farmers in Wabash County report that the fly is working great injury to the growing wheat. Some fields have been practically destroyed by the insect.

The fifty-eighth anniversary of the foundation of St. Mary's Academic Institute near Terre Haute was celebrated by the dedication of the new academy.

Michael Murname, who mysteriously left Muncie three weeks ago and has been sought after by his grief-stricken mother, committed suicide at Worden, Ill.

In a petition for a divorce, Mrs. Frank Hasty of Huntington sets forth as valid grounds for a separation the fact that her husband would not take her to church.

The farmers of Sugar Creek township are adopting drastic measures to be rid of the epidemic of hog cholera. Within a few days more than 100 head have died.

The shoe store of W. E. Fitzpatrick, at Whiteland, containing the postoffice, was burglarized. About $75 worth of shoes and some six or seven dollars in cash was taken.

Mrs. Alonzo Strong of Kendallville was accused by the postoffice inspector of sending obscene matter through the mails. Before a warrant could be issued she had committed suicide.

At Elwood, Robert Knotts quarreled with his wife. While she was preparing to leave him he cut his throat with a razor. He will probably die. They have been married but five months.

Fred Speyer, the young son of H. E. Speyer of Brazil, while riding his wheel, collided with a team and was badly injured. When he recovered consciousness it was discovered that he was totally blind.

One of the most disastrous fires that ever visited Tipton broke out in the business center. The flames were first seen in the clothing store of I. Freymark and in a few minutes communicated with adjoining buildings.

It is just made known that an attempt was made to wreck the Vandalia pay car the other morning a few miles west of Terre Haute. During the night the section car house was broken open and tools were taken, with which the would-be wreckers disjointed two rails. The rails were separated slightly, but in a manner which would cause the wheels of a west-bound train to spread them apart. A special east-bound train came along at the time the west-bound pay car was expected. The train passed over safely, but the jarring of the loosened rails called attention to what had been done.

Butter made from peanuts is on sale in many Indiana towns.

William Fitzgerald was placed in jail at Peru, charged with the murder of Quincy Beebe, 14 years old. Fitzgerald fled on the night of the murder and was traced to Celina, Ohio, by a detective, who cultivated his friendship. Together the men returned with the purpose of robbing and if necessary murdering a widow near Bunker Hill who was said to have considerable money. Detective Capron arrested the men in the dense woods west of Bunker Hill. Fitzgerald confessed that he killed Beebe for the severe whipping that the father of the boy gave him about a year ago.

SWEET ROSE.

Sweet rose, awaking to the light,
Into this fair world born
A little folded bud at night,
A flower at break of morn!
Yet thou a tiny tear of dew
Within thy heart dost bear,
Though earth is glad and life is new,
And thou art sweet and fair!

Sweet rose, unfold thy heart and shed
Thy perfume wider yet;
Though soon the summer hours are fled,
Thy fate, sweet rose, forget!
With fragrance all the garden fill,
That those who pass still see
Shall deem the bright world brighter still
Because of it and thee!

Sweet rose, God made thee fair to take Thy tiny place and part,
To soothe some spirit like to break,
To cheer some burdened heart.
Weep not for aught that fate may send,
But, ere thy day is spent,
Live out thy life unto its end,
Then die and sleep content!

"CUTHBERT'S CRIME."

"THE editor of the Covent Garden Magazine presents his compliments to Mr. Percy King, and begs to return the accompanying MS., which has already appeared in the columns of the Hyde Park Miscellany. The editor would further point out that it is a serious attempt at fraud to submit a MS. concurrently to two publications."

Percy King, with his untasted breakfast before him, sat staring in amazement at this totally unexpected and altogether unpleasant communication. What could it mean? He had not submitted his story of "Cuthbert's Crime" to any other magazine than the Covent Garden, nor was there any apparent possibility of such a thing being done by anyone else. And yet the editor could not be mistaken. In any case, there was that month's Hyde Park close to him, on the writing table, and he could easily prove the editor's statement. He picked it up, hastily turned over the leaves and soon found what he sought.

Yes, there it was: "Cuthbert's Crime; a Tale of the City;" by Percy King. The young author sat down again, tugging viciously at his mustache—a sure index to his present state of mind. When pleased, Percy would slowly fondle and smooth this straw-colored appendage; when thoughtful or concerned, he would twist its long, silky ends; when enraged or excited, he would strive to tear it out by the roots. "Percy's barometer," men had called it at Oxford.

At last he seemed to have made up his mind how to act, for he rose suddenly, upsetting his poor little terrier, who had taken her usual place at his feet. Pollie yelped painfully, and her master swore audibly. "Mrs. Gadd," he called, as he reached the little dingy hall, "I'm going out, and sha'n't be back to lunch."

"Yessir," said the voluble little woman—Percy's friend, Lord, had summed her up once as "voluble, valuable and volume-able""—"but surely you ain't goin' hout without hany breakfast, an'sich a bitter cold mornin', too?"

"Confound the breakfast," growled Percy, and Mrs. Gadd withdrew, in offended dignity—she was a "Plymouth 'sister"—to her own stuffy little sanctum. Without further parley, Percy swung into the Inverness cape, and, regardless of east wind and sleet, made his way toward the temple. In one of the little streets close by there was a long-unpainted house, the door of which stood wide open, giving free access to an unwashed hall. "Tudor Chambers" was inscribed on the brass door-plate; and "Wm. Lord, Solicitor," was depicted in quite fresh paint over a set of offices on the second floor, one of which Percy now entered.

"Well, old man, and why so early?" was its occupant's cheery greeting. "Halloa! barometer set stormy?"—as Percy jerked at that tell-tale mustache. "Sit down, O 'King Percy,' fill your pipe, and unbosom your crime-laden soul."

"I've real worry enough, 'Lord Bill,' without any of your Surrey drama tags," responded Percy, sinking into the "client's chair," and accepting from his friend's hands the jar, well filled with Latakia. He filled and lighted his pipe, and then handed the editor's note to the youthful-looking solicitor. "What do you think of that, Bill? A pleasant pick-me-up?" he queried.

His host read it slowly through twice, and then turned to Percy. "Imprimis, it of course goes without saying that 'your Majesty' is incapable of such a dirty trick; and I know your methods in business matters too well to imagine that it has happened from inadvertence. Somebody has obtained a copy of your story, and has sent it in to the Hyde Park. When did you write 'Cuthbert's Crime,' and when did you send it in? Give me precise dates, if you can, old fellow."

Percy drew his pocket diary out, and turned over the pages slowly. "I wrote it at Rhyl in September, it was 'typed' at Mme. Citoyenne's on my return to town in October, and was sent to the Covent Garden just before Christmas. I was in Spain, as you are aware, during six weeks, and all my manuscripts were securely locked up during my absence, and apparently untouched on my return. The Garden accepted it Jan. 9, and the thing has appeared in the March number of the Hyde. Now you have it all."

Lord reflected for a few moments. "It is perfectly plain," he at length said, "that access to the story could be obtained only at two times—when it was typewritten and when you were away. Mrs. Gadd is far too fierce a Cerberus to allow any stranger to touch your room, and her honesty is above reproach. We may say the latter of Mme. Citoyenne also, but it may—I say, may—be possible that not all her typists can resist temptation. May I look at the transcript?"

He eyed it carefully, and then made a minute examination of it, letter by letter. "Look here, Percy," he exclaimed at last, "I have a clew—slight enough, but enough to show if the Hyde copy was 'typed' by the same machine. The capital Q occurs in all nine times; in each case an O has been used instead, and the little tail has been added with a pen. We will now go and call on Hartland, the editor of the Hyde Park.

Making their way through the Temple, they passed through the windswept streets to the corner of Holborn Circus, where the offices of that magazine were situated, and sent in their cards. Mr. Hartland was in, and would see Mr. King and his friend.

"Delighted to meet you, Mr. King," lisped the dapper, bald-headed little man as they entered; "delighted to meet our gifted new contributor."

"I have never in my life contributed to the Hyde Park Miscellany," said Percy, shortly, impatiently pulling the ends of the "barometer."

"You amaze me. Why, surely——" began the other, when William Lord broke in, and in a few words explained the state of affairs, to the editor's manifest astonishment.

"Then you want me——"

"To give us the address of your correspondent, and to allow us to inspect the manuscript."

"Certainly." And the editor opened a drawer and produced a number of filed letters. "Here is the receipt for my check, signed 'Percival King, 3 St. Chad's pl., Westminster.'"

"I always sign as Percy, and I live in Bloomsbury, and that isn't my handwriting," exclaimed the young author, regardless of his friend's warning hand. Mr. Hartland, meanwhile, was shouting through a speaking tube, and a boy shortly appeared with a roll of paper.

"That is the typewritten copy of 'Cuthbert's Crime,' which I received on Oct. 28 and accepted a week later," said Mr. Hartland, consulting a ledger.

Lord closely scanned the paper roll, looking at certain passages very closely indeed. "The method of the fraud is clear," he said at length. "Two copies of my friend's manuscript have been made by a multiplying process. One was dispatched to his address, the other to the Hyde. The paging, etc., are identical, and you may see the pen-corrected 'Q's' in each."

"Yes, that is so," assented Percy and the editor. "What is your next step?" asked the latter.

"We will proceed at once to St. Chad's place, and interview the impostor," answered the lawyer; and, after thanking Mr. Hartland for his courtesy, the two friends withdrew.

They stopped on reaching the street, to consider their method of procedure. Eventually they decided to lunch first, and it was nearly 3 o'clock when a 'bus set them down at the corner of St. Chad's place.

Lord at once called his client's attention to a dusty card in the window of No. 3, which proved to be a small stationer's shop. It read: "Letters received here."

"We must be wary, my boy; it's a deep game. If I try to bluff, mind, you back me up."

A very stout, little old woman, clad in widow's weeds, waddled clumsily in from the tiny parlor beyond the shop. "What do ye want, gen'lemen?" she queried, in a hoarse, asthmatic whisper.

"We must see Mr. Percy King at once," was the solicitor's answer.

"Lor' bless yer, sir, 'e don' live 'ere; 'e on'y calls for 'is letters 'ere," gasped the old dame.

"What is he like?" asked Lord.

"W'y! is the pore feller in trouble?"

Lord drew himself up, and pointed to Percy. "That is Mr. King. Someone has personated him, and obtained money faudulently by using his name. Tell us all you know, or we may regard you as an accomplice."

"All right, then," said the fat woman, more huskily than ever. "My Mr. King is a 'andsome young lidy."

The two men started. Their suspicions were becoming certainties. "She's short, an' she's dark, and she's pretty," the stout dame continued; "an' she wears a navy blue jacket and a queer silver ring on 'er 'and."

"That will do," said Percy; "I know the lady." And he hastily explained that he had noticed a queer silver ring of Indian workmanship on the finger of one of Mme. Citoyenne's typists, when he once called to complain of certain errors in some work which she had copied for him.

"Do you expect an early visit from 'Mr. King?'" asked William Lord.

"Yes, sir; she'll call to-night; leastways, I expect as 'ow she'll, 'cause 'ere's a letter for 'er, wot 'as bin 'ere since Wednesday.

"About what hour does she usually come?"

"About sivin, gen'lamen."

The two friends withdrew. "We will go and have a 'hundred up' at 'pills,' and come back to meet your 'feminine counterpart,'" suggested Lord. Percy agreed, and they departed.

At 7 o'clock they stood within a passage nearly opposite No. 3, St. Chad's place, with collars turned up to their ears, for the sleet of the morning had given place to driving snow. After waiting some minutes, a 'bus passed the corner, and a woman alighted and entered the little stationer's shop. They crossed, and looked through the window. Yes, she answered to the fat lady's description, and they accordingly followed her indoors. Lord addressed her.

"Good-evening, madam. Allow me to introduce you to Mr. Percy King, whose existence you have forgotten, or you would have not made use of his name."

"Wh—wh—what do you mean?" trembilingly asked the girl—for she was little older. The solicitor pointed to the letter in her hand, and sternly asked, "Do you read the Hyde Park Miscellany?"

The woman sank half-fainting into a chair.

"We are waiting for your explanation. Am I to send for the police?" queried William Lord.

"No, no; for heaven's sake, no," the poor child moaned, her voice broken by violent sobs. "It was—I was mad—my mother was ill—the doctor said—wine—and good living—and I earned—10 shillings a week—and it seemed—so easy—and I thought—I could—never—be found out. Forgive—me—and I will—pay you back—the money—every—penny of it. But—don't let—poor mother— know it—it would—break—her heart."

"Call a cab, Bill," whispered the young author, whose soft heart was already melted by the poor girl's penitence and evident distress. "We will get her confession drawn up and signed in your room, to set things right with the Covent Garden, and then, poor child, we'll take her home to her mother."

This was the course he persisted in following, despite the lawyer's opposition. Nor did Ella Gray lose her situation at Mme. Citoyenne's—at least, not then; and yet, as certain "just causes and impediments" were not forthcoming on three recent Sundays, it is perhaps correct, that a new typewriter with no defective "Q's" has lately been installed in Mrs. Gadd's front parlor, which will soon be manipulated by Mrs. King's deft fingers.—From London Tit-Bits.

QUEER STORIES

There is to be a new electric lighthouse placed on Fire Island that will have the estimated power of 45,000,000 candles, making it the most powerful artificial light in the world.

The first book printed in the limits of the United States was the "Bay Psalms Book," which was issued in Cambridge, Mass., in 1640. Specimens of this publication are extremely rare and command very high prices.

If the inhabitants of the fixed stars had powerful enough telescopes to see us, they would not see us as we are today, but as we were fifty, one hundred years, or even longer ago, for it would take light that long to travel to them.

Mathematical calculations show that an iron ship weighs 27 per cent. less than a wooden one, and will carry 115 tons of cargo for every 100 tons carried by a wooden ship of the same dimensions, and both loaded to the same draught of water.

Three of the best New York Central men testify that they would never under any circumstances reverse their engines in order to bring the train to a stop. When they had to stop a train in the shortest possible distance, they shut off the steam and applied the air; and did nothing else; there was only one quicker way to stop a train, and that was to run into something. They agreed that upon reversing, the back pressure in the cylinders was so great as to lock the drivers and cause them to slide, thus losing the braking power of the locomotive. Neither did they approve of sanding the tracks, for nothing seemed to be gained by it.

The New Paris Telescope.

We gather from an article in La Nature that M. Gautier, the well-known optician, is making good progress with the construction of the giant telescope intended for the great exhibition at Paris in 1900. The aperture will be 1.25 meters (49.2 inches), and the focal length sixty meters (196 feet 10 inches), while the estimated cost is 1,400,000 francs. An equatorial mounting and dome for such a gigantic instrument may well be considered impracticable, and accordingly the telescope itself will be rigidly fixed in a horizontal position on supports of masonry, and will receive the light of the heavenly bodies after reflection from a movable plane mirror two meters in diameter. The plane mirror is thirteen inches thick and weighs 3,600 kilogrammes, and it is curious that of twelve disks cast for the purpose, the first one turned out to be the best. This has been in process of grinding for seven months, and is not yet finished.

There will be two objectives, one photographic and one visual, which will be easily interchangeable at will. It is expected that a magnifying power of 6,000 will be usefully employed, and that occasionally a power of 10,000 may be used. As the highest power available in the largest existing telescope does not exceed 4,000, the new instrument, if it be the success that everyone will wish, should have a wide field of usefulness.—Nature.

Chinese Economy.

No people in the world can exceed the Chinese in the matter of economy. They waste nothing. The old cast-off account book of the merchant is cut into pieces and oiled to serve, instead of glass, in windows or lanterns. A coolie who has a six hours' march with a heavy burden will return to his point of departure without having broken his fast, in order to save the two cents his breakfast would have cost away from home. Nothing is more curious than to see them eat, although, with their famous chopsticks, they do not perform all the wonderful feats generally supposed. Everything is served them in bowls or sauces, and with the chopsticks they raise the pieces of meat or fish to the mouth, with sufficient grace. Each one has a bowl of rice, which he hold near his lips, and with the aid of the chopsticks he pushes the contents into his mouth. It is curious to see them pick up with their chopsticks the grains of rice that fall on the ground. The children are taught this art from their earliest years; nothing must be lost, not even the smallest grain.

When Used to Excess.

Ordinary articles of consumption have a bad effect upon the body if used to excess. Not a few men have had their eyesight permanently affected by smoking too much, and the deafness of a very noted man of letters is to be traced to the fact that he had been for years a tea drunkard. That snuff may produce paralysis is well-known, but it seems almost incredible that a man may go mad through consuming too many eggs. Nevertheless, there is no doubt that to eat too many of them produces a kind of nervous excitement which may lead even to murder. Too much beef for a weak-brained boy tends to make him an idiot, and the number of men whose mental vigor has been sapped by constantly drinking strong coffee is extraordinary.

A Hindoo Queen.

Probably the smallest monarch in the world reigns over the Hindoo vassal state of Bophal, and governs a people of more than 1,000,000 souls. This dwarf is a woman, Djrhan-Begum by name; but although she is about 50 years old, she does not appear larger than a child of 10. Her diminutive size does not prevent her, however, from holding the reigns of government with a firm hand, and in her realm quiet and order are supreme.

When They Are Loud.

Bilkins—Who was it wrote "Actions speak louder than words?

Harper—I don't know, but I'll bet the thought occurred to him while he was trying to sneak upstairs at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Money is the root of the industrial turing plant.

ENDURED FOR SLAVES

REV. CALVIN FAIRBANK'S WORK FOR THE NEGROES.

It Brought Him Seventeen Years' Imprisonment and During the Term He Receives 35,105 Stripes from a Strap—A Remarkable Career.

The world has not produced a more heroic character than Rev. Calvin Fairbank, who died recently at his home in Angelica, N. Y., aged 82 years. He was one of the most noted of the famous abolitionists who conducted the "underground railroad" before the war, but, unlike his associates, he suffered with the slaves and knew what it was to feel the lash. During his lifetime Mr. Fairbank aided forty-seven slaves to escape from Virginia and Kentucky, not one of whom was ever recaptured. For this he was twice imprisoned in Kentucky, in all seventeen years and four months. He was frequently beaten by the prison overseers, and during eight years of his last term, from March 1, 1854, to March 1, 1862, he received 35,105 stripes from a leather strap fifteen to eighteen inches long and one and a half inches wide and from one-quarter to three-eighths of an inch thick.

This was during the period when Zebulon Ward and J. W. South were in charge, and the whipping grew out of the inability of Mr. Fairbank to perform the task assigned him. His daily task, timed by the hour, was 208 yards of sacking, or 37,440 shots of the shuttle by hand. He could never weave more than 165 yards. The result was that he was whipped every day except Sunday and the Fourth of July. He was never whipped less than twice a day, and in most cases four times. The number of stripes ranged from 55 to 108, according to the whim of the overseer. Sometimes so terrible were the lacerations of the cuts on his bare body that the walls of the prison were spattered with flesh and blood.

Mr. Fairbank was born in the woods of Wyoming County, New York, Nov. 3, 1816. He united with the Methodist Episcopal church in boyhood, and in 1844, the year that the church divided on the question of slavery, he became a Methodist preacher. He was a radical abolitionist. His attitude on slavery was largely influenced, he said, by an incident which occurred when he was a boy. He went with his father and mother on one occasion to attend a quarterly meeting, and with them was assigned to the good, clean house of a pair of escaped slaves. One night after service he sat on the hearthstone before the fire and listened to the freed woman's story of sorrow. It covered thirty years. She had been sold from home, separated from husband and family, and all ties of affection were broken. Fairbank's young heart wept, his anger was kindled, and antagonism to slavery was fixed upon him. "Father," he said, on going to his room, "when I get bigger they shall not do that." And that resolution he put into action whenever he had an opportunity. He was utterly fearless, and often risked his life where others would have hesitated. He not only never refused to heed the cry of the slave himself, but he sought opportunities to aid those who had no thought of the possibility of escape. Once he paid $1,485 for a beautiful and accomplished girl who was only one-sixty-fourth African, and who was being sold at public auction with appeals to the basest passions of possible purchasers. The girl's father, who had educated her as one of his own family and sold her because of his financial embarrassments, gave Fairbank $100 toward her purchase.

Fairbank was first arrested in October, 1844, for assisting a colored family named Hayden, of Lexington, Ky., to escape. He was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary, and served nearly five years, when he was pardoned Aug. 23, 1849, by Gov. John J. Crittenden. In November, 1851, after assisting a slave woman named Lamar to escape from Louisville to Indiana, Mr. Fairbank was kidnaped and carried to Kentucky, where he was tried, convicted, and in March, 1852, was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary at hard labor. His fame became widespread. He was the best known prisoner of his day, and he was often urged to speak in public, even by his keepers. He finally consented, and on Feb. 14, 1858, addressed a gathering composed of the elite of Kentucky, including the Governor, State officers, members of both houses of the Legislature and eminent citizens, who packed the jail yard. He was introduced by Mr. Whiteside, who said: "Your excellency, ladies and gentlemen: This is our distinguished prisoner, Mr. Fairbank. You will hear him."

Mr. Fairbank began his address, which held his audience for an hour, with these remarkable words: "Governor, ladies and gentlemen: A war is inevitable, and let it come. I repeat it, let it come! And Kentucky will be the theater; and you'll fight horse-bridle deep in blood, and slavery will melt away like a hoar frost; and out of it will spring a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people." Gov. Morehead congratulated Mr. Fairbank on his speech, but said: "Fairbank, you are crazy. The Yankees won't fight." "Well, Governor, you'll see," replied Mr. Fairbank. And he did see. This speech, delivered three years before the war, was reported in the papers and made a deep impression.

Mr. Fairbank had a few friends and sympathizers among prominent men in Kentucky. One of these was Lieut. Gov. John J. Jacob, son-in-law of United States Senator Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri. Gov. Bramlette was called by President Lincoln to Washington in April, 1864, to answer charges, and during his absence Jacob, as acting Governor, pardoned Mr. Fairbank, who went at once to Ohio, where he stopped for some time with Levi Coffin and other friends. In June he was married to Miss Tileston, a New England girl, to whom he had been engaged during all the years of his imprisonment, and who had done much to provide for his comfort and to secure his release. His wife died in 1876. For some years Mr. Fairbank made his home at Angelica, N. Y., where he died. His name, work and the story of his suffering for humanity will long have a place in American history.

HOWARD GOULD AND HIS BRIDE.

Now that Katherine Clemmons is Mrs. Howard Gould people will watch her as they have watched Edith Kingdon since that actress became Mrs. George Gould. The newest Mrs. Gould's maiden name was not Katherine Clemmons at all. That was her stage name. Her true maiden name was Viola Dayan, and she was born in San Francisco. She is a strikingly pretty woman and holds her beauty well. She is much older than her rich husband, but his infatuation was such that she couldn't very well escape. She tried for a year to get out of marrying him, but had to give up the fight at last. It is all over now. She is one of the Goulds.

CHINESE TROOPS IN PORTLAND.

Oregon City Has a "Brigade" Composed of American-Born Celestials.

Portland, Ore., boasts the only organized military organization in the country composed exclusively of American-born Chinese. It is called the "Chinese brigade," although it has but thirty-seven members. It is as patriotic as any other military company, is well drilled, bears arms as national guardsmen do, and altogether is one of the singular warlike bodies of the land. It is the direct outgrowth of the war with Spain. The members include young men of 21 years and several boys of 7. Yet all are eager to learn the white man's method of making war, and the company is looked upon with great favor by the citizens of Portland.

The brigade was organized in June, while the war clouds were most ominous, by Captain Seid Back, Jr., with Captain B. F. Jones of the Oregon National Guard as drill master. On July 4 the organization was sufficiently well drilled to give a public parade in honor of the victory over the Spanish at Santiago. The entire thirty-seven members turned out and the reception was such as to do honor to an organization of more pretentious character. What mattered it if, after marching for two solid hours, some of the younger members of the organization were picked up by carriages? They deserved as much credit as though the entire brigade had been able to march for three hours and then back to the armory from which they started. It showed that the spirit of Americanism and of freedom was just as strong, if not stronger, than in any corresponding number of white Americans in Portland or in Chicago or San Francisco on that day.

"I tell you what," remarked A. D. Charlton, "it was as inspiring to see the American-born Chinese brigade march up Morrison street to the people of Portland as the return of the rough riders was to the residents of New York."

In military training and instruction Captain Jones found the boys characteristically apt, and it was but a short time after the organization before they were able to make a creditable public appearance. In comparison to the same number of American boys they learned much more quickly, for to them it was strictly business. They were not away from their books and other duties to play. They were there to learn, and learn they did. They seemed to fully understand what was expected of them and they acted accordingly.

The captain and originator of the brigade is Seid Back, Jr., the only son of Seid Back, one of the most prominent and successful merchants on the Pacific coast. He is well educated in English, writes it well and speaks it fluently. He volunteered in the engineer corps, but was rejected on account of poor eyesight. When he found that he could not serve Uncle Sam in the engineering corps he conceived the plan of organizing an American-born Chinese brigade.

CUBA REVERES HER MEMORY.

Beautiful Patriot Who Gave Her Life in Her Country's Cause.

A name which is dear to every patriotic Cuban, one which will be handed down in Cuban history as long as the present race exists, is that of a beautiful woman who heroically gave up her life in the cause of her country, Mathilde Agramonte y Varona.

MATHILDE AGRAMONTE Y VARONA.

She was a beautiful girl of the purest Castilian lineage, but her family was a Cuban family and went with the patriots in their struggles. Her father fell first, then her beloved and only brother was taken by the red hand of war. Not satisfied with taking away all she loved, Spanish hatred found further gratification by destroying the orphaned girl's home before her eyes.

This last outrage roused her to the fighting point. She revolted and thirsted for vengeance, sought out Gen. Maceo and offered her services as a soldier. Although a woman and a young and beautiful one, her desire was granted and she became an officer under the noted mulatto warrior. In a short time she had the opportunity to display her courage and skill. She succeeded in both, but paid for her temerity with her life.

Maceo sent her with a small detachment to check the advance of a Spanish column while some much-needed ammunition was carried to a safe place. She and her comrades repeatedly charged the Spaniards and held them back while the general drew off and secured his munitions of war. In the last charge before the detachment—those who survived—was recalled, the brave woman fell while urging her troops to greater exertion.

Dewey's Expenses.

Admiral Dewey's expenditure in powder and shell to sink the Spanish fleet at Manila, according to his own official report, was about $45,000. The cost for the same item in disposing of Admiral Cervera's fleet off Santiago is between $90,000 and $100,000. Experts regard the figures in both cases as surprisingly low.

Largest in the World.

The Sultan of Turkey has just built at Mecca the biggest house in the world. It is intended for the accommodation of pilgrims, and is capable of sheltering 6,000 persons.

TO PUT OUT FIRES.

New Extinguisher Which Is Said to Be Something of a Novelty.

This fire extinguisher belongs to that class in which a tank or reservoir is partially filled with a solution of sodium bicarbonate, into which are precipitated the contents of a bottle containing sulphuric acid, the resulting gas being used to extinguish the fire, says the Scientific American. Fig. 1 shows the tank provided with the usual discharge pipe, having a nozzle of any desired construction. The tank is provided with a screw closure having a circular wall covered by a screw cap. Secured to the lower side of the closure and projecting into the tank is a yoke, shown in detail in Fig. 2. A glass bottle containing sulphuric acid is held by this yoke so that the cork presses against the cover. Within the cover a lever is fulcrumed and connected by means of a rod with a lever having at its free end a hammer-like formation adapted to bear against the bottom of the bottle. The latter lever is fulcrumed on an arm carrying a pan, the perforated bottom of which lies just above the solution of sodium bicarbonate.

When it is desired to use the extinguisher, the screw-cap is removed, and the lever pressed downwardly. This operation causes the hammer to be forcibly driven against the bottom of the bottle, thus breaking the glass and causing the sulphuric acid to fall upon the pan, whereby the acid is sprayed into the soda solution. The resulting gas is then used to extinguish the fire.

In Fig. 3 we have shown a modification in which the operating lever inclosed within the cover is formed in two sections. These sections may be doubled on each other or they may be extended to the position shown by dotted lines. Instead of being screwed in place, the cover is hinged to a lug. By means of this construction the cover may be quickly displaced and the lever extended for operation.

TWINS MARRY TWINS.

The Groundwork of a Good Comedy Exists in This Strange Mating.

A remarkable wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. McKee, near Wilmington, Ohio, recently, when twin sisters, Misses Adda and Alma McKee, became the brides of twin brothers, William and Frank Brindle. William paired with Adda and Frank with Alma. The extraordinary likeness between the twins, pair for pair, has been the occasion of much confusion and fun, the two brothers and the two sisters are so much alike, inter se, that everybody but their parents long since gave up distinguishing between them. The brothers might as well look in a mirror as at each other; so also the sisters. Will and Frank dress precisely alike; so do Adda and Alma. The Brindle twins never made friends until they met the McKee twins, and vice versa. But, although the brothers are so much alike, Adda never mistakes Frank for Will, or Alma Will for Frank. So, too, it may be said that Frank never mistakes Adda for Alma, or Will Alma for Adda.

Natural Mistake.

According to a story told on a certain Mr. Swadleigh, by his neighbors, he had a mortifying adventure. He has a phenomenally large neck, and lately had occasion to change his laundryman.

On the Sunday morning following this action on his part, it was noticed that he was an unusually long time making his toilet. He called his wife, and she went upstairs.

"Maria," he said, "I wish you would see what is the matter with this shirt. The sleeves are all wrong, and I can't find any holes for the collar buttons."

Mrs. Swadleigh gave one look at it, and went into a paroxysm of laughter. He waited till she had partially recovered, and then said:

"Perhaps you will be good enough to tell me what you are laughing at!"

"George," she replied, faintly, "you are trying to put that shirt on wrong side up! The laundryman starched the wrong end of it!"

Special Privileges.

Journalists are appreciated in Norway. Special facilities are provided them by the state, and now the minister of public works has given the press two scholarships of two hundred and eighty dollars each for journalists who wish to go abroad to study. He has also decided that each of the Norwegian newspapers shall have a free pass over all the state railways. It can be used only on journeys connected with press business, and the press association is bound to see that this condition is observed.

SLY, VERY SLY.

But The Courier is Onto the Little Scheme

For six weeks or more the COURIER has been making an open fight in this campaign telling facts and showing proofs, and thus giving ample time for denial through republican papers. But no denial has come. They slyly waited till the last issue of papers before election and then bring all the statements out that they have at an hour when they will be safe to tell anything they please, as we would have no other issue of the paper in which to set the people right. But it did not work out is slyly as they expected. They prepared a statement of matter in which their candidate Reynolds was interested, and it is to be in all the republican papers of the county in this last issue. We have a copy of this statement, and now we here quote enough to show that we have the genuine article, as will be seen by their papers when they come out.

THE ARTICLE

It first quotes an item in the Butler Herald of Oct. 21 which reads:

"Will the Record please remember that its candidate for Auditor was at one time trustee of Richland township and that he settled with the commissioners twice from memory. Once his books were stolen and another time they were destroyed by fire. At that time Mr. Thomas had all his books saved while Richland township lost all her records and nothing was saved to tell the tale. The taxpayers of this county cannot afford to elect Mr. Reynolds at this time—a fire might occur or some thief might break into the office."

The article mildy denies the above assertions, say they are "false in spirit" but does not claim they are false in fact. It then goes on to say:

"Neither time did Mr. Reynolds settle with the commissioners from memory. In 1892, his vouchers as trustee of Richland were stolen from the postoffice (in Corunna), no doubt by some political enemy; as $250 in county orders were unmolested."

Now, this is too thin. What object would it be for a man to turn burglar and face the penitentiary through political enmity to a man who was no higher than township trustee and was not then seeking any other office? They then go on to say:

"Reynolds proceeded to get duplicate vouchers from his records which were undisturbed, and upon these duplicate vouchers, signaled by the same men who signed the originals, he settled with the commissioners, Hoffelder, Henderson and Lockwood."

Now, we do not understand that the people of Richland deny this statement What they do not seem able to understand is, why their township, which is the only one in the county that has a safe, should thus lose its valuable papers, while good county orders lay in plain sight. They say it is a mystery, and we do not know how to explain it. Neither has it ever been explained.

Again the article says in speaking of the second time Trustee Reynolds lost his vouchers and no other papers. This was when his safe was in M. J. Thomas' store in Corunna. The building burned, and as the Butler Herald says, Thomas' books were saved, those of Richland township were partly destroyed. And again the people of Richland wonder why the vouchers only were lost both times. We shall not try to explain it. But the article we are commenting on does try by saying "the vouchers were in the till at the top of the safe," "but the records, being more compact had only the backs burned off." We shall presume that this statement of the action of that fire is correct. We know of no other explanation and care for none. But we object to the explanation of the way that settlement was made. The article says:

"Mr. Reynolds was fortunate in having a memorandum before the fire as a proof sheet of his standing with the county, and this sheet, showing all the vouchers, afterwards destroyed, was preserved, not being in the safe and upon it is proof sheet, with the aid of his records, he made an honest settlement with the commissioners, Hoffelder, Henderson and Hague." And he refers to the mand "to the records of the settlement which shows that his accounts are absolutely correct."

Now, a word as to this, proof sheet or memorandum, by the aid of which he settled.

The following is a true copy of the first five items of this so-called "proof sheet" and is taken from the original in the commissioners' office, there being 212 in all, everyone being in this same empty stomached form.

WHEN PAID OUT.	VOUCHER NO.	TO WHOM PAID.	FOR WHAT PAID.	AMOUNT. DOL.	CTS.
	1			17	50
	2			12	65
	3			20	00
	4			14	37
	5			12	50

It will be seen that this shows no date, nor to whom paid nor what it was paid out for. Any man any where, could have made up such a list, It not only is no help in making a settlement, but is just such a thing as would create a suspicion in the mind of any man. No wonder the commissioners hesitated day after day, while the business of the township stood still. And Reynold's successor could not take office till some sort of settlement was made, and so the commissioners, seeing no other way, allowed him to settle and turn over the books. How would it do for an auditor to do buisness in such a way?

Then follows a long item about the money Reynolds raised to build an addition to the Corunna school house. We presume that statement is right as no one disputes the fact that he raised some sum of money for that purpose, but did not so use it. The explanation this article makes is that Reynolds took it to pay off a debt incurred by his predecessor. If the writer of the article, who by the way, lives in Auburn. let it be read by the voters of Richland township, they could tell him more about it. We do not object to it. The last point to be noticed is a long statement of how he "reduced the levy and at the same time paid off the township debt." This is not difficult if you take a certain course. One predecessor, T. F. Franks built four school houses, and bought the land for the school houses of the township. Levi Hewit, next built the Corunna house. Reynolds did not build one He had no other use for the money than to pay the debt. The article adds:

"The people of his township are well pleased with his management of the public funds,"

Well, perhaps that will appear one way or the other on election day.

The article concludes;

"The effort to turn voters away from him is an acknowledgment of his honesty and popularity as trustee of Richland township."

In other words, all you have to do to prove a man honest and popular, is to try to "turn votes away from him." There's logic for you. The entire article proves nothing against Mr. Seiler, as he has not had a thing to say against his opponent, nor did he know of the article in the Butler Herald, for had he known of it, it would not have appeared.

The article we are commenting on, can do no good to Reynolds. It only exposes to comment the weak points in his character and work as an officer. And it has, by being brought out thus slyly and at this late hour, forced the COURIER to say what it has heretofore refrained from saying. We have refrained from any mention of the account of that Michigan furniture dealer, which he had against Reynolds, which the latter refused to pay, though numerous Richland people called our attention to it But for this eleventh hour article, put into all the republican papers, we would never have mentioned it even thus briefly and lightly. It is a matter the people up there understand better than we do.

In conclusion we wish to say that Mr. Seiler has made an honorable canvass. He has dealt in no personalities, nor has he appealed to any particular church or order. He has gone to the people at large, in an honest and manly way, asked their support. That is the proper course, and we believe that right-thinking people appreciate the course he has taken.

A Suggestion.

We the undersigned partners in the practice of Medicine, Surgery and Obstetrics, believe it to be the best interest of our patrons that one of us should at all times be free from the contaminating influence of contagious diseases such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, etc., thus minimizing the dangers of carry- the infectious to other susceptible cases and especially those of the lying in room, where the utmost precautions are required. We therefore request that Dr. Casebeer be excused so far as is possible from visiting cases of diphtheria or other contagious diseases on account of eng gements in obstetric practice and that Dr. Matheny be excused from obstetric work while attending any form of contagious diseases.

DRS. MATHENY & CASEBEER.

We Appeal to the People.

For six weeks or more, we have each week appealed to the moral and respectable people of DeKalb county to save this community from the disgrace, of having a man elected to the office of sheriff, who is himself a common and notorious lawbreaker, continually defying the laws of God and man and flaunting his sins publicly in the face of the people he is asking to honor him. Have we not made this plain enough? Then we will make it plainer.

We accuse Neal Platter of being a steady and regular gambler, who plays for money, and in defiance of the laws, a sheriff must swear to see obeyed. He has played repeatedly since his nomination. Neither he nor anyone for him has ever denied it.

We accuse Neal Platter of being a frequenter and shameless patron of houses of ill fame, an associate of lewd characters. This also he has never denied.

We accuse Neal Platter of being a constant and hard drinker, who has within the past week been seen in a "wild old high jinks" in a saloon in Auburn, and presume about every evening in the same business. We know of his taking voters into saloons and getting them drunk, relying on such, largely, for his hope of election. These things he has never denied.

We accuse Neal Platter of incompetency. He and Stroh have both proved their utter unfitness for this high office, by their inability to keep their accounts in proper shape, by the suspicious number of prisoners who have got out of the strongest jail in the country- and by the rent and sawed-up condition of the jail building. Men who will stand around a jail night after night, with shotguns, listening to the sawing of the steel bars, and expecting to shoot at the first man who sticks his body out, are not fit to trust with public property.

So, we appeal to the moral sense of our people. We appeal to the Christian people of DeKalb county, to democrats, to republicans, to populists, to prohibitionists, to all good citizens, to show your manhood and your principle, by coming up to help us save our county from further disgrace. Have we not been sufficiently injured already? We appeal to people of all classes. Get together, talk it over, drop politics, be good citizens only. Help to bury this corrupt candidate so deep, that no such man will ever again shave the effrontery to raise his brazen face to ask for an office, and that no political party, will ever dare to nominate such a one.

Newsboy and Congressman.

James M. Robinson, of Fort Wayne, was born in 1861 on a farm south of that city; his early education was obtained in the country school; at the age of ten he moved to the city, and attended the public schools till he was 14 years of age, when he became collector of the Daily News, a newspaper which he had been a carrier boy for several years; at fifteen he took employment in a shop at Fort Wayne as a machine hand, and from that time till the present has supported and kept house with his mother: while working at his trade he studied law: quitting the shop in 1881 he entered the office of Judge Walpole G. Colerick, who was then in Congress, and in 1882 was admitted to practice in the State and United States Courts: In 1886 and 1888 he was unanimously nominated for prosecuting attorney and elected, filling that position for four years: was defeated in 1892 for the Congressional nomination by the Hon. W. F. McNagny, who served in Congress, but was unanimously nominated by the Democrats in 1896 and elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress

A careful survey of the Twelfth district, supplemented by reports from the different localities, gives assurance that the Hon. James M. Robinson's majority will be even larger that that of two years ago. Mr. Robinson's personal visits and speeches have won him new friends everywhere, but it is not alone immediate contact with Mr. Robinson that has augmented his popularity. His record in congress has elicited nothing but admiration from all fairminded men in the district, irrespective of partisan affiliations, and evoked the commendation even of his political opponets. In the national councils he has proved himself a man of the people, imbued with a desire to shape legislation beneficial to the whole country, and he has stamped himself as a man of ability and of principle, and as one possessing the courage of his convictions. Indeed Mr. Robinson's course in congress is an anomalous one, made so by his strong individuality and force of character. He is one of the few men in the nation who have made an impression during their first terms. The novice in the national legislative body is usually overwhelmed in the current of great minds by which he is surrounded, and few men. in the history of congress, especially young men, have possessed the mental qualifications to force asunder the bonds of precedent and take place with the master minds of the country. Mr. Robinson, in this respect, takes rank with Webster and Clay, with Blaine and Bailey. A week after his entrance into the house, a measure which excited his opposition brought forth a speech that attracted the favorable attention of the oldest minds on the floor, and evoked delighted plaudits from the democratic side. It stamped the young Indianian as a man of mental prowess, and gave him immediate prominence among the veteran statesmen in both houses. In consequence, he was appointed on some of the most important committees, and was recognized as a leader in the democratic section. His speech eulogistic of William S. Holman was one of the best delivered during the entire session.

The Congressional Record gives many instances of Mr. Robidson's faultless and commendable course in the house of representatives. He was one of the most skillful and ready debaters, and figured prominently in all the discussions that marked the last congress, His years of study, and thorough knowledge of law had given him a broad grasp of all public questions, and he added to these advantages by quickly learning the routine of congressional business, and long ere his first term drew to a close he was on an equality with the men of national repute, and acknowledged by them as such.

Throughout his first term, Mr. Robinson was always found fighting for every measure that was calculated to benefit the country, and opposed to everything that had for its object the abrogation of a single tithe of the peoples' liberties. The assaults of the money power on the national treasury found him a dangerous opponent, and he was prominently identified with the movement that forced the abandonment of the administration's policy of issuing $500,000,000 of bonds for the money syndicates of the east. Subsequent events proved the clearness of his vision, for the proposed issue was as unnecessary as it was criminal. Enslaved Cuba had in James Robinson a warm and devoted champion, and he was one of the foremost ones in the assault on the administration's cruel indifference to the suffering of the opposed patriots.

THE COUNTY DEBT.

EDITOR COURIER:—

In a reply to Editor Higley's statement Oct. 21st. He says the democrat and populist papers of the county are publishing the statement that Gunsenhouser and Mr. Shultz have agreed on a plan of paying off the county debt and reducing the levy at the same time. Then he says any set of commissioners with business tact enough to successfully conduct a peanut stand ought to be able to accomplish that feat; then he says let us do a little figuring and see, and then he publishes a column of figures that the sum total is verbatim as I give them and gives the amount of taxes collected each year from 1890 to the present time which I am glad he has done, and when we add the sum totals together from 1890 to 1896, we have an average tax collected per year of $65,743.60, and when we add the tax of the next two years we get an average of $60,355.84, a difference of $5,387.76 more money collected from the pockets of the people each year for the first six years and at the same time the debt was growing larger until it reached the sum of $94,500.00, which sum was found February 1897 during the investigation and for some cause unknown by us he withholds from his readers the fact that the outstanding debt June 1, 1897, was $90,326.21, and June 1, 1898, $42,358.21, a decrease of orders in one year of $47,968.00; also in the same year there was $7,822.30 paid in interest, and when we add the sum of $47,968.00 and $7,822.30 we have applied on the debt the sum of $55,790.30 in one year, but Mr. Higley fails to give his readers these facts.

We will now ask Mr. Higley why he tries to keep the truth from the taxpayers of this county, and if he thinks he can hurt me by such reflections as he makes, any board of commissioners with the ability to successfully run a peanut stand could accomplish the same feat. Has he forgot that there were two republican commissioners on the board when they had the majority for two years. Does Mr. Higley want the people to understand that Messrs. Hague and Bateman knew about enough to run a peanut stand, it would appear from his article that nobody should have much credit for the present financial condition of the county. He has insulted those gentlemen, and especially Mr. Bateman, a candidate for re-election. The people know Mr. Bateman has been on the board for almost three years, is it a fact that he deserves no credit; I believe Bateman has some credit due him and would not rob him of that credit as Mr. Higley does, and we believe Mr. Hague, James H. Rose who was county attorney, Mr. Roby, the present judge, and others who are entitled to some credit for the present financial condition of the county. It would be well for our next judge to pattern some what after the present court for I believe he has saved the taxpayers several hundred dollars, and I would not forget Mr. Shoemaker who is now a member of the board who is giving his utmost attention to the best interest of the taxpayers of the county. Give credit to whom credit is due, this is just and right, I would not be so politically selfish as my friend Mr. Higley, that I would injure any one party to try to hurt some other member of another party. No, Mr. Higley, there has been a reformation in this county within the last two years, and if there has been any republicans that has had a hand in this reform come out like a man and claim it for him. The great buestion with the taxpayers is what becomes of his money, why not let him know, why keep the people again. He says they have reduced the tax levy for 1899 five cents on $1.00 and will produce as much as heretofore because the aggregated valuation is greater now, it will be seen that if Brother Higley is right if we have reduced the levy five cents on the dollar, that would be a reduction of five dollars on the hundred and the levy is but 45½ cents on the hundred; this system of figuring Brother Higley would hardly be qualified to run a peanut stand. He says the Herald published in full, the itemized statement of the expenses of the county for the past year which aggregated but $42,178.23, and Mr. Higley was correct, and how does that sound when there were $5,387.76 more money taken from the pockets of the people each year from 1890 to 1896, than there was the last two years on an average and in the first six years the county was getting in debt more and more, and with this money we could keep up the expenses, build the bridges which cost $10,536.35 and for grades $279 39, and paid for a new roof on court house, floors carpeted below and above, walls repapered, new furniture added to the offices, in fact all public improvement kept up, pay all the officials on a net cost of $42,359.21. How does this compare with the first six years from 1890 to 1896, when it cost $65,743 60 of an average each year and only kept up the necessary expenses of the county and bridges I would say to Brother Higley he had better retire from politics, then he would be a better man. Then he says that our democratic and populist friends do not say they have agreed on a plan to pay off the debt within one year, I would say to Brother Higley that has already been done by the present board; this present November installment and next May installment of taxes will balance the books, Now Mr. Editor, I will close my epistle and hope this may find space in your paper.

I. GUNSENHOUSER.

A PLAIN CASE.

The Dispatch has a rambling article about Dr. Hines, democratic candidate for treasurer. It is evidently intended to help Hines, as every material statement made, reflects credit on him, though several, even of these, have little or no foundation in fact. There is only one point that we care to spend time on, and that is only to make the matter plainer and clearer. The Dispatch thinks there was a "shortage" in the books of Henry Hines when turned over to his successor, S. H. Hine, but says it, the Dispatch, "cannot speak from the books." Why can't he speak from the books if he wants to. They are in the treasurer's office right over in the public square, the window of the office in plain sight of the windows in the Dispatch office. The books are open to the public. The treasurer is polite and gentlemanly and a good republican. Why connot the Dispatch "see the books?" Because it don't want to. It knows there is no shortage, It knows it because a republican board of commissioners, a republican county attorney, Mr. Rose, all capable men, helped to make the settlement and accepted it. And as if this was not sufficiently careful, Expert Ernst, was called in to help them These men decided that the late treasurer had county funds to be turned over, amounting to $25,005.49. When all the men said it, the new treasurer. S. H. Hine accepted it and signed the receipt. We have said the books are open. Anyone who cares to know the truth can easily get at it. All Dr. Hines had to do was to pay over, as administrator of his father's estate, as much money as those in charge said he should. This was readily found out and he promptly paid it. That was all he could do.

FROM CAMP MOUNT

CAMP MOUNT, IND., October 30.—If the public should judge the condition of matters at Camp Mount by the bold headlines of that "most reliable sheet," the Indianapolis Sun, they would be justifiable in believing that mobs and riots were epidemic here. But we truly hope the "Sun cuts no ice" in this matter; anyhow, so far as creating public disfavor. If the Sun had been conservative and including other regiments besides the 157th, we would have accepted the uncomplimenting remarks in better charity. But the Sun came out last week in strong terms against the members of the 157th, insinuating that they were nothing but a set of bums, thieves and drunkards, and at the same time holding up the companies of the 158th from Indianapolis as an example of "modesty and soldierly. We can truthfully testify without prejudice and from observation, that members of the 157th have been shocked and made to blush by the vulgar and ungentlemanly conduct of members of those companies from this vicinity. In saying this we have very little defence to offer for our own regiment, as we denote the same element existing. But we think the Sun should have been more honest in its criticism and remarks and weigh the regiments in the same balance. We are sorry to admit that any member of the 157th has been guilty of such conduct, yet we can in truth say that we have been made to blush more than once, and that such conduct, too, disgraced the uniforms they wore and an insult to the flag under which they had pledged themselves to more than honorably sustain. We do not confine the remaks to Company K alone, but to the whole regiment and other regiments as well. A volunteer army should embody the most stalwart and manly characters of our country, for no others are worthy to fight under such a flag. A few days after the Sun had expelled its wrath in that manner, they sent a representatitive who had boasted that he could drive his paper cart and sell the Sun at the camp. Well, it is needless to say that the Sun received a warm reception—for it rose and set in less than fifteen minutes, and the representative was escorted amid cheers and hurrahs out of the grounds by nearly two thousand soldiers, and all of his papers destroyed. The Sun has ceased to shine at Camp Mount in more ways than one.

Chaplain Medbury delivered his fare well sermon to the 157th regiment this morning. The address was eloquent and touching in every degree. The chaplain took his text from the 9th and 10th chapters of Romans, forcibly portraying the life of the Apostle Paul as a christian soldier, and presenting him in loving terms as our exemplary, not only as soldier but also as a civilian. He broadened off in his discourse in eulogy to our country—her great victories and achievements from her infancy up to the present time, and decided what it constituted to be a patriotic citizen. In whole the sermon was the most eloquent of that theme we have ever heard. Chaplain Medburry has been untiring in his devotions, counsel and watchfulness as to the welfare of every man in the regiment, and has by his loving disposition and christian bearing won a large place in the hearts of the boys. Col. May also gave the boys a talk. He spoke in complimentary terms of the men and the pleasure his association with the regiment had afforded him and regrets in parting. He also said that Col Studebaker had expressed much regret at not being able to attend the regiment during its expiring days, and he and his family presented their respects. Each member of the regiment is the recipient of a button badge and cabinet size photograph from the Colonel. The button badge is an emblem of the 4th Army Corpse with a tiger head center. The background of the button is blue and the army corps design (a four-leaf clover) with letters "U. S. V." upon the leave) is in silver—the tiger head being in brown The army corps design is encircled with the words. "The 157th Indiana." The badge is neat and artistic in every respect and highly prized by all. The photograph is of Colonel Studebaker in dress uniform. The regiment will be paid and mustered out Tuesday and Wednesday next.

EVERYTHING HERE.

Our mammoth Fall and Winter stock is complete in every way. A customer walking through our store last week asked: When do you expect to sell such an ocean of clothing? We have certainly bought heavy, but buying direct from the manufacturer and in such large quantities, we have the advantage of all contemporaries by giving you a much larger stock to select from and at the same time we will give you better prices than can be found elsewhere. Our Overcoat tables are heaped up with the best of New York's manufacture.

We start Overcoats at $3.00 and on up to the $22.00 all-silk lined, nothing finer could be constructed

Men's Winter Suits—we can fit any man.

$4 98 buys a good Cheviot Suit. $5 50 buys a good Cassimere Suit.

$7 50 buys a Scotch Cheviot Suit that at other places would cost you $9 00.

$9.50 buys an all-wool genuine Scotch Cheviot Suit that can not be bought elsewhere under $11.00.

We are offering the Washington Mills Clay Worsted Suits at $10.00, better prices than any year previous.

Ask to see the Black Cheviot and Cassimere Pants we are offering at $1.50 and $1.75. Men's working pants at 50c, 65c, 75c and 95c.

Ulster Overcoats.

When the cold winds whirl around and down your neck just remember to call in and and let us show you Ulster Overcoats at prices that will make you a buyer. We start Ulsters at $3.25.

Boys' Knee Pant Suits.

We know you and your boy will be suited when looking this department over. They start at $1.00 a suit The $1.50 suits are just right for school wear, they are heavy warm and durable.

Gents' Furnishings.

We haven't time to say much of this department. Fleeced Lined Underwear—others have them but we have the garment at 50c that others ask you 65c for. Neckwear, Gloves and Mittens, Shirts and Mackintoshes.

Our Hat and Cap Department has received its share of attention and it is this line that we are all so hard to please in. Come in and look us over we'll do our best to please you.

Woman's Mission.

Successful competition in any field depends on physical health.

FAMILIAR questions about woman's future are constantly asked.

Shall women vote? Shall they practice law? Shall they compete with men in every field? Whatever woman's mission may finally be declared to be, it is certain that something must be done for her physical health.

Ignorance, superstition and mystery surround woman's delicate organism. Heroic efforts to endure pain is part of woman's creed. Many women's lives are a constant struggle with lassitude; many are violently ill without apparent cause, and few indeed are in normal health.

This is all wrong and might be different if women would follow Dr. Hartman's advice. Perhaps the most practical printed talk to women to be found anywhere is in Dr. Hartman's book called "Health and Beauty," which the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail free to women only. It is certain that Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na has proved a perfect boon for women's diseases of the pelvic organs. It treats them scientifically and cures them permanently. All druggists sell it.

"I received your book and commenced the use of your medicine at once," writes Mrs. H. D. Amoss of Greensboro, Ga., to Dr. Hartman. "I took five bottles of Pe-ru-na and two of Man-a-lin. I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking Pe-ru-na I could hardly walk across my room; now I am doing my own work and can walk to church. I shall never cease to thank you for prescribing for me. I had been under the treatment of two doctors but never received any benefit until I commenced taking your medicine. I wish every woman who was suffering as I was would send for one of your books. May God bless you and spare you many years to relieve women who are suffering as I was."

Fifty thousand women will be counselled and prescribed for this year free of charge by Dr. Hartman, president of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, O. All women suffering from any disease of the mucous membrane, or any of the peculiar ills of women, may write to him and the letters will receive his personal attention. Write for special question blank for women.

IT HITS THE SPOT.

When suffering from a severe cold and your throat and lungs feel sore, take a dose of Foley's Honey And Tar when the soreness will be at once relieved, a warm grateful and healing of the parts affected will be experienced and will say: "It feels so good. IT HITS THE SPOT." It is guaranteed.

THIS COLD SNAP

Has Started the Jackets And Capes Going Lively.

How about yourself? Don't you need a nice comfortable wrap of some kind? The quality, fit and style of these Jackets is very pleasing to all who see them. There never was a season when ready-made garments for Ladies and Children were so good and cost so little. It makes wrap selling very easy here.

A good Boucle Jacket, nicely lined throughout, our price..... $4 00

Black and Blue Kersey and Beaver Jackets, box front, nicely lined with satin..... $3.50 to $4.00

Very fine Kersey and Covert Jackets, fly or box front, made up in the latest styles, handsomely lined, $8 00, better qualities at..... $10.00 and $11.50

A new line of Misses' Jackets in pretty shades, up to-date styles, fancy linings..... $3.50 to $8.00

Nice line of Children's Reefers and Cloaks in a variety of colors..... $2.00 to $6 50

This has been a big season on Ladies' Tailor Made Suits. We have a limited number left, in sizes 32 to 38, on which we are naming very low prices.

Fur Collarettes and Collars from $2.00 up. A full line of Fur Trimmings in the desirable kinds, qualities and widths, at popular prices.

UNDERWEAR....

For Men, Women and Children.

The best goods—the lowest prices—come to us for all kinds of underwear, except the scratchy, ill-fitting kinds. We have plenty of underwear bargains, but none of the kind simply made to sell—'tis selling good underwear that built this great underwear business of ours.

BLANKETS....

Buying as we do direct from mill agents we are in position to offer some rare values in Blankets. Got about everything in the line that is worth having—and are selling them at such satisfactory prices that you will be quick to see the honesty of our argument. Look them over before the assortment is broken.

Our Six-Year-Old Daughter.

Our little six-year-old daughter had a very sore throat, badly ulcerated, and coughed almost incessantly. Gave the White Wine of Tar Syrup according to directions and she began to improve immediately and soon got well. Mrs Groves and I recommended it to others and we consider it the very best medicine in use. REV. D. H. GROVES,

His Wife Couldn't Cook.

So he decided to apply for a divorce, for he considered he had good grounds therefor. But the Judge, after hearing his complaint, scratched the bald place on the top of his head, looked over his specs at the poor fellow, shifted the quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and said: "You don't need no divorce. You go home and ask your wife to forgive you. On the way home stop at Davenport's and buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; take it according to directions, and if you can't eat anything in less than a week from biled cabbage up, come up to me and I will give you a divorce and alimon yboth."

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO CHANCE IT.

A heavy cold may lead to pneumonia or consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar taken in time affords perfect security from serious results.

RETURNING SOLDIERS.

The Ft. Wayne, Waterloo and Angola Companies of the 157th were paid off yesterday and came home reaching Ft. Wayne a little after midnight. The Angola and Waterloo companies came through Auburn in the night. Company K. is to be paid off today and will probably reach home tomorrow morning or at noon. The 158th will be paid tomorrow.

Stated It Wrong.

"But for partial republican success in the county," say the Waterloo Press and Butler Record, "no doubt the frauds would have been continued indefinitely." They should have said "partial democratic success," for by defeating Fair, the democrats compelled a settlement of his books, and that brought the forgeries to light, as well as the shortages. In fact the republicans at the last election, only elected one man, Stroh, and he was the only man who did not settle. Had he been defeated, he too would have had to settle in November and not the next March. And his accounts were as truly short as Fair's. But neither he nor Fair were ever punished.

Send In The Returns.

At every polling place, there are blanks in the hands of the election officers, that can be easily filled out and are filled out by the officers. These can be sent to the papers, or if not enough of them, can be copied and the copy sent. We would like to have as many of these reports sent or brought to the COURIER on Wednesday or earlier, so we can get as full election returns next week as possible. Don't forget it please.

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October, our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85, hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear, at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

WILSON,
The Shoe Man.

Some people complain about the wear of their Shoes, but they are not those who wear those waterproof Dongola Shoes sold by Wilson.

A Fair Proposition.

If ladies will go to each shoe store in town and take home a pair of their $2 50 or even $3.00 shoes marked in plain figures and go to Wilson's and ask for a pair of his famous $2.00 shoes. Then if you do not believe that Wilson can and does save you from 50c to $1.00 a yair on such shoes why then its our treat.

Warm Slippers.

We bought a lot of Ladies, Misses and Childrens slippers and notice our seven is before the nine—79c is the price at Wilson's.

Rubber Footwear

is often a source of much annoyance. Buy them at last years prices of Wilson, who keeps more rubbers than any one else hereabouts having sold over 4,000 pairs last year. Wilson has the goods as well as the prices.

Felt and Knit Boots.

Buy them where you have an assortment to pick from, the best makes guaranteed and prices are right. Wilson is the man who keeps them.

Arctics and Overshoes.

Tis often difficult to get a fit. Don't go in to any store and accept of a poor fit. Come to us and we are right in the swim with more styles and more toes than can be found in the county. Wilson's is the place and prices are right.

School Shoes.

Mothers and Fathers often worry about the large amount of cash it takes to buy school shoes for their children. Come in and let us pick you out what is needed and our word for it your money back if they don't wear, at Wilson's.

Mr. Byam does not present the cause of any party or creed, but is employed to address young people's societies along the line indicated in the title of the lecture. He is a young man of fine ability and a forceful speaker. The Knauer ladies quartet will sing. All are invited to attend this service.

—Married on Monday at 8 p. m. Oct. 31st, at the residence of Mr. Fetter's on south Main Street in the city of Elkhart, Ind. by Rev. J. D. Brosy, Mr Harry Gilbert from Kalamazoo, Mich., and Miss May Davis, formerly of Auburn, Ind. The ceremoney was performed in the presence of a number of guests. After congratulations were offered, a nice lunch was served. The occasion was a pleasent one indeed. They will make their home in Elkhart for the present. We wish them a happy and successful future.

The Campaign

Word comes now and then, that this or that democratic candidate is trading off some of the other candidates to get votes for himself. Such is not the case There never was a fairer, cleaner and more honest canvass made than they are making. Every man on the ticket is trying to keep the voting even and give all an equal chance.

It is also said, that the old game of promising positions as deputy, is going on. This also is false. Not a deputyship has been promised. We have asked the candidates, and both they and the supposed deputies deny it. No deputies will be considered till after election

But we have heard that both Platter and Reynolds of the republican side have promised to make certain democrats their deputies. And as certain democrats are openly working for these two men, it looks reasonable that they or some of their family or friends are to have places. This has often been done before. There is no more for a republican candidate to gain and less to lose by such a course, than for a democrat. They hope to turn over democratic votes enough through getting democratic help, to get two or three of their men into office. That is all they can hope for. But when a democratic voter is asked by a democratic politician to vote for a republican candidate, he should know at once, that the old, corrupt business is beginning again. The county has suffered enough by corrupt bargains.

The Ticket

As this is the last week before election, we wish to say a good word for the candidates on the democratic ticket. What we would say for each can be said for all at once, for it is a clean, ticket composed of clean, moral, capable men. Robinson, Powers and Jackman on the district ticket, and Brown, Jenkins, Seiler, Hines, Hathaway, Herrick, Krontz, Campbell, Gunsenhouser and Shultz, Then remember the trouble DeKalb county has passed through and its causes, and remember also, how differently the democrats treated their guilty officers, from what the republicans did theirs, The duty of the voters is plain,

A Boy and Girl

I have a boy at the County Home, eight or nine years old, all right every way, to be let to proper parties on trial, with privilege to keep him till eighteen years old.

COURT

Some cases have been called up and finished. Mostly unimportant cases, as Judge Roby prefers to let some of the longer cases go over to his successor who will be elected next Tuesday.

The pair from Waterloo who were up for keeping a house of bad repute, occupied a day or two and were fined. That jury should be given a chance at some of Auburn's institutions.

The case of the three men, Saxby McIntosh, Mr. White and Mr. Duffield, against the Chase Construction Company on a dispute as to wages, came up. The men had beaten the company in the justice court, and now when called up, it was dismissed and the men paid their judgment amounting to $13.75. The costs were about $35.

Mrs. Wheelock Dead.

Mrs. Alpheus Wheelock, who has been a sufferer so long, died this morning at 1:20, While she had been an invalid many years, and a part of the time helpless, the end was hastened by a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Rosanna McKay Wheelock was born at Dungannan, Ireland, Nov. 30, 1827, and her age was therefore, 71 years and 11 months. The funeral will be at the Baptist church at 2 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 2, conducted by Rev. E. P. Hoyt. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery. Friends are informed that the casket will not be opened at the church, but they can see her at the home tomorrow, from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

The Culture Club

The Auburn Culture Club met with Mrs. Clareuce Raut Saturday afternoon and held a session of unusual interest. Roll call was answered with quotations from favorite authors, which was very valuable and entertaining. Then followed charades, recitations, character sketches and music. A new feature was a recitation in German, by Mrs. Mike Hebel, and she also gave a translation of it in English. At the close of literary program, elegant refreshments were served, and it is generally conceded this was a red letter day for the ladies of the Culture Club.

The Two Speeches

Taylor and Stemen had an audience of less than 100 at the Armory Saturday evening and about a third of these were ladies and persons under age. A few democrats were present Mr. Taylor is a fairly good speaker, and made the most of his subject, which is a weak one, for everybody knows the Dingley tariff is a flat failure, as the great merchant, Marshall Field says It has been a hindrance not a help, to labor interests and to prosperity, Mr. Taylor wants to be the next U. S. Senator, and he wants it so bad he can taste it in his mouth. Well he is an abler man than Fairbanks.

MUSICAL CRIES OF DEPOT CALLERS.

Chants of Chicago's Railway Station Guards While Announcing the Various Trains.

WHEN the impressarios who manage the great opera companies are out of singers and are looking for a few choice tenors and baritones to stop the gaps in their troupes they might do worse than gather in some of the men who make a living by calling trains in the various railroad depots of Chicago, says the Sunday Chronicle. These have voices of strength and power and penetration, and although they are probably unconscious of the fact their announcements of trains are musical to a degree.

The train caller has a peculiar position, and he is a necessary adjunct to the railroad business only in a city like Chicago, which is the initial point of the trips of all trains. That is, no train arrives at this city and continues on its journey. This is the end of the road for all of them, and passengers wishing to go further in any direction must change cars. This usually necessitates a wait of more or less duration either in the depot at which the passenger arrives or at one in some other part of town to which he is hurried in an omnibus.

When a man or woman has been traveling a day or two across the country and is dumped in a big noisy depot in Chicago, hustled into a bus with a lot of other tourists and rattled across town to another depot equally large and noisy and confusing, with clanging bells and arriving and departing trains, it is a bit difficult to know just what is going on. The tourist is likely to become confused and not remember over what road the remainder of the journey is to be taken. The time the train is to leave is also a puzzling point, and to guard against mistakes and the missing of trains by inexperienced travelers the train caller is employed to announce every train half an hour or so before it leaves.

When a Chicago man is going on a journey he, of course, knows what road he is going over and what hour and minute the train leaves, and times himself to arrive at the depot a few minutes before train time. For him there is no need of a caller. But it is to the tired traveler who is going across the country, the woman with half a dozen children, the tourist who never before took a journey of over ten miles that the caller comes as a boon and a blessing. After sitting perhaps for hours in a big depot, watching with wide open eyes the hurried coming and going of the crowds of people, the starting of dozens of suburban trains, fearful that each one is the train that he should take, the man who never saw Chicago before and haply never wants to again after his tiresome experiences on the road, sees a man in uniform stroll into the waiting-room, lift up his voice, and in slow resonant tones begin to call out an announcement about the next through train that is to leave.

Every word he utters is eagerly listened to by the tourist, who anticipates hearing the name of the road over which he is to travel or the city to which he is bound. If he does not hear them he sinks back in his seat satisfied. That is not his train. He is all right thus far. In half an hour or so perhaps the caller walks leisurely into the big echoing room again, and he is watched and listened to by every one as he begins his slow chant. It is the train of another road this time, and as he announces the name of the road the people who have tickets for that line begin to gather up their effects, straighten out their children and put on their coats. As he concludes with the welcome news that "the train is ready" a small procession hurries out the door toward the train shed and the disappointed ones settle back in their seats to wait the glad moment when their trains shall thus be announced.

Develops a Chant.

In the course of time naturally the announcer develops a chant or song to which he fits the announcements. It comes easier than a plain recitation of the name of the road and the principal stations at which the train will stop. He is obliged to speak loudly and clearly enough to be heard in every part of the waiting-room, and to accomplish this end he causes his voice to rise and fall in regular cadence, and doing this day after day it becomes as natural for him to sing the calls as if he were chanting a popular ditty of the hour. It is largely unconscious music on the part of the caller. He does not stop to think about the tune he is chanting, the key in which he sings or the pitch of his voice. His business is to let people know about the trains and not to beguile their weary moments with song. But he is a picturesque and welcome feature of a very prosaic and humdrum place, the big depot in a big city.

The man who does most of the calling at the Union depot is young and good-looking and possesses a splendid voice. His name is Tom Kennedy, and he seems to be as happy as is possible amid the depressing surroundings of tired passengers, crying babies, missent baggage and late trains which serve to make life miserable for most of the employes around a railroad station. He has four big railroads to keep tab on—the Burlington, Alton, Milwaukee, and Pennsylvania—and they manage to send out a good many trains every day and evening. This gives Kennedy little opportunity to make money on the side or tell funny stories to the bus drivers, for he is kept fairly busy watching the clock and remembering what train is next on the list to be announced. Shortly after 8 o'clock every evening he enters the ladies' waiting-room of the depot, and in a soporous monotone he chants this melody:

"Panhandle, Pennsylvania, train is ready. Passengers going south and east for Logansport, Kokomo, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, Columbus, Pittsburg, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Washington. Train leaves down-stairs gate No. 4."

His voice rings through the lofty room and is echoed from the vaulted ceiling, and as he rests after enunciating the name of each city there is no opportunity of mistaking what he says. The latter portion of the announcement, referring to the train leaving downstairs, is delivered a minor third lower than the other part in a sad, heart-rending way, as if Tom Kennedy deeply regretted the necessity of having that train go out.

In direct contradistinction to Kennedy, at least as shown by the tone of his voice in calling, is the fat, jolly policeman who makes the announcements at the Dearborn Station on Polk street. While the Union depot man sings in a minor the policeman pitches his voice in a major which seems to express fully the content with which he views the world, and even in his position as arbiter of all troubles that come to the traveling public. His job is even more trying than that of the man in the Union depot, for he has more roads to look after. The Erie, Grand Trunk, Santa Fe, Eastern Illinois, Wabash and Monon Roads are under his care, so far as announcing the trains is concerned, but he manages to keep plump and good-natured, and it is reflected in his voice.

He has manifold duties, for he is depot policeman in addition to being caller, and when he is not telling people what train to take he is stopping somebody from smoking in the waiting-rooms or directing some luckless stranger to a hotel or a theater. He keeps an eye on the clock, however, and never misses his turn at announcing the approach of the time for the departure of a train. When the minute hand reaches the proper hour in the evening he walks to the center of the waiting-room, and, without striking a pose or putting on any grand opera airs, he chants the following:

"Chicago and Erie train—going east. Huntington, Marion, Columbus, Niagara Falls, New York, Boston and all points east."

At another time he makes this simple announcement:

"Chicago and Grand Trunk train going east. All aboard."

He does not vary the theme particularly, and while his rendition may be lacking in color it certainly is full of atmosphere. His voice is rotund, and what might be called, for want of a better term, comfortable. He seems at peace with all the world, except probably the farmer who insists on smoking a villainous pipe in the ladies' waiting-room, and for him there is short shrift. The officer says that the number of duties he is called upon to perform as depot policeman and official train announcer hardly leaves time for such a rendition of the train and station obligations as might be wished, but he does the best he can. There are five waiting-rooms, and were a man to go to each one and render a long-winded call he would not be half through with the last room before a train would be ready on some other road, and therefore he has to cut them short at times.

But the star caller of the city is at the Grand Central Station, Harrison street and Fifth avenue. His name is George Gimberling, and he has a voice like that of Campanari. The station has probably the loftiest ceiling in the waiting-room of any in the city, and an ordinary voice would soon get lost among the marble pillars and things up there. But not so with Gimberling's. He knows just how to modulate it and throw it and use it so that every one in the depot will know what is going to happen out on the tracks. He has a number of roads on his hands, too—the Baltimore and Ohio, Great Western and Wisconsin Central—and the big waiting-room is generally filled with passengers waiting the calling of their trains. When George ges through nobody has to ask the college graduate policeman what the caller said. They all hear him. He takes his post near the center of the big room and begins like this:

"Baltimore and Ohio train now ready for Garrett, Chicago Junction, Mansfield, Wheeling, Bellaire, Grafton, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and intermediate points. Train leaves track 9 in fifteen minutes."

All this is delivered in a true, clear baritone voice, which he uses well. Every word is pronounced clearly and distinctly, and after the name of every city he rests long enough for the mental impression produced by the enunciation of the name to sink into the minds of the listeners. The voice is full of melody and is under complete control of the caller. Were Gimberling to take up music for a while he would not have to call trains any more.

At the Rock Island and Lake Shore depot the caller does not pay much attention to the musical part of his work. He calls the trains in a jerky way, using one theme, which he makes fit all announcements, regardless of what he says. He does not chant, but rather speaks, and his voice is not musical. It needs cultivation to bring it up to the standard of Kennedy and Gimberling and the big policeman at the Dearborn station. The theme he uses might well be employed for a waltz melody when he makes this announcement:

"Passengers going on the Rock Island and Pacific train. Rock Island and Pacific all aboard."

He does not call loudly and reverberantly, filling the waiting-room with his voice, but prefers to walk to different parts of the room and make the announcement in rather a low tone, which fits well with the subdued hum of voices in the waiting-room.

Altogether the callers at the depots form an interesting study of voice culture, or rather lack of culture. Each of them chants in a different key and uses a different theme from the others, and probably none of them ever stopped to think that he was really singing what he said. Some day the hit of the opera season may be a young man who discovered he had a voice while announcing trains.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Cuba has changed its advertisement from "help wanted" to "employment wanted."

More than 500,000 sewing machines are made in this country annually, which is ninety per cent. of the production of the world.

According to the figures recently compiled by the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore, the export trade of our south Atlantic and gulf ports has increased from $223,779,533 in 1888 to $391,472,736, showing a net gain of $167,694,203 in ten years.

When a man forfeits $5,000,000 of his inheritance in order to marry the woman of his choice it becomes important to remember that he has another $5,000,000 securely "salted down." With that sum in hand any tolerably thrifty young man would undertake to keep the wolf from the door.

The United States has more than six times the railroad mileage of any other country. We began seventy-two years ago with a tram road, extending from the granite quarries at Quincy, Mass., to the Neponset River, a distance of about five miles, and have today nearly 200,000 miles of track.

The report of the committee of the Privy Council on education in Scotland for the year 1897-98 states that in an estimated population of 4,222,784, an increase of .8 per cent. for the year, the number of scholars on the registers of inspected schools was 716,893, an increase of 1.05, the number in average attendance being 605,389, an increase of 2.1.

The main difference between the Chinese and Japanese, according to a German professor, is that the Japanese insist on superintending their own work as well as doing it, whereas the Chinese are contented to work indefinitely under foreign guidance. For this reason, he thinks, China is destined to get under European control.

A missionary journal notes some signs of progress in China. Chinese merchants are educating their sons in English schools at an expense of $8 a month. The barrow gives way to the bicycle, and the sedan chair to the carriage and pair. The anti-foot-binding movement and the Chinese Ladies' School also indicate the great change which is going on in China.

In an international chess match conducted some time ago between a set of players in Brooklyn and a company in London, the different moves, as they were successively made, were transmitted by cable according to what is called the "human relay system." In the office at Cape Canso, Nova Scotia, sat an alert operator. As soon as his trained ear caught the click of a message from New York, his hand pressed a button, and transmitted the news to Watervelt, Ireland. Thence another operator, waiting with his hand on the instrument, despatched the word to London.

From the data recently compiled by The Railway Age the past nine months of the present year have witnessed greater activity in railway building in the United States than has any corresponding period of time since 1893. According to the data from which we cite, there were 2,200 miles of railway constructed in the United States up to October 1, 1898. If this rate of increase continues until the year expires, there will be not less than 3,000 miles of track laid by January 1st next in the United States. Most of the progress made in railway building up to the present time has been restricted to the southwest, although Minnesota, in the northwest, has participated more extensively in the general improvemnt than has any other individual state. Texas, Alabama, Missouri, Louisiana and North Carolina have each made heavy gains.

The remarkable growth during the past three years of the bicycle's popularity in countries where it was before almost a stranger offers new and great opportunities for manufacturers whose product is strictly first class and whose enterprise and genius are constantly alert. The exportation of wheels, as is shown by trustworthy statistics, has come to be an exceedingly important feature of the industry in America, and the foreign demand for American machines next year and thereafter is a matter of much consequence to the manufacturers of this country. The past has demonstrated that cyclists on the other side of the water are quick to appreciate the advantages of strong and speedy mounts. Whenever our manufacturers have made desirable changes in their models it has required only a very short time for foreigners to become aware of the fact and to make investigations regarding it.

The terror of the Spanish authorities with reference to the possibilities of a Carlist uprising has led to several amusing incidents. For instance, great excitement was caused the other day in Valladolid by a poorly dressed man, who was observed running through one of the principal streets and shouting at the top of his voice, "Long live Don Carlos! Long live Don Carlos!" The man was at once arrested, and to his evident amazement, taken to the police station, where he inquired in great perplexity what offence he had committed. When he was told that he had emitted treasonable cries his perplexity seemed only to be increased and when he was reminded that he had been heard cheering for Don Carlos, he burst out laughing and explained that the Don Carlos who had aroused his enthusiasm was a certain Don Carlos Garcia who had just given him 15 pesetas in mistake instead of 15 reals.

The Duke of Devonshire and Sir John Gorst signed a report just issued, on elementary education in England. They find that the elementary education act is often a failure so far as practical operation is concerned. It is estimated that in the middle of 1897 there were (in England and Wales) 397,162 children between eleven and twelve years of age, belonging to the class usually attending public elementary schools, but no fewer than 19,261 of these were not accounted for on the school registers. Between the ages of twelve and thirteen the leakage amounted to 94,450 out of an estimated total of 589,138 children, and between the ages of thirteen and fourteen to the serious number of 373,782 out of an estimated total of 560,131. The committee regard this leakage as very grave. The attempt to impart a sound elementary education to children who leave school at too early an age must, they say, result in failure; and the education of people cannot be made satisfactory until this defect has been cured.

The longest piece of surface railroad in the United States on which electricity has been substituted for steam is the Buffalo and Lockport, a twenty-five mile feeder of the Erie system. It was formerly operated by four steam locomotives, and now runs four electric locomotives. The point of widest interest in the change is that more frequent trains are run and at a faster rate of speed, which has resulted in a passenger traffic twice as large as formerly. The surprise in the matter to electricians is that locomotives are used instead of the multiple-unit system. Where it is not necessary to carry the source of power the use of a locomotive is a waste of energy. For this reason the results on the Buffalo and Lockport road are not regarded as a thorougly satisfactory demonstration of the value of electricity in a suburban service. The significant feature is the doubling of the traffic with the increased service, as this points a way in which the steam railroads may recover a part, at least, of the business taken from them by the more convenient street railways.

When laws are enacted to even up the rights or the privileges of the sexes, the purpose generally is to give the women something in the way of legal privileges from which she had been barred by the selfish law-making men. An exception, perhaps the only one, is in a new law in Maryland, which is to take effect on January 1 next. This gives the husband the same marital rights in his wife's property as the wife has under existing law in her husband's property. Each will have dower rights. The change gives to the husband more of property rights than he enjoyed under the now obsolete common-law right of "courtesy." The latter was a contingency upon the birth of a child, and gave the husband a life interest in all the landed property of his wife. The husband's new rights fasten on the wife's property the moment she brings it into matrimony, or acquires it thereafter by inheritance, gift or purchase, unless steps have been taken to keep him out of it. Should he not waive them, or by joining her in a deed of her property convey it to a purchaser, his claim to each piece or parcel to the extent of one-third continues until after her death, when he becomes a life tenant of his one-third. The new right will attach even though the parties are separated, but not absolutely divorced. In brief, the statute aims to give both husband and wife, widow and widower, respectively, the same or an equal share in each other's property under like conditions at death, and equal rights in property in all respects.

Pathetic Death of a Volunteer.

The surgeons and nurses at St Mary's Hospital were unusually distressed over the death a few days ago of Private Henry J. Wind, of Company D., Third New York Regiment. The surgeons, after a consultation, decided that his only chance of recovery lay in the performance of a delicate surgical operation. The surgeons did their work well, but the patient collapsed under the knife. They carried him back to his cot in the ward, and realized that he had but a few minutes to live. The soldier, who seemed to understand his own condition fully, clutched one of the doctors by the sleeve and said: "Oh, just pull me through, doctor; my mother needs me. She needs me bad." He fell back, breathing stertorously, and a nurse passed her soothing hand over his hot brow.

At that moment the occupants of the room were electrified by the strangely appropriate strains of a song that floated through the window from the street. A quartet of young men with exceptionally good voices was passing the hospital singing:

Just break the news to mother, she knows how I love her;
And tell her not to wait for me, for
I'm not coming home;
Just say there is no other can take the place of mother;
Then kiss her dear, sweet lips for me, and break the news to her.

Almost at that very moment the sufferer gasped and was dead. The singers passed on down the street and the quiet in the ward was broken by the low sobbing of the nurses. There were tears, too, in the eyes of the surgeons.—Philadelphia Record.

Therefore He Should.

He bought two tickets for Wayne and with her boarded the Michigan Central mail train yesterday afternoon. He wore a loud brown checked suit. His tie was red and green and in the center sparkled a paste diamond that must have weighed half an ounce. She was dressed in green, and a yellow rose bobbed up and down a-top of her hat. The conductor took up the two tickets for Wayne and when he again entered the coach after the train had pulled out from that station he was surprised to see the pair still in the seat they had taken at Detroit.

The conductor stopped in the aisle beside them and said, "Fare."

The chap looked up. "Ah paid de fahs once," he said.

"Your tickets were to Wayne," was the only response of the man in blue.

"We's gwine t' Ypsilanti," chirped in the woman.

"Have to collect two more fares," repeated the conductor.

"Ah paid de fahs once, I tol' yo'," said the man again.

"Well, you'll have to pay the rest," snapped the official, "or I'll stop the train and put you off. Are you going to pay?" The conductor's right hand rose toward the bell rope.

The chap in the loud clothes turned to the woman in green. "Will I pay de man?" he asked.

She drew herself up and replied with a sneer of dignity, "Of co'se pay de man. He wouldn't a-ast yo' if he didn't want the money."—Detroit Free Press.

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

From the Mountaineer, Walhalla, N. Dakota.

The remorse of a guilty stomach is what a large majority of the people are suffering with to-day. Dyspepsia is a characteristic American disease, and it is frequently stated that "we are a nation of dyspeptics."

Improper food, hurried eating, mental worry, exhaustion; any of these produces a lack of vitality in the system, by causing the blood to lose its life-sustaining elements. The blood is the vital element in our lives, and should be carefully nurtured. Restore the blood to its proper condition and dyspepsia will vanish.

For example, in the county of Pembina, North Dakota, a few miles from Walhalla, resides Mr. Earnest Snider, a man of sterling integrity, whose veracity cannot be doubted. He says:

The Doctors Disagreed.

"I became seriously ill three years ago. The doctor gave me medicine for indigestion, but I continued to become worse. I had several physicians at intervals who gave me some relief, but nothing permanent.

"I read in the newspapers articles regarding the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally concluded to try the pills. I purchased six boxes. This was five months ago. The first box gave me much relief. I continued taking the pills, and after using four boxes was cured."

The Cause of Yawning.

Yawning is commonly caused by temporary deficiency of the air supply in the lung. When the body is wearied and in a sleepy condition the process of respiration is sometimes involuntarily suspended for a few seconds. Nature at once, however, comes to the rescue, and by setting up a spasmodic action in the muscles of the mouth, throat, and chest, produces a deep inspiration, which compensates for the stoppage of the breathing, and is known as a yawn. There is another cause, which produces what may be called the yawn sympathetic—an involuntary tendency to imitation.

Tender Flesh.

The more tender the flesh, the blacker the bruise. The sooner you use St. Jacobs Oil, the quicker will be the cure of any bruise, and any bruise will disappear promptly under the treatment of the great remedy.

Varying Circumstances.

"You should learn to meet misfortune with a smiling face," said the off-hand philosopher.

"Of course," answered Willie Wishington, "that's easily said, and, as a rule, practicably. But when your misfortune happens to be a prescription for quinine, it isn't so easy."—Washington Star.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?

Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care.

No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.

Gray hair is starved hair.

The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

English Orphan Asylums.

In 1750 a Captain Thomas Coram founded the first English orphan asylum. The day and hour of the opening was announced by advertisement and a tremendous crowd of women gathered before the door to place their children in the home. The mothers proceeded to quarrel for admission and a feminine riot ensued. The system of admission was changed. They were examined by a jury and admitted or refused by a white or black ball. In a few years all the asylums of London were overrunning with abandoned babies, who were well fed and cared for, and through the length and breadth of England the poor sent their babies to these homes. It became a regular business to transport them. One day at Highgate they arrested a man who had four new-born babies hidden in the paniers of his saddle. He said he made £8 a week at this business, not counting the sale of clothing, for he turned them into the asylum as naked as they came into the world and sold the clothing as his perquisite. To-day entrance is more difficult. Once received they are sent to the country to be cared for until 7 years of age, when they are returned to the city and the boys taught a trade and the girls go out to service. —Chicago Times-Herald.

The Mirage of Swiss Lakes.

This mirage often produces strange illusions. When the boat nears the point where the ray of light is a tangent to the surface of the water, the mirage of the sky is thrown upon the boat, and the latter seems to sail in the air. When the air is warmer than the water, as in summer, the concave side of the refracted ray of light is turned toward the water, and the objects are brought into sight which are really hidden. Sometimes the temperature of the different strata of the air varies irregularly; then the rays of light undergo abnormal refractions which are not always the same for the upper and lower parts of objects. Consequently the objects are sometimes diminished and sometimes magnified. Small houses thus distorted are made to look like palaces; their color is changed by the diffusion of light, and they are given an air of picturesque grandeur.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS AND DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings and Doings that Are Odd, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

Up with the Times.

The Night Watchman—I saw you sitting in the entryway under your porch steps at 4 o'clock the other morning. Anything wrong?

Jaggers—No. On my way home from the club, that's all. Long journey, you know; makes a fellow feel a little tired. Entryway is my coaling station.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Point for Science.

"Well, those people in Havana have shown dogged perseverance, anyway."

"That only goes to prove that people become what they eat."—Cleveland Leader.

The Savage Bachelor.

"What can equal the warmth of a true woman's love?" asked the dearest girl.

"Her temper," replied the savage bachelor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Chaplain's Duty.

"What are the duties of a regimental chaplain?"

"To avoid swearing at the rations and thus set a good example for the other fellows."—Philadelphia North American.

Knew Her Rights.

"When you get a husband, Susan, you'll find a woman has no rights, excepting to slave for him."

"Well, ma'am, I shall have one right left, and that's my right hand, and if he comes expecting me to slave for him he'll have that, too."—Pick-Me-Up.

Success Assured.

Manager—Yes, I've decided to accept your war play. It'll be sure to go. There can't be any doubt of it.

Author—Ah, I'm glad you think so well of it. I——

Manager—Oh, I don't think much of the play itself. It doesn't amount to much. But I've just succeeded in getting a full suit of clothes that was worn by a soldier who fell at El Caney. This suit will be worn by the star, and it won't make any difference about the play. There's millions in it.—Cleveland Leader.

Embarrassing.

"I felt really sorry for Mr. Meekton the other night," said the man who is given to gossip. "You know, he used to be quite a singer in his youth."

"Did his voice fail him?"

"No. He didn't give it a chance. Some thoughtless person asked him to sing that old bass solo, 'Let All Obey,' in the presence of his wife."—Washington Star.

A Distinction.

"Isn't that new neighbor of yours rather eccentric?" inquired the commercial traveler.

"No," answered one of the village's prominent citizens. "He ain't rich enough to be called 'eccentric.' He's just a plain crank."—Washington Star.

The Reason.

Johnny—Pa, why is it that poets wear their hair so long?

Pa—It is a rule of the papers not to pay for poetry, and it costs money to get one's hair cut, my son.—Boston Transcript.

Without Precedent.

Twynn—There is something very odd about this invention of Bunting'a.

Triplett—What is odd about it?

Twynn—He does not claim that it will revolutionize the whole industrial world.—Detroit Free Press.

He Got It.

Weary Willie—Say, Dusty, you wants to strike dat house frum yer wisitin' list.

Dusty Rhodes—Why?

Weary Willie—Cos' I axed 'em fer hot sausage 'en dey sicked de dog on me.—New York News.

A Thorough Success.

"How about that Klondike mining company you were interested in about a year ago? I thought it was going to be such a big thing?"

"It was a big thing. We disposed of nearly $500,000 worth of stock."

His Nemesis.

Cholly—Ah—er—I've paid my suit to your daughter for a long time, sir, and——"

Gotrox—Well, I've looked up your past life and think you'd better pay it to your tailor first.—New York Journal.

Only That.

Hickson—Why is it that everybody in your office dresses so much better than you do? Even the youngest clerk wears much finer clothes than you have on.

Barker—Well, you see they all get salaries. I'm just the proprietor of the place.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Downright Oppression.

"Bigley's wife seems to rule him as with a rod of iron."

"I should say she did. It's an outrage the way she treats him. Why, do you know that she made him account for every cent he saved by letting his whiskers grow while he was in the army? He had to reckon it up at 15 cents a shave and turn the amount over to her when he got home!"

Helping Him Out.

"Too bad about Henderson."

"What's wrong with him?"

"He has suddenly gone blind."

"That is tough—but stay! I owe him $50. I'll give him a sight draft for it."

At Drill.

Captain (to a recruit who has lost a button on his coat)—You, there, are you beginning disarmament already?"—Lustige Blaetter.

She Remembered.

Mrs. Waring—Why is it that you will not allow your husband to have a lady typewriter? Men are so much more expensive, you know.

Mrs. Asheroft—I recognize that fact, but I was his typewriter once myself.

Coming and Going.

"They say Miss Eastly has married a coming man."

"Yes; but it is the general supposition that she'd never have got him if she hadn't gone after him with all her might."

Experienced.

"What excellent taste the Hambys have exhibited in decorating and furnishing their house."

"Well, that ought not to be surprising. Mr. Hamby has been chief sampler in a wholesale tea house for the past ten years."

Queer.

Managing editor—That fellow who went out is an enigma to me.

City editor—Why?

Managing editor—He had an article which he wanted us to publish and didn't say that he had been taking our journal ever since the first number was issued, or that he would order fifty copies of the paper containing his piece.

She Had Heard It Before.

"I'll just tell you one thing," he began, but she interrupted him.

"Don't," she cried; "hunt up some other subject. You've told me all about yourself so often that I'm weary."—Cleveland Leader.

Trouble Enough.

"Cawn't go with you this mowning, Reggie."

"Deah me, what's the mattah?"

"Mattah enough, I assure you. My man, don't you know, is going to take a two days' vacation. It weally bweaks me all up.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New to Select Circles.

Uncle Reuben (to Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Clerk, 5:30 a. m.)—"Where's the well?"—New York World.

The Reason.

DeWitte—I don't believe horseback riding will ever become obsolete.

Miss Redignote—Think not. Why?

DeWitte—There will always be women who will look well in a riding habit.—Peoria Journal.

Base Ingratitude.

"Some men are ungrateful wretches."

"Why?"

"When I was passing old Rockingham's packing house, last night, I saw that it was on fire, so I broke into the office, called him up by telephone, and told him about it."

"Yes?"

"Well, he called me all kinds of hard names for not ringing in a fire alarm instead of wasting time talking to him."

A Desperate Case.

"Is Timpson such dreadfully poor pay?"

"Poor pay? Even his lawyer can't get any money out of him."—Chicago Record.

Promptly at the Front.

"Capt. Mizzentop is an active officer."

"Active? He was the first man on the lecture platform after the war closed."—Chicago Record.

Death Outstrips Success.

John R. Grant died the other day in Washington. He was 55 years old, and for twenty-five years had been first perfecting and then trying to have recognized his air-bag process for raising sunken ships. For a quarter of a century he worked on his invention through every conceivable difficulty, and at last, at a meeting with Lieutenant Hobson, succeeded in convincing that officer that the best means he could find for raising the sunken Spanish ships off Santiago was the long-struggling air-bag process. The scheme was tested and the contract awarded, but the energy that had overcome so many obstacles could not endure success so sudden and complete. Fate made her last move, and death, the intruder, came upon him in the hour of his triumph.—Philadelphia Press.

Some idea of the educational influence of the British museum can be gathered from the fact that over 1,000,000 persons visited it last year. The Sunday attendance of about 87,000 fully justifies the innovation of Sunday opening.

A MATTER OF SUPPORT.

The Two Men Did Not Mean the Same Way.

The young fellow, with a business which was netting him about $4,500 a year and growing slowly but surely arrived in Washington one day from the thriving town of Chicago, and at once proceeded to the northwest part of the city, where a very charming young lady lives with her father and several other members of her family, all very nice people and extremely well-to-do, and all of them very friendly to the young man, except the father, who is one of those fathers all of us know about, who always seem to have got into the family by mistake. The old man is ambitious socially, and would rather his daughter would marry a diplomat on $4 a week than the sharpest young business man in ten States. It is rather remarkable that such men remain American citizens, but they do. About two hours after the young chap had gone into joint conference with the young lady he begged to be excused, and carefully proceeded into the library to have a talk with papa.

Being somewhat of a hustler it was not a great while before the caller stated his case fully, notwithstanding he had not been cheered on by an admiring father.

"Can you support my daughter, sir," the older man said with pompous dignity, "in the manner to which she has been accustomed?"

"I do not recognize your authority to ask me that question," replied the young man stiffly, and the older one nearly tumbled over.

"What do you mean, sir?" he inquired, jumping up.

"Just what I say. I will never be called on to support your daughter. She will be my wife, and if I don't support my wife in a manner to which she has been accustomed it will be her privilege to object. She has not been accustomed to anything as my wife, but that is no sign she won't be, and all you need to do is to give us a chance."

It almost floored the father by its novelty, but the argument won, and the young man is getting a cage ready in Chicago for his bird.—Washington Star.

The Love of Home.

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, speaking of her work, mentioned particularly the love of home and the desire to keep families together that she found in the poor woman of the tenements. Her object in emphasizing the point was to show the need of nurses who could go out among the poor in their homes, but it was interesting to the student of humanity and sociology.

One poor old woman, Mrs. Lathrop said, had a miserable little room, but she had worked for years to get and keep it and have all her poor belongings around her. If she would have gone to Mrs. Lathrop she would have been more comfortable, and could have been better cared for, but this little place was her own, and she wished to stay there and die. For a long time Mrs. Lathrop could not understand why another woman refused to leave her home. It was evident that she wanted to have the care which Mrs. Lathrop could give her, but she could not be persuaded to leave. The truth came out finally. A brother, who had been noticed around the little tenement, had spinal trouble and had to be supported. If the woman left home her husband would not support him. So the woman, in her own sickness and misery, refused to be aided at the expense of her brother. Other women have children and perhaps drunken husbands—a miserable home, but it is a home, the children are there, and if they are once put into institutions it is doubtful if they can ever be brought together again.—New York Times.

What Cuba's Loss Means to Spain.

The loss of Cuba means to Spain the loss of the very sustenance of the nation. In the same way the loss of your appetite means starvation to your body. If any reader of this notice wants to fully enjoy hearty meals, we can recommend Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It cures indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation.

Sorry for 'Em.

"I see the Spaniards at Matanzas are compelled to eat their mules to keep from starving," remarked the short man as he laid aside the paper.

"Yes, I was just reading about it," said the man with the chin whiskers. "It is too bad; I actually feel sorry for them."

"Who, the Spaniards?"

"No—the mules." — Detroit Free Press.

Dr. Thomas Popham,
Philadelphia:

Your Popham's Asthma Specific has nearly cured me. I have been afflicted with asthma since infancy, (20 years). For two years previous to the use of your medicine the disease had become periodical, coming on every morning in severe paroxysms. I used every asthma medicine I heard of, without success. I had become very weak and disheartened; had almost despaired of receiving any benefit from medicine; saw your medicine advertised in the paper and sent for some immediately; used it twice a day for one year, and have had but one paroxysm for the past six months. Yours truly,

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. THREE HAPPY WOMEN.

Each Relieved of Periodic Pain and Backache. A Trio of Fervent Letters.

Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my health was gradually being undermined. I suffered untold agony from painful menstruation, backache, pain on top of my head and ovarian trouble. I concluded to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and found that it was all any woman needs who suffers with painful monthly periods. It entirely cured me.—Mrs. GEORGE WASS, 923 Bank St., Cincinnati, O.

For years I had suffered with painful menstruation every month. At the beginning of menstruation it was impossible for me to stand up for more than five minutes, I felt so miserable. One day a little book of Mrs. Pinkham's was thrown into my house, I sat right down and read it. I then got some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I can heartily say that to-day I feel like a new woman; my monthly suffering is a thing of the past. I shall always praise the Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me.—Mrs. MARGARET ANDERSON, 363 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of painful menstruation and backache. The pain in my back was dreadful, and the agony I suffered during menstruation nearly drove me wild.

Now this is all over, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine and advice.—Mrs. CARRIE V. WILLIAMS, South Mills, N. C.

The great volume of testimony proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safe, sure and almost infallible remedy in cases of irregularity, suppressed, excessive or painful monthly periods.

"The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Queer Custom of the Ancients.

The ancients, in order to enjoy the scent of roses at meals, had an abundance of the fragrant petals rained down upon the guests. Heliogabalus, in his folly, carried the matter so far that the cloud of blossoms he ordered shaken down over one of his banquets actually suffocated some of his friends. The Romans, during their meals, reclined on cushions stuffed with rose leaves, or made a couch of the leaves themselves. The floor, too, was strewn with the lovely blossoms. Cleopatra, at an enormous expense, procured roses for a feast which she prepared for Antony. They were laid two cubits thick on the floor of the banquet-room and nets were then spread over the fragrant bed to give an elastic footing.—Glasgow Mail.

WROTE HIM A LETTER.

Thief Makes Sport of Valparaiso Postmaster After Having Robbed Him.

(Fort Wayne News)

Postmaster Little's residence at Valparaiso, was robbed Saturday night of watches and jewelry. In looking over the plunder the thief found each article bore an inscription of some kind which made them worthless, as it would be hard to dispose of them in any market. He carefully wrapped them up in paper and placed them at Mr. Little's barn door, where they were found Monday morning together with the following note:

To the Owner of this Watch:

Well, I shall give you this back, for I can't dispose of it. It has too much writing on the inner lid. Pray don't give me credit for it, for if I could have disposed of it you wouldn't have got it back again. I leave here tonight, so by-by. I hope I will have better luck in the next town.

Say, old man, you hadn't ought to snore so loud, you will keep all the burglars awake.

Yours respectfully,
PATSY BOLIVER.

Pay To Lawmakers

In Greece the senators get $100 per month and the deputies $50.

In Germany members of both houses receive about $2.50 a day.

In Denmark the members of the lands-thing receive about $3 a day.

In Belgium each member of the chamber of representatives gets $85 a month.

In Portugal the peers and commons are paid the same sum, which is about $355 a year.

In Spain the members of the cortes are not paid for their services, but enjoy many advantages and immunities.

In Switzerland the members of the national council get $2.50 per day, and the council of state, the lower house, gets $1.50

In Italy the senators and deputies are not paid at all, but they are allowed traveling expenses and certain other privileges.

England is the only country where members of parliament are not only unpaid, but have no special rights or privileges.

In Sweden the member of the diet receive $330 for a session of four months but they have to pay a fine of $3 for every day's absence.

Fresh Raspberries

We have spoken a number of times recently about the second crop of berries, etc. Last evening W. S. Purdy brought in an armful of red raspberry bushes that were hanging full of berries. They were not all fully ripe or even fully grown. About a quarter of them were fully matured, ripe and nice and the rest were all the way down to little ones that had just started But the good ones were nice and fragrant as usual. These things have been very common this year owing to late warm rains, but they are nevertheless a curiosity.

And Permanently Demonetize Silver—The Nefarious Scheme Wholly In the Interest of Goldbugs and Their Allies.

Taking into consideration the herculean efforts of the Republican party and those who have acted under its auspices to bring about what the goldbugs denominate "comprehensive and enlightened monetary legislation" by congress, people who attach value to facts, will be prompted to investigate carefully to find the facts which will enable them to arrive at rational conclusions relating to the schemes of goldbugs and their allies to circumvent the people and foist upon them a currency system utterly at war with the welfare of the country.

The pioneer advocates of this "comprehensive and enlightened monetary" scheme to erect a gold standard, degrade silver and give the national banks unlimited control of the currency, hailed from Indianapolis, and the "monetary convention,"-which they had the great satisfaction of organizing was made up of delegates, as the title page of its report shows, from "boards of trade, chambers of commerce, commercial clubs and other similar commercial bodies of the United States." And it is interesting to note that the great agricultural interests and the great labor interests of the country were not invited to send delegates to the "monetary convention," nor were there any representatives of these great interests in the convention. As now organized, "boards of trade, chambers of commerce, commercial clubs and other similar commercial bodies" include gamblers on 'change in all agricultural products, stocks, bonds and gold.

To have in the "monetary convention" only delegates from commercial bodies, such as have been named, was strictly in accord with the goldbug idea of finance—of the superiority of wealth over men who produce wealth; of gamblers on 'change, men who "corner" commodities; bucketshop statesmen, who have in their nomenclature such slang as "put," "call" and other gibberish, quite as intelligible to the "plain people" as the slang terms used by "knights of the jimmy"—terms which an honest farmer or an honest mechanic could no more understand than if these delegates to monetary conventions were to use the "click" of hottentots.

It is important in discussing the labors of such men as composed the monetary convention to know, not their personal antecedents, but their business status, or employments, associations, etc. They were goldbugs, as devoted to the gold standard as savages are to their fetich, and regarded the 6,500,000 Americans who voted for Bryan and bimetallism as "idiots," "anarchists," "lunatics," demagogues, and dangerous to the peace and welfare of the country, and that for some inscrutable reason members of boards of trade, gamblers in grain and gold, should meet in convention and prepare a bill to be presented to congress to bring about a "comprehensive and enlightened monetary" system of finance for the nation.

When the Fifty-fifth congress met in its second session there was a flood of bills introduced, all bearing the imperial stamp of goldbugism, as for instance there was the Walker bill, 5,181. Then Mr. Walker of Massachusetts, not content with 5,181, introduced bill 10,289, and, not yet satisfied, introduced bill 10,333. This done, Mr. McCleary introduced bill 9,725, "prepared by the special subcommittee of the banking and currency committee." Finally, Mr. Overstreet of Indiana introduced bill 5,855, prepared by the board of trade delegates to the Indianapolis monetary convention. The bills offered by Mr. Walker and Mr. McCleary, though their authors sought by cunning worthy of a fox, by playing tricks with words equal to a jaggler handling cups and balls, and by duplicity, worthy of a Machiavel, could not obscure the real purpose they had in view, which was to establish goldbugism on an enduring basis in the United States, and it may be said that the monetary convention—Overstreet's bill, which it is proposed to examine, in frankness of declaration in favor of all goldbug heresies was much more in consonance with straightout talk on the money question. And as Mr. Overstreet's bill may be regarded as a quasi Indiana production, it is proposed to show the people of Indiana what is in store for them if the bill or any similar bill became a law. The issue of the gold standard vs. free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is in the campaign now going forward in Indiana, and this being true it becomes specially important for Democrats to fully comprehend the scheme, and thwart the designs of goldbugs at the polls in November.

What Does the Overstreet Bill Propose?

In discussing the scheme embodied in the Overstreet bill, it is not required to analyze the sophistries and vagaries upon which the gold standard advocates rely to make black appear white, and vice versa. Such discussions are along labyrinthian pathways, which ending nowhere, simply confuse those who attempt to find their way out of the maze.

In replying to the question, what does the bill propose? it should be said its purpose is to copy the laws of England, France, Germany and other countries and establish in the United States, regardless of all interests, except the interests of the rich, a gold standard. And this gold standard is secured in the first section of the bill as follows:

"That the standard of unit of value shall, as now, be the dollar, and shall consist of twenty-five and eight-tenths grains of gold, nine-tenths fine, or twenty-three and twenty-two one hundredths grains of pure gold, as represented by one-tenth part of the eagle."

That is the gold standard, if the bill becomes a law, and a law it will become unless the Democratic party defeats the Republican party at the polls in November.

That there shall be no misunderstanding regarding the gold standard, which Section 1 establishes, the fact is clinched as follows:

"Section 2. That all obligations for the payment of money shall be performed in conformity with the standard provided for in section 1."

Here it is seen that section 1 provides a gold standard and section 2 provides that all obligations for the payment of money shall be in accordance with that gold standard.

Besides, section 2 destroys existing contracts between the government and the bond holders. At present all government bonds are payable, principal and interest, in "coin," either gold or silver or both, but section 2 of the bill under consideration says:

"That all obligations of the United States for the payment of money now existing or hereafter to be entered into shall, unless hereafter otherwise expressly stipulated, be redeemed and held to be payable in gold coin of the United States, as defined in the standard aforesaid."

In this is seen the hand of the bondholder. He was sufficiently potential in the Indianapolis monetary convention to provide that his bonds, principal and interest, now payable in "coin," shall be payable in "gold coin," and his influence was felt to the extent that he had it inserted in the bill that there should be free coinage only in gold, as follows:

"Section 3. That there shall continue to be free coinage of gold into coins of the denominations, weight, fineness and legal tender quality prescribed by existing laws."

The bill deals curtly and contemptuously with the silver dollar, to the extent, if the bill the convention concocted and which was introduced in congress by Representative Overstreet becomes a law, as Sec. 3 provides,

"No Silver Dollars Shall Be Hereafter Coined."

In so far as the bill relates to metallic currency, it culminated in the declaration that "no silver dollars shall be hereafter coined." If the bill becomes a law, which will be the case if the Republican party wins a victory at the polls in November, bimetallism will cease to exist in the United States, and the gold standard advocates, the plutocratic class, will have won a victory far-reaching and disastrous to the welfare of the country. Why? Because one of the primary, original, irredeemable coins of the country will have been struck down and struck out of existence as primary money, and gold substituted, which by increasing the demand for gold makes it dearer, and by reducing the demand for silver makes it cheaper. What is meant by the increased value of gold consequent upon the demonetization of the silver dollar? This question is answered by Mr. Shafroth of Colorado in his speech in congress, May 26, 1898, in which he says:

"The increase in the value of gold cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, because it is the unit of measurement. This increase in value can only be estimated by increased purchasing power. What we mean by increased purchasing power is that it buys more of commodities and property. That means that the owner of commodities and property must yield up more of them in order to obtain a given quantity upon the gold valuation than before the increase in value of gold, and that means he must sell at a loss price."

Suppose a farmer has a mortgage on his farm for $1,000, which is due and must be paid. It is not the contention that the gold standard has increased the amount of this debt, but that the increased value of gold by the demonetization of silver makes it more difficult for the farmer to obtain the gold to pay off his mortgage. Before the increase in the value of gold 1,000 bushels of wheat would have sufficed to pay off the mortgage, but as the value of gold has appreciated, he finds that his wheat has depreciated from $1 a bushel to, say, 75 cents a bushel, in that case he would have to sell 1,333 bushels of wheat to pay off his mortgage.

That farmers have been subjected to such losses by the demonetization of silver is shown by the most reliable statistics, prepared and circulated by the United States department of agriculture, and will not be denied.

It is true, as the goldbugs contend, that England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain and some other countries have the gold standard. And so it may be said, they have their kings, emperors and titled aristocracy, but it does not follow, in the one case more than in the other, that the United States should have a king or a gold standard.

In European countries is found not only royal families, a titled nobility, thrones' scepters, standing armies, and all the required machinery of oppression, but unexampled ignorance and degradation and a vast population known as proletarats, men who have no more voice in controling public affairs than so many horned cattle. They are the victims of conditions which the gold standard advocates are trying to establish in the United States, and which will be expedited should Mr. Overstreet's bill, now pending in congress, become a law, because every line, paragraph and section has but one purpose in view, which is to establish in the United States, upon the specious plea of a "comprehensive and enlightened monetary" system, a gold standard system of finance.

To recapitulate the Overstreet bill, which is an issue in the Indiana campaign, it is seen that

1. It makes gold the standard of value.
2. It makes the silver dollar a subsidiary or minor coin.
3. It declares that no more silver dollars shall be coined.
4. It makes all government bonds, now outstanding, payable in gold coin.
5. It makes all obligations of the United States payable in gold coin.
6. It makes the coinage of gold free and unlimited and denies to silver the coinage rights accorded to gold.
7. In the interest of bondholders it seeks to destroy the contract between the government and the bondholders, which under the law makes United States bonds payable in "coin," gold or silver, payable only in "gold coin."

Under such circumstances it is not surprising that the Republican press of the state does not want the Overstreet bill to be an issue in the campaign—and the Indianapolis News, than which there is no Republican paper in the state more devoted to the gold standard, sees distinctly that the Overstreet bill is fraught with danger to the party. As an expression of goldbug sentiments the Overstreet bill has less circumlocution and jugglery in it than is found in any other bill upon the subject introduced in congress.

The bill, as has been said, is the product of the Indianapolis monetary convention, but the Indianapolis News, now that the people of Indiana begin to comprehend the monstrous, if not infamous, provisions of the bill, declares that the Republican party has never indorsed it. According to The News, nobody seems to have indorsed the Overstreet bill, not even the convention that nominated Mr. Overstreet as a candidate for congress dared to indorse the Overstreet bill. And yet The News says:

"Mr. Overstreet deserves great credit for introducing the commission bill in congress. It is a carefully prepared measure, the work of men skilled in finance and economics, and is probably supported by a wider and more influential constituency than any other measure of currency reform that has yet been proposed."

Notwithstanding such commendations, The News, with all of its goldbug proclivities, is afraid that the discussion of the bill will work disaster to the Republican party and to goldbugism generally. The News on that point is right. All that is required is to get the provisions of the Overstreet bill fairly before the people of Indiana; this done, it will transpire that, as The News dare not indorse it as an issue, and as the Republican convention dared not indorse it as an issue, and as the congressional convention, which nominated Mr. Overstreet for congress, dared not indorse it as an issue, the people at the polls in November will not indorse it nor any of its goldbug, national bank, money power provisions.

It is a cheering sign to see such a goldbug Republican sheet as the Indianapolis News playing crawfish—backing down and backing out—and protesting that the Overstreet bill, concocted by goldbugs and introduced in congress by a goldbug congressman, is not an issue in the campaign, because, forsooth, the bill was not mentioned in conventions, though the infamies which it advocates were mentioned and indorsed. Such crawfishing and protesting only shows that the Republican party, which lacks the courage to stand by its own issues, ought to be defeated.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

—Dr. James Adams went up to Smith field today, attend the funeral of Levi Brandaberry, Mrs. Brandaberry was reared in the Doctor's family.

—The Albion New Era was a regular "yellow journal" in its last issue. We shall expect to see all its republican exchanges calling it bad names.

—The French cabinet is in trouble and being out voted in the session Tuesday, they had to resign. The Spanish cabinet is also about to break up.

—Amos Walsworth today shipped a lot of his Shropshire sheep to a party at Harrodsburg, Ky. Mr. W is become the leading dealer in fine sheep for this section.

—The Dispatch yesterday made object apologies for putting in some political matter. If we had as rotten candidates as some of theirs, we would be ashamed of them too.

—A South Bend farmer has grown two stalks of corn measuring sixteen and one-half feet in height. Each stalk contains two ears the lowest being thirteen feet from the ground.

—Quite a smart freeze last night and ice was found this morning as thick as window glass. But there was no visible frost. However, the freeze is better. We need a cold snap very much.

—Mrs. Mary J. Berry south of town has gone to Ohio to make an extended visit with relatives at Millerstown. Her nephew, Mr. Berry who was here once befor, came out and she returned with him.

—J. W. Baxter went to Fort Wayne today and brought home Ott Baxter, and put him on the train for his home at Butler. He is nearly recovered although still weak. It is believed his recovery will be complete and he will soon be as sound as ever.

—Milford Mail:—A stranger called at the farm of man near Pierceton and told the tenant that he had purchased twenty five of the sheep from the owner, and drove them away. No sale had been made and now neither the sheep nor the thief can be found.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Charles Wilson, son of ex-trustee Wilson of Stafford has been in the city several days. He is county agent for the sale of several popular remedies and toilet articles. He has sold these extensively in the county. One remedy "Our Native Herbs" shows sales of over 500 bottles during the past year.

—The strangest vegetable freak we have seen in this strangest of seasons, was shown us last evening by E. E. Draggoo. It was the seeds and sprouts of a sweet pumpkin that had sprouted and grown several inches before the pumpkin was cut open. They look weak and white but are the real thing.

—Something is wrong at Camp Mount or at Indianapolis, that prevents the boys from coming home. Whoever heard before, of its taking a month to muster out a regiment of men? It begins to look as if there was some political scheme in it. We think the boys ought to be attowed to come home to vote no matter which ticket they vote.

—We are greatly pleased to see S O. Snyder able to get out on the streets again. He has had a long, hard seige of malarial fever with typhoid symptoms, and then at the same time had an attack of pleurisy. He is still weak and thin but able to get to the office and do a little work.

—Albion New Era:—In conversation with Thomas J. Squires the other day he informs us that he or his father had voted at every presidential election held in the United States. His father was present at Washington's inaugural in 1789. Mr. Squires cast his first vote for Henry Clay in 1844.

—Miss Nellie Fulks, on last Sunday day entertained quite a number of her young friends, those present were: Sadie Colander, Bertha Metcalf, Mary Grim, Birdie and Pearl Hornberger, John Woods, Dean Metcalf, Milton Krise, Charley Metcalf, Bert Pifer, all report a grand time.

—Albion New Era:—It is a common thing to see signs posted on farm fences warning hunters to "stay off this farm," but the most striking notice that has come under the reporter's observation is posted near St. John's station and reads as follows: "Notice I hereby warn the public that I am watching for the contemptible scoundrel who has been milking my cow. If I catch him I intend to shut my eyes and shoot at the cow."

—Ex-coroner L. D. Miser was in town to-day. While he still lives on his place this side of Waterloo, he has been most of the summer working at the carpenter trade in and near Helmer. He and Jud Shade have just put up a nice dwelling for Hiram Billman, the hardware man there, one for Mr. Preskey and one for Joseph Dillman They also put in a new front and new shelving for A. Spero, the druggist, and have done a good deal of other work around there.

—Samuel Philips, a well to do and hearty man of Knoxville, Tenn., grew tired of this gay life at the age of 104 years and deliberately hanged himself, in the face of his prospect for a long and happy life,

—We gladly place on our exchange list. "The Milford Mail." It is now in the hands of J. P. Prickett, so long the publisher of the Albion New Era. He is a born newspaper man and a gentleman as well, just as all newspaper men should be.

—The Ligonier Banner sends out the pictures of all the county candidates. As the cuts are some better than usual the Banner may yet hope to be forgiven. But the usual political picture makes one think of nothing but a second-class pirate.

—A man supposed to be poor, recently died in Elkhart county. It was then discovered that he left personal property of about $15,000. Now the tax ferrets are after theh eirs, because the old man had failed to pay taxes on that money for many years, and it may take a half of it to pay the back taxes.

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Thanksgiving occurs this year on Thursday. November 24, the earliest on which the last Thursday in November can fall. There is no law fixing the time, this always being done by proclamation of the president and governors. But custom has so established the time that no one ever thinks of changing the date.

—Franklin Fisher, the popular salesman, has been called to Utica, N. Y., to make arrangements for a regular route. He has been covering the territory handled by his brother, Will, who is sick at the Battle Creek Sanitarium and has succeeded so well that his house has assigned him to a regular field.—Waterloo Press.

—Trustee Thrush was in town on business today and made the COURIER a friendly call. His schools are all running except the two that are waiting for the return of the soldier teachers, C. W. Heitz and Phillip Holman. While he is keeping the two places for them, he feels that the season is getting pretty late and is anxious to have the 157th mustered out and sent home.

—Republican papers seem to be running with the same editor, all of them. They have been for several weeks saying "Several hundred copies of this paper are being sent frer, etc." If these papers would write their own matter, it might pay to send out free copies. But with the same articles in all of them, they sound pretty flat. We don't have to send out extra COURIER'S, Everybody reads them anyhow.

—The Cuban flag, which promises to go out of existence, is about 50 years old. It is of Masonic origin and is said to have been designed by a body of fighting Masons in the southern states of America, who started a movement to get Cuba freed from Spain and divide the island into three separate states after its annexation to this country. The flag has been the emblem of Cuban independence ever since.

—The worst case of college hazing we ever heard of comes from Ann Arbor. The students were "initiating" a freshman, and as a closing of the ceremony, took him out to the track of Michigan Central railroad and tied him fast to the track. When a train came along he, supposing he was on the main track, expected it to crush and mangle him. It was a terrible ordeal, and though he was on a side track and was not touched, the shock was so great, he is still in a critical condition.

—A vote for Hon. C. M. Brown for representative and for the entire democratic ticket is a vote against the monstrous currency bill reported at the last session of Congress. This measure was prepared by the Indianapolis monetary Commission, was introduced in Congress by Overstreet of Indiana, and after some of its details were changed has been reported by the committee on banking and currency with recommendation that it pass. The bill will make gold the sole money of ultimate payment and national bank notes the sole currency This is called "giving the gold standard the vitality of the public law" and "comprehensive monetary legislation." Read your republican state platform and see if it does not declare for these things. The time has surely come when conscientious republicans who are interested in just and fair legislation, must leave their party, temporarily if not permanently.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—A reliable and honest republican met us today and said he had just seen Platter take a democratic voter into a saloon supposedly to treat the latter. Does Platter know that this is a direct violation of the election laws? We presume, however, that a man who habitually violates the laws of God and man don't mind a little thing like that. We are waiting, however to see how many of the Christian people of DeKalb County will vote to make such a man the highest peace officer of the county.

—We do not understand that the Waterloo Press asked to have the Grant township candidates given a big vote because they were some of them old soldiers. But we have several times been told it is doing so. The facts are there is not one of them who was ever in the army, Darby is old enough but not in the service. Denison was too young, and Ingalls was not born till after the last echoes of the war had passed into history. There are no old soldiers on any ticket this year unless on the prohibition ticket.

GOLD IN OHIO

Ohio has a real gold mine. They have found a vein of rock at Malvern, near Canal Dover that yields $23 in gold and $430 in silver to the ton of rock. It is not known how extensive the mine is, but people are flocking there from all directions. Ohio has never produced either of these metals, nor has any other state east of the Mississippi, to any great extent. Small quanties of gold have been found in New York, but not enough to pay. The same may be said of Indiana. Georgia has small gold mines that have yielded a considerable of the metal. Fine silver mines have been worked on the shores of Lake Superior, but the really good mines of either metal are in the mountains of the far west. Let us hope that our Ohio friends have struck a real bonanza.

OBITUARY

Lafayette B. Buss was born October 27, 1857, at Fairfield Center, DeKalb, County, Indiana. From there moved with his parents to Charles City, Iowa, where they lived a number of years and then moved back locating two miles south of Hudson. There he lived with his parents, sisters and brothers for twenty-five years. After his father's death he moved one mile south of the homestead on his own farm. There he was taken sick Sunday, Oct. 16, '98, and died Thursday the 20th, at the age of 40 years, 11 month, and 23 days, leaving two sisters and one brother. He was a man well respected and his sudden and untimely death is a sad one.

New Swindle

[Goshen Times.]

An easy swindle has been penetrated on an Elkhart milliner, whose name is withheld out of consideration for her request. A man entered her store ostensibly to match a piece of ribbon which he had with him. He found one that almost matched the sample, and said he would take a piece to his wife to get her approval. In the meantime he had told her that he lived here and was a railroad man. Then, as though just happening to think of it, he asked if the milliner could give him a five dollar bill for silver, as he desired to send a bill in a letter. The lady handed him his bill. he appeared to place it in a letter and then produced his silver, out he found that he was 50 cents short of having five dollars. Laying the sealed letter on the counter he said he would leave it there until he could go home and get the half dollar, as he had to return for the ribbon anyhow. After he had been gone long enough to make a round trip to Goshen the lady grew suspicious, opened the letter and found that it contained nothing but several sheets of paper. The police are looking for him.

OBITUARY

Died October 26, 1898, Sylvia, youngest child of Mrs Conley of West Seventh-st, aged 6 years, 10 month and 22 days.

Her gentle ways and sweet disposition won for her a place in the hearts of all who came to know her well, whether in her home, her Sunday school or school. And although so young she realized fully that she must die, asking often for prayers and singing of those about her, and herself exclaiming in moments of extreme suffering "Come Sweet Jesus and Take Me." A mother, one sister and two brothers are left to mourn the loss that death has brought to their household besides a host of friends that will miss the sunny presence of little Sylvia.

Fatal Accident

Tuesday afternoon, the little daughter of Wm. and Lora Dawson, who live at Corunna, fell into a pan of hot lye, receiving injuries of which it died Thursday night at about 10 p. m. after great suffering. This is the second bereavement of this kind they have suffered, having lost another child two or three years ago by the kick of a horse. The doubly bereaved parents have the sympathy of all. The funeral will be at the U. B. church at Corunna, Sunday, at 10 a. m. services by the pastor, Rev. Snyder, and interment in the cametery at that place.

Parsnip Complexion

It does not require an expert to detect the sufferer from kidney trouble. The hollow cheeks, the sunken eyes, the dark, puffy circles under the eyes, the sallow parsnips-colored complexion indicates it.

A physician would ask if you had rheumatism, a dull pain or ache in the back or over the hips, stomach trouble, desire to urinate often, or burning or scalding in passing it; if after passing there is an unsatisfied feeling as if it must be at once repeated or if the urine has a brick dust deposit or strong odor.

When these symtoms are present, no time should be lost in removing the cause.

Delay may lead to gravel, catarrh of the bladder inflammation, causing stop page, and sometimes requiring the drawing of the urine with instruments, or may run into Bright's Disease, the most dangerous stage of kidney trouble,

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, is a positive remedy for such diseases. Its reputation is world-wide and it is so easy to get at any drugstore that no one need suffer any length of time for want of it.

However, if you prefer to first test its wonderful merits, mention the Auburn COURIER and write to Dr. Lilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. for a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

Traveling Companions.

Travelers often prove by their experiences that under certain conditions all men are equal. A German banker traveling by rail in a first-class carriage toward Vienna, had as a fellow-traveler at one of the intermediate stations an old gentleman, who entered into conversation and proved very pleasant. The banker got out before his companion, and as he did so asked the gentleman how far he was going. The gentleman replied, "To Vienna." "I have a daughter very well married there," said the banker. "I should like to give you a note of introduction to her." "I have also a daughter very well married there," said the other. "Would it be too great a liberty to ask the name?" inquired the banker. "My daughter," the gentleman answered, "is married to the Emperor of Austria." It was the old king of Bavaria.

Speaking Clocks.

In Switzerland they have commenced making phonographic clocks and watches, which, it appears, leave anything heretofore accomplished far in the shade. By merely pressing the button of the new timepiece it pronounces the hour distinctly. The alarm calls the sleeper: "It's six o'clock; get up." There are some which even add the words: "Now, don't go to sleep again." The form can be changed to suit the buyer and makes the warning more or less emphatic. This application of the phonographic principle is due to a French watchmaker settled at Geneva. He introduced into clocks and watches little slabs of vulcanized rubber, on which the desired words are traced in grooves corresponding to the hours and fractions of hours.—Le Moniteur de la Bijouterie et de l'Horlogerie.

The Philippines.

The COURIER has all along been of the opinion that it would be a doubtful policy to take charge of the Philippines. Their great distance from us, the wild character of the bulk of the people, while the better class are Spanish or half-breeds, who would be unfriendly, and these facts, combine to make the venture dangerous and expensive. But on the other hand there are many things to be said in its favor. And these must also be considered, for we will have to face this problem whether we wish to or not. One advantage, would be that we would not at once set about it to develop the islands and their natural resources are such, that we would find them highly profitable. Remember how we got it. Their possession would also lead us to turn our attention to an increase of commerce on the high seas, which years ago was a vast source of profit before we got too weak and wanted to lean on a high protective tariff. We could at once become second to Great Britain in point of commerce. But the chief reason for taking these islands would be the advancement of the cause of humanity, the very cause for which we entered on the war. Our government could give safely to the Spanish population and their property interests, and could with some difficulty perhaps, keep under control the wilder elements of the native population and perhaps gradually bring them into a more enlightened condition. These islands are very valuable. At least they would probably be to us, and if we take them we should not steal them. We have conquered only a very small spot, and we should pay for the rest. We are able to do this and to show Spain that although we have got her down, we are not going to rob her.

We Expected It

The Garrett Clipper has sold out, as indicated by the following item found in the Chicago Argus, an insurance paper:

S. Ellis, well known as actively connected with the Investigator of this city for the past five years, has purchased the Garrett Weekly Clipper of Garrett, Ind., of which he will henceforth have the management. Mr. Ellis is a wide-awake, capable newspaper man who will be missed in Chicago. We wish him the abundant success which he so well deserves.

Walking-Sticks for Women.

The walking-stick is now recognized as necessary item in the outfit of the up-to-date woman of fashion. A well known London firm, together with their autumn show of umbrellas and sunshades, have also provided quite a number of dainty walking-sticks. Hook handles are the most sensible as well as the most useful of any; they will fetch down a cluster of blackberries; they form the strongest prop and the most convenient for holding. These sticks are to be had in green and blue wood and in ebony. With their gold and silver bands and mounts and black cords and tassels, they give quite a smart finish to the toilet.

CLEAN PEOPLE

Cleanliness goes with health. If we have catarrh anywhere we cannot be wholly clean.

Makesystematic efforts to be free from this disgusting disease. Mrs. L. A. Johnston, 103 Pilham and Ripley Sts., Montgomery, Ala., tells her experience with catarrh of the stomach and how she was cured:

"I will state to you that I have taken eight bottles of your Pe-ru-na and two of Man-a-lin and rejoice to say, 'God bless Dr. Hartman and Pe-ru-na.' And I earnestly assure you that it has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken in my life. I prescribe it to every one I meet who is suffering, as the best medicine in the world, and have made many converts who are now rejoicing in the great good which they have derived from the same. I can tell you that I am almost entirely relieved of indigestion, that great foe which has tortured me so many years, and can now eat anything I desire without it is fruits or something acid."

To understand the scientific action of Pe-ru-na it is best to have Dr. Hartman's special book for women or his book on chronic catarrh. These books are mailed free by the Pe-ru-na Medicine Company, Columbus, O. All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

Bacterial Rot of Cabbage.

The following timely circular is sent out by the Purdue University Agricultural Experimental Station:

Within the past few years a bacterial disease of the cabbage has become so prevalent in certain cabbage-growing localities as to occasion very serious losses to those engaged in the business.

Although it has been said to occur in Indiana, it has not come to the attention of the station until recently.

Several fields in the vicinity of Lafayette affected with this bacterial disease, have been examined by the writer the present season. In one of these fields, containing over 20,000 plants, which were attacked early in the season, not a single marketable head was obtained. In other fields, judging from a cursory examination, from 10 to 50 per cent. of the heads were affected.

In view of these facts, it has been thought best to send out a note of warning in regard to the disease, in order that such precautionary measures as are deemed most valuable may be at once employed in keeping it in check. Fortunately the life history of the disease has been quite thoroughly studied of late, and the result of the investigations, together with other valuable information, may be found in Bulletin No. 65, of the Wisconsin Experiment Station, and Farmers' Bulletin No. 68, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The latter Bulletin is sent f[illegible] application to the Secretary [illegible]ure.

T[illegible]ens of these investigat[illegible] working independently [illegible]lly the same. Both are ag[illegible] the only hope of successfu[illegible]tting the disease is in the car[illegible] observance of several precautionary measures.

Symptom[illegible] Disease.—A dwarfing or one-side[illegible] of the heads, or in cases of an [illegible]ck, the entire absence of any head[illegible]. Occasionally the heads rot and fall off.

In the leaves the symptoms usually begin at the margins and consists of a yellowing of all the affected parts, except the veins, which become decidedly brown or black.

Infection.—The bacterial germ is conveyed to the leaves of the plant by wind or insects, and in most cases gains an entrance to the tissues of the plant through the edges of the leaf.

Precautionary Measures.—As there is no remedy known, preventative measures must be relied on in combatting the disease. These mersures are as follows:

Avoid planting in land on which infected plants have been grown. Several years may be necessary to rid the land of the germs.

Do not use manure, containing decayed cabbage leaves, or stalks either in the seed bed or field.

Wet land should be avoided, as it favors the development of the disease.

Keep the plants as free from insects as possible.

Remove and destroy all diseased plants or portions of the plant, as soon as diseased condition is noticed.

If any of the readers of this article have been troubled with the disease, they will confer a favor by reporting the same to the Indiana Experiment Station at Lafayette.

The New Republic.

I[illegible] "The United States of Central [illegible]ica," as the Union is now a thing of certainty, the new form of government having gone into effect Nov. 1. Last June, a congress composed of twenty delegates from Nicaraugua, Salvador and Honduras, met and framed a federal constitution, on a plan somewhat resembling ours, and Aug. 27, it was adopted. Preparations are also going on to have Costa Rica and Guatomala unite with them, thus completeing the union of the Central American states. They are to have a president elected by a direct vote of the people, for four years, his term to begin March 15. The congress will have two houses, and will meet March 1. Each state will have sixteen senators and there will be one member of the House of Representatives for each 30,000 people, The former president of each country will be the first governor of the new state as it enters the union. The whole move looks like a very wise one, and these little nations instead of being quarreing among themselves will be united so as to make a pretty strong country.

The Pumpkin Liar.

The following is going the rounds: Some of the farmers who raise prize pumpkins for county fairs give the vegetable a systematic training a little after the methods employed in getting prize fighters ready for the ring, or foot ball players in shape for the gridiron. They select a good pumpkin that lies in a shady part of the field and cut off the main stem. This they stick into a pail filled with milk, and the pumpkin drinks it like a human being. It is said that a good sized pumpkin, with an active liver and a strong stomach, unfouched by dyspepsia, gets away with the milk at the rate of a quart a day.

B. & O. WRECK

About 5:30 a.m., Saturday, there was quite a bad freight wreck on the B. & O. near Gravelton. Two sections of No. 86 were running east and the second ran into the caboose of the first smashing the caboose to splinters and wrecking five cars. Four men were injured. The one hurt worst was Wm. Mills, a resident of Garrett who will probably die. Frank Willis ears badly cut and head injured. Walter Sapp, of Defiance was hurt pretty bad as was also a fireman named Davison. It is not known how bad Sapp is hurt, for though at first he seemed all right, he became unconscious before he reached Garrett. Mills was a K. P. and Mr. Gengler was sent from Garrett to bring him home. He may not live.

The Biggest Insect.

It has been said that the crane is the biggest insect in natural history. It is also the biggest in the history of Auburn. Ask Night-watch Baker. Some one had placed a stuffed crane in the public square near the north side, and as Mr. Baker came along there on his lonely rounds he suddenly saw a nice large crane standing upright whth its long neck inviting him to grab. Here was a chance to get a nice specimen. He slowly glided forward, and caught the birds long neck and held on for dear life. But the bird didn't seem to mind it, but rather appeared to enjoy it. He thought that long neck felt pretty cold, and when he started to lug his prize away, he found it stuck fast in the ground. Mr. Baker was surprised, then he sat down and laughed till his tears made the ground damp around the poor bird.

The Boys Are Home.

Nearly all of Company K are now at home, some having come up the Wabash from Peru this morning and some by the way of Fort Wayne at noon, and the rest are expected in this evening. While we feel that the treatment this crack regiment has received has been shabby, there is no help for it. We honor the men themselves as much as if they had been given a fair show. If ever men deserved a welcome home, it is the men of Company K, and we are sorry our citizens are so much engrossed with other things that it was not given them.

India's Scourge of Snakes.

Snakes are one of the scourges of India. Thousands of people die yearly from their bite. In the last twenty-two years the number of deaths attributed to this cause has reached the enormous total of 433,289. Snakes appear to be a much more deadly enemy of man than wild animals. In the same period wild animals have only killed 64,284 persons. On an average in India 20,000 people perish yearly by snakes and wild animals. The number of deaths in recent years has shown a marked increase. In 1875 the number was 21,266, in 1896 it had risen to 24,-335. Bengal is the most dangerous province to live in, for the Bengalese snakes are responsible for half the deaths from snake bite. The loss of cattle has also been very great. Since 1875 about 1,500,000 animals have been destroyed. Wild animals are responsible for nine-tenths of the cattle killed. In 1896, for instance, 7,143 animals died from snake bite, but 81,397 were killed by wild beasts.

Utilization of Waste Power at Niagara.

Visitors to Niagara remember the small cascades of water falling over the edge of the cliffs just below the Clifton Bridge. The waste of power thus represented has been stopped. The water is now received in a great pipe, or "penstock," and is used to drive water-wheels under its 210 feet head. Formerly it drove only wheels at the top of the cliff. An interesting feature of the installation is the use of large size aluminum conductors for the electric power distribution. It is a reflection on modern engineering that this source of power was for so many years neglected.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Bradstreet's Report of Business.

Bradstreet says: A further quieting down of new business in iron and steel and a relapse into dullness, though at steady prices of wheat consequent upon withdrawal, excited the foreign demand and some slight increase of the quiet in general trade chiefly with the South, as a result of the elections are all the features this week. Among the more actively favorable features are the surprising steadiness displayed by most staple articles and the enlarged distribution of staple goods at many Western and Southern markets as a result of improved weather and removals of quarantines. Confirmatory favorable reports during October are the returns of bank clearings for the month, and increased business at many centers as compared with a year ago.

Business failures in the United States last week were 188 against 219 the week before, 223 a year ago, and 260 in 1895, and 241 in 1894.

Farmer Kills Himself.

Solon Atkinson, a prominent and wealthy farmer of Boone County, Indiana, committed suicide by first taking morphine and then shooting himself twice in the abdomen with a shotgun. Insanity is supposed to have been the cause. His father suicided twenty years ago by shooting and then hanging himself. Mr. Atkinson was 49 years of age, and leaves a wife and one daughter. He was a prominent worker in the Christian Church, being Treasurer of the State Conference, President of the Conference Mission Board, President of the Fund for Superannuated Ministers and ex-Chairman of the State Conference.

Murder and Suicide.

Scottsburg (Ind.) special: Failing to effect a reconciliation with his wife who left him last summer, Martin Tyler of Indianapolis, shot her and then turned the revolver upon himself, inflicting fatal wounds. Mr. Tyler arrived here and called upon his wife at her home, where he pleaded his cause, and when Mrs. Tyler refused to again live with him he drew a pistol and began firing. The first bullet struck the woman in the face and the second in the side. He then shot himself, once in the head and once in the abdomen. The wounds of the man are fatal, while those of the woman are not necessarily so.

Found the Money.

A special from Akron, Ohio, says: A large sum of money has been discovered at the late home of Oscar Osborne, who was murdered in Richfield a few weeks ago. It is said the murdered man had confided to a neighbor the hiding place of the money, and recently search was made, with the result that sums aggregating $10,000 was found. The theory is now advanced that the strap found about Osborne's neck was used to choke and strangle him to induce him to tell where the money was hidden. It is known that Osborne had secreted large sums somewhere about his place.

Several Men Killed by an Explosion.

At Oil City, Pa., while a crowd of machinists were testing a new boiler a terrific explosion occurred, instantly killing Machinists McCloskey and Frawley. An employe named McMahon was taken to the hospital dying. The boiler let go with terrific force, blowing the roof off the building and scattering iron beams and debris of all kinds among the two hundred men employed. Several other employes were injured, but it is thought that the only fatalities are those mentioned.

Troops for Cuba.

The first assignment of troops for the general occupation of Cuba, was made recently, in general orders issued by General Miles, as follows: Headquarters and six troops of the Eighth U. S. Cavalry, and Third Georgia Volunteers, Neuvitas, Cuba; six troops of the Eighth U. S. Cavalry, and Fifteenth U. S. Infantry, Puerto Principe. Brigadier General Carpenter, U. S. V., is assigned to command the troops with headquarters at Neuvitas.

To Be Court Martialed.

The Navy Department has decided to court martial Naval Constructor John F. Hanscom and Chief Engineer Lewis W. Robinson, of the League Island navy yards, Philadelphia, on charges of culpable negligence in permitting large sums to be paid to laborers for working extra time in violation of naval regulations.

Masonic Temple Attractions, Fort Wayne, Ind.

November 10—"Shenendoah."
November 12—Henry Miller.

Kentuckian Suicides.

Omaha (Neb.) special: Charles Offutt, a well-known attorney, while temporarily deranged through illness, shot himself through the head, dying instantly. Mr. Offutt was a native Kentuckian, and was twice Speaker of the House of the Kentucky Legislature.

Gen. Lee's Mother Dead.

Mrs. Anna Maria Lee, mother of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, died at the residence of her son, Capt. Dan M. Lee, of Stafford County, Virginia, as a result of her fall a few days ago.

Beggar with a Fortune.

Patrick McKenna dropped dead in the free dispensary of the Baltimore city hospital while begging for medicine. He declared that he was penniless. When searching the attendants found $1.50 in change in his pocket, a sight draft for $980 on an Irish bank, and thirteen new $50 bills pinned to his vest.

Suicide After a Flunk.

Despondent because he recently failed to pass an examination at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, William Lerch, a student, drowned himself in a quarry hole near his home at Danielsville, Pa. He was 22 years of age.

WAR SCARE AFFECTS TRADE.

R. G. Dun Tells How Business Has Been Influenced by Rumors.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Business has been more affected by foreign affairs than many realize. London's apprehension of war first caused advance in wheat and fears of monetary pressure here. Then came confidence in London, with a flight of French money across the channel, and stock markets advanced, while wheat fell. Moves in Paris did not mean to influence American interests from New York to San Francisco, but electric wires have made the world small. So the wires moved a cargo of wheat from the Pacific coast, started $2,500,000 more gold from Australia to this country on London account, and the selling of American securities one day and buying the next. There has been no domestic change of much importance. Failures for the week have been 226 in the United States, against 219 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 25 last year."

NEW NATION IS FORMED.

United States of Central America Begins Its Existence.

The steamer Acapulco, from South America, brings news of the coalition of the three Central American States—Salvador, Nicaragua and Honduras—which will be conducted under a common administration, to be known as the United States of Central America. The inauguration of the new regime was to be ushered in the other day, and a grand celebration in honor of the event was held at Amalpa, which is to be the seat of government. The administration passes into the control of a representative from each of the republics—Dr. Salvador Callegas of Salvador, Dr. Miguel Angel Ugarte of Honduras and Dr. Manuel Corrodel Matus of Nicaragua. The three gentlemen mentioned will continue in power until the 14th of March next, when they will formally elect a president, who will hold office four years.

ONE SOLDIER KILLS ANOTHER.

John F. Coyle Fatally Shot by John Derr in St. Louis.

John F. Coyle, 34 years old and married, a member of the Nineteenth infantry, who had been at his home in St. Louis on a furlough, was shot and mortally wounded by John Derr, 21 years old, a member of the Twenty-first infantry, which took part in the battle of San Juan hill. Derr, who is also home on a furlough, was visiting a Miss Fannie Saal in South St. Louis. Coyle's wife and Miss Saal, it seems, had some difficulty, and Coyle accused Derr of instigating the trouble. The next morning Derr was playing pool in a saloon when Coyle entered and began threatening Derr, at the same time flourishing a knife. He finally attempted to stab Derr, when the latter drew his revolver and fired two shots, the second bullet penetrating Coyle's abdomen. He died within a few hours.

INDIANS ARE LEAVING.

Recent Killing of Five of a Band of Reds Has Had Wholesome Effect.

The Indians are leaving Grant County, Ore., as fast as possible and no further trouble is expected. The coroner's jury exhumed the body of one of the Indians killed near Izee and found that his death was at the hands of a deputy sheriff and posse, who asked for a peaceable surrender and were answered by the Indians opening fire, killing one of their number, George Cutting. The posse then returned the fire, killing five Indians.

Hichborn's Work in the Navy.

A large part of the burden of equipping the United States navy for the war with Spain fell upon the construction bureau of the navy, and in his annual report Commodore Hichborn, the chief constructor, furnishes many interesting details as to the extent of this work, involving the transformation of more than 100 merchant craft into effective naval vessels at short notice. Looking to the future, the chief constructor invites attention to the importance of properly equipping and maintaining the plants at the minor naval stations along the coast already established, and he submits estimates for the purpose, averaging about $25,000 in each case. To keep the nucleus of the force of men at these stations, small work should be constantly under way and proper storehouses should be erected to keep sufficient quantity of material on hand. Besides the long list of vessels purchased by the Government for use as auxiliary cruisers, the report says that ten vessels were accepted by the Government by builders during the last fiscal year. These were the Iowa, Helena, Nashville, Wilmington, Annapolis, Marietta, Newport, Vicksburg, Foote and Wheeling. Progress made on the vessels in course of construction has been very satisfactory. The work on the battleships has been held back to a great degree by the impossibility of procuring armor when it was needed.

Great Sum for Church Work.

Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who have been holding their semi-annual conference in Springfield, Mass., voted to call for a "twentieth century thank offering" of $20,000,000 from the members of the Methodist Church. The funds will be collected at intervals before Jan. 1, 1901, and the sum wanted is expected to be received by that date. It was voted to devote the money to the improvement of educational and charitable institutions now maintained by the Methodist Episcopal Church. None of it will be used for the establishment of new institutions. The call for the fund will soon be issued. It is not intended to make the collections at one stated time, but to make them so gradual that they will not be a burden. The offering is intended as an expression of thanks for the completion of nineteen centuries of Christianity and will be the greatest effort of its character ever undertaken by any religious organization.

Drunken Row Ends Fatally.

Mike Moore, a bartender, the 23-year-old son of Frank Moore of Newark, Ohio, was arrested for murder. In a drunken brawl at Donaldson's saloon about midnight Moore shot James Mullen of Geneva, N. Y., and James Ryan of 2208 Third avenue, New York. Ryan may recover. Both victims were race track men, being there with horses during Newark's races. Moore says he did the shooting in self-defense.

Big Cotton Goods Firm Fails.

John H. Mason & Sons, cotton goods manufacturers at Providence R. I., have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The petition shows that the firm's liabilities amount to $810,000 and the assets to about $300,000. The partners have also filed individual petitions in bankruptcy.

Six Hurt in an Explosion.

At Bellaire, Ohio, an explosion occurred in the main boiler room at the Bellaire Steel Company's plant which completely demolished the entire building and fatally injured six men.

Holds a Town at Bay.

Adam Hammer, a machinist at Beaver Dam, Wis., became violently insane and shot nine men (none of them fatally) before he was arrested.

Iowa and Oregon at Bahia.

Spanish Prepare to Depart.

A dispatch from Havana says: The Spanish authorities are preparing to close all matters of the administration of the island. A decree has been issued by the minister of finance stating that Oct. 21 was the last day for the inauguration of new business, and that all the current affairs would be ended during the month of November, when inventories of the different departments would be completed and filed and packed to be sent to Spain. At the request of the Spanish, a letter has been addressed to Gen. Wood at Santiago by the Americans requesting that he afford every facility for the removal of the bodies of Gens. Vara del Rey and Santocildes, the commission to remove which will leave Havana shortly. Admiral Sampson has decided not to leave Havana during the work of the commission. The work of cataloguing military property is proceeding rapidly.

GREAT OFFER FROM JAPAN.

American Company May Establish Electrical Plants for Mikado.

The Siemens & Halske Electric Company of America is considering a proposition from the Japanese Government to form in Chicago a syndicate with a capitalization of about $10,000,000 to install and operate all electric street car lines and incandescent lighting and electric power plants which are to be established in the domain of the mikado as another step in the modernizing movement in progress there. The franchise to be granted is exclusive and would be one of the most valuable permits ever granted to one syndicate or corporation. It is understood that the Elkins-Widener syndicate of Philadelphia will be interested in the new company if it is formed.

PLOT TO WRECK A TRAIN.

Chicago Detectives Frustrate a Fiendish Plan for Robbery.

A plot to wreck and rob a Clover Leaf train was unearthed by W. C. Merritt, a Chicago detective. Merritt met the two men who put up the job in Delphos, Ohio, and was taken in as a partner. The train was to be wrecked at the curve north of Delphos by removing a rail, after which they were to rob the dead and injured. It was planned that detectives should arrest the men at the point of rifles as they were about to carry out their plot, but a fear that some one might be killed led to the officers' confronting the men with the details of their proposed crime and ordering them out of the county. They went.

LONG HIDDEN DEFALCATION.

Hanover, Pa., National Bank Cashier Is Short $57,000.

A long-hidden deficiency, reaching about $57,000, has been discovered in the accounts of the late John H. Alleman, cashier of the First National Bank of Hanover, Pa., who died about three weeks ago. The books have been in the hands of an expert accountant since Alleman's death and the shortage was thus revealed. Mr. Alleman had been cashier of the bank for twenty-eight years and at no time was he ever suspected of wrongdoing. His defalcations were cleverly covered up by means of "kiting," or the use of drafts on different out-of-town banks, and thus deceived even the bank examiners.

Collision Damages Steamers.

The river steamer J. D. Peters, bound for Stockton, and the Czarina, returning from Port Costa, collided in San Francisco bay. The Peters carried passengers and the Czarina was in ballast. The Czarina was towed to her dock. The Peters was leaking badly and it was decided to beach her on Angel Island, the United States military reservation. All the passengers were safely landed.

Official Canadian Returns.

Official figures on the recent vote taken throughout Canada on the question of prohibition have been given out by the State Department. The majority in favor of prohibition is 13,884. Only 22 per cent of those entitled to vote, though, cast their ballots for prohibition.

Four Soldiers Badly Injured.

An explosion near the rear entrance to the eastern barracks at Fort Wayne, near Detroit, resulted disastrously to four soldiers, who are now lying burned and bruised in the regimental hospital. They are all members of the Nineteenth infantry.

TO RULE ALL EGYPT.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL DECLARE A PROTECTORATE.

True Meaning of the Activity in the British Foreign Office—France Agrees to Retire from Fashoda, but Other Powers May Act.

Advices from London say that Great Britain's secret is out at last in the opinion of well informed men of affairs who have been keeping close track of the recent extraordinary preparations for war. Of far more importance than the possibility of a little brush with France, which would be a repetition of the Spanish-American war, is the declaration that England is about to take the bull by the horns and proclaim a protectorate over all of Egypt. This is the theory that is now generally accepted as being the true solution of the problem, and it is the only one on which the remarkable activity of the war office and the admiralty can be satisfactorily accounted for.

All probability of trouble with France vanished with the receipt of positive statements from Paris that Major Marchand will be unconditionally withdrawn from Fashoda, but the war preparations have been continued since then with more energy than before.

The proclamation of Egypt as a part of the British empire would set all Europe by the ears and would undoubtedly result in war were it not known that England was prepared and looking for trouble. There is reason to believe that the German Emperor abandoned his trip to Egypt so as to be out of the country when the proclamation was issued. He is thought to be fully aware of England's plans.

The British naval and military preparations are being pushed to an extent without precedent since the Crimean war. England was about to declare a protectorate in 1884, urged to do so by Prince Bismarck, and it was only at the last minute, when all the preparations had been made, that the scheme was abandoned for a more favorable opportunity. That opportunity seems now at hand.

England's occupation of Egypt is based on might and has frequently been denounced by the khedive himself, by his suzerain, the Sultan of Turkey, and by France as illegal, while the other powers have quietly tolerated [illegible]

END OF THE [illegible]ION.

Seventy-five Thousand [illegible] Omaha's Show the [illegible]

The Transmississippi [illegible] exposition was closed. T[illegible] hours of the enterprise were th[illegible] brilliant in the history of the five months' exhibition. Seventy-five thousand people crowded the grounds during the closing day. Up to the last morning [illegible],388 people had registered at the [illegible]es, so the grand total will consider[illegible] exceed 2,600,000. The exposition was a financial success, something over $400,000 remaining to be divided among the stockholders. A fraction less than $2,000,000 has been received and $1,500,000 expended. The exposition owed $200,000 when the gates were opened; $390,000 was subscribed for the exposition and all but $90,000 of that amount paid in. In addition corporations donated $150,000. It is estimated that the subscribers should receive back 80 per cent of the subscriptions.

STATEMENT OF PUBLIC DEBT.

Net Cash Balance in the Treasury Is Placed at $300,233,275.

The debt statement issued by the Treasury Department shows that in the month of October the debt of the United States increased $43,487,717. The interest-bearing debt increased $36,678,360, and the cash in the treasury decreased $7,319,228.

The debt on Oct. 31 stood: Interest-bearing debt, $1,026,766,960; bearing no interest, $383,191,367.

The cash in the treasury is made up of the following items: Gold, $275,224,071; silver, $505,929,775; paper, $55,529,238; other cash, $96,566,313; total, $933,249,397.

Against this there are outstanding gold certificates, $36,940,149; silver certificates, $398,753,504; certificates of deposit, $20,105,000; Sherman notes, $97,833,280; other liabilities, $79,379,189, leaving a cash balance, including gold reserve, of $300,238,275.

MONEY HANDLED BY UNCLE SAM

Official Figures on October Receipts and Disbursements.

The monthly statement of the Government receipts and expenditures shows the receipts for the month of October amounted to $39,630,051, and the disbursements $53,982,276. The receipts from customs amounted to $15,555,234, against $9,713,494 for October, 1897. Internal revenue, $22,356,511, against $13,614,572 for October last year. Miscellaneous, $1,718,305, against $1,063,047 one year ago.

The increase in receipts for the month as compared with October, 1897, amounted to about $15,250,000. During the four months of the present fiscal year the receipts exceeded those for the corresponding period in 1897 by over $66,000,000.

RESENTED A PRACTICAL JOKE.

Wisconsin Man Goes Gunning for Human Game.

Adam Hammer of Beaver Dam, Wis., became insane, and securing a gun, wounded nine men and was finally shot to prevent his doing further injury. Hammer was the victim of a practical joke. He procured a shotgun, and, in a frenzy, shot at every one in sight, threatening death to his brother, who endeavored to pacify him.

Lieut. Arthur T. A. Tibbetts of Company K, Second regiment, was selected by the marshal to shoot the madman in such a manner as to bring him down without killing him. The soldier's aim was true, the madman being shot through the shoulder. None of the wounded will die.

M. Ribot was the only man who declined a portfolio.

WIDOW'S DREAM WAS TRUE.

Robbery of a Grave Discovered in a Peculiar Manner.

At Kansas City, Mo., a peculiar coincidence that led to the discovery of the work of ghouls terminated in the opening of a grave from which the body had been removed. About a week ago Michael Kelly died and was buried in the Mount St Mary's Cemetery. Since then his widow has twice dreamed that his grave had been robbed.

In company with her son, she went to the cemetery and had the grave opened, and it was discovered that the body had been removed. It is supposed that it was shipped to some medical college.

HOG CHOLERA CURE FOUND.

Departments of Agriculture's Experiments Crowned with Success.

During the past two years the Department of Agriculture has conducted a series of experiments in the use of a serum as a remedy for hogs affected by cholera or swine plague. The experiments were conducted by Dr. D. E. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, and the results were eminently satisfactory, proving the dreaded disease can be successfully treated, easily and inexpensively.

The losses suffered by the farmers of the United States annually from hog cholera aggregate an enormous sum. In Iowa alone, during 1896, it is estimated the hog raisers lost through the ravages of the disease $15,000,000. Scores of remedies have been tried, but nothing even approximating a specific for the disease has ever been discovered until the Department of Agriculture began its experiments.

Summarizing the results of the experiments, Dr. Salmon said 80 per cent of the hogs treated in droves have been saved, while in the droves affected with cholera and not given the serum treatment quite 80 per cent were lost.

Last year the experiments were conducted in Page County, Iowa, the results showing a loss of only 20 per cent of the affected droves. This year the experiments have been extensive and far-reaching. The bureau treated 922 hogs. Of these 170 died, the number saved being 85 out of every 100. The loss was only 10 per cent. The animals comprised seventeen droves, and of these six droves lost only one hog each. On the other hand, 1,107 hogs in other droves were served and not subjected to the serum treatment. Of these 879 died, showing a loss of 79.8 hogs out of every 100. Speaking of the treatment, Dr. Salmon said:

"There is no question of the effectiveness of the serum treatment. Our operations have been viewed with skepticism, but the serum treatment for hog cholera is no longer an experiment. It is a proved success and undoubtedly will save to the farmers of the United States millions of dollars every year."

The cholera serum is procured by keeping apart for treatment an animal—a horse or cow—and injecting into its blood a small amount of the blood of a cholera-diseased hog. This will sicken the subject, but he will recover, when another dose will be administered, and so on time after time until finally his blood becomes so impregnated as to render him practically cholera proof. Then his blood is let and the clot drawn off, leaving the thin, yellowish portion, which is the serum. This is used to inject into the diseased hogs and operates to render them likewise cholera proof, or even cures them of the disease after it has developed.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

Fixes Thursday, Nov. 24, for Thanksgiving Day.

President McKinley has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

The approaching November brings to mind the custom of our ancestors, hallowed by time and rooted in our most sacred traditions, of giving thanks to Almighty God for all the blessings he has vouchsafed to us during the last year.

Few years in our history have afforded such cause for thanksgiving. We have been blessed by abundant harvests, our trade and commerce have been wonderfully increased, our public credit has been improved and strengthened, all sections of our common country have been brought together and knitted into closer bonds of national purpose and unity.

The skies have been for a time darkened by the cloud of war, but as we were compelled to take up the sword in the cause of humanity we are permitted to rejoice that the conflict has been of brief duration and the losses we have had to mourn, though grievous and important, have been so few, considering the great results accomplished, as to inspire us with gratitude and praise to the Lord of Hosts. We may laud and magnify his holy name that the cessation of hostilities came so soon as to spare both sides the countless sorrows and disasters that attend protracted war.

I do therefore invite all my fellow citizens, as well those at home as those who may be at sea or sojourning in foreign lands, to set apart and observe Thursday, the 24th day of November, as a day of national thanksgiving, to come together in their several places of worship for a service of praise and thanks to Almighty God for all the blessings of the year, for the mildness of the seasons and the fruitfulness of the soil, for the continued prosperity of the people, for the devotion and valor of our countrymen, for the glory of our victory and the hope of a righteous peace, and to pray that the divine guidance which has brought us heretofore to safety and honor may be graciously continued in the years to come.

The Comic Side of The News

A Paris paper says that "Spain may resume warfare." Why "resume"? "Begin" is the word.

A Texas paper asks Congress to "make Dewey a full admiral." Is that the best way to treat him?

The Kaiser's trip to Palestine is one of the greatest enterprises ever undertaken by the kinetoscope people.

Perhaps Spain desires to take home the remains of Columbus to show that she is still able to "raise the dust."

The Washington Post hears that "Lillian Russell is going into the continuous performance field." Matrimonially?

War excitement detracts from the popular interest in football, and the long-haired tribe really has a kick coming.

Don Carlos evidently is waiting to see how much change Uncle Sam gives back to Spain before making a grab for it.

Aguinaldo threatens "to move" if the United States keeps the Philippines. Sometimes it's cheaper to move than to pay rent.

But should the Infanta Maria Teresa be admitted to the American navy before she has fought somebody and won a reputation?

The Chinese seem to be experiencing a good deal of trouble in getting their emperor to adopt the latest French ideas about suicide.

If we can't civilize the Philippine Islanders we can kill them off in short order. San Francisco has just shipped to Manila six car loads of cigarettes.

It is intimated that Spain would be willing to sell the Philippines for $400,000,000. Dewey probably could induce the Spaniards to cut down those figures by lopping off seven or eight ciphers if necessary.

The Cleveland Leader says that "Sagasta has hurled a non possumus at the American peace commission in Paris." That's all right; no Spaniard ever hits what he aims at.

Sagasta says he is "astonished by the claims of the American peace commission." We violate no confidence, however, in saying that this isn't the first time recently that Sagasta has been astonished by the Americans.

Recent advices from China say that "there are unmistakably ominous indications that the early death of the emperor is expected." The celestials are evidently planning to try on him the new French plan of compulsory suicide.

STORIES OF THE SPANISH WAR

He wore the natty costume of a rough rider and was tall and good looking enough to be a hero. He had whispered to some of the girls at the picnic that he was by the side of "Teddy" Roosevelt when the Spanish marksmen began to pepper away with fatal effect from the impenetrable underbrush at El Caney. He had all the gingerbread he could eat in six weeks and the girls just couldn't do enough for him. There was one light-haired miss, though, who didn't seem satisfied with the identity of the soldier and she attacked him with all the savagery of a Spanish guerrilla.

"Now, how does it come that your suit isn't worn any?" was her first shot.

"Oh, that's easy to explain," responded the youth. "My old clothes were such a sight when I got back to camp they made me put on new ones. They were afraid I would disgrace them."

"Well, what troop did you belong to in that far away country?"

"Troop D. Could have been corporal if I wanted, but would rather fight in the ranks, you know."

The other girls were getting restless, because their idol was being impeached, and looked indignant at the quizzer.

"Oh, 'troop D,' was it?" came the retort. "Now, you just run away from here as fast as you can. My Jack was in that company and he wrote me that all the boys had their mustaches shaved off before the battle and you've got one a mile long."

And the would-be veteran abandoned gingerbread and girls and went in search of other hero worshipers two miles away.

When a soldier enters the detention hospital all of his clothes are burned. One man who had been furloughed asked for his clothing and $12 that he had left in his shirt pocket. It was all of his funds, and he relied on it to pay his fare home. He was told that his clothing had been burned and the $12 also, as no one had thought to look in the little pocket. At this news the weak and miserable fellow collapsed, and it was necessary to again put him on his cot. He was lying semi-conscious, overcome with disappointment and the hopelessness of his position, when a nurse went to his bedside. "It was all a mistake about your money being burned," she said, "and here it is." With that she handed him $12. The poor fellow could not at first realize his good fortune, but finally he smiled and then fell asleep. The nurse was Miss Harriet E. Hawley, daughter of Gen. Hawley of Washington, who cast her lot in the detention hospital when help was greatly needed there. The $12 was really burned, and Miss Hawley told a fib, for which she will no doubt be forgiven. She had collected the money from doctors and nurses, subscribing the most herself.

Some of the volunteer soldiers who were put under the command of regular army officers soon after the beginning of the war found it a little hard to learn all the lingo of the camps. An officer sent a young volunteer orderly to requisition at the quartermaster's stores some tentage, and, when he returned, questioned him: "Orderly?" "Yes, sir." "Did you get the tents I ordered?" "Yes, sir." "Did you get the wall-tents?" "Yes, sir." "And the A tents?" "Yes, sir." "And the dog-tents?" "Yes, sir." "And the flies for the wall-tents?" "Flies, sir? No, sir!" "What? Now, why didn't you get the flies?" The soldier saluted respectfully; at any rate, he combined a salute and a motion which brushed away a cloud of flies from in front of his nose. "Camp is full of them, sir!" he answered.

One of Admiral Sampson's married daughters, the wife of Lieut. Roy Smith, lives in Norwich, and has a small American of her own at the public schools. The first time they sang the "Star-Spangled Banner" in his room the patriotic youngster rose to his feet, and there he stood reverently and resolutely till the song was over. That's the naval rule, to stand uncovered when the great national anthem is sung or played. With a naval father and grandfather he followed the laws of the service. It was rather an unusual proceeding, and his playmates undertook to guy the little patriot about it, but he stood his ground like a hero. The incident reached the ears of the local school board, and the order at once went out that all scholars of Norwich must stand while the national hymn is sung.

A recruit had just joined his regiment in Santiago, and, meeting an old chum who had gone over with the first expedition, he asked him if Cuba was as bad as they made it out to be in the United States. "No, not at all," his chum replied. "The fact of the matter is, there's a lot of young fellows come over here that don't take proper care of themselves; they eat and they drink, and they sleep and they die, and then they write home and tell their friends it's the climate that's killed them!"

MOONSHINERS UP IN ARMS.

Have Notified Informers to Leave an Arkansas County.

A war has broken out in Cleburne County, Ark., between about 100 moonshiners and the "informers." A resident of Searcy in a letter to Gov. Jones says the moonshiners have banded together and are burning the property the property of the informers and have notified them that they must leave the county.

Gov. Jones has issued a proclamation offering rewards for the moonshiners, but as this mode of suppressing the reign of terror is not effective, he has decided to call the State militia out. Should they prove inadequate the Governor will declare martial law. The attention of the Federal authorities has been called to the situation, and Federal troops will be brought into service, should the State be unable to restore order.

For years Cleburne County, on account of its isolation, has been the refuge of counterfeiters and moonshiners from North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and other States. Last winter information was furnished the revenue officers at Little Rock which led to the issue of warrants for about 100 residents of that county on the charge of illicit distilling. They united, defied the authorities and dictated terms of surrender, only giving up on condition that they be treated with leniency. About ninety of them were assessed nominal fines. They thirsted for revenge against the informers, and they have been burning property and subjecting the informers to so much trouble that the latter have been compelled to appeal to the State authorities for protection.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Baptists to Establish a Chautauqua—Hunger Conquers Two Escaped Convicts—Two Labor Leaders Shot—Soldier Stabbed by His Messmate.

Indiana Baptists have taken up the proposition to establish a Chautauqua in this State. The matter has been taken up in a quiet manner and at the Peru State convention a committee was appointed to look after a desirable location. They are ready to make a report. They have found several pretty parks in the northern Indiana lake district and favor one in the vicinity of Plymouth. The plans include a very elaborate building, and an effort to make it the summer educational center of the central States.

Indiana Soldier Fatally Stabbed.

W. S. Snyder, Company M, 160th Indiana, was seriously if not mortally wounded as the result of a stab received from the blunt and rounded end of a Government caseknife in the hands of Louis Gates, his messmate, at Lexington, Ky. The two men had trouble one night, and when they got up the quarrel was resumed. At mess Gates seized a caseknife and stabbed Snyder in the left breast, penetrating the lung. Snyder's home is at Walton, while Gates comes from Logansport. Gates is confined in the guard house awaiting court martial.

Farmer Fishtorn's Logic.

George and Thomas Fitzgerald, from Bunker Hill, broke jail while awaiting transportation to the penitentiary. William Fishtorn, a farmer, found them in his field suffering with hunger and cold, and after three hours of reasoning convinced them that a good dinner prepared by his wife and future obedience of the law was preferable to the life now before them. After dinner they were taken to Peru and lodged in jail.

Two Miners Are Shot Down.

Richard Reibmeister and Lon Bagsdale, coal strike leaders, were shot at Washington Depot by Austin Kocher, a non-union miner, who claims Bagsdale tried to hit him with a brick, and that Reibmeister offered to strike him. Kocher fired five shots, two of them taking effect in Bagsdale's neck and one in Reibmeister's side. Bagsdale is badly hurt. Reibmeister is not. Kocher was arrested.

Within Our Borders.

The corner stone for a $45,000 Presbyterian Church has been laid at Vincennes.

The suburb of Muncie, known as West Side, will be incorporated and renamed Normal City.

An Elizabethtown farmer has harvested a second crop of timothy from the same field this year.

J. W. Molar, a miner in the Jackson Hill mines, northeast of Sullivan, was killed by falling slate.

At Shelbyville, Harry Golding and Elijah Snider quarreled over their sweetheart and Snider was killed.

Patoka had three fires within a week and the people are inclined to think the town is harboring an incendiary.

It is probable that the next quadrennial meeting of the general conference of the United States will meet at Winona Lake.

David A. Jones of Madison County, who has a record of 156 sleepless days and nights, is gradually recovering his normal condition.

James Hillis of Clinton County is said to be the oldest native-born Indianian now living in the State. His birth occurred Jan. 8, 1814.

Jacob Dunkle of Cass County, while digging in his field, uncovered the head and shoulders of an Indian, which had petrified after burial.

The State gas inspector reports to the Anderson people, after a tour of the gas belt, that the Indiana natural gas field is in excellent condition, and no shortage is anticipated in any quarter.

John O'Keefe, the Valparaiso mail carrier who was arrested recently by the postoffice inspectors for abstracting letters containing money on his route, was bound over to the next term of the United States Court in the sum of $1,500.

A boiler explosion in the sawmill plant owned by Humphrey Gaunt at West Marion, wrecked the plant and injured five men. James Moore, head sawyer, died two hours later. Daniel Adams, engineer, and William Swafford were fatally hurt.

A big industrial deal has been consummated at Elwood, the Wright Spade and Shovel Company of Anderson purchasing the Akron Forge factory. It will be changed into a rolling mill and the company will manufacture heavy sheet iron for their Anderson factory.

A head-end collision occurred on the Bedford Belt Railroad about a mile west of the city limits between the east-bound passenger train and a work train. Both were making good time when they met on a curve. Four men were injured by jumping, but none fatally hurt.

A south-bound passenger train on the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville division of the Lake Erie and Western Railway ran down a horse and buggy being driven by Charles A. Smith near Eaton. The horse was killed, the buggy demolished and the driver fatally injured.

TWO ISLANDS.

Two islands lay within a lake at Munster,
And scarce three leagues of water flowed between;
On one Death came and went, but on the other
The shadow of his presence ne'er was seen.

Glad were the dwellers on one happy island,
For youth was there, high hopes, and lightsome hearts;
They built fair dwellings where they sang and feasted,
They bought and sold within their busy marts.

The years went swiftly by, almost uncounted,
Till marks of age were seen on many a face,
Till forms grew bent, and eyes grew dim and wistful,
Till life seemed weariness, and death a grace.

Disease grew rife, and pain was close companion,
Burdens pressed heavily, joys ceased to be,
Gain lost its charm, no more they cared for feasting,
And men grew tired with immortality.

And longingly they looked toward the island
Where sorrows ceased, and pain and all unrest,
Where cares could be laid down, at once, forever,
And deemed that island most supremely blest.

And lovers who in youth exulted, knowing
That in their future could no partings lie,
At last grew weary, and with solemn pity
Grieved for each other that they could not die.

And, though they spake no word, with furtive glances
They looked across the water's shimmering plain,
Unto those quiet fields of grass-grown hillocks,
And craved their utter, blissful rest to gain.

And, so the legend says—full many a shallop,
Slipped from its moorings by Life's fair green isle,
And bore these heartsick ones to Death's own island,
To gain the boon denied such weary while.

THE NEW TEACHER.

SCHOOL District No. 19, over in McComb County, had the reputation of being a very rough place for a young teacher, and no place at all for an old one.

It is a curious fact that any kind of a teacher can get along in some districts. The people are so kind; the children so apt and gentle; the schoolhouse so cosy and well furnished, and the salary paid so promptly and graciously, that teachers are never changed unless they marry or go into some other business.

I regret to say that model school districts are by no means in the majority; they are not nearly so plentiful as good teachers, for often all the success of a school depends largely on the hearty co-operation of the parents.

School 19, over in McComb County, was constantly changing its teachers.

Every new teacher was perfection the first month; simply human the second, and if he or she remained through the third month the children were in rebellion at the instigation of their parents, and the brains of the gossips were busy concocting slanders which their tongues did not hesitate to utter.

Robert Cole had just graduated with honor from a well-known college, and by way of recruiting his health, replenishing his pocket-book and getting started in his legal studies he determined, in the absence of anything better, to teach school for a year.

The superintendent of schools for McComb County was Robert Cole's friend, and to him the young man applied.

"There is only one district in this county that has not a teacher engaged to open school at the end of the present holidays; it pays the largest salary in the county, and the money is sure, for the district is rich; but then——"

"But what, Mr. Moore?" asked Robert Cole, seeing that the superintendent hesitated.

"It is a hard district."

"How so?"

"Well, they slander the female teachers, particularly if they are pretty; and the big boys have a fashion of thrashing the male teachers."

"I should rather like to try a school like that," said the young man, with a laugh.

"Oh! I am sure, Mr. Cole, you could manage the boys, but the parents and older brothers interfere. Why, last year a young man taught in No. 19; he was a powerful fellow and a fine teacher, and he maintained order. Of course, he did some flogging, particularly with the Dooks, but a lot of the men folk lay for him one night, and after beating him they threw him into the pond, and if he hadn't been an expert swimmer he'd have drowned. As it was he escaped, and the very next day he resigned," said Mr. Moore.

"Who are the Dooks?"

"It is a large family; they are related in some way to nearly every one in the district, and I believe—yes, I am sure—two of them are trustees at this time."

"Are there no good people in the district?" asked Robert Cole, feeling a bit discouraged, yet anxious to undertake the school for its very difficulties.

"Oh, my! yes; indeed, a majority of the people mean to do right and would change matters if they could; but they are a quiet, law-abiding folk, who need a leader and dread to act for themselves. If you say so, I can get you the school," said Mr. Moore.

"I shall be thankful if you do. I have a theory of my own about managing hard boys, and I should like to try it," said Robert Cole.

The superintendent said "Very well," and within a week Robert Cole had met the trustees and was engaged for the ensuing school year.

He was a well-built, handsome young fellow, and during the ten days that elapsed between his engagement and the time when school was to open he visited all families that had children, and did his best to create a good impression. In this he was successful, and when he opened school the inhabitants in No. 19 felt that they had at last got the teacher they had been looking for years and years.

The doctor and the clergyman and a few other observant people shook their heads and said one to the other:

"Young Mr. Cole is certainly an accomplished gentleman, but his refinement and culture are all so much against him. The Dooks will either drive him out, or he will leave in disgust, as others have done, long before the term is out."

Robert Cole's plan was to do his work conscientiously; to treat all alike, and never to give an order which he had not well considered, and which he was not prepared to enforce. He determined to keep his temper, and to require prompt obedience from the very start.

It was often remarked that School 19 always began the new term with a new teacher, on which occasion the building was always packed; but as the term wore on the attendance grew less, until at the close there were neither scholars nor teacher.

Before getting to work Robert Cole made a quiet little speech to the children, and while he was talking he noticed a shock-haired lad of 17, with a hair-lip, who persisted in tickling the ear of a little boy in front of him with a straw.

Robert stopped, and pointing to the culprit he asked:

"What is your name, sir?"

The culprit looked about him with a laugh, as if he expected some one else to answer.

"Come up here, sir," said Robert, sternly.

The culprit again looked about him and laughed.

He was still looking about him when he felt a hand on his collar, and before he knew what was up he was jerked into the aisle and dragged up to the platform, where the teacher picked him up and set him against the wall.

"What is your name, sir?" Robert asked again.

The boy with the hair-lip stammered:

"My name's Bill Dook."

"Bill Dook, I have heard of you, but I was not prepared to see you begin your devilment before I began my school. Now, I should prefer to get along well with you and with every other boy and girl in school, but I want you to know that you must do as I say from the very first, or else I shall flog you and put you out of school."

"My father's a trustee," gasped Bill Dook.

"I don't care if he is fifty trustees. You must promise to do as I say or I shall fling you out of school now; you understand?"

"Ye—yes," said Bill Dook.

"Say 'yes, sir.'"

"Yes, sir, I understand."

"Good; go back to your seat."

Robert Cole resumed his inaugural address just as if nothing had happened.

Beyond lecturing a red-headed girl of 16 till she cried—she was also a Dook—nothing unusual occurred during the rest of the day.

Robert examined his scholars, praised the bright ones, encouraged the backward and got them all classified.

Up to this time the oldest inhabitant of District 19 could not recall a teacher who began operations after Mr. Cole's manner.

He had not been there long enough to have his qualifications as a teacher called in question by the gossips; they did not know him long enough to make charges against his character, so even the Dooks had to confess that, while the young teacher had rather queer notions to start with, he meant right.

Robert Cole got his school well organized; he treated all alike, and while during study hours he never relaxed his discipline, at noon and recess he went out and played with the children, and so prevented rude conduct and vulgar language.

Bill Dook was on his guard and took care not to offend again, though hitherto he had been the terror of all the teachers; from his dogged manner, Robert Cole saw that the fellow harbored revenge, and that sooner or later he would try to gratify it.

As the winter came on Ned Dook, a young man of 20, who had left school "for good" two years before, took it into his head to attend again.

Ned Dook was a heavy, powerful fellow, and had the reputation of being the best wrestler in the county.

One of Robert's friends hinted to him that Ned Dook's object in coming to school was to make trouble for the teacher rather than to get instruction from him, and Robert soon saw that his friend was right.

The teacher, not a bit alarmed, determined to carry out his one rule for all. He would not let the big boys smoke or chew tobacco either in the schoolhouse or on the grounds.

"Edward Dook, are you chewing tobacco?" asked the teacher, the day after the big brother had entered the school.

"Yes, I am," said Ned Dook. And to prove it he spat on the floor.

"You cannot chew tobacco here; apart from the example you set the younger boys, I cannot stand such filth in the schoolroom."

"I've chawed for years," laughed Ned.

"I don't care what you have done; you can't use tobacco in this schoolhouse. Go to the door and throw that stuff in your mouth out."

Ned Dook laughed and threw the quid on the floor.

"Pick that stuff up and throw it out!" said the teacher, calmly and firmly.

"Throw it out yourself, Mr. Teacher, but I won't," said Ned Dook.

"It is ten minutes to noon, but I shall dismiss school now and call it ten minutes earlier. The school will all leave but Edward Dook."

With alarm in their faces, the children went out, and some of the bigger boys, among them Bill Dook, with a look of satisfaction on his ugly face, looked in the windows.

Edward Dook tried to smile when the teacher locked the door and came back to him, but his trembling lips showed that his confidence in himself was somewhat shaken.

"Will you do as I told you, sir?" said the teacher, coming so close that he might have laid his hand on the other's arm.

Ned Dook's reply was a fierce oath and a savage blow.

"You licked my brother, but you can't lick me!"

Robert Cole saw his tack and knew his man. He threw off the blow with his right hand, and before Ned Dook, who was as clumsy as he was powerful, could recover a blow planted between his eyes sent him in a heap to the floor.

Quick as a flash, Robert dragged his rebellious pupil to the platform and set him on his feet.

The young savage struck another blow and again was knocked down. Then Robert seized a short pointer, and he applied it to the fellow's arms and shoulders till he roared with pain.

"Will you do as I say, Ned Dook?"

"Yes," howled the beaten cur.

"Then pick up that tobacco and throw it out. Quick, or I shall take off your coat and wear out another pointer on you."

Ned Dook picked up the tobacco, and when the teacher opened the door for him to throw it out he ran bare-headed like a deer in the direction of his home, followed by his frightened brother.

During the rest of the day Robert continued as if nothing had happened, and his school was a model of order.

School had just been dismissed for the day, when Ned Dook's father and Ned Dook's uncle, both trustees and powerful men under 50, came to the school and demanded an explanation.

Robert saw that these men meant fight, but that they were made of the same material as the younger bullies. He explained, and said in conclusion:

"If either of you men came to my school I should expect you to obey me."

"But if we didn't do so?" asked Ned's uncle.

"Then I should make you."

"Do you think you could?"

"I don't know whether you intend coming to my school or not, Mr. Dook," said Robert, "but I know pretty well why you and your brother are here. Your family has been a curse to this district, but they must not stand in my way." Here he rose, and, locking the schoolhouse door, he put the key in his pocket and said as he came back: "If either of you, or both of you together, imagine that I cannot flog you as quickly as if you were boys, I'll undertake to undeceive you."

The Dooks exchanged glances. They were flogged without striking a blow. They offered their hands to Robert and called him a brick, and told him to do as he pleased from this time on and they would stand by him.

Robert took them at their word, and District 19, from being the worst, became the very best in the county.

A lady succeeded Robert Cole and she said she had never met with better pupils or nicer people.

Robert practiced law near by, and the Dooks became his clients, not that they had a high admiration for his intellectual acquirements, but because they believed that the ability to resist was a primary qualification for a lawyer, and Robert had that quality in perfection.—New York Ledger.

An effort has been made to determine the pulling strength of elephants, horses and men. Attached to a dynamometer, Barnum & Bailey's largest elephant registered a pull of two and a half tons on the second trial, but a smaller and more active elephant gave a record of five and a half tons—whether as the result of a steady pull or a sudden jerk appears to be uncertain. A pair of powerful horses registered a ton and a fifth, while it required the strength of eighty-three men to equal the pull of the smaller elephant.

Used His Hand for Shark Bait.

The fish in some waters are a hindrance, and are greatly disliked by the diver. Perhaps the diver's worst foe is the conger-eel. This creature attacks in swarms, and is most daring and exceedingly voracious. The congers bark like dogs, and never hesitate in the least to bite a man.

"At one time my right hand," said a diver to us, "was exposed for a moment in the water, when one of these fierce creatures made a dash for it, and took a large piece from the back of the hand. It bled freely, and I was obliged to come up to the surface and get it dressed."

"But how about the sharks? Don't you find them troublesome?" I asked.

"Not very. You see, sharks are like rats; leave them alone, and they run away if they catch sight of you. Corner a shark, and he will fight. But if you want a shark story, I can give you one of Lambert's; he once had a thrilling fight with one at the bottom of the Indian Ocean. He had been sent to the island of Diego Garcia to fix copper sheets on a coal-hulk that had been fouled by a steamer, and was annoyed during his operations by the same shark for nearly a week. The monster was temporarily scared away, however, every time Lambert opened the escape-valve in his helmet and allowed some air to rush out. One day Lambert signaled to his attendants for a big sheath-knife and a looped rope. Having these, Lambert used his bare hand as a bait, and waited until the shark commenced to turn on its back, when he stabbed it repeatedly, passed the noose round its body, and signaled for it to be drawn up. The diver brought home the shark's backbone as a trophy."—St. Nicholas.

YEARS OF SLAVERY.

EXPERIENCES OF TWO OF THE MAHDI'S PRISONERS.

Subject to Horrible Torture and Abuse—After Years of Suffering They Once More Breathe the Air of Freedom Through the Fall of Omdurman.

When the Anglo-Egyptian forces, under the command of Gen. Kitchener, captured Omdurman, the Mahdist stronghold in Egypt, inflicting heavy losses on the natives, besides wreaking a terrible vengeance for the cruel death of one of England's greatest soldiers, "Chinese" Gordon, the martyr of Khartoum, they also liberated several Christian prisoners who had been in the hands of the Mahdists for years and who had been treated by their captors with great cruelty. Among these prisoners were Karl Neufeld and Sister Theresa Grigolini. The former was captured by the Mahdi's men in 1887 and for eleven years has been the unwilling slave of a barbaric ruler of one of the most fanatical people on earth. Sister Grigolini fell into the hands of the Mahdi in 1882. The hardships through which Neufeld and Sister Grigolini passed during their captivity were most severe and the wonder is that they are alive to tell of them today.

In the '70s Neufeld was studying medicine at Leipsic, and one day his adventuresome spirit got him into a quarrel with a fellow-student. A duel resulted, and Neufeld fled the country to avoid arrest. He went to Cairo, stayed there but a short time, and then to more effectually hide himself made for the interior. He landed at Assuan in 1879 and for two years practiced medicine there. When the Mahomed Achmed rising occurred Neufeld's love of adventure prompted him to join the British troops. His knowledge of the people and their language made him a valuable aid to the British commander. Moreover, he showed wonderful shrewdness in dealing with the natives, and his courage in action was undoubted. When one day he saved a whole detachment of British troops by a clever trick which put the enemy on the wrong scent the camp rang with his praises, and for this service he was appointed purveyor to the army.

In the spring of 1887 Neufeld gathered together a caravan of forty retainers and, announcing that he was going on a trading trip, started on a journey into the Mahdi's country. Many, however, doubted the announced purpose of the little expedition, and rumors were soon afloat that Neufeld had been sent to spy on the Mahdi, and that he was to attempt the rescue of Slatin Pasha, then five years a captive in the Mahdi's hands. Arabian treachery was responsible for the failure of the expedition and for Neufeld's capture. One of his own men played the traitor, and a body of howling fanatics swooped down on the caravan one morning while they were encamped near a well. Neufeld's captors held him until March, 1888, when he was taken to Omdurman and led before Khalifa Abdullah, the Mahdi's successor.

The dervishes and other tribes under the Mahdi's rule were wild in their exultation over Neufeld's capture, believing him to be an Englishman, and he was brought into the Omdurman under a strong guard. The Khalifa looked upon [illegible] as most important. Two [illegible] Europeans told the fanatical rulers [illegible] Neufeld was not an Englishman, but from another country in Europe. It took some time for Abdullah to see things in the right light, which was a lucky thing for Neufeld. He was loaded down with chains, however, and thrown into a vile prison at Omdurman. During the night the Khalifa apparently made up his mind that the white man ought to hang whether an Englishman or not and orders were given that the prisoner should be hanged in the morning. Neufeld received the news through the beating of a huge drum close to his ears. The populace was encouraged to heap indignities on the prisoner; black slaves spat at him as he passed on the way to the scaffold. Neufeld did not flinch. The Khalifa's indecision delayed matters until noon, when it was announced the march to the scaffold would be continued. The immense crowds gathered to witness the execution of the hated "Englishman" hooted and yelled in wild delight as Neufeld stepped fearlessly up and coolly bent his head to receive the noose. At this moment a messenger from the Khalifa ordered the execution stopped, and then it developed the exercises were arranged only to frighten the prisoner.

A few day later Neufeld, loaded down with all the chains that could be fastened to his body, was placed on a camel's back and paraded through the streets of Omdurman to give the populace another chance to hoot and deride their captive, who was now duly entered as one of the Khalifa's white slaves.

The first four years of captivity were full of horrible suffering for the unfortunate Prussian. The prison consisted of four walls, inside of which were huddled 200 prisoners, white and black and of both sexes. In the center of this inclosure stood a stone hut, with heavily-barred door and windows, into which fifty of the prisoners—as many as could be crowded in—were forced each night to better secure their safety and incidentally inflict sufferings which would more forcibly remind them that they were captives of the Mahdi's successor. The sun beat down on the stone walls of this hut during the day, and at night when nearly all air was excluded by the shutting of the door the heat which the walls gave forth made the breath-seeking, cursing mass of sick humanity inside almost another "black hole," like that of Calcutta. Typhoid fever, dysentery and other ailments assailed the miserable occupants of this horror hut; the floor swarmed with vermin; now and then a howl of pain told of a scorpion bite, or an agonized groan would tell of the death of a victim of the terrible heat, which produced nightly cases of apoplexy. Live men and women slept side by side with corpses and the death of one more only called forth an exclamation of anger if the dying one happened to fall on or roll too close to a neighbor.

All during Neufeld's four years in the vile prison the European slaves who were not in irons—notably Slatin Pasha and Father Ohrwalder, who had gained many friends—made every effort to secure his release from chains and the horrors of the stone hut. The Khalifa was obdurate, however, until it was suggested that Neufeld might be utilized in making powder, of which the Khalifa's army was in urgent need. This put the matter in a new light and Neufeld's release was ordered. The day after his release from the prison Neufeld was sent with a strong guard to Halfaeih in search of saltpeter, and in a month returned with enough to make all the powder needed. He was given an Egyptian assistant, and a powder factory was established in a vacant mission house still standing among the ruins of Khartoum.

Since 1891, up to his liberation, Neufeld has, so far as known, continually worked in this hut at the powder industry. A ball and chain was attached to one leg, and he was told it would never be removed. So far as known it was still forged to his leg when Kitchener entered Omdurman at the head of the triumphant Anglo-Egyptian force.

The story of the captivity of Sister Grigolini is even darker than that of Neufeld. She belonged to the Austrian Mission, and with Fathers Ohrwalder and Binomi, two Caymen and three other sisters was seized at the mission at Delen, near El-Obeid, which was then being besieged by the Mahdi, in 1882. The capture of Delen and the missionaries was due to the cowardice of the captain of a company of Egyptians, who surrendered to an inferior force of the Mahdi's followers.

After being made prisoners the eight white men and women were marched to El-Obeid, where they found the Mahdi in person superintending the siege against Said Pasha. They arrived before the Mahdi so exhausted they could not speak. Insults and indignities indescribable were heaped upon the little group. A council of the Mahdi's advisers was held and the fate of the captives discussed. Several times the sentence of death came near being pronounced, but it was finally decided the captives were entitled to live, a Moslem law providing that priests who surrender without resistance shall be spared. The missionaries were called upon to adopt the Mahdi's faith, the penalty for refusing being death. They held a consultation and decided death to be preferable. "We have chosen death," they sent word to the Mahdi, but for some inexplicable reason the Mahdi did not carry out his threat.

Soon afterward the sisters were seized and distributed among the Emirs of the Khalifa's army. On journeys hither and thither with their Emir masters these women were forced to walk barefooted over the burning sand with their feet bleeding from innumerable thorn wounds. The torture of the march was unspeakable. The Emirs took delight in beating their white women slaves, insulted them at every opportunity, and abused them most brutally. The sun burned their faces until the skin peeled off, and when one of the sisters fell in the road from fatigue she was strung up by the feet and the already bleeding soles beaten with sticks until the feet became swollen and black. Through it all the sisters clung to their faith and no threat could induce them to abandon it.

Sister Grigolini, bleeding from a hundred whip marks, succeeded one night in escaping from her black master and made her way to the Mahdi's hut. She forced her way into his presence and with tears running down her face protested against the cruel treatment the captives were receiving. The Mahdi's heart was touched at the sight of the poor woman's wounds and he ordered the sisters released from the tyrannical Emirs.

After the death of Gordon and the fall of Khartoum the prisoners were taken to Omdurman, where their life was not so continually beset with danger, although there were times when death seemed near. Riots were of not infrequent occurrence and Europeans were massacred by the dozens. Fathers Ohrwalder and Binomi managed to escape—Binomi in 1888, Father Ohrwalder in 1892. Father Ohrwalder took the other sisters with him, thus leaving Sister Grigolini alone in captivity.

NEW TELEGRAPH INSTRUMENT.

Can Be Strapped to the Ears Like a Telephone Receiver.

A new telegraph instrument, known as a "Morse watch," has been put on the market. Outwardly it looks like an ordinary timepiece, but in reality it is a transmitting and [illegible] graph instrument, a key [illegible] inclosed in an ordinary w[illegible]

This type of instrument, says [illegible] tricity, is known to the telegraph c[illegible] under the general title of "secret sou[illegible] er." The Morse watch is so constructed that the click of the instrument can be adjusted loud enough to be heard in any part of a comparatively large room, or be adjusted to a point where the click is inaudible unless the instrument is held in contact with the ear.

The Morse watch is accompanied with a suitable flexible head band to fasten the instrument in place on the head over the ear, leaving both hands free for transcribing messages or other work. It also has a very neat silk conducting cord, with specially designed terminals, so that the instrument can be conveniently and quickly attached to or disconnected from the ordinary instrument of a telegraph line.

The employment of the art of telegraphing has so far developed at the present time that the telegraph operator is found in one corner of many brokers' as well as newspaper offices, police stations, etc., and in such places it is desired to maintain for the transaction of other business as much quiet as possible. The Morse watch secures that end by permitting the telegraphing to go on to all intents and purposes in perfect silence.

Probably the most important use, however, that the Morse watch will serve is in connection with the military telegraphs and all offices where absolute secrecy is one of the first requirements.

A Prediction Eighty Years Old.

The poet Keats wrote to his brother George in Kentucky in 1818 as follows: "Russia may spread her conquest even to China; I think it a very likely thing that China itself may fall. Turkey certainly will. Meanwhile European north Russia will hold its horns against the rest of Europe, intriguing constantly with France."

THE SMALLEST IN THE WORLD.

Things and Places that Excite Interest by Reason of Minuteness.

The smallest book ever printed is the story of Perrault's little "Hop-o'-My-Thumb," lately published. The book is one and one-half inches long by one inch wide, and one-quarter inch thick. It can be read only by the aid of a microscope, but is complete in every way and has four engravings.

Shears no bigger than a pin is one of the exhibits of the skill of a Sheffield workman; a dozen of these shears weigh less than half a grain, or about the weight of a postage stamp; they are as perfectly made as shears of ordinary size.

Gaust is the smallest republic as to area, which is exactly one mile. The population numbers 150. It is situated in the Pyrenees.

Tavolara is the smallest republic as to population, having only fifty-three men, women, and children. It is twelve miles from Sardinia.

Tristan d'Acunha, in the South Atlantic, sends out its mail once a year to the outside world; it has a population of sixty-four persons—eighteen men, nineteen women, fifteen boys and twelve girls.

No other city in the world is as quiet as Berlin. No steam whistles are allowed within city limits; a man whose wagon gear rattles is subject to a fine, and piano playing must be confined within certain hours.

King Malietoa, the Samoan monarch, lately dead, received a smaller salary than any royalty, $150 monthly, and it was usually in arrears.

Coal is cheaper in China than in any other place in the world.

The Germans make the cheapest dolls and musical toys.

Chinese streets are the narrowest in the world—some of them are only eight feet wide.

The smallest horse in the world is a Shetland pony owned by the Marquis Carcano. Its height does not surpass seventy centimeters; it is often harnessed to a lilliputian mail coach.

Berlin has the smallest elephant in the world. It is only one meter high and weighs eighty kilograms.

The smallest camels belong in Persia. They are not more than fifty centimeters high.

The smallest cows in the world are to be found in the Samoan Islands.

MEDIAEVAL SUPERSTITIONS.

Revival of Them Under Various Guises in the Last Decade.

For some strange reason there has been a wonderful revival within the last decade of nearly every mediaeval superstition, under various guises, in the most enlightened centers of the world. The practitioners of this modern sorcery, instead of concealing, advertise their claims and urge them on the community under pseudo-scientific names and jargons.

Palmistry, astrology, sympathetic magic, the doctrine of signatures, hieratherapeutics and all the farrago of fifteenth century thaumaturgy flourish today in Boston and New York, in Paris and Chicago to a degree surpassing anything known three centuries ago.

Our music master was visited by a lady who said she wished to become a professional singer.

Would he try her voice?

"Yes," was the answer. "Are you a soprano or contralto?"

"I really don't know," was the answer. "I haven't any voice yet."

The teacher was naturally puzzled. "What do you mean?" asked he.

"Well," she replied, "I'm forty-eight and I've never sung a note in my life. But I'm a widow, and I've only twenty-five pounds a year. One can't live on that. I can't say I'm fond of music; I never was; but I've been told it's a lucrative business, and so I want to become a professional singer. How long will it take?"

Mustache in the British Army.

The mustache first became common in the British army at the beginning of the present century. The Hussars adopted it, and not long afterward the Lancers. It was not until the beginning of the Russian war that the infantry adopted the mustache. Whiskers disappeared after 1870, and at present the mustache has come under the Queen's regulations for all branches of the service. So much so, indeed, that only a year ago the authorities at the Horse Guards learned with indignation that young officers in certain regiments did not sufficiently cultivate the growth of mustaches by omitting to shave the upper lip, in consequence of which general officers commanding have now instructions to suppress such irregularities by any means that they "may think necessary."—Ex.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY...NOVEMBER 10, 1898.

THE ELECTION.

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET IN DeKALB GENERALLY SUCCESSFUL.

Only the Democratic Clerk in Doubt and Mr. Hartman is the Only Republican Who Gets a Safe Majority in the County.

It is with great satisfaction, that the COURIER closes its campaign. On one or two candidates there has been a hard fight, and especially on Sheriff. The republican candidate was so manifestly unworthy and unfit, that the editor of this paper, felt it a duty he had no right to shirk, to go into a personal fight to defeat him. This we did, and it is some thing we seldom do, and we feel no apologies are necessary. It would have been a disgrace and a calamity to the county, had the elements in both parties, that were backing him succeeded in foisting him on the county. The editor of this paper wishes to thus publicly thank the good citizens of Auburn and DeKalb county, of all political parties, who so gallantly came to our assistance. You have shown your faith by your works. Surely a just God will bless this effort for purity in public places.

From returns as far as received it appears that Hathaway's majority will be about 600; Dr. Hines about 500 ,and the other democrats much lower, with the chance in favor of a republican [redacted] hundred. But these are very close, [redacted] are elec[redacted] justices in Auburn.

A tabulated vote of the county by precincts will be given next week as we usually do.

Robinson is elected. We ga[redacted] three congressmen. Republic[redacted] get the state.

HENRY LINDOR[redacted] DEAD.

Frank Lindorfer of Ch[redacted]go was here today, having been [redacted] here by the sudden death [redacted]er, Henry Linde[redacted] was in Flo[redacted] Henry, [redacted] well-known to most of our people, [redacted] been for some years the baggage [redacted]nt of the B. & O. at Garrett, had [redacted]n into ill health and went to Florda [redacted] four months ago to try the bene[redacted]of, the famous Tarpoint Springs. [redacted]t the treatment could not save him and he died Sudday morning at 4 o'clock The remains were brought north and went through here to Garrett at 12:25 today. The funeral will be tomorrow under the auspices of the B. & O. trainmen and interment at Garrett He was a most worthy man and his untimely death is a sad one to his host of friends.

THE SILVER DAWN

Saxby McIntosh and L. B. Fretz have leased the Silver Dawn office at Waterloo and take possession of it on Friday Nov. 11. They arrange to let Mr. Gerner have the subscription list and the use of three columns for editorial matter, while they do all the work and have all receipts from job work and advertising. Both young men are handy and capable printers and able to do any part of the publishing and managing of a newspaper. We hope to see them succeed in their new undertaking.

A Suggestion.

We the undersigned partners in the practice of Medicine, Surgery and Obstetrics, believe it to be the best interest of our patrons that one of us should at all times be free from the contaminating influence of contagious diseases such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, etc., thus minimizing the dangers of carrying the infectious to other susceptible cases and especially those of the lying in room, where the utmost precautions are required. We therefore request that Dr. Casebeer be excused so far as is possible from visiting cases of diphtheria or other contagious diseases on account of engagements in obstetric practice and that Dr. Matheny be excused from obstetric work while attending any form of contagious diseases.

DRS. MATHENY & CASEBEER.

AUBURN CHRISTIAN MISSION

We promised our readers yesterday that we would give a more complete account of the new enterprise in Auburn, to which we then alluded briefly. We refer to the Auburn Christian Mission that is to have its headquarters and its home in the Painter Building next door south of the Fischler Pharmacy. The organization is already completed, Mrs. A. M. Hart is Leader: Mrs. Julia M. Hodge secretary, and Charles Eckhart. treasurer. The room has been rented for year, beginning Dec. 1, but it will probably be occupied before that. The front room is 20 by 45 feet and the rear room 20 by 45 feet. The rear room will at once be carpeted and probably the main room later on. Both are being newly papered and painted and put in good order. A good base burner will keep the rooms comfortable and the seating will be good chairs. The object of the Mission is, primarily, the saving of souls, and it is to be an auxiliary to the churches and ordinary church work of the town, and in no way antagonistic to them. Nor will it be used or permitted to be used in any way to the detriment of any denomination of Christians. All who are led to Christ through the instrumentality of this mission or the meetings held there, will be at perfect liberty to attach themselves to any church or similar organization they see fit. And the Mission will not establish any separate church organization But they earnestly invite all Christian people of all denominations to join with them in this good work and become fellow workers for the good of all men. The rooms will be kept open every day, and evening, but it is not to be a place for loitering, the intention being, that all who desire, may be made welcome there at any time, that he or she has any desire to consult, inquire or assist, or to ask assistance from a moral or religious point of view. This is one object of the Mission, to encourage, assist and strengthen Meetings will be held there each day and evening, or less frequently, as may be convenient or as may seem best, or as the opportunity to secure suitable speakers may occur. And all will be free of charge. No contributions will be asked of anyone, but all who choose to contribute voluntarily and without solicitation, will be welcome to do so. Such free will offerings as the Master may inspire them to contribute will be received in the same spirit in which it is bestowed. Further information may be had of any of the officers of the organization. We hope to see all Christian people take an interest in this new departure for the good of souls.

The Foot Ball Game.

We gave at the time, a brief note of the only really contested game of the season, the one between the clubs of Ft. Wayne and Auburn. The game was [redacted] The captains flipped [redacted] which was won by [redacted] first half was rather [redacted] the Ft. Wayne team had the [redacted]it so far. They made, several good runs around ends which were played badly by Auburn. Henderson did nearly all the tackling in the first half of the game. Our boys have had but very little practice and were not expecting to play the Fort Wayne boys till next week, and Henderson has not been in the field this season, till the day of the game. But he nevertheless played a strong game from start to finish and was well sustained by the other boys. No one was seriously hurt except him, he getting a sprained arm in the first half, but it did not prevent his going on with the game. We were not given a list of the other members of the team or we would have given them proper mention, but hope for a full report of the next game.

His Seventieth.

Yesterday, Engelbert Ashley was 70 years old, and his children gathered in to do him honor. The party included the families of his sons-in-law, John Rolapp and E. T. DeLapp, and the unmarried children, tho two girls now at home and his son Fred Ashley. There was a a pleasant family reunion, and this was followed by a bountiful dinner, The only absentees were the family of John G. Ashley, who, owing to the lateness of the decision to have a reunion, was not able to be present.

Guest Day.

Saturday was the first guest day of the year for the L. L. C., and in spite of the rainy weather many of the members and their guests assembled at the home of the president, Mrs. M. B. Willis, at the regular hour. After the club was called to order and the regular routine of business was over, the subject for the day, "cooking," was taken up. The first paper was entitled "Cooking as a Fine Art," and was given by Mrs. Barns, who was a substitute for Mrs. Scott, of Angola, who was unable to be present or prepare her work. This paper was well received and was listened to with excellent attention. Next came a paper entitled "Marketing," by Mrs, Nellie Hartman. This was bright and chatty and yet withal full of good practical suggestions. This paper was followed by one on the subject, "Importance of Cooking Classes in Public Schools," by Miss McTighe. This was carefully arranged and contained a short account of a personal visit to one school where such classes were taught, besides some valuable information gleaned otherwsie. The president then announced that a short intermission would be given for social chat. A surprise was then introduced by a committee who came into the room, bringing with them a cup of fragrant tea and plates of fancy cakes for each, thus giving a practical illustration of the subject for the day. After this pleasant part of the program was concluded the next topic was taken up, which was a discussion, "Is Good Cooking an Aid to Temperance," conducted by Mrs. Lewis. Mrs. Lewis' paper on this subject was a fine one and after an excellent introduction on the line of what is good cooking, concluded with a plea to the mothers to be careful and see that their husbands and children have good, wholesome and temperate cooking. The paper was followed by a discussion by a number present, guests as well as members being asked to take part. Mrs. Ehlers being present, was asked to conclude the discussion, which she did in her usual able manner, leaving an excellent impression on all present, that it had been an afternoon delightfully as well as profitably spent. The President then pronounced the meeting adjourned, and all returned to their homes, pleased and grateful that they had been able to attend the first Guest Day of the L. L. C. and wishing that it might be possible that they would be so fortunate as to be present at the next one, for this popular club has on its program several other Guest Days during the year.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS—IMPORTANT.

The Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, have requested us to announce that they have several thousand sets of the finest coin silver-plated War Memorial Spoons left over from their recent distribution. They will mail, postpaid, a full set of six of these spoons to every subscriber to the COURIER, who will send name and address—a postal card will do. If, on receipt of the spoons, you find them the most exquisitely beautiful specimens of the silversmith's art you ever saw, and worth $3.00, remit 78 cents, as payment in full, within 30 days; if not pleased return spoons immediately. Each spoon is of a different design—after-dinner coffee size—showing soldiers in camp in Cuba, Morro Castle, and four U. S. Battleships. They are imperishable mementoes of the late war, and every subscriber should accept this most remarkable offer and obtain a set before it is too late. All that's necessary is to say you're a subscriber to the COURIER (this is important) and that you accept Memorial spoon offer. Address QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 357 W. Harrison St., Chicago.

A Good Visit

Our old Waterloo neighbor, S. Z. Dickinson, of Waterloo was here today. He has just fairly got home from a summer visit with friends in various parts of the country including Hillsdale, where his son O. C. Dickinson lives, and Tecumseh where Charles and Forrest are. He also spent some time in Portage county, Ohio, where he was born and reared, though he had not been there for about thirty years. There he visited the place where his grandfather settled on a claim of 1200 acres in 1805 and built a house, a big one for those days. It is still in good shape, and the siding is put on with wrought nails made out of rod iron by a local pioneer blacksmith. This siding is still firmly fixed and cannot be pulled off except where a board has decayed around the nail so as to make a hole big enough for the nail to come through. He brings home many memories of old-time friends and neighborhoods.

James B. Baxter Dead.

Last evening at about 4:30 James Baxter came to the house, after caring for his cow, at the barn, sat down in a chair as if feeling badly, and seemed to go into a sort of spasm. He coughed once or twice, blood coming from his mouth, and then fell dead. He was paralyzed several years ago, and never regained the right use of himself, and lately has apparently been failing.

A Boy and Girl

I have a boy at the County Home, eight or nine years old, all right every way, to be let to proper parties on trial, with privilege to keep him till eighteen years old.

Also a girl of ten, all right in every way, to let out to suitable party on same terms. Call on me at the County Farm

AUGUSTUS BARTELS,
Supt.

JIM DECKER HURT

Last evening Jim Decker borrowed a revolver and started out as he said to kill a dog. At least that is what he said he was going to. Later on, he was picked up near Sol Bates, toward the south end of town, with Blood on his face, and a gun shot wound on his head, and the bullet had passed up slanting through his hat. He claimed two men had attacked him as he turned into the alley by Bates barn. He was carried into Bates', and his injuries dressed. But no one seems to understand clearly how it all happened. He is the man who was in jail awhile last summer.

OBITUARY.

Died. at her home one and one-half mile east of St. Joe, October 27, 1897, Mrs. Elizabeth Saylor, (nee Wilbur) widow of the late Henry Saylor.

Aunt Lib, as she was familiarly called by her neighbors, was born in New York state, but in 1834, came to Concord township with her parents and located on what is now known as the William Simonton farm, one-half mile west of Orangville. Her marriage to Henry Saylor occurred in 1847, in which year they moved onto the farm where she has always resided.

The deceased was not a member of any church but it can be said of her that her religion consisted in doing unto others as she would that they should do to her, and no one was turned from her door without help. The neighborhood where she has always lived has met with a loss that years will not efface. She leaves behind her to mourn her loss, one son, L. S. Saylor, one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Dermott, one brother, George Wilbur, living near Maysville, one sister in California, one half-sister in Fort Wayne, and a number of relatives and friends.

The remains were laid [redacted]est in the Newville cemetery be[redacted] of her husband, who prec[redacted] eight years ago. Funeral [redacted] the Rev. C. E. Kriebel of the [redacted]rch.

OBITUARY.

James B. Baxter, son of Andrew and Nancy Baxter, was b[redacted] DeKalb Co. Ind., Oct. 19, 1854 [redacted] at his home in Auburn, Ind. No[redacted]898 aged 44 years and 19 days. A faithful and affectionate son, brother, husband and father, he leaves a large circle of friends to whom he had endeared himself by his loving and generous devotion. His early life was spent upon the home farm. Later he came to Auburn and was for many years the efficient deputy in the office of county clerk. In December 1882 he was united in marriage to Miss Nellie A. Wheelock, who departed this life in May 1889 leaving an only child Nellie Rosanna Baxter. January 6th, he was married to Miss Nellie E. Maxwell. To this union there were born two sons and one daughter, all of whom survive him. In the year 1889 and 1890, he was led to consider his personal duty to become a christian, and after earnest meditation and inquiry, he made a public profession of faith in Christ, and united with the Baptist church, of which he was an esteemed and valued member until death.

Several years prior to his disease, he suffered from a partial stroke of paralysis, which together with subsequent illness, doubtless led to the sudden heart failure that resulted in death.

Amid the tears of sorrow and grief experienced by those who loved him best, faith can yet exclain; "Oh death where is thy sting, Oh grave where is thy victory?"

"It is not death, to die
And leave the thorny road,
And with the brotherhood [redacted] high,
To be at home with God."

Mr. Baxter was a member [redacted] the orders of Odd Fellows and K[redacted]s of Pythias. The funeral was at [redacted] residence at 2 p. m. today, [redacted] E. P. Hoyt officiating.

Disliked Her Red Waist.

The other day at Brighton, N. J., a bull that was being led along the street by two men caught sight of a very red waist worn by a young woman as she sped past him on her bicycle. The bull started on the rampage, scattering pedestrians right and left. He owned the streets for a time until he was lassoed and subdued.

EVERYTHING HERE.

Our mammoth Fall and Winter stock is complete in every way. A customer walking through our store last week asked: When do you expect to sell such an ocean of clothing? We have certainly bought heavy, but buying direct from the manufacturer and in such large quantities, we have the advantage of all contemporaries by giving you a much larger stock to select from and at the same time we will give you better prices than can be found elsewhere. Our Overcoat tables are heaped up with the best of New York's manufacture.

We start Overcoats at $3.00 and on up to the $22.00 all-silk lined, nothing finer could be constructed

Men's Winter Suits—we can fit any man.

$4.98 buys a good Cheviot Suit. $5.50 buys a good Cassimere Suit.

$7.50 buys a Scotch Cheviot Suit that at other places would cost you $9.00.

$9.50 buys an all-wool genuine Scotch Cheviot Suit that can not be bought elsewhere under $11.00.

We are offering the washington Mills Clay worsted Suits at $10.00, better price than any year previous.

Ask to see the Black Cheviot and Cassimere Pants we are offering at $1.50 and $1.75. Men's working pants at 50c, 65c, 75c and 95c.

Ulster Overcoats.

When the cold winds whirl around and down your neck just remember to call in and and let us show you Ulster Overcoats at prices that will make you a buyer. We start Ulsters at $3.25.

Boys' Knee Pant Suits.

We know you and your boy will be suited when looking this department over. They start at $1.00 a suit The $1.50 suits are just right for school wear, they are heavy warm and durable.

Gents' Furnishings.

We haven't time to say much of this department. Fleeced Lined Underwear—others have them but we have the garment at 50c that others ask you 65c for. Neckwear, Gloves and Mittens, Shirts and Mackintoshes.

Our Hat and Cap Department has received its share of attention and it is this line that we are all so hard to please in. Come in and look us over we'll do our best to please you.

OBITUARY.

(Ashland, O. Press, Oct. 26.)

Marion M. Lash passed to the spirit world Oct. 13, 1898, after long illness. The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church at Polk Saturday afternoon, Oct. 15, the Rev. A. E Winter, a former pastor of the deseased officiating, assisted by the Rev. J. H. Johnson and the Rev. J. W. Cummings. He leaves behind to mourn the loss of his comforting presence a noble, kind, wife, mother and brother. He was a model husband, dutiful son and kind brother. He was united in marriage with Martha Eleanor Funk in the city of Cleveland, March 28, 1889, by the Rev. G. W. Huddleston, and out of that union came one of the most nearly perfect models of the Divine institutions of Love. Oh, that the countless homes where domestic happiness is extinguished by the ruthless hand of discord might gaze at such a model and learn the valuable lessons, which would bring back the beautiful dove of domestic peace!

What should be said touching his church life? I shall speak from personal knowledge, gained from the delightful pastoral relation sustained to him the last two years of his actual church life in the Lorain street Methodist Episcopal church, of Cleveland. In that progressive city church, he came quickly to be considered an essential factor, a steward, an officer in the Epworth League and Sunday-school superintendent, and during his administration valuable methods were introduced at the suggestion of his resourceful mind that have ever since been in operation in the school. To show in brief the high esteem in which he was held, let me refer to a single circumstance. Though his name for the past three years has been on the membership roll of another church in the city, yet each Easter the Epworth League and Sunday School of the former church unanimously voted to send beautiful floral tributes to him, to remind him of their appreciation of his valuable services while connected with them. The church may well mourn her loss, the may well mourn the loss of a noble citizen. But, weeping friends, heart-torn bereaved ones, your loss is his eternal gain, and as I contemplate the blossoming out o' this beautiful life, unto the fuller Heavenly life, I think of those precious words of Jesus: "I go to prepare a place for you. And if I prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." A. E. WINTER.

A Kindergarten Conundrum.

In a Utica kindergarten school a few days ago the subject before the class was the hen. Among other questions asked by the teacher was, "What does the hen have that we have?" the teacher at the same time placing both her hands on her head to indicate the portion of the body referred to. The teacher was much surprised as well as amused when a little girl quickly answered, "A comb!" The teacher had placed one hand on a comb in her hair.

A Horseless Sleigh.

An adaptation of the Bollee horseless carriage, driven by a gasoline engine, to winter use, has been invented by Dr. Casgrain of Quebec. In place of the pneumatic-tired wheels of the ordinary Bollee carriage he substitutes steel runners for the forepart of the carriage, and a driving-wheel, whose rim is studded with steel points, for the rear part. The steering apparatus acts upon the forward runners. The gasoline reservoir, containing seven quarts, suffices for a run of fifty miles.

FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

LASSITUDE.

Lassitude, "that tired feeling," is one of the first signs of approaching illness: it may be a cold: La Grippe or other malady. A few doses of "77" at this early stage may "break up" the disease, preventing a long illness

BUTLER.

Houses and barns are on the move. The old M. E. parsonage, formerly Burget's carriage shop is stranded on East North street opposite the old Revet place, and bids fair to stay awhile if rain and mud continue. The barn from the lot of Mrs. Andrew Baxter is on its way down town and stopped over Sunday at Levy's store. It will stop on John Baxter's place on North street.

J. A. Campbell, made an extended business trip through the north part of Steuben county last week and reports a successful canvas.

A. M. Crago, of Ney, O., has moved to Butler, and occupies one of the Haskin dwellings on Railroad street.

Election will soon be over, when a regular exodus of moveing families will fill our streets for a few days.

M. I. Campbell and wife visited Chicago, over last Sunday.

Geo. Gedder and Listen Harding have purchased the Lane drug stock, and are now in full posession. Stouts new meat market has moved across the street, into the opera house building and seems to be doing quite a business.

Grandma Siebold was buried last Saturday. Funeral services were held at the Lutheran church of which society she had been a member since she joined it when a young girl in Germany. She has been a resident of Butler for more than thirty years.

William Clark and daughter, Mrs. Hamilton of near Angola Sundayed with the latters daughter, Mrs. R. Campbell last Sunday.

Will Oberlin has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be found at his old post, behind the beer bar.

Our stores now all close at 8 p. m, except the saloons, that receive a double run of idlers forced out of legtimate places of trade.

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October—our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85; hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

Council Meeting.

The Board met last evening in regular session, and had the most important business they have had for some time. It had in the main reference to the steps to be taken to stamp out diseases now prevalent. These matters were fully discussed, and then Mr. Garwood read the ordinance which we publish elsewhere. It was also fully discussed and then passed, Then the following resolution was adopted to assist the Board of Health in carrying out the provisions of the ordinance.

RESOLUTION BY BOARD OF HEALTH.

WHEREAS, There is as epidemic of diptheria raging in the town of Auburn.

It is hereby ordered by the Board of Health in regular session that during the continuance of said epidemic and until the rescinding of this order.

1st. All children under the age of 16 years are prohibited from gathering or congregating upon the public streets of said town or loitering about the streets or alleys of town or in or about any public places therein, and it shall be the duty of the town marshal or any deputy marshal to strictly enforce this order by taking home any child found violating this order and shall inform his parents or guardian that upon the further violation of this order the offender will be arrested and prosecuted under the sanitary ordinance provided for that purpose.

2nd. All public gatherings or meetings are strictly prohibited and all public places, school houses, churches, theaters and places for public or private meetings, excepting for official business, shall be kept closed.

3rd. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to allow or permit, any dog or cat, which he or they own or harbor, to run at large or to be at or on any public street, alley, sidewalk or public ground of said town and it shall be the duty of the marshal or any deputy marshal to immediately kill any dog or cat found at large in violation of this order."

From this it will be seen that our council acting as a Board of Health, are in earnest in their efforts to stop the spread of disease. Only vigorous measures will do this, and every citizen of Auburn should join with them and help them in every detail. It is life that is at stake. Several children have died already. Let us choke out this dread visitor before it gains a strong foothold and other dear ones are taken.

Among the other matters that came up, was the establishing a grade at the lots just west of the crossing of Van-Buren-st and the Avenue. As the parties are not agreed with the Board and Engineer VanBuken, on motion of Zimmerman, the matter was given into the hands of the committee on streets to be reported at the meeting next week.

Mr. Byam's Lecture.

The Baptist church was packed full of the best people in Auburn, [illegible] hour Mr. Byam was to speak there yesterday afternoon. And all agree the speech was a grand one, full of grand ideas and sentiments. Of course, we cannot give a full report of all the good things he said, but we quote notes from a few as follows;

We are in greater danger today because of the neglect of what we are pleased to call the "respectable" portion of the community, than because of the activity of those who openly sympathise with all that is evil in society.

Hon. Franklin McVeagh, one of Chicago's leading business men said: "Our trouble is the indifference and neglect of the so-called "good" citizens. It is not the bad citizen that needs to be reformed, but the good citizen. The bad citizens are a hopeless minority—the good citizens are a hopeless majority."

The American citizen who shirks his responsibility by remaining away from the caucus and the polls is no more worthy the name of "patriot" than is the soldier who is set to guard an important outpost, and deliberately abandons it to the enemy.

When the christian citizen realizes that the triumphs of free government is a part of God's plan for the salvation of the race, he will conceive it to be as much his duty to be present at the primaries as the prayer meeting.

We hear men of refinement and education say: "The object is not worth the sacrifice." Our fathers thought differently when in the dark days of the Revolution, they suffered privation, hunger and death, that liberty might find a home in the new world.

Railway Changes.

Ed Rommis comes back tomorrow from Waterloo, where he has been for a time and gets his former position here and also a raise of $10 a month, which we are glad to hear.

Charles Stanfield who has been in Mr. Rommis' place for a time, goes to Albion, Mich., where he has the same employment and wages as here. He has made many friends here by his gentlemanly ways.

Geo. Codling, who has been agent for the Lake Shore at the Junction, goes to Hillsdale, where he becomes agent at a salary of $75 a month. O. C. Dickinson, remaining there as now, the ticket agent.

J. W. Bell, of Jackson, who recently assisted Mr. DeLapp here, and who is one of the boys Mr. D, "raised up" in the railway business, gets Mr. Codling's place at the Junction. Mr. Codling had made many friends at the Junction, but we predict that Mr. Bell will be equally popular.

Running a Farm.

When I was young at farming,
I'd watch the turnip tops,
And quickly go to wishing
For good, big, rousing crops.
I wished for mammoth pumpkins
All others to outweigh;
In short, I took to nothing
But wishing all the day.

A solace sweet and soothing
In every wish would lurk,
Till dreaming speculation
Seemed surer than hard work.
I wished my cellar full of Potatoes with a will;
I wished the granary groaning
With corn to go to mill.

While other farmers wished for
A good supply of rain,
I thought it as sound logic
To wish for fruit and grain.
And so I went on wishing,
Contented with my lot,
In autumn no potatoes
Were boiling in my pot.

I tell you I'd discovered
That wishing only breeds
Keen disappointment; wishing
Won't pull up choking weeds;
It won't hoe corn in summer,
Or husk it in the fall;
I tell you, boys, that wishing
Won't run a farm at all.

That winter my potatoes
I had to go and buy
Right from my smiling neighbors,
Who had a good supply.
They'd slyly nudge their elbows,
And taunt me with a laugh,
That labor's wheat that's golden,
And speculation chaff.

I learned this goodly lesson—
And in my heart it seems—
One day of honest labor
Is worth ten years of dreams.
And now in idly wishing,
My duty ne'er I shirk;
But just roll up my shirt sleeves,
And like a beaver work.

A Fruit Picking Box.

A contributor to the New York Tribune offers the following suggestions: The ordinary basket is not a convenient

...G BOX.

...which to pick fruit from ...dder. Too little of the opening is presented between the rounds, owing to the round form of the basket's top. The round form also keeps the basket from being stable, as it is constantly swinging about on the one hook supporting it. A fruit-gathering box is shown in the cut which obviates both these defects. Its handle is made from a flat hoop soaked in water and bent into the proper shape. This handle can be supported by two hooks, keeping the box very firm. With a box the full opening from one side to the other is afforded for putting in fruit. If the box is carefully lined with a double thickness of burlap there will be less likelihood of bruising the fruit, in the smallest degree.

Stabling and Blanketing Horses.

Horses that are exposed to rains should be blanketed while out of doors, and the blanket, or rather a dry one, should cover the horse after he is under shelter. Under the blanket the heat gathers from the internal heat of the body, and as there is thus a double protection between the skin and the outer air the skin does not chill. Carefulness in blanketing a horse has at all seasons more to do with his condition than feeding grain. If a cold is developed in the early winter it is extremely likely to last until spring, and may then develop into much worse disease than an ordinary cold.

Barreling Apples and Pears.

In barreling apples it is quite safe to pile the apples as much as two inches above where the head will fit in the chine. If pressed down evenly there is elasticity enough in the apple skin to allow such compression without bruising it. If the apples are not thus pressed down they will shrink so as to be loose in the barrel, and will thus bruise in handling the barrels worse than they would if pressed down. Pears cannot be thus pressed down. They are best packed with a paper around each, which will keep it from touching its neighbor.

Fall Plowing to Kill Insects.

One of the benefits of fall plowing that more than compensates its disadvantage is wasting the surface soil by blowing and washing, is that it destroys millions of destructive insects. In orchards especially, many of the larvae that are injurious are hidden under leaves or stones, where they will be partly protected from wet, and will there endure any amount of dry freezing without injury. But turning the soil over to the depth of five or six inches disturbs these insect arrangements. Moisture means that the larva must begin to prepare for emerging from its cocoon, or if already an insect it may be tempted to move to escape it. Any such movement before there is settled warm weather is death to it.

Cutting Corn.

Corn fodder, if secured when it is in its best condition, is almost as good as hay for cattle and sheep; and for milch cows there is no other feed that I have ever tested equal to it. Just as soon as the corn is well in the dough it is ripe enough to cut. Some farmers let their corn stand till the stalks get dead ripe before cutting. Corn thus cared for may be a little heavier after it is husked (at least it is so claimed by some), but the waste in fodder more than consumes the extra grain in weight of corn. The average day laborer will, if cutting by the shock, cut seventy shocks containing sixty-four hills in each shock, per day. An expert worker will, in medium corn, cut from 100 to 125 shocks in the same length of time, and of equal size. Twisted rye straw or marsh hay is good to use, although the best thing that is being used is a No. 9 wire, cut about 3½ feet long, with a hook bent on each end, so that they can be quickly fastened or unfastened. These wire bands can be saved and used year after year.

Hoofs Like Horns.

Here's the picture of a freak cow owned by a Massachusetts farmer. The abnormal hoofs are apparently of regular horn substance, and further than to seriously impede the animal's locomotion do not otherwise seem to interfere with the performance of her ordinary functions. These hoofs, or horns, as they might be called, when trimmed off soon grow again to the size and shape shown in the illustration.

COW WITH ABNORMAL HOOFS.

Fall Seeding of Corn Ground.

A crop of corn may be succeeded the following year with grass for pasturing or hay if the land is fitted right. A light plowing, or rather cultivating so as to pull down the corn butts, and then following them with the roller to press them into the surface will be all that is needed. Then run over the leveled surface with the smoothing harrow, which will roughen it and sow the seed. If a permanent pasture is desired sow some June grass seeds with the timothy, and in the spring sow some clover seed. All will grow, and the first year each will help the other, as the more grass or clover growth can be got on the land the earlier it will dry out when spring comes. Most attempts to seed without grain fail because not enough seed is sown.

Threshing Buckwheat.

Owing to the great amount of sap its thick stalk contains, buckwheat cannot ...be piled up in sacks or put in ...ws. We have known it to be threshed by machine, but it took so much power to thresh the buckwheat by threshing machine that the experiment was not profitable. It is extremely easy with a little beating of the head to dislodge every grain of buckwheat. But when stalks and all are put in it has to be done very slowly, else the green buckwheat stalks would clog the cylinders and stop the machine. It takes much more coal to thresh buckwheat with a steam thresher than it does to thresh grain whose straw is dry.—American Cultivator.

Bucket for Dipping Water.

It is frequently necessary to dip water with a bucket, and it is something of an art to get the bucket to sink. Arranged as here shown it is a simple matter. A, bucket; b, bail; c, weight to sink; d, wire holding the weight; e, loop to keep rope out of water; f, rope. Get a large iron tap or other piece of metal. Pass a small wire through it and fasten to bail of bucket at handle. This is immensely superior to the method recently described in an Eastern paper wherein an extra rope was tied to the bucket, making it very unhandy. This weight remains on our well-bucket all the time and never fails to sink it. The loop e is also of wire, and by its means the bucket can be sunk and filled without wetting the rope or the snap which fastens rope to the bucket. This arrangement is very handy on cold days.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Poultry Notes.

Filthy quarters produce sickness, and sick hens will not produce eggs.

Cull out the poor layers and give the prolific hens more room to work.

After the second year the hen's value as a winter egg-producer lessens.

Green rye is the best form for feeding; as a grain it is a poor poultry food.

Make the hens work. Exercise helps digestion. Feed all they will eat up clean.

Keep the fowls indoors while there is snow on the ground or the air cold and raw.

When the weather is cold scald the morning mash and feed while in a warm state.

Hens and pullets may lay as well without the attention of a male bird as with it.

Corn should not be fed exclusively. It should be only a night feed in very cold weather.

Ten cents a pound is about the average price for hens in market for the whole year.

Ten cents should feed a chick, and it should then weigh ten pounds, if highly fed, 10 cents covering the greatest abundance of food.

Prevents Lamp Chimneys Toppling.

A new and simple lamp chimney holder is made of two wires, and holds the chimney tightly to the burner. It is light and durable. The wires form a loop in the center, either side of which they are twisted into a cable. The cables each end in a strong light coiled wire spring, on the ends of which are two hooks. The loop is slipped over

LAMP CHIMNEY FASTENER.

TO LIGHT THE LAMP.

the top of the chimney, and the hooks caught under the edge of the burner on either side of the chimney. The spring gives sufficiently to adjust the holder to any size of chimney and hold it firmly even were the lamp tipped upside down, and in lighting the lamp the spring will give sufficiently to allow of the chimney being lifted to admit the match, so that the guard does not need to be removed. This is a useful attachment for lamps carried up or down stairs.

The House Artistic.

The secret of a pretty home is not so much in expensive furniture and decoration as in the display of good taste, and an artistic perception of the fitness of things. For boudoirs and cosey rooms suites should be tabooed in favor of dainty nick-nacks, comfortable chairs and lounges. The only rooms in which suites are to be tolerated are the bedrooms, the dining-room and perhaps the library.

A little shifting will often work wonders. Our ideas have long since soared beyond the piano pushed back close against the wall, the sofa situated in a similar stiff pose, and the table in the center of the room, strewn with drawing room albums and photographs in frames. Our cry is for the picturesque, and no matter in how humble a way we may be situated, our homes must, above all things, be artistic.

For the Table.

In the English country houses great attention is paid to the arrangement of the flowers on the dining table. For even the ordinary family dinner five vases are always used and sometimes nine. A set piece occupies the center of the table, while the other four or eight are placed on either side. Sometimes tall vases alternate with little ones, each holding a single rose, and on other occasions finger glasses set in old-fashioned silver wine holders are used. A favorite bouquet for the library is made of the beautiful red poppies mixed with tall grass.

In the Sickroom.

Do not ask the patient what he wants to eat. Ask the doctor what he should eat, prepare it daintily. Change the bed linen as often as possible. Once a day is not too often. In making the bed be sure that the under sheet is stretched tight and smooth. Wrinkles in the under sheet cause continual discomfort. Keep the medicine bottles, glasses and spoons out of sight of the patient. Every sick room should be provided with a small bottle cabinet, where medicines may be kept. If this is out of the question, a couple of swinging shelves curtained in silk may be used.

To Remove Stains.

Mildew is removed by rubbing the part with some chalk or salt, wetting and exposing it to the sun. This should be repeated several times, and then the article must be rinsed well in cold water.

Fruit and wine stains are removed at once by stretching the stained part over a basin and rubbing with salt and pouring boiling water over it until the stain is no longer visible. If the stain has become dry use sparingly salt of lemon. The article must be thoroughly rinsed or the fabric will rot.

Pork Chops and Tomato Sauce.

Rub the chops with powdered sage. Put them in a frying pan and cook thoroughly. Lay them on a hot dish. Add a cupful of hot water to the gravy and a large ripe tomato cut fine; stew five minutes, add pepper and salt and thicken with flour to proper consistency. Pour over the chops and serve hot with mashed potatoes. Strain before thickening if liked very smooth.

When to Eat Fruit.

Fruit should be taken on an empty stomach or simply with bread. In the morning, before the fast of the night has been broken, it is not only exceedingly refreshing, but serves as a natural stimulus to the digestive organs. To product its fullest, finest effect fruit should be ripe, sound and in every way of good quality; moreover, it should be eaten raw.

Neuralgia.

Sufferers from neuralgia are warned by a medical writer not to drink tea, but to partake of coffee into which the juice of a lemon has been squeezed.

Preparing Sandwiches.

Chopped cucumbers mixed with a little mayonnaise dressing makes a delicious filling; place it between unbuttered slices of graham bread.

A cheese filling is delicious. It should be grated and mixed with a few chopped olives. This is excellent with brown bread. Press the slices firmly together.

An egg sandwich is a popular one. The eggs must be hard-boiled, finely chopped and well seasoned with salt, paprika, mustard and lemon juice spread between thinly buttered slices of bread.

THE LATE FASHIONS.

NEWEST THINGS AS SEEN IN NEW YORK.

Cold Winds Bring Out the Heavy Winter Rigs—New Ideas in Jackets—The Dreaded Overskirt Has Come, Probably to Stay.

New York correspondence:

SO soon as sharp winds begin to blow, a woman must be ready with her heavy winter rig. The pretty way to make such a rig is with jacket to match, but there is a fancy for separate jackets for winter wear. Lots of these are offered. Warm browns, cozy reds, military blues, black and mixtures are all used; braid, fur and silk appear in their finishing. A snug fit with suggestion of box in front is the rule, though exceptions are by no means scarce. Three typical garments are put in these illustrations, each one plentiful and representing many more jackets that had it as a basis of greater or less modification. The first one was trimmed with that new heavy mohair braid with cord edge that can be pulled up a little to give the braid as much or as little fullness as is desired. There is a great fancy for scarlet linings—soldiering is at the back of it, of course—and this jacket of military blue was lined with red broadcloth. Silk isn't the lining for winter coats. The lapels were scrolled in black.

While military suggestions abound, none of the stylish ones is akin to what has recently been known as military trimming. The second of these pictures is one of the more striking adaptations. It was gray military cloth, lined with scarlet and braided with military cord, the ends of the cord caught with little brass buttons.

Cording, narrow lines of braiding, stitching and chenille are all being used a great deal on outer garments. Women are learning that nothing so modifies and improves the lines of the figure as braiding or stitching that follows or suggests the right lines. Then, too, in the case of the outside jacket a suggestion of weight and coziness is added by closely laid lines of braid or stitching. In this way, also, a dash of color can be conveyed, or a too bright color softened. Adroit use of this device was evident in the tight fitting winter short coat of the next picture. It was very dark green cloaking. The upper portion of the garment, including the tops of the sleeves, was run with close set rows of rich red braid. The red by itself would have been too strong, but the sombre color showing between toned down the effect. With fluffy dark fur at collar and lapels, and a glimpse of a red collar and front when lapels and fur were laid back, the result was cheerful, wintry and pretty. The shape of the fur lapels and their deep notch are characteristic of new accessories in peltry. The fur-lined pocket beneath the shield front is another new wrinkle.

Overskirts certainly are to be worn generally. As yet the order is not imperative, but it is as well to have your new cloth cut that way, because presently you are likely to look just a little out of it if your skirt is in one. The time when the overdress will be looped and draped is to be dreaded, so dresses like the first one of the next illustration are a more pleasing form of the new fashion. When carried out simply, grace must be admitted for the overskirt. This gown showed a skirt of soft smooth-faced ladies' cloth in black, which is a good color to choose for a new or pronounced fashion. There was a finish of stitching at the hem. The overskirt, which was real and entire, hung even with the edge of the skirt almost all around, and was made of black novelty goods, a weave of camel's hair and silk that had the gleam of silk and the softness of wool. At the right side it was cut high to show the underskirt, and just this gave the sweep of line that makes the simpler form of overdress becoming. The little coat to match the overdress was very jaunty with its short back and downward slope in front. So far overskirt and bodice or jacket are made to match, though often the bodice is set on a yoke, or opens to show a front, matching the skirt.

Long coats are to be much worn and that means that there are lots of compromises between the long and the short coat, since both are liked. Long back and eton front were very cleverly combined in the coat of this picture. In it the gracefully sloped sides, which tend to soften the hip curve, the sweeping curve at the back and the long points to the front, all were cleverly considered. Note, too, the use of braid. Very handsome braids can be secured of all widths and all varieties of weaving, but there is a fancy now for employing two or three varieties of narrow plain braid or cord, and perhaps a fancy gimp. These are applied according to the need of the dress. The result is much less stiff and handsomer, because the dress material shows more than it would under even an open weave braid, and there is the suggestion of made-a-purpose that the woman of exclusive taste always likes. Black braid was employed in the dress pictured, its goods being tan and black striped goods, tan cloth giving the effect of an underskirt. Copying such a coat does not necessitate matching it in the skirt trimming, as was done here. That marks the dress as of exclusive grade, of course, but it not only makes the gown more expensive, but renders it less suitable for general service.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS OF A SORT THAT SET FASHIONS.

Despite the increasing popularity of the overskirt, some of the season's handsomest gowns are simple in outline. These are usually for theater or reception, wear that permits a hat. The finish is so elaborate that all thought of simplicity in any respect is checked until the dress is brought in direct contrast with some draped costume. One of these dresses completes today's final illustration. Of delicate gray heavily corded silk, its bodice cut on a yoke of blue broadcloth made without crease or seam showing and with sleeves to match the yoke. The rest of the gown was trimmed with broad bands and a really magnificent design of embossed flowers and sprays of the broadcloth. Embossed? The cloth is mounted over cotton and stands well up from the surface of the dress being held down by outline stitching in gold. The exquisite art of the applique work and the beauty of the bodice, which was almost covered below the yoke by the embossed flower deserved great praise, while the color scheme of soft gray and blue, especially worked out in the bodice, was exquisite. Such a gown is more effective than the most elaborate effects of drapery or unexpectedness of cut. Such may make overskirt's fashionableness short lived. Let's hope so.

Didn't Need Gen. Butler.

It is told of General Butler that toward the close of his career when he ranked among the foremost criminal lawyers in Massachusetts he was sent for by a prisoner charged with murder. Upon his arrival at the cell the prisoner cried out with much evident distress of mind, and with all the accents of imperiled innocence: "General Butler, I want you to defend me. I'm in danger of being hanged, and I know you can get me off if anybody can." "Are you guilty or are you innocent?" calmly inquired the General. "Oh, I am innocent, entirely innocent," protested the prisoner with tears. "Then you don't need me," quietly responded General Butler, rising and reaching for his hat. "Innocent men are not hanged in Massachusetts. Good day, sir."

Russia's Poor.

Statistics just published show that in Russia only 347,268 families out of a population of about 130,000,000 souls have an income of over £100 a year, or that practically more than 99 per cent. of the whole population are constantly in a state of abject poverty and pauperism in their various degrees.

The figures become appalling when one considers the case of the peasantry, which forms the overwhelming majority of the population. The average yearly income of a peasant family consisting of six members ranges between £12 and £15 a year, out of which between £5 and £7 has to be paid to the government in direct taxes.—London Mail.

SUGAR ESTATES IN CUBA.

A Picture of Their Conditions Half a Century Ago.

Jonathan S. Jenkins, an American miniature-painter, lived in Havana during the middle of the century, and kept a diary of his experiences. A selection from this journal is published in the Century. Mr. Jenkins says:

Coffee plantations, though so beautiful, have not increased in numbers of late years; in fact, many of them have been changed into sugar estates, which are more profitable, and render the owner socially more important. The owner usually resides in Havana, where his family may enjoy the pleasures of cultivated society and have the luxuries of a city; he therefore employs a sort of middleman, called a major-domo, to manage his estate. The owner wants all the money he can get to maintain his establishment in Havana, and the major-domo seeks to increase his percentage, and thus the poor slaves are ground to the dust, and at times the cruelties practiced are barbarous. The mayorals are usually Canary Islanders, a hot-tempered and cruel race, and, being without restraint of the presence of the owner, are vindictively oppressive, and in their inhuman punishments often take life. The horrors which have been perpetrated in Cuba by the lash would disgrace barbarians.

One striking fact attesting the hardships of slave life on a sugar estate is that children are very rarely seen there. Slave men in their vigor are more profitable, and hence in a large force of several hundred men only a few women are allowed. The labors and hardships which these women endure tend to prevent increase, and the few children born usually die in infancy from neglect. There is no care taken to prevent this result, as they say it is cheaper to supply the losses on the plantations by new importations than by the rearing of children. The climate, fortunately, is so mild that the slaves need but little clothing, and a wide palm hat and a cloth about the loins are their costume in the fields, the sun seeming to have but little effect upon their black skins.

Every week there is a ration day, on which they are drawn up in long lines, and a few pounds of black-looking beef brought from Buenos Ayres are thrown at the feet of each, which at night each cooks to suit himself. In addition, a coarse meal or small hominy (bran and all) is boiled, and put in a trough, from which they eat it every morning with a spoon, a paddle, or their hands, as they choose.

The Africans brought into Cuba are generally from the coast of Mozambique, and are called Locoomees and Caravalees. They are large, stout men, of dogged will, and at times are very obstinate.

All these creatures believe implicitly in the transmigration of souls, and that if they commit suicide they go immediately back to Africa. To check this evil, when a suicide occurs, the mayoral makes each of the slaves bring a bundle of wood and build a funeral pyre, on which the body is burned. The ashes are then scattered in the air by the survivors, in whose opinion the dead negro's soul is thus prevented from returning to Africa. In scattering the ashes they sigh audibly, "Aha! Aha!" as if expressing grief that the soul of their companion can no longer go home.

The appearance of the sugar estates is the very opposite of the beautiful coffee plantations. Wide fields of monotonous green stretch themselves to the horizon on every side, while here and there the royal palm lifts its tufted head above the verdant level. The mayoral's house, the sugar works and the dingy barracoons for the slaves are the only objects to break the monotony of the desolate scene. When first planted, the cane is laid lengthwise in trenches, or furrows, about five or six feet apart, and then covered. From each eye (there is an eye to each sound joint) a shoot springs up, and sends out others, forming a bunch of canes; and thus the fields are covered with the most luxuriant green.

Every year the crop is cut at the ground, and the next season another crop springs up from the roots, which are called vatons. These vatons will yield crops in this way for several years, the length of time depending on the mildness of the climate. In Louisiana only three or four crops are gathered from one planting, while in the tropics eighteen or twenty are thus obtained. The grinding of the cane begins about the last of October, and continues until the beginning of the rainy season, a period of nearly six months. This is the time of greatest labor on the estate; and, without intermission of Sundays or holidays, with but few exceptions, the slaves work incessantly and men and teams are worn out before work is over. The slaves are given a few trifling presents and are allowed some extra privileges to encourage them in undergoing the increased labor

Tit for Tat.

The French ambassador of the day complained to a bright Englishwoman of high rank because her country failed to intervene in the Franco-Prussian war, ending his diatribe with the remark: "After all, it was to be expected. We used to think you were a nation of shop-keepers, and now we know you are." "And we," said she, "used to think the French a nation of soldiers, and now we know they are not."

Violent Deaths Among Royalty.

The world has had 2,550 kings or emperors, of whom records are known, and who have reigned over seventy-four peoples. Of these rulers 300 were overthrown, sixty-four were forced to abdicate, twenty-eight committed suicide, twenty-three became mad or imbecile, 100 were killed in battle, 123 were captured by the enemy, twenty-five were tortured to death, 151 were assassinated and 108 were executed.

It is possible to go round the world and touch on British territory all the way, viz., from England to Halifax, N. S., across Canada to Vancouver, across the Pacific to Hong Kong, thence to Singapore, Penang, Mauritius, Cape Town, St. Helena and England; or from Penang to Ceylon, Bombay, Aden, Perim, Malta, Gibraltar and home.

Whenever we hear a girl's complexion described as olive, we are reminded of pickled olives and wonder that she doesn't get mad

Those Girls at Golden's.

Everybody knew that the Goldens couldn't get a girl to stay, or one that would suit them if she would stay. That was the family worry from January to December—how to secure competent help. A few girls stayed the month out, some only half a month, the majority a week or less and there had been known cases where the girl left the day after she arrived. It must not be supposed from this that the Goldens were hard people to get along with. Mr. and Mrs. Golden were nice, quiet people of an easy-going nature, and the two daughters were just as affable and good natured as any two girls in the city. Young George Golden was rarely at home except during sleeping hours, and Willie, who attended school daily, did not interfere with the servant girls at all. The family always provided a good table and paid fair wages for help, while the house was not so large as to frighten a girl accustomed to a reasonable amount of work.

But inside of twelve months the Golden family had had English, Welsh, Scotch, Irish, Dutch, Danish, Swedes, Norwegians and colored girls. Those that weren't lazy were dirty or cheeky. The English girl was found by Mrs. Golden stretched at full length on the parlor lounge reading a cheap novel, while her work remained untouched around her. The Scotch girl had such a thick brogue that it impeded her utterance and made it almost impossible for her to be understood. The Welsh girl was addicted to drink, and the Irish girl was decidedly too familiar and acted as if she whs mistress of the house. The Danish girl didn't speak English at all. The Swedes broke almost everything in the house, including a few commandments, and the two Norwegian girls were lacking in neatness of appearance and general cleanliness. As for the innumerable colored girls that had been employed by the Golden family, they were in the aggregate lazy, dirty, cheeky, parsimonious in the matter of the truth, and generous in the dispensation of groceries and other eatables to their relatives and friends.

The great cardinal virtue in the Golden household was scrupulous cleanliness, and had that been the prominent characteristic of any one of the girls it is likely that her other shortcomings would have been overlooked and that she might have stayed in the position. As it was, however, the only two of the entire bunch that kept the house even passably clean were slow and always behind with their work.

One day Mrs. Golden returned home from the "Intelligence" office—by the way, why on earth do they call these headquarters of ignorance "intelligence offices?"—in quite a flutter of excitement.

"I do believe," she declared, as she took off her hat and wrap, and seated herself in her favorite armchair, "I do believe that I have secured the right girl at last."

"Yes, we have heard that very often before," remarked her husband, complacently; "they are always the 'right kind of girls' until they get here, and then they turn out wrong."

"But this one is really different from all the others," said Mrs. Golden.

"Different in what—appearance, manners or accomplishments? Is it impossible for her to oversleep herself in the morning, burn the toast, or tell a lie? Doesn't she break crockery, give cheek, or read novels? Is she fonder of work than of gossiping, or what kind of a freak is she?"

"She's just a plain, ordinary-looking girl, but she's an American—first American we have had yet, remember, Joseph, and she looks clean, moves quickly, and talks well. She wants $20 a month, which shows that she has a high appreciation of her own worth."

"Oh, they all have that—none of them are too modest in their claims of what they can do. Twenty dollars is a mere bagatelle if she is worth it, but we have not had a girl yet that was worth half of it."

"Well, she's coming this afternoon, and we'll see how she gets on. For my part I believe the girl will give complete satisfaction to us all. I believe I have captured a new gem at last!"

"What's her name?"

"Annie Rooney."

"Good gracious!"

Sure enough Annie Rooney assumed her new duties in the Golden household that afternoon, and somehow there was that in her appearance which inspired confidence in every member of the family as soon as they saw her.

At the table she was a jewel. Little, active, alert—swift to see what was wanted and quick to supply it, she had earned the admiration of all before the evening meal was over. She was up early in the morning, lighted the fire noiselessly, started breakfast on the way, and then commenced to clean the kitchen and everything in it; as she expressed it, the place "wasn't fit to be seen with dirt."

"Joseph," said Mrs. Golden to her husband, shortly after breakfast, "Annie has gone to do the up-stairs work, and I just want you to come down and look at her kitchen."

Mr. Golden softly followed his wife down stairs, and the pair quietly tiptoed into the kitchen. The greasy, grimy look on the walls had disappeared, the paint looked fresh and clean. The tin and agate ware shone brightly, as did all the metal work about the stove and kitchen shelves, the crockery dresser glittered and glistened in the morning sunlight, the linoleum on the floor was spotlessly clean.

"There's her morning's work before breakfast," said Mrs. Golden. "I wonder how ever she did it in the time?"

"Here's the answer," replied her husband, sententiously, as he pointed to a package that stood near the sink. "The girl is a gem, as you said, my dear—she uses Sapolio."

"But I should think it would take time——"

"My dear, Annie Rooney evidently knows the difference between time and Sapolio."

"What do you mean, Joseph?"

"Time, my dear, was made for slaves—Sapolio has abolished slavery—in housework."

Man's Inhumanity.

"Oh, you needn't talk," said the indignant wife. "What would you be today if it weren't for my money, I'd like to know?"

"I really don't know, my dear," calmly replied the heartless wretch, "but I'm inclined to think I would be a bachelor."

DUTCH WEDDING AN ORDEAL.

Other Curious Customs of This Interesting Country.

A Dutch wedding is a portentous business. Smart Holland does its devotions in baralike French Protestant churches. The wedding service is mournful to a degree, and lasts two hours. The bridegroom, in full evening dress, and the bride, in orthodox white satin, sit upon chairs in front of the black-robed minister. He delivers an extempore address fairly bristling with personalities. Meanwhile relatives sob in pews, until finally every one who can prove the remotest connection with the bride kisses her.

Next follows a tremendous breakfast in French style. It is "de rigueur" for all the friends of the bride to send her in the morning a bouquet or basket of white flowers plentifully ribboned. With numbers of these a very gay effect is produced, though the Dutch are lamentably behind the times in table decoration and posey-making. With the advent of the "hors d'oeuvre" come speeches. The bride's brother or other delegate first rings a small handbell. Then, amid a silence broken by the cheerful clicking of knives and forks, a health is proposed. Then comes a quaint postscript to this very ordinary ceremonial. Ladies and gentlemen must alike rise from their seats, and, solemnly filing up to the person toasted, touch his glass with their own. After a score of speeches the thing gets monotonous, but it is carried out to the bitter end. Any person omitted would feel aggrieved. In Holland it is the family before everything. A leading barrister was recently compelled to throw up an important case in order to attend the birthday party of an aged father who lived three hours distant by rail.

The Dutch are excellent husbands, but quite preposterously jealous. An Englishman who found himself in a party consisting almost entirely of assorted couples, ventured to pay a few compliments and mild attentions to a charming young married woman. He even had the assurance to include her in a general offering of roses made to the company. The husband was furious. He canceled a previously given dinner invitation, and there were awful rumors that, though duels are now very rare, he desired to challenge the offender, who wisely placed the sea between himself and his would-be opponent.

Babies have a comfortable time enough in Holland, where the cramping swaddling-pillow is replaced by English layettes. It is, however, expensive to know too many, for every woman who visits or is visited by nurse and infant for the first time must give the former at least five shillings.

Mourning is very long and very strict. Even the poorest leave off their gold cap pins and headpieces for more than a year after the dezth of a parent.—London Globe.

A FATHER'S STORY.

From the Evening Crescent, Appleton, Wis.

A remarkable cure from a disease which has generally wrecked the lives of children has attracted much attention among the residents of Appleton.

The case is that of little Willard Creech, son of Richard D. Creech, a well known employe of one of the large paper mills in the Fox River Valley. The lad was attacked by spinal disease and his parents had given up all hope of his ever being well again when, as by a miracle, he was healed and is now in school as happy as any of his mates.

Mr. Creech, the father of the boy, who resides at 1062 Second street, Appleton, Wisconsin, told the following story:

He Goes to School.

"Our boy was absolutely helpless. His lower limbs were paralyzed, and when we used electricity he could not feel it below his hips. Finally we let the doctor go, as he did not seem to help our son, and we nearly gave up hope. My mother, who lives in Canada, wrote advising the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I bought some.

"This was when our boy had been on the stretcher for an entire year and helpless for nine months. In six weeks after taking the pills we noted improvement, and in four months he was able to go to school.

"It is two years since he took the first of the pills, and he is at school now just as happy and well as any of the other children. It was nothing else in the world that saved the boy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

He Couldn't Understand It.

"Pa," said the Alderman's little son, "is there any truth in the story that George Washington never told a lie?"

"Yes, I guess there is," was the reply.

"Well," continued the embryo statesman, "I don't see how he ever got his pull in politics."

Those Loving Girls.

Bess—I wish that young Softleigh wouldn't stare at me so every time we meet. It's dreadfully embarrassing.

Nell—Yes, poor fellow! He never did have much sense.

Why He Worries.

"Mrs. Putts has mysteriously disappeared. Her husband is breaking down under the strain of anxiety."

"Does he fear that she'll never come back?"

"No, he's afraid she will."—New York World.

Why She Left.

"Yes, we lost that good girl that I told you about."

"What was the trouble?"

"Why, she left the water running in the bathtub and it leaked through and she caught cold. She said she wouldn't stay in a house where they didn't have water-tight floors."—Cleveland Plaindealer.

A Cruel Awakening.

Miss Lovey—Ah, no, Harry, it can never be. Jack locked that bracelet on forever and kept the key.

"Clar[illegible]wdler is the most hopelessly la[illegible] I ever knew."

"Doesn't he do anything at all?"

"Do anything? He doesn't even blame his parents for not bringing him up differently."

Not Internally Affected.

"I like to meet those long-haired literary men."

"Why?"

"They always have more sense than you expect to find after looking at them."

Jest Ter Tink.

"Say, Mugsy, jest ter tink we uster be er kid like dat!"

"Gee whiz! But I'm glad I've outgrowed it!"—Browning-King's Monthly.

Shows the Effects.

"There is a theory, Marie that we are mentally influenced by furniture."

"Is that so, Theodore? Well, you had better quit sleeping in that brass bedstead."

Her Suggestion.

He—I have never done anything in my life that I'm sorry for.

She—Why don't you do something [illegible] and run the risk of being sorry [illegible] of it?

His Game Exposed.

He—Unless you marry me I shall go to the Klondike.

She—There! Papa said you were a mere fortune-hunter and now you've proved it.

Modern Transmigration.

"Often when I look at you," he said to the beautiful woman whom he had met in North Dakota, "it seems as if I must have known you in some former state."

"Well, that isn't very wonderful," she replied. "You used to know me in two former States—when I was married and living in New Jersey. Tom, don't you remember Nell Giddington?"

Then it all came back to him, and he confessed that he had gone out there for the same purpose.

Discernment.

"Is Mrs. Swagger intellectual?"

"Very; she asked me for my dressmaker's address the first time she called."

Photographs of Celebrities.

Many actresses and beauties make very fair incomes out of the sales of their photographs. Few of the public have any idea of the sums paid by photographers for "sole selling rights." Dickens is credited with being the first notability to exact a fee for the privilege of taking his portrait. A photographer kept bothering him for sittings, and Dickens asked and obtained 50 guineas as an honorarium. On learning this Fanny Kemble refused to sit for less than £50, and then Ada Cavendish demanded and received £300. Mary Anderson, towards the close of her career, used to receive 100 guineas a sitting, and Mrs. Cornwallis West, at the height of her popularity, had nearly half as much again. Recently a firm of Parisian photographers arranged with Sarah Bernhardt for a series of sittings at 50 guineas apiece; and for the privilege of taking the latest snap-shot of Mrs. Langtry, a firm of West End photographers had to pay £500.—Glasgow Herald.

We suppose the hardest task in the world would be to persuade a real worthless man to join a suicide club.

The Twin Maids of Kent.

Crowds of people from all parts of Kent—many even traveling from London by train or cycle—recently visited the quiet, remote and sleepy village of Biddenden, not far from Tenterden, for the purpose of celebrating the memory of the Two Maids of that ancient hamlet who were the original precursors of the Siamese twins. In life they were joined together by a mysterious cord of flesh, and they died on the same day, leaving their property to be distributed among the poor of the parish, and among all who care to apply for a dole of bread and cheese on Easter Day. This benefaction has been in existence for six or seven centuries, and at present its value is about two hundred dollars a year.

Formerly the doles consisted of bread and cheese and ale, but the latter produced so much hilarity in the village that it was abolished, and the charity is now limited to the two first-mentioned nutritive articles. The bread is made up in the form of cakes, bearing a rude representation of the Twin Maids of Biddenden, and are generally preserved as curiosities by the recipients. They are baked very hard, and are admirably adapted to give work to dentists by breaking the molars of those who attempt to penetrate their mysteries. The poor of the parish, as distinguished from necessitous strangers, are supplied with ordinary quartern loaves and cheese.

Two Mothers.

I saw on a trolley car the other day a poorly dressed young woman, too young to be matronly, too tired to seem girlish. She carried a tiny, downheaded baby in her arms. Next her, while the car was outward bound, sat a woman scarcely older than herself, in a black gown whose making alone must have cost more than all the young mother's toilet. The mother kept her seat when the car reached the end of the line, and the woman in black, after a moment's hesitation, kept hers, too. She looked at the baby a long time. Then she leaned toward the baby's mother.

The mother stared, wild-eyed, for a moment, and then handed the baby over. The other woman snuggled its warm little face against her neck and patted its tiny body gently. The car had nearly reached the city on its return trip before she gave the baby to its mother again.

"It's a dear little thing," she said. "I haven't any baby"—and with a break in her voice she added—"now."—Washington Post.

Activity of Vesuvius.

Much anxiety has been caused in Naples by the renewed activity of Mount Vesuvius. There is little likelihood that it will do any serious damage. On the other hand, thousands die daily from stomach disorders, who might have survived had they resorted to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the greatest tonic known for stomach and digestive organs.

So It Was.

Dixon—Hear about Henry Peck?

Dixon—They say his wife made it so warm for him that he had to leave home.

Hixon—Well, that's what I call a shrewd move on his part.

The numerous readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution, and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

POOR PAY FOR HARD TOIL.

Statistics Tell Why Coal Miners Try Desperately to Better Their Lot.

The masses of statistics in the reports of State officials are not inviting to the general reader, but some of the figures in the report of the State mine inspector are suggestive.

From the returns made to the office it is gathered that the average time worked in 1897 was 150½ days, or less than half the number of working days in the year. The average daily wages during the time worked was $1.27, but taking the year through the average amount actually received was but $16 per month, which was nearly $2.50 per month less than was received in either of the two preceding years.

The lower average in 1897 was due to the long strike caused by the endeavor of the miners to get better pay. While there was a partial advantage gained in the rate of pay, there was an actual loss in the amount received.

Taking the rate of the two years preceding, when the average monthly earning was $18.47, it will be seen that the return to the working miner for his hard toil was miserably poor and it is not to be wondered at that he should make desperate efforts to better his lot. But the Ohio miner is, as a rule, in better condition than his Pennsylvania fellow laborer in the coal mines.

Competition among the operators sometimes forces the price of coal down and every person naturally wants to get his fuel at the lowest possible rates, but the shave in prices to the consumer cuts off a slice from the none too large loaf of bread on the scantily furnished table of the miner.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ill.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression, more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better. In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., she offers sick women her advice without charge.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. CURED BY "5 DROPS" TWO YEARS AGO

FROM RHEUMATISM AND HEART WEAKNESS

After Suffering 49 Years—69 Years Old and Still Well.

IT PROVES TO BE A PERMANENT CURE—READ LETTERS.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 167 Dearborn St., Chicago: DEAR SIR—Your bottle of "5 DROPS" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart, and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He had been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but obtained no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 DROPS." He rested well the very first night, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I my-self am 69 years old, and commenced taking "5 DROPS" last April for Rheumatism, which has troubled me terribly for 49 years; also for a weak heart, from which I have suffered since I was 18. Since taking "5 DROPS" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness has gone from my joints and my heart never misses a beat. In all my life I have never felt so well, and I owe my health to "5 DROPS." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard the world over, and could convince every sufferer that "5 DROPS" is all you claim it to be and more.—Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stephenson Co., Ill. Sept. 9, 1896.

STILL WELL TWO YEARS LATER.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO.,—Two years ago this present month I sent you an unsolicited testimonial of what "5 DROPS" had done for myself and friend, Mr. Edwards, and now I want to send you another, saying we have not had a return of Neuralgia or Rheumatism since. I think the cure must be permanent; but if it should return, I keep "5 DROPS" in the house and I know that would stop it. It is good for so many things no house should be without it. Yours truly, Mrs. D. T. Carver. Sept. 26, 1898.

The wonderful success that has attended the introduction of "5 DROPS" is unprecedented in the history of the world. Think of it! It has CURED more than One Million and a Quarter sufferers within the last three years. This must appeal to you. One million and a quarter people cannot all be mistaken. If suffering, we trust you may have sufficient confidence to send for three large bottles of "5 DROPS" for $2.50, which will surely cure you. If not, than send for a $1.00 bottle, which contains enough medicine to more than prove its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid, by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a PERMANENT CURE for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"5 DROPS" is the name and dose. LARGE BOTTLE (300 doses), $1.00, prepaid by mail or express; THREE BOTTLES, $2.50. Sold only by us and our agents. Agents Appointed in New Territory. Write to-day.

NO "SIGHTS" IN GIBRALTAR.

Every Precaution Is Taken to Prevent Undue Observation.

One of the first things I did, the morning after my arrival at Gibraltar, says Prof. Simon Newcomb in the September Atlantic, was to choose a convenient point on one of the stone parapets for "taking the sun," in order to test the running of my chronometer. I had some suspicion as to the result, but was willing to be amused. A sentinel speedily informed me that no sights were allowed to be taken on the fortification. I told him I was not taking sights on the fortifications, but on the sun. But he was inexorable; the rule was that no sights of any sort could be taken without a permit. I soon learned from Mr. Sprague, the American consul, who the proper officer was to issue the permit, which I was assured would be granted without the slightest difficulty. The consul presented me to the military governor of the place, Gen. Sir Fenwick Williams of Kars. He was a man whom it was very interesting to meet. There was no need of troubling him with such a detail as that of a permit to take sights, but the consul ventured to relate my experience of the morning. He took the information in a way which showed that England, in making him a general, had lost a first-class diplomatist. Instead of treating the matter seriously he professed to be greatly amazed, and said it reminded him of the case of an old lady in Punch, who had to pass a surveyor in the street, behind a theodolite. "Please, sir, don't shoot till I get past," she begged.

Blenheim palace, though practically the property of the Duke of Marlborough, is held from the crown on a peculiar tenure—namely, the annual presentation to the reigning monarch of a French flag. The dukes of Wellington pay the same tribute for Strathfieldsaye, but whereas the Blenheim flag is the Bourbon white sown with fleur-de-lis, that of Strathfieldsaye is the tricolor. The two ensigns are fixed opposite to one another in Windsor castle, shadowing most approriately the stump of the Victory's mast, and in close proximity to the Waterloo chamber.

Continuous Steel Pipe.

The West Australian government has taken a contract to lay nearly three hundred and fifty miles of water pipe of a novel character. This pipe is to be made of steel spirals packed in concrete. Sheet steel is cut into strips of the required width. These are fed into a machine and welded into one continuous strip. As the strip is fed into the machine, rivet holes are punched, then the edges of the laps are brought together by machinery and held during the process of riveting, which is all done by compression. The lap is thrown on the outside of the pipe, rendering the inner surface smooth and even throughout its length. A tenacious hydraulic cement is packed around the laps, making the pipe absolutely watertight.

ICE-CREAM.

A Century's Use of the Dainty Delicacy.

The New York Post Boy of June 8, 1786, makes this announcement:

"Ladies and gentlemen may be supplied with ice cream every day at the city tavern by their humble servant, Joseph Cowe."

At a ball given by a Mrs. Johnson in New York, on December 12, 1789, there were "served pyramids of red and white ice cream with punch and liquors, rose cinnamon, and parfait amour."

Ice-cream was first introduced at the national capital by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who had had it in her home in New York. She used to tell with amusement of the delight with which President Jackson first tasted it, and how he promptly decided to have ices at the Executive Mansion. Accordingly, guests at the next reception were treated to the frozen mystery, and afforded considerable fun to the initiated by the reluctance with which they tasted it. Those from the rural districts, especially, first eyed it suspiciously, then melted each spoonful with breath before consuming it. Their distrust was soon removed, however, and plates were emptied with great rapidity.

The man who made the cream was, oddly enough, a negro by the name of Jackson, who, in the early part of the present century, kept a small confectionary store in Washington. Cold custards, which were cooled after being made by setting them on a cake of ice, were very fashionable, and Jackson, at Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, froze them by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering it with ice. Each bucket contained a quart, and was sold for one dollar. It immediately became popular, and the inventor soon enlarged his store, and when he died left a considerable fortune. A good many tried to follow his example, and ice-cream was hawked about the streets, being wheeled along very much as the hokey-pokey carts are now, but none of them succeeded in obtaining the flavor that Jackson had in his product.—Harprr's Bazar.

McClure's Magazine for November

In timeliness, variety, and positiveness of quality and interest the November number of McClure's must be pronounced a rare magazine. A character sketch of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt presents, in its full picturesqueness, the personality of one of the most independent, original, and forceful of living Americans. "The Inner History of Admiral Sampson's Campaign," related mainly in hitherto unpublished official despatches, gives for the first time the full and true story of the Fire Patrol," and Mr. E. A. Fitzgerald's account of his own experiences in leading a party for the first time in human record to the tops of the two highes mountain peaks in the Western Hemisphere, and perhaps the highest ever climbed, exhibit human power and endurance in their strongest most heroic manifestion. And Mr. H J. W. Dam's portrayal of "The Mystery of Vesuvius," as it was exhibited to him in his own recent explorations of the volcano, gives a sense of the profundity and mightiness of the great earth-dragon not to be had from any other writing on the subject. Then there are three or four very strong short stories—one by Stephen Crane that shows him to great advantage in a new field. The pictures of the number are notable also—illustrating the several articles with singular truth and spirit, and so contributing interest as well as beauty.

Dr. Herty's Lecture.

Quite a number of our people met Dr. Herty at the court room yesterday afternoon and listened to his explanation of the various phases of diphtheria and similar diseases. It will not be possible to give his talk in full. In brief it was to the effect, that diphtheria is a disease caused by a germ, or minute organism that finds a lodging in the throat, generally in the throats of children. Membraneous croup is the same thing when it attacks the throat farther down. He showed how this minute organism, which they call a baccillus may be propagated, and how it may be killed. There are certain things, one in the form of a gas, that when it fills a room will kill all these germs. And similar remedies used in treating the throat, will kill them and stop the disease. Treatment of any kind must be given promptly. Do not wait, but begin on even a sore throat. Treat it properly and the disease, if diphtheria will be nipped in the bud. If not diphtheria, no harm will be done, and the sore throat will be cured. He spoke of a number of remedies, which being more or less technical, we are not able to give. But what he considers the most certain remedy is the anti-toxine, a preparation originated by the celebrated Dr. Pasteur. This, we understand is to be used by injecting into the arm or some such locality, and in order to be a certain cure, it must be done at an early stage. He advocates at every point, the plan of early treatment. Do not let the disease get the start of you. Whether the disease is diphtheria or something else, can only be ascertained by an experienced and skillful physician, and people must learn to rely on these at once, and not trust to the methods of treating a common sore throat, until it is proved to be only such. We omit his discussion of remedies, investigations and treatment, as only skilled physicians can understand or make use of it, though all his language was simple and plain. What most concerns the people of Auburn, are the conditions that exist here. Our town plat is nearly level, the soil is porous and of just the sort to contain germs of disease. But under ordinary conditions, such as dry seasons, disease does not crop out and the town will be healthy. But let it come a rainy season such as we have had the latter part of this season, and the ground becomes saturated with water, and the disease germs are brought to the surface and the air becomes contaminated. Then these disease germs, in the air find lodgment, by choice in the throats of children, but may lodge in other parts, such as the eye, and may find lodgment in older persons. He thinks the conditions in Auburn must be looked to. Drainage must be secured, so that the ground will not become saturated even in a wet season. Every well must be put down deep enough to be below the danger line. Privies must be kept clean and sweet. He believes these should be made with drawers, that can be taken out and emptied, and that fresh earth should be used in these drawers, to absorb the moisture and effluvia of the matter deposited in them, Alleys should be kept clean. Piles of manure should be removed and spread out on gardens so they would be washed out by rains or dried out by the sun, or they should be taken out of town. Slops from the house should be scattered, one mess in one place and the next in another, so as not to put in one place, any more than that spot of ground could absorb. Then the next time throw it some where else, and so on. For many people throw their slops and dishwater always in the same place, till that spot becoms saturated, and may remain so all summer and become a most dangerous breeding place for disease germs. He said the streets, also, must have these wet and muddy places put in shape, and so on, giving a full detailed talk about what our town needs to prevent these diphtheria and similar troubles from cropping out every few years. He says such diseases never exist unless there is a cause for it. The bad condition exists first, and then a run of sickness is sure to follow. If we do not remedy the conditions in Auburn, it will surely sooner or later, result in an epidemic, not only of diphtheria but of typhoid fever, such as we used to have when the country was new. In regard to slops, he also, said a good plan, would be to dig a sink at a safe distance and let them go into that. He says with proper precautions, and putting the town into proper shape, there is no reason why Auburn should ever have a run of sickness of any kind. He cited the case of Boston, that a few years ago was cursed with violent epidemics of diphtheria and similar sickness. Active measures were taken, and since then they have had little or none. He spoke of the absolute necessity of care, even on the part of the attending physician, who might carry the disease in his clothing. He showed the professional coat and hat worn by physicians in Boston, where they never go into the room of a person who has a contagious disease and wear their usual clothes. Houses that are infected should be disinfected. The occupants should be kept off the streets and people from other houses should be kept away. Only the nurses and physicians should be allowed to go there.

At the close of his talk, several citizens asked questions and received answers from which much information was gleaned. Our people are deeply in earnest in this matter and will move solidly for a better condition of things. Dr. Herty will be here again Dec. 13, and deliver a lecture, to which all the people will be urged to come.

A RUN FOR HIS MONEY.

The Wandering Willie Was as Good as His Word.

A man with an alert eye, but not dressed up to the nines—he didn't, in truth, look as if he had ridden in the varnished cars for a long while—walked into a Tenth street cabinet buffet one afternoon last week, says the Washington Post. A cabinet buffet is not a place that Wandering Willies are much in the habit of frequenting. The barkeep looked at this one with a somewhat distrustful eye, but he waited. "Jest gimme a nip o' yer best," said the man who looked as if he had gotten into town on a slide-door Pullman. The barkeep looked at the man suspiciously. Then it probably struck him that the patron might be a returned Klondiker or something of that sort, and he reached into the refrigerator, pulled out a bottle of gold label, and set it down with a glass and napkin, where the seedy-looking man was standing. The man poured out a hooter—five fingers of a baseball catcher's hand—and gulped it down. He then picked up the napkin and wiped his grizzled chin with elaboration. This mouth-wiping took a little longer than necessary and the barkeep saw [illegible] man made no move toward digging. "Where's the money?" said the man, who was carefully stroking his mustache with the napkin. The man put the napkin down and gave his trousers a hitch. "I'm goin' t' give ye a run fer it!" he replied, in the patois of the paddock, and he was out of the swinging doors like a cork out of a pop bottle. Moreover, he made the proposition stick. The barkeeper was alone and couldn't go after him.

Watch to be Given Away.

I will give a ticket with every dozen Cabinets in Platino or Dull finish on a Lady's or Gentleman's Gold watch to be drawn on Xmas eve, as a Xmas present to the lucky holder. Now is the time to have your Xmas Pictures taken, don't wait until one or two weeks before Xmas, to have your Negatives made. To take effect at once.

Our Six-Year-Old Daughter.

Our little six-year-old daughter had a very sore throat, badly ulceratad, and coughed almost incessantly. Gave the White Wine of Tar Syrup according to directions and she began to improve immediately and soon got well. Mrs Groves and I recommended it to others and we consider it the very best medicine in use. REV. D. H. GROVES,

Prevent Pneumonia

Prevention is always better than cure, even when cure is possible. But so many times pneumonia is not cured that prevention becomes the natural act of that instinct of self-preservation which is "the first law of nature." Pneumonia can be prevented and is often cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Some years ago I had a severe cold and was threatened with pneumonia. I could neither eat nor sleep, and was in a wretched condition. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and took it according to the directions, and at the end of fifteen daysw as as well and sound as before the attack. I have recommended it in many cases of pneumonia since, and have never known it to fail in effecting a cure."
JOHN HENRY, St. Joseph, La.

"I was attacked with a cold that settled on my lungs, and defied the skill of my physicians so that they considered me incurable. At last I began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was entirely cured after having taken two bottles."

Thursday's Daily.

—Jeff Boyle came over from Butler today on business.

—Ask any druggist for a free Peruna Almanac for the year 1899.

—Mrs. Geo. Pepple went to Van Wert today to visit a sister there.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Eckhart are the happy parents of a nice girl, born yesterday.

—Ed. Miser, of Waterloo, the DAILY COURIER'S representative there, was in town this afternoon.

—Baltzer Koontz of Spencerville and W. H. Brown of Union have thanks for favors today.

—John Shipe, of Hudson, was a caller yesterday and advanced Ephraim Shipe's subscription up to '99.

—Adam Weirick one of our old Fairfield friends, was a caller today. He is one of those prompt payers whose visits are always welcome.

—Samuel Culler of Scio, is the next lucky man to pay his subscription up to 1900, for which he has thanks. Now who will be the next lucky man?

—Mrs. J. C. Lochner arrived in the city this morning, and is a guest of S. S. Potter and the other relatives. Mr. Lochner is expected here this evening.

—Frank Kehrer formerly of Butler, but now a resident of Denver, Colo., was here today having come back on his usual annual visit. He is evidently prospering in that far-off state.

—When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Clarance Shoemaker is so far improved that he can sit up, and walk around some. It is hoped he can have his discharge without going to Indianapolis, as that would seem now to be a needless expense and trouble.

—John DeWitt of Keyser was here today. He has been in poor health all summer, having had appendicitis. Fortunately an operation was unnecessary, though he had a long and painful illness. He is now getting able to work some.

Dr. E. Felch formely of Boswell, Ind. was here yesterday afternoon with his friend, Dr. J B. Casebeer. He stopped here on his way to Ashley where he expects to locate in the practice of Medicine. Dr. Casebeer speaks highly of his ability in that line.

—Oron Bair of Fairfield, was here Wednesday, seeing our specimens of big corn reminded him of a stalk that Louis Hoffmier brought to the postoffice at Fairfiend Center. The stalk had run nine joints without leaves, but each joint had brace roots. It was a queer case.

—DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has the largest sale of any Salve in the world. This fact and its merit has led dishonest people to attempt to counterfeit it. Look out for the man who attempts to decieve you when you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Frank Bashelier, formerly an Auburn boy and for some time an employe in the Dispatch office was here yesterday on business connected with the Stone Drug Company of Elkhart. He is a part owner in the business and as they believe they have a valuable remedy, they are taking steps to push it. The Auburn boy still gets a front seat.

Marion Dermott of Concord was here Wednesday. He has been laid up all summer, but is now improving. His trouble had taken the form of an abscess at the right side, under the arm and a difficult operation was performed by Drs. Bowman and Nusbaum. We want to say a good word for Mr. Dermott's son who as far as possible kept up the farm work and raised a good crop of corn.

NERVOUS CHILDREN.

Plea for Consideration for Restless Little Men and Women.

A word about nervous children. Of course there might be none, but there are thousands. Never scold them nor "make fun" of them. They suffer enough without your threats or sarcasm, says the London Mail. Pretend not to see their awkwardness when in company, nor their grimaces when alone. A case was discussed the other day of a boy 10 years old, who, on being vexed, and often without any apparent provocation, will clinch his hands and make the most frightful contortions of the muscles of his face and head. His poor mother fears he is idiotic. By no means. He is the brightest boy in his class at school, fond of reading and of natural history, but he is of a highly nervous temperament, and has not been taught to control the little wires, so to speak, on which he is strung. This is no single case. There are thousands of children who give way to their nerves in a like fashion. Talk to them about these curious little fellows that should be their servants, not their masters. Never chastise them. The man or woman who strikes a nervous child is on a level with brutes that have no reason. Encourage them. Help them. Be patient with them. They are the making of our future successful men and women, for they will work hard at whatever they undertake. Brace up your own nerves first, and then be indulgent toward the capers of your overnervous children.

HOW TO PREVENT A COLD.

After exposure, or when you feel a cold coming on, take a dose of Honey and Tar. It never fails.

Friday's Daily.

—The Spaniards are still holding out to get more pay for the Philippines.

—J. N. Shatto and wife, of Fairfield, was here today paying taxes and doing some trading.

—Capt. Lahnum, Milo Husselman and Worthy Keller returned from Camp Mount today.

—Our old Waterloo neighbor, John Bohler was in today, paying taxes, and of course remembered the COURIER.

—The Dispatch wonders that we are afraid of Stroh. Bless your heart, that shows how little you know of the war editor of the COURIER.

—Miss Blanch Shilling went to Waterloo today to visit Miss Jennie Showalter, and attend the entertainment given their this evening.

—H. D. Poper of Newville, and I. M. Tomlinson and J. S. Farmer of Wilmington, were callers today. All are enterprising young farmers.

—The editor thanks Mrs. Fulmer of Waterloo, for subscription sent by W. H. Leas. Ladies pay their subscriptions promptly and are generally good friends to the COURIER.

—Albion ladies will have a chrysanthemum fair, Nov. 21, to Nov. 26, and are putting forth every effort to make it a success. Our ladies who went up there last year spoke highly of it, and we expect many will go this year.

We hope every well bred person will read the Weekly Dispath and note the high-toned language it uses in speaking of the COURIER. Apparently it lacked courage to put them into its 100-issue of daily, which would be read where both editors are well known.

—Little Gertie Rush died at noon today after a brief illness the trouble being diphthera. It is a sad case. She was a bright and very sweet child, and her death so soon after the tragic death of her mother adds another mournful chapter to the misfortune of her family

—For broken surfaces, sores, insect bites, burns, skin diseases and especially piles there is one reliable remedy, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. When you call for DeWitt's don't accept counterfeits or frauds. You will not be disappointed with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—A new feature of the extraordinary growths this season, was called up this week by C. C. Kryder of Keyser township. Last spring he took some cabbage that had been buried through the winter in the way so much in use among farmers, that is, they had the roots on. He planted them carefully, as a sort of experiment to see what a year old cabbage would do. Instead of producing seed, they produced heads, and fairly good heads at that. Anyone can see them at his home.

Saturday's Daily.

—Dr. Stamets returned today from a visit is Ashland County, Ohio.

—Mrs. Henry Saylor of St. Joe, died suddenly Friday night of last week. Heart disease was supposed to be the cause.

—Miss Hattie Millard returned to her home today after making an extended visit with her parents and other relatives.

—John Lochner came up here last evening to join his wife and little Don, who were already here. He is prospering nicely at Argos.

—St. Joe is complaining of the careless handling of the mail clerks on the B. & O. Several sacks have been thrown from the fast trains at that point and the contents injured.

—Mrs. S. Lash, of Polk, Asland, Co Ohio, is here visiting her relatives. She is a sister of the late Christian Sheets and aunt to Mart Sheets. We received a call from her today in company with Mrs. Mart. Sheets.

—We find that some people are afraid of the new remedy, anti-toxine, as they think it dangerous. But such is not the case. Dr. Swarts has used it for a year or two in the cases in which it is a remedy and has always had good results and no bad effects whatever.

—More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

If the next legislature of Indiana wants to stand well with the people, it will give the board of health all the money and all the law it can use. If there is any one thing more then another to which money collected by taxation should be applid it is to protect the public health and to save human lives.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Many of your friends, or people whom you know of have contracted consumption, pneumonia or other fatal diseases by neglect of a simple cold or cough. Foley's Honey and Tar, a safe, sure and pleasant cough medicine, would have saved them. It is guaranteed.

Justification.

"How dared you strike a woman!" he yelled, indignantly. "Well, there was no man around from whom I could borrow anything," pleaded the culprit. —Philadelphia North American.

Dr. Bull's COUGH SYRUP

Cures Hoarseness and Sore Throat. It is the best remedy for stubborn colds. Small doses. Price 25 cts. at druggists.

Pleurisy

Pleurisy and pneumonia are frequently developed, in a very short space of time, from a common cold; and, if such an acute inflammation of the lungs is not promptly allayed, the worst may happen. With the aid of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, however, you need not have any fear; for this great remedy speedily subdues the inflammation, eases the pain in breathing and always effects a cure in a wonderfully short time.

HOW TO PREVENT A COLD.

After exposure, or when you feel a cold coming on, take a dose of Honey and Tar. It never fails.

The Maria Teresa Lost.

This famous captured vessel is lost for good. It will be remembered that Lieut. Hobson had succeeded in raising her from the rocks on which she sank, near the mouth of Santiago harbor, soon after she came out with the rest of Cervera's fleet. She was towed into the nearest port where repairs could be made, and when her sides were patched and her boilers cleaned, she was started with her own steam to bring her to the United States. Three smaller vessels came with her to assist when she needed it. They came slow, and the second day out, when near Watlings Island, which is probably the first land Columbus saw, the storm in which they had been laboring got so bad that her sides were cracking apart at the joints of the armor and the water came in faster than the pumps could take it out. When they saw she was bound to sink, they got the crew all off and let her go. She was soon lost sight of. This was Nov. 2. The next day a wreck that looked like her was seen at a distance, but no certain word has ever come from her. The Leonidas, one of the ships that was helping her, has reached the United States. Her captain is of the opinion that she sank off Cat island, in deep water, and will never be seen again. It is greatly to be regretted, as she was to be kept at some seaport as a trophy of the famous sea fight off Santiago. An effort will still be made to save one or two of the other Spanish cruisers. The Leonidas brings 23 guns. Three of these came from the Maria Teresa and ten each from Almirante Oquendo and Viscaya. They are 14 centimeters and probably will be unloaded at Norfolk, Va. The Leonidas has on board two Schwartzkopf torpedoes. Though they did not see the Teresa sink, the officers of the Leonidas are confident the crusier lies at the bottom of the ocean.

NEXT ENGLISH KING

The sentimental and informal alliance which, it is asserted, alreayd exists between England and the United States undoubtedly meets with hearty approbation from the heir apparent to the throne of Great Britain. It is a significant and possibly a momentous fact that the Prince of Wales entertains very large views as to the future of the English speaking people, and it may transpire that the personal opinions and desires of Queen Victrria's oldest son will be of no inconsiderable importance in the history of England and America.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The character, capacity, and habits of thought of the Prince of Wales are very different from what those who know him not believe, very different from what is, perhaps, the popular idea of his personality in this country. He is ordinarily credited with good sense and tactfulness, but not with that intellectual grasp which those who know him best assert that he possesses in an unusual degree. His mind has been developed by contact for a generation with the best authorities on all subjects. His mental ability is active, comprehensive, and profound, and if he ascends the throne of Great Britain the world will see no ordinary sovereign ruling at Westminster.

Such a view of the character of the Prince is in an article in the August number of Harper's Magazine. The paper is unsigned and entitled "If the Queen had Abdicated." The author's opinions are backed by a number of convincing anecdotes, and there is a happy freedom from the odor of sycophancy which usually pervades such tributes to royal personages.

An interesting portion of the article is devoted to a discussion of the proposed abdication of Queen Victoria in 1897. Such a step was strongly advocated by Her Majesty at the completion of the sixtieth year of her reign and the political reasons which led to its abandonment make a curious chapter in the domestic and diplomatic history of the empire.

The Official Count.

The returning board, or board of canvassers of this county began their session at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, the 37 inspectors being present. L. J. Gengler, of Garrett, was made chairman of the board, and W. H. Leas, of Waterloo, secretary. The counting up on the state ticket went off rathar slow, but by the time they got to the local ticket, which was after supper, they began to warm up to the work, and by 11:30 p. m., were done. This was an earlier hour than we now remember. Two years ago they did not close till three in the morning. The results as found by the official count were as seen below. We give majorities, and tabulated statement will be made as soon as possible.

DE KALB COUNTY MAJORITIES.

James M. Robinson, d, congress	452
E. D. Hartman, r, judge	368
C. B. Jackman, d, prosecutor	177
C. M. Brown, d, representative	151
G. O. Dennison, r, clerk	68
F. Seiler, d, auditor	57
F. M. Hines, d, treasurer	419
D. Herrick, p, recorder	188
John Hathaway, d, sheriff	703
J. H. W. Krontz, d, surveyor	451
E. V. Campbell, d, coroner	311
Allen Shultz, d, commissioner	435
I. Gunsenhouser, p, commissioner	210

From the above it will be seen that the sheriff stands the highest, a very proper rebuke to a party that will nominate an unworthy man.

Jenkins was not defeated by as high a majority as at first reported. He is a most worthy man, and his defeat is greatly to be regretted. But he had the strongest man to run against.

The democratic majority on the state ticket is 131.

Ashley Precincts.

A half of Ashley votes in Steuben and a half in DeKalb. On the south side of the street they were hustling for Seiler and the other DeKalb men on both tickets, and on the north side, eighty feet away they were hustling for Douglass, and other Steuben men. On the DeKalb side the vote was, democrats, 69; republicans, 78, on state ticket. On the Steuben side the vote polled on state ticket was 49 democrat, and 86 republican. The policical atmosphere is different as you cross that street.

Seven Pairs.

Mrs. Edward Harris of Richmond, Mo., has given birth to seven pairs of twins. They are all living.

OBITUARY

Nora Izella Moudy, daughter of William and Ellen Moudy, was born May 16, 1895; departed this life October 30, 1898, at the age of three years, five months and fourteen days. Nora was a bright and lovable child. She was like a beautiful rose unfoldsng its beauty as the days passed by. She entwined herself around the hearts of her parents, brothers and sister by her loving disposition. The flower that began to bloom so beautiful in this world has been destroyed by death She is now blooming in a heavenly clime where death does not come and hearts are not made sad. Nora leaves to mourn her death a mother and father, five brothers, one sister and many othfriends; while one brother and sister have preceded her to her heavenly home.

The Health of the Hair is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease; when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the ill health of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secretions of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lustre is restored.

"I have used

Ayer's Hair Vigor

for fifteen years. It causes the hair to keep its natural color and is a positive cure for baldness."—T. B. WEYANT, Weyant, Pa.

Elections Notes.

The vote on Congressmen is about as follows according to the Ft. Wayne Sentinel which says:

Mr. Robbinson received the largest vote of any candidate on the democratic ticket and his plurality in the city and Wayne township is 400 greater than that of the state ticket. In less than half dozen precincts did Mr. Robinson run behind the state ticket while in the workingmen's precincts he ran ahead.

Advices from Noble county are that Stemen carried the county by about 200. Whitley gives Robinson between 200 and 300, DeKalb goes for Robinson between 300 and 400, LaGrange gives Stemen about 600 and no advices have been received from Steuben. This means Congressman Robinson's reelection by between 1,000 and 1,500 majority.

In Allen county alone over 4000 voters did not come to the polls. Of these, about three fourths are supposed to be democrats, as that is about the proportion of voters in that county.

Whitley county elected all the democratic county ticket by majorities ranging from 175 to 450.

Allen county elected the democratic ticket by majorities ranging from 1200 to more than 3000. The vote was only about threefourth as large as usual.

—Editor Baker, of the Columbia City Commercial, is elected to the legislature as a joint senator for Whitley and Kosciusko. He ran well owing to thirty years practice running after delinquent subscribers and running from, men who wanted to lick the editor. And he deserved to run well, for a republican, because he is a good fellow on general principles.

New York went republican by about 20,000, a margin very much smaller than was expected. The democrats gain 13 congressmen there.

Pennsylvania gives a republican majority of over 100,000, but the democrats gain six congressmen.

Nebraska is very close, but the republicans have probably carried it.

North Carolina, West Virginia and Missouri are democratic and nearly every congressman is democratic.

New Jersey gave a greatly reduced republican majority.

The National House if representatives seem to be close, with the chances favoring the republicans. The senate, also, will probably be republican.

In California, the republicans get the governor by about 9000, but the democrats are claiming a part of the state officers.

IN INDIANA.

Marion county went republican by majorities from 700 to 2000.

Republicans carry the state by about 15,000. They will have a clean majority in both branches of the legislature. This will retire Senator Turpie and put in a republican.

A Man Shot.

Great excitement exerted on South VanBuren st Tuesday night at about 8 o'clock. A pistol shot was heard and Mr. Solomon Bates went to the door and heard a man calling for help. He took his lantern and in company with Mr. Nathan Johnson went to where the noise came from and found a man only a few rods from his house lying in the path unable to move. Soon other help came and they carried him into Mr. Bate's house and telephoned for surgeon Casebeer. The doctor was soon on hands and found the room crowded with people and the patient fainting in their midst. As soon as the room could be emptied and fresh air secured to the patient, he examined for wounds but to be found except complaining of excessive tenderness, great pain in the head and right side. The place where he lay was examined, and a piece of heavy plank was found close to his hat and umbrella, and two bullet holes through the crown of his hat. The man was soon recognized as Jim Decker, but was so confused that he could give no idea who it was that assaulted him. All he could say was that there were two of them that knocked him down with a club, and when he attempted to get up they knocked him down again and shot him. Today he is reported as getting over his shock and feeling better and able to be taken home to his father-in-law's a Mr. Long in East Auburn.

Today, Thursday, he was so much better as to be able to come up town to the office of Matheny & Casebeer, and is now on the road to recovery.

Sent Up For Murder

Western exchanges contain the following: Al Ringling, of the Ringling Bros. circus, is in jail for murder. He became much enraged at a shell game worker who persisted in following the show. He had the fellow arrested over and over again, and forbade him following, but with exasperating persistence he would turn up at the next town. In a town in Ohio Ringling struck him over the head with a tent stake. The blow was harder than intended and it killed him. Ringling was arrested for murder and is serving a five years' sentence.

Township Election.

Yesterday afternoon the inspectors of the township met at the office of Trustee A. W. Madden and canvassed the vote in the township box. The following is the result:

JUSTICES.

J. Walborn, d	481
C. C. Walter, d	487
D. S. Ober, r	457
Joseph Stafford, r	422

CONSTABLES.

L. S. Stoner, d	486
Ed Ross, d	453
James Pearce, r	432
Henry Wolf, r	464

So it will be seen that Walborn and Walter will be the justices, and Stoner and Wolf the constables. For, in the election of these officers they are not paired off to run against each other, especially, but the men who get the highest vote will be elected. For instance, Walborn was not especially the opponent of Ober or of Stafford, neither was Walter. But the election went to the highest, no matter on what ticket. It may go to one man on one ticket and to one man on the other ticket, just as it was with the constables, when Henry Wolf, republican stood next after L. S. Stoner, democrat.

Tools Stolen at Garrett

Wednesday night some sneak thieves got into the carpenter shop and sash factory of C. B Jones at Garrett and stole a lot of tools, the most of which belonged to the employes, Wm. Helms, Mr. Whitford, and Irvin Swank. They got 9 chisels, 6 planes, 7 saws, 2 squares, 2 claw hammers, a brace and lot of bits and perhaps other tools, the value of which is probably over $75. It is not known who the thieves are, but notices have been sent out in all directions in hopes that they will be caught up whenever they try to dispose of the tools. That seems to be the only hope of getting them.

What The Press Says:

The Waterloo Press, which we presume speaks for Jackman, the republican county chairman says:

In the county campaign, Mr. N. T. Jackman performed his work with and did everthing honorable for the success of the republican ticket. He was handicapped by a few politicians at Auburn, who have never yet learned the fact that there are republicans out side the county seat. When this fact is duly considered success will be more certain.

The Deadly Target Gun.

A singular shooting accident, which caused the death of Wm. Hentzleman, a boy about 16 years of age, is reported from Noble county by the Avilla News. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hentzleman of Green township, and has been working for Jesse Swilhart, a farmer near Nobelsville. Last Friday while taking their noon rest Mr. Swilhart and the boy saw a squirrel, which ran upon the cornerib. Mr. Swilhart got a small target rifle and fired at the squirrel. The bullet struck a board on the cornerib and glancing with frightful velocity struck young Hentzleman in the left side of the abdomen, ranging backward and downward, lodging near the base of the spinal column. Physicians were summoned, and for a time it was believed the boy would recover, but he died on Monday. The affair is a sad one, but purely accidental, and no blame can be charged to any one.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys: if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble: too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents or one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, if you send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in the Auburn COURIER.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Many of your friends, or people whom you know of have contracted consumption, pneumonia or other fatal diseases by neglect of a simple cold or cough. Foley's Honey and Tar, a safe, sure and pleasant cough medicine, would have saved them. It is guaranteed.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

The Business World.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"The country safely passed the trial of 'off year' elections. Before this election everything except political uncertainties favored business. The volume of trade has been the greatest ever known in October, and the greatest ever known in any month, except December, 1892. The record of November thus far shows clearings 10.4 per cent. larger than in 1892. Foreign trade shows an increase of 20 per cent. in October in exports and 38 per cent. in imports from New York last week, while imports showed a gain of only 22 per cent. in October and credits against foreign bankers are piling up at an inconvenient rate. There is absolutely no anxiety about currency. The Treasury is too strong."

Report of Gen. Miles.

The report of Major General Miles is made public by direction of Secretary Alger. The report deals with the plans of the campaign, the war preparations, with the Santiago campaign, with Gen. Miles' operations in Porto Rico, and with important changes in the existing organization, which are, in Gen. Miles' opinion, necessary to make the army an effective weapon for the defense of the country. There was an absence of any evidence of direct criticism, though certain sentences in the report are italicized in the apparent desire to justify previously expressed plans of details of campaigns, and where it deals with events the document is largely made up of quotations of official dispatches.

Spain Will Not Yield.

Madrid special: The Heraldo asserts that the Spanish government has resolved to maintain Spain's sovereignty in the Philippine Islands, and it adds that it has been suggested that Emperor William, of Germany, who is expected at Cadiz and Madrid soon, on his way back from the Holy Land, be asked to arbitrate the question in dispute between Spain and the United States, in the event of the peace commissions of the respective countries, now in session at Paris, failing to come to an agreement upon the terms of the proposed treaty of peace.

Train Hurled Down a Mountain.

A west-bound passenger train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad ran away down the Wilkes Barre Mountain near Wilkes Barre, Pa., and crashed into an east-bound passenger train near Newport, a station seven miles distant. Four trainmen were killed: William Toxliemer, fireman; George Glasser, fireman; Messenger Grogor, and Brakeman Englan. Five were injured and three are expected to die. John McNally, engineer, died at the hospital. Four of the badly wounded will die.

Five Perish in a Gale.

Toledo special: Charles Barnes, Fred White, Hugh Hopper, Mary and Fannie Hopper were drowned in a gale off Peele Island, just as the party started out in a yacht against the advice of friends, and the boat was found with the spars and sails gone. One body was recovered. It is supposed the spars were carried away in the gale, the boat drifted helplessly and striking the breakers capsized.

A Farmer's Deed.

Near Slickrock, four miles from Glasgow, Ky., Bob Brown, farmer, shot and instantly killed his father-in-law, a man named McClelland, and fatally wounded Bertha McClelland, his sister-in-law. The cause of this tragedy is not known yet, but it is understood that there has been very bitter feeling existing for some time upon the part of Brown towards his father-in-law and family.

Blown Up by Dynamite.

Frank Hostetter, residing near Clay City, Ind., was torn to pieces by the explosion of dynamite. Hostetter, in company with several companions, was celebrating the election, when he drew from his pocket a stick of dynamite, and whirled it in the air, one end striking the corner of a building and exploding with terrific force. Hostetter's head was severed from his body.

To Prison for Life.

The Italian anarchist, Luigi Luchenni, who stabbed and killed Empress Elizabeth of Austria, on September 10, last, in Geneva, Switzerland, was placed on trial in that city. The court room was crowded and the prisoner was strongly guarded, but there was no excitement. Luchenni was sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for life.

Crew Saved, but Vessel a Wreck.

New Buffalo (Mich.) special: The St. Joseph life-saving crew, which came here by special train to rescue the crew of the stranded schooner, Lena M. Neilson, succeeded in getting all the men safely off the wreck. The schooner will probably be a total loss.

The Floating Dock.

A special to the London Times from Havana says the American Evacuation Commissioners have decided that the ownership of the floating dock in Havana Harbor remains with Spain, and she has the right to remove it. The dispatch adds that the distress in the Cuban army and throughout the island is daily increasing.

DeWitt C. Creiger Dead.

DeWitt C. Creiger, ex-Mayor, one of Chicago's pioneer citizens, a prominent Democrat and founder of the city water system, died at his residence in that city.

Twenty-five Men Buried.

The roof of the New Wonderland Theater at Detroit collapsed, carrying down the iron galleries of the structure, and a great mass of scaffolding and debris. Some twenty-five men were working under the collapsed parts of the structure. Eleven men were killed.

Spanish Warship Is Lost.

The cruiser Maria Teresa, Admiral Cervera's flagship when he made his memorable dash out of Santiago harbor on the morning of July 3, raised at great expense by Lieut. Hobson and added to the American navy, foundered off San Salvador in a terrible storm.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS

Results of Election Throughout the Nation.

CONGRESS VERY CLOSE

Official Count May Be Necessary in Many Districts.

Republicans Claim Safe Majorities in Both Houses—Democrats Gain a Number of Seats in the Lower Branch—Roosevelt Is Chosen Governor of New York—Pingree Is Re-elected in Michigan—Scofield Wins in Wisconsin.

All the States of the Union, exclusive of Maine, Oregon and Vermont, and the territories of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arizona, held elections Tuesday. The following States elected Governors: California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio and Utah elected minor State officers.

Connecticut, California, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Elected Governor of New York.

Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming and West Virginia elected State Legislatures.

All the States except Maine, Oregon and Vermont elected Congressmen. Outside the Gubernatorial election in New York, interest, from a national standpoint, centered in the Congressional elections.

Incomplete returns up to midnight Wednesday indicated that the Republicans had retained control of the national House of Representatives by a greatly reduced although probably safe majority. The election of Republican Legislatures in several States classed as doubtful insures a Republican majority in the United States Senate after March 4, 1899. After the Legislatures have met and elected Senators to succeed those whose terms expire in March the complexion of the Senate will probably be Republicans, 53; Democrats and other anti-Republicans, 37; Republican majority over all, 16. The Democratic gains in seats for the lower house are heaviest in Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia and Maryland. The South is again almost solidly Democratic.

Roosevelt's majority over Van Wyck for Governor of New York is about 20,000. Van Wyck carried Greater New York by nearly 85,000, which was overcome by Roosevelt's majority north of the Harlem river of about 105,000.

Stone becomes Governor of Pennsylvania by a plurality of nearly 125,000. Gov. Pingree, with the aid of the fusionists, carried Michigan by about 80,000. Lind, fusionist, is probably elected Governor of Minnesota. Scofield ran considerably behind his ticket, but is elected Governor of Wisconsin by a safe majority. The Democratic managers concede the election of the Republican ticket in Indiana by about 12,000.

PRESIDENT CASTS HIS VOTE.

Traveled from Washington to Canton to Discharge the Duty.

President McKinley and party arrived in Canton at 9:25 Tuesday morning, and was at once driven to the Barber residence. The President then walked to the polling place, dismissing the carriage. There was a crowd to greet him all the way, but there was no formal demonstration. The President started back to Washington the same afternoon.

Senator Hanna Casts His Ballot.

Senator Hanna voted early at Cleveland. His appearance in the booth created no comment, and he marked his ballot quickly. He hesitated voting for ballot machines. He asked the judges how to mark the ticket, and when he had been informed he handed over his ballot and left the booth.

RESULTS OF THE ELECTIONS

SENATE AND HOUSE.

Estimated Make-Up of the Two National Legislative Bodies.

The following table shows the composition of the next House of Representatives as indicated by the returns up to midnight Wednesday:

Totals	357	183	166	8

The States which chose Legislatures Tuesday apparently will choose United States Senators as follows:

California	Republican.
Connecticut	Republican.
Delaware	Republican.
Florida	Democrat.
Indiana	Republican.
Massachusetts	Republican.
Michigan	Republican.
Minnesota	Republican.
Missouri	Democrat.
Montana	Democrat.
Nebraska	Republican.
Nevada	Populist.
New Jersey	Republican.
New York	Republican.
North Dakota	Republican.
Pennsylvania	Republican.
Tennessee	Democrat.
Texas	Democrat.
Utah	Democrat.
Washington	Democrat.
West Virginia	Republican.
Wisconsin	Republican.
Wyoming	Republican.

In the Senate the members will stand thus:

Republicans	53
Democrats	28
Populists and silver men	8
Independent	1

Republican majority, 16.

TEN SLAIN AT THE POLLS.

Election Riot at Phoenix, S. C., Leads to Wholesale Murder.

Ten negroes are dead as a result of the election riots at Phoenix, S. C. The negroes threaten to make a desperate fight to avenge the death of their fellows.

The trouble at Phoenix began with an effort to prevent several negroes from voting. J. R. Tolbert, Federal collector at Charleston, whose home is at Phoenix, entered into the discussion and declared the men must not be disfranchised. He directed the negroes to deposit their ballots in a separate box. This action angered Bose Ethridge, an authorized poll manager, and he vigorously objected. Blows were struck and then some one in a group of negroes shot and killed Ethridge.

The shooting was returned and five negroes were wounded, among them Thomas Tolbert, son of the collector. The negroes took to their heels, but eleven of the crowd were captured. The prisoners were taken to Rehoboth, where a crowd of angry whites shot and killed many of the prisoners. A number of conservative whites tried to save the negroes, but were swept aside.

HAZEN S. PINGREE.
Re-elected Governor of Michigan.

RETURNS AT WASHINGTON.

Chief Interest Centered in Congressional Districts.

In Washington intense interest was manifested in the election returns. The results of the various State and Congressional district campaigns, to which so much attaches in Washington, attracted thousands to the bulletin boards in front of the newspaper offices. The theaters and clubs received bulletins. The two Congressional headquarters had special wires and long distance telephone service for those who were figuring up the result of the battle for the control of the next House of Representatives.

Many of the cabinet officers and higher officials of the government had gone home to vote, and owing to the absence of the President, who traveled to Ohio to deposit his ballot, there was not the brilliant gathering of political notables at the White House which has assembled there frequently upon similar occasions in the past. But the returns were received at the White House and closely tabulated. The chief interest, of course, centered in the complexion of the next House. Legislation during the coming two years, support of the administration, and many hundreds of offices were involved in the result, and the returns from the close districts were eagerly scrutinized by the Congressional campaign managers of both committees.

Mr. Cleveland Votes Early.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland was one of the first men who visited the polls at Princeton, N. J., and cast his vote before most Princetonians had breakfast. Promptly at 8 o'clock, arm in arm with Bayard Stockton, Democratic candidate for State Senator, he walked into the voting booth and asked for a ballot.

Benjamin Harrison Votes.

Ex-President Harrison, who lives in the Second Ward at Indianapolis, arrived at the voting precinct at 10 o'clock and took his place in the line of voters waiting to be admitted to the booths, there being but three at each precinct and each voter taking his turn to enter. The former President was in the booth only a few moments.

New York.

Col. Roosevelt, Republican, is elected Governor of New York by about 20,000 plurality. The Democrats carried eleven counties as against only one two years ago, and Greater New York gave Van Wyck 85,000 majority. As compared with the election of 1896, when Black defeated Porter, this shows a Republican loss of from 190,000 to 195,000. Roosevelt came to the Harlem river with 105,000 plurality, and Van Wyck had but 85,000 in Greater New York with which to meet it. The vote outside the city shows that Roosevelt lost 61,000 as compared with Black. In the city his vote was 61,000 smaller than Black's. In the country districts Van Wyck ran about 20,000 and in the city about 54,000 ahead of Porter.

Michigan.

The next congressional delegation from Michigan will be Republican, Congressmen Todd and Brucker, Democrats, being succeeded by Washington Gardner and J. W. Fordney. Gov. Pingree has been re-elected by a plurality of 70,000. The vote throughout the State was light, and, although the Governor was badly cut at many points, his Democratic friends rallied to his support with more than enough votes to offset the Republican defection. Of the thirty-two State Senators the Democrats elected five and possibly six. In the House they will have five votes, while eight others are in doubt. The Republicans will have a majority of eighty-seven and a majority on joint ballot of 104.

Iowa.

Iowa voters elected the Republican candidates in the eleven congressional districts of the State, the safe ones by sweeping and almost unlooked-for majorities, and the few who had contests on their hands by increased pluralities, except in one district. Major John F. Lacey, member of Congress, defeated Gen. James B. Weaver by a plurality of 1,234, a gain of 33 over his plurality in 1896. The Sixth district was the central battle ground during the campaign. The Republican State ticket will have about 60,000 majority. The falling off in the vote is about 15 to 18 per cent as compared with 1896. Fusionists suffered from this cause.

Minnesota.

John Lind, silver Republican, with Democratic and gold Populist indorsement, who, a few years ago, as a Republican, represented a Minnesota district in the national Congress, has a large plurality in the State over Eustis, Rep. The rest of the Republican ticket has been chosen. All seven Republican Congressmen have been elected. The Legislature will be Republican, but not by so great a majority as at first thought. Seventy-seven Republicans are known to have been elected.

Indiana.

Nearly complete returns from about eighty counties of the ninety-two in Indiana emphasize the Republican victory and indicate that the majority on the State ticket will be in the neighborhood of 15,000, that the Republicans have carried eight certainly and possibly nine out of the thirteen congressional districts, and have elected a majority in both branches of the General Assembly and will control that body on joint ballot by from twenty to twenty-five votes.

Kentucky.

The latest returns from the Ninth congressional district indicate that Mordecai Williams, Democrat, of Catlettsville, has defeated the incumbent, Samuel Pugh, Republican, of Vanceburg, by a majority of about 180. This gives the Democrats ten of the eleven Congressmen from Kentucky, a gain of three Congressmen for the Democrats in the State. The Fifth, Eighth and Ninth are the districts that somersaulted into the Democratic camp.

Ohio.

The election returns received Wednesday bear out the regular Republican gain of 9 per cent. From the rate of gains it is clear that the plurality for Kinney, Rep., for Secretary of State, will be over 55,000. The bitter fight made on personal grounds against J. E. Blackburn, Republican candidate for Food Commissioner, shows in the returns from the country, especially in the butter-making districts of the Western Reserve.

Kansas.

The Republicans made a sweep in Kansas, electing seven of the eight Congressmen. This is a gain of five Republican Congressmen. The Republican State ticket is elected by from 6,000 to 10,000 majority. Before the farmers were heard from, Republicans conceded victory to the fusionists. Leaders of both parties are unable to account for the heavy Republican gains throughout the agricultural districts.

North Dakota.

Late returns from over the State have swelled the Republican majority. Spalding, Republican nominee for Governor, gets the largest vote. Returns show that twenty-one out of thirty-one Senators are Republican, while in the House fifty-four Republicans of sixty-two have been elected. This gives the Republicans fifty-six majority on joint ballot.

Colorado.

The entire fusion State ticket, headed by Charles S. Thomas, Dem., for Governor, is elected by a majority approximating about 50,000. This is by far the largest majority ever given a candidate for Governor in Colorado. The Republicans won in only the eastern part of the State. The fusionists have an overwhelming majority in the Legislature.

Wyoming.

Returns of ten out of thirteen counties of Wyoming give Frank W. Mondell, Republican candidate for Congress, 1,590 majority; DeForrest Richards, Republican, for Governor, 1,200; the rest of the State ticket, 500. The Republicans have fifty out of fifty-seven members of the State Legislature on joint ballot.

Pennsylvania.

The complete vote of the State, with four counties missing, gives Stone, Rep., 455,782; Jenks, Dem., 337,783; Swallow, Pro. and honest government, 124,437, a plurality for Stone of 122,089, which will be increased to about 125,000 by the complete returns. The total vote in the State will approximate 950,000.

Virginia.

Virginia will have a solid Democratic delegation in the next House by majorities sufficiently large to preclude any contests for Democratic seats before the House. The returns so far received give Rhea 1,253, and no material change is expected in these figures.

Nebraska.

Returns by counties Wednesday night indicated a scaling off of Republican gains, making the State ticket in doubt and so close that the official count may be required. The Legislature is probably Republican on joint ballot.

South Dakota.

Almost complete returns give Phillips, Rep., for Governor, a majority of 1,200. Gamble, Rep., is elected to Congress by 4,000, and Burke, Rep., by 3,500. The Legislature will have a Republican majority.

Illinois.

Estimating from incomplete returns, Illinois Democrats have probably elected seventy-three members and Republicans eighty, leaving a Republican House majority of seven. For the Senate the Democrats have elected sixteen members, the Republicans thirty-four and the Populists one, giving a Republican majority of seventeen. The Republicans will probably have a majority of twenty-three or twenty-four on joint ballot. The average plurality for the Republican State ticket is about 30,000. The Democrats elect eight Congressmen out of a delegation of twenty-two.

Wisconsin.

Wisconsin elects a Republican Governor by 30,000 plurality, the remainder of the State ticket by about 10,000 more, ten Republican Congressmen, thirty-one out of thirty-three Senators and eighty-one out of 100 Assemblymen.

Idaho.

The fusion ticket is all elected by pluralities ranging from 5,000 to 8,000. The Legislature will be controlled by the fusionists.

RESULTS IN OTHER STATES.

Story Told in Paragraphs, as Estimated on Early Returns.

Rhode Island re-elects two Republican Congressmen.

Texas went Democratic by a majority of 250,000 in a total of 400,000.

Partial returns from Delaware indicate a complete Republican victory.

Oklahoma elects a Republican Congressman and fusion Legislature.

The Republican State ticket and Republlican Congressmen were elected in Connecticut.

Montana Democrats won everything in sight, and will have a large majority in the Legislature.

In South Carolina the Democratic State ticket was elected without opposition. The vote was light.

The Democrats swept Alabama, electing nine Congressmen, eight of whom are free silver men.

Florida is solidly Democratic. The Legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Pasco.

New Jersey elects a Republican Governor and Legislature by about 10,000 plurality. Two of the eight Congressmen are Democrats.

Almost complete returns from Washington indicate the election of two Republican Congressmen and the Republican ticket. Legislature is Republican.

The Democratic State ticket in Tennessee is elected by a majority of 25,000, and eight of the ten Congressmen are Democrats. Legislature shows a heavy Democratic gain.

FOR DEEP-WATER CANALS.

Commission Will Finish Work on Routes in Thirty Days.

The field work of the deep-waterways commission appointed to report on the feasibility of constructing deep-water canals from the great lakes to the Atlantic seaboard and to suggest the routes will be finished in about thirty days.

Twelve surveying parties are in the field working along three different routes. One of these routes is from Oswego through the Mohawk valley to the Hudson river; another from the St. Lawrence to the Hudson by way of Lake Champlain, and the third by way of the St. Lawrence river and the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Each surveying party is accompanied by men who are boring at intervals of every rod to the depth of thirty feet to determine the character of the geological formation. The result of each test is carefully preserved and properly labeled, so that the commission will be able to report the character and expense of the work of excavation for every rod of each route.

After the field work has been concluded the commission will begin the preparation of its data and report, an undertaking of considerable magnitude. This will require, it is estimated, about thirteen months, so that the report will not be submitted to the War Departmen until about Jan. 1, 1900.

Up to date the commission has expended $255,000 of its appropriation of $375,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899. The work is being carried on at the rate of about $28,000 a week. It is estimated that $435,000 will be required to complete the surveying projects, and Congress will therefore be asked to appropriate $60,000 to be expended after June 30, 1899.

WATER SCARCE IN UTAH.

Salt Lake Is Lower Now than It Has Ever Been Before.

Just now the people of Utah are somewhat alarmed over the low water. For many years the lake has been falling, and on account of the small snowbanks left in the canyons of the mountains last winter it is now lower than ever. No abstruse explanation is necessary to account for the drop in Salt Lake. It is fed by seven streams, and evaporation is the only outlet. As population increases in the valley, more and more water for irrigation is deviated from these feeders, while the evaporation from the enormous area, 12,000 square miles, covered by shallow water, of which this lake consists, goes on as before the days of irrigation. Man is also encouraging this evaporation in the production of salt, which is carried on extensively. The water is let into great hollow basins along the shore, made for that purpose, and the sun does the work, leaving a coating of salt on the bottom. This is gradually accumulated into great piles.

SAYS HE CHANGED AWARDS.

Omaha Exposition Superintendent Is Charged with Forgery.

H. B. Hardt, assistant manager and general superintendent of the department of exhibits of the Transmississippi exposition, was arrested on two warrants alleging forgery. H. S. Cochran of Scofield, Schurmer & Teagle and H. A. Searle of the Monarch Mining Company caused Hardt's arrest, alleging that he changed awards of judges in favor of other firms, for which he was paid. Hardt positively denies the charges.

Five general managers of departments of the Midway were also arrested on contempt charges, alleging that they absolutely ignored injunctions issued at the request of rival attractions.

CONGRESSMEN-ELECT.

List as Compiled from Returns Up to Thursday Morning.

Following is a list of Congressmen-elect compiled from returns up to midnight of Wednesday. It shows that the Republicans have elected 180 members, while the Democrats, silver Republicans, fusionists and all others have elected 165 members. There were twelve doubtful districts to be heard from:

INDIANA STATE NEWS.

OCCURRENCES DURING THE PAST WEEK.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties and General News Notes of the State.

Minor State Items.

Prof. N. A. Preston, teacher of music at Notre Dame, died suddenly.

Corn husks, wood-chucks and weeds are said all to indicate a cold winter.

Nathan McCrackin's barn, with five head of horses, was burned near Paoli.

Hull, Harris & Volz carriage factory will locate at Connersville, employing 150 men.

Alonzo Huckleberry, a woodchopper near Vernon, may die, a limb having crushed his skull.

Charles Kegelman, a Fort Wayne mattress factory proprietor, was killed by a steam chest exploding.

Burton F. Hawkins, aged 47 years, a farmer, dropped dead in Greenfield. A wife and five children survive.

Alva Rosenbarger, aged 18 years, of Princeton, took poison and was found unconscious. Motive unknown.

Rev. Father Ottmar of St. Method, Spencer County, killed a pelican, the other day, weighing fourteen pounds.

James McFall, aged 73 years, of Brazil, a pioneer of Lawrence County and a famous chairmaker in early days, is dead.

Thieves broke into A. Steinburger's clothing store at Alexandria and in a wagon hauled away over $400 worth of clothing.

THE BOYLESS TOWN.

A cross old woman of long ago
Declared that she hated noise;
"The town would be so pleasant, you know,
If only there were no boys."

She scolded and fretted about it till
Her eyes grew heavy as lead,
And then of a sudden the town grew still,
For all the boys had fled.

And all through the long and dusty street
There wasn't a boy in view;
The baseball lot, where they used to meet,
Was a sight to make one blue.

The grass was growing on every base
And the paths that the runners made,
For there wasn't a soul in all the place
Who knew how the game was played.

The dogs were sleeping the livelong day;
Why should they bark or leap?
There wasn't a whistle or call to play,
And so they could only sleep.

The pony neighed from his lonely stall,
And longed for saddle and rein;
And even the birds on the garden wall
Chirped only a dull refrain.

The cherries rotted and went to waste;
There was no one to climb the trees;
And nobody had a single taste,
Save only the birds and bees.

There wasn't a messenger boy—not one,
To speed as such messengers can;
If people wanted their errands done
They sent for a messenger man.

There was little, I ween, of frolic and noise;
There was less of cheer and mirth;
The sad old town, since it lacked its boys,
Was the dreariest place on earth.

The poor old woman began to weep,
Then awoke with a sudden scream;
"Dear me!" she cried, "I have been asleep;
And oh! what a dreadful dream!"

RACE FOR A BRIDE.

DUKE CARLTON paced restlessly back and forth on the platform at the station of D——. He was a man 26 years of age, upon whom Nature had certainly lavished an undue amount of good looks, but whose face was marred at present by a look of contempt for everything upon which his glance might chance to fall. And it was scarcely to be wondered at, for in just nine hours, as time was told by the large, slowly ticking clock in the waiting room at the depot, Duke Carlton was to be married. And here he was forty miles from his destination, and had just been told by the station agent that the trains had changed time, his train having left at precisely twenty minutes before his arrival, and there would not be another before 8 that evening. Eight—the hour set for his marriage with sweet Lula Houghton. What would she, could she, think? What a position to put her in! Already he imagined the crowded church, the sea of eager faces, the waiting bride, and no Duke. He must reach the city of E—— in time for the ceremony; but how?

Presently he walked back to the little ticket office where the agent was laboriously writing.

"Do you know if there is any sort of conveyance around here that I could get to take me to the next village? I would pay well for one, as it is imperative that I should reach E—— before night."

The agent calmly finished the sentence he was writing, pushed the cap he was wearing on the back of his head still farther back, and having thoughtfully chewed the end of his pen for about half a minute, replied:

"I dunno. You might be able to git old Harmon's horse and buggy if 'tain't let. He keeps the tavern 'bout a stone's throw from here, an' sometimes lets his horse; but he wants a tarnation price. You can try him, though; that's his chimney you see jest over the yeller house there." And he rose lazily and pointed vaguely down the street, where a number of small houses were visible, among which the yellow one stood out distinctly, having been recently built and just received its coat of priming.

Duke walked rapidly from the depot and hastened in the direction of the "tavern," keeping the chimney in view as a gaurd against mistake, and soon found himself before a dirty, ill-kept, ill-looking place, from which an odor of boiled cabbage and onions was now issuing. To his loud and twice-repeated knocking the door was finally opened by an untidy specimen of womankind from which he would at any other time have recoiled in disgust; but his necessity was urgent, so, stepping forward, he raised his hat and courteously asked if he might see the proprietor.

After a prolonged stare, as if mentally digesting the word, she answered with a half grunt:

"Ain't 't home, but I'm 'is wife, 'nd we ain't no secrets. What du you want?"

Duke smiled in spite of his perplexity before he replied:

"I merely came to see if I could engage some one to take me over to the village east of here. I must reach E—— to-night; I believe I can get a carriage there."

"There ain't no horse to hum," she said, "but Abe would take you over in the mornin'. Do you want lodgin' fur the night?" she added, an eager look taking the place of the previous vacant stare.

"No, thank you," said Duke; "if I cannot find a vehicle of some description, I suppose I must walk, for I must certainly get there to-night. Can you tell me about how far it is to the next village, and which is the nearest way to go?"

"It's four mile and a half by the railroad, an' nigh onto seven if you take the road," was the surly answer, as she saw that there was not even a remote chance of "Abe's" making something in the morning. "But 'tain't many as likes to go by the railway, on 'count of the narrer tunnel, though it's a deal nearer."

"Thanks. Then if I take to the track here and go straight ahead I shall come out at the village at the end of about four miles?"

A nod was his answer, followed as he turned away by the words:

"Four an' a half, I said."

So Duke started to walk the four and a half miles, concluding he must take the shortest way he could, as he had not a superabundance of time; there might be some little delay even after he arrived at the village. So he began his journey at once, without even stopping for dinner.

He had passed the third-mile post when he reached the tunnel.

"Ah!" he said aloud. "Here is the tunnel of which she warned me. I wonder how long it is? What a dunce I was not to ask! It does look like a ticklish place, that's a fact—small, one-track affair. I don't half like the idea of going through it. Wonder if I'd have made it if I'd taken the road? Well, it's too late now—I'm in for it!"

He had groped along for about a quarter of a mile, feeling his way carefully by the wall. Not a thought of any actual danger had entered his head—so full of his fair bride-to-be—until suddenly a dull rumble struck his ears, and caused him to wonder whence the sound proceeded. Another instant and there flashed across his brain the horrible reality. A train was coming, from which direction he could not tell, but certainly coming, and if the tunnel proved much longer the fact was undeniable that he should be crushed beneath the iron monster there alone in the darkness, and no one would know his fate. He listened, laying his ear to the rail; it was coming in the rear. He quickened his steps—he ran—ran as rapidly as he dared for fear of a misstep which would hinder instead of advance his ends.

Now the roar comes nearer; he can imagine the train as it is tearing along, carrying death to him. He thinks each individual hair is standing on end. The sweat pours down his face, and still this darkness, still this louder roar of the engine as it comes steadily nearer and nearer, and his strength is nearly exhausted.

At last a gleam of light greets him at the farther end of the tunnel. O, what hope it inspires! He thinks of the races he has won at college, and determines to take a fresh start. Yes, he will run as if running a race, and forget the huge monster behind him which seems to paralyze his limbs and prevent all motion; he will run, run—he must win—how terrible the result if he does not! He thinks of Lula, his sweetheart, his wife that was to have been. Shall he ever see her again?

The light ahead grows more and more distinct, but his strength is going, and the train behind is rushing on fast; it seems quite close now; he can almost feel its breath upon him; still he runs. Another moment and he will have gained or lost—which? He must make that short space! What a thing it is, this being face to face with death! He cannot hold out much longer; he feels he must lose—and what then? But no—he will make one more effort. He clears the tunnel, leaps from the track, and falls headlong down the bank on the side, saved—but unconscious, while the heavily loaded freight train passes by.

But the engineer had seen him jump, and not being able to ascertain whether he had been struck by the cowcatcher or not, stopped the train and went back in search of him; and when Duke Carlton regained consciousness he was lying on a seat in the depot in the village for which he had started some hours before.

He was not seriously injured. His fall had but stunned him, and in an hour he was quite ready to proceed on his journey, a little pale, it is true, and shaky in the lower extremities, but otherwise rejoicing that he had succeeded in his quest, and would be in time for his wedding, with thirty minutes to spare.

Duke Carlton does not believe in the theory that a person's hair turns white in a night from sudden fright or sorrow, for his own raven locks show not a trace of silver; and surely no one ever had a more terrible fright or a narrower escape than did he on his wedding day, when he ran a race for his bride.—Chicago Tribune.

Ferocious African Dwarfs.

Henry M. Stanley, in describing his journey through the forests of Africa, says that the most formidable foes he encountered, those that caused the greatest loss of life to his caravan and came nearest to defeating his expedition, were the Wambutti dwarfs.

These diminutive men had only little bows and arrows for weapons, so small that they looked like children's playthings; but upon the tip of each tiny arrow was a drop of poison which would kill an elephant or a man as surely and quickly as a rifle. Their defense was by means of poison and traps.

They would steal through the dense forest, and waiting in ambush, let fly their arrows before they could be discovered. They dug ditches and carefully covered them over with sticks and leaves. They fixed spikes in the ground and tipped them with poison. Into these ditches and on these spikes man and beasts would fall or step to their death. One of the strangest things about it was that their poison was mixed with honey.

How He Won Her.

"It is so sudden," exclaimed the fair-haired girl who had just received a proposal to merge her identity in that of a would-be protector. "You must give me time to reflect."

"No, no," retorted the diplomatic young man; "one whose dazzling beauty makes a mirror ashamed of itself should never go into the reflecting business. Let this solitaire diamond do the reflecting."

And the records of the license clerk show that it was even so.

When He Goes.

"Does your husband ever go to church, Mrs. Badger?"

"Oh, yes, he goes quite regularly in the winter time."

"Why does he go in the winter time and not at other times?"

"Well, you see, he generally has the quinsy when the weather is raw and thinks he is going to die."

The ossified man in a museum leads a hard life, but the fat lady makes the most of it.

People probably get the blues because they fail to look at things in the right light.

A girl often wonders if a certain young man wonders if she is thinking of him.

Experience is such a costly teacher that it keeps a man hustling to pay the tuition fees.

CRETE'S UNHAPPY POSITION.

Harried by the Turks and the Envy of the Powers.

Crete is a Greek island, traditionally and historically as well as by position. The fabled birth of Zeus, father of classic gods and men, took place on Mount Ida. Minos, the Moses of Greek law, was king of Crete. From her inaccessible gorges and her mountain peaks the spirit of liberty has never been driven. The Sphakiote shepherds, at least, claim that the conqueror has never set foot upon their native heath.

For this reason the Cretan mountaineers approach more nearly to the ideal of the ancient Greek than any of the other inhabitants of either the mainland or the isles of that ancient country. They are light in complexion, with the regular features and straight noses that one has learned to associate with classic ideals. The men attract attention wherever they appear, both on account of their splendid physique and their striking costume, which bring out to the best advantage the magnificent forms which it envelops. The women of the peasant class are fair skinned, erect, deep chested—almost as athletic appearing as the men.

Cretan cities are at present the most picturesque places in the world. Looking down a street of Candia, or Canea, one sees Mohammedan women, closely veiled, Turkish priests, with brightly colored turbans wound about their brows, groups of ragged Arabs, Greek priests in their majestic, flowing robes and queerly shaped hats and Cretan mountaineers. Donkeys driven by street venders of fruit and vegetables and laden till their backs bend with enormous creaking baskets pass up and down. Caravans of mules and donkeys, with their high wooden saddles, stand patiently in the squares and alleys and similar caravans pass by to the sound of loud cursing and the whacking of cudgels on ribs and bones.

Soldiers of the various nations in their different uniforms are seen and every now and then a squad of regulars or of marines dashes down the street at double-quick time, the sun shining on casque and bayonet and their bugles sounding merrily. This is to let the natives know the foreigners are still there.

Crete is turbulent because Turkey cannot manage it. The sturdy mountaineers and country people of the island will never yield to Mohammedan rule. Hatred of that rule is imbibed by the babe at the mother's breast and is instilled into the heart of the child with the first words that he can understand. The Turks are massed in and around the villages, generally within running distance of the cannon of the fort.

Greece could manage Crete, because the Cretans themselves are Greeks and look upon Helas as their fatherland. Under Greek law the renegades would all turn Christian and the Turks would settle down and be quiet.

VEILED WOMEN IN CRETE.

The Greeks have shown themselves capable of establishing a good government by the way they have stamped out brigandage in their own country and the efficient manner in which they have policed the entire territory belonging to them.

Why do not the powers give Crete to Greece and end this harrowing spectacle of continued revolt, murder and incendiarism once for all? Because of a diplomatic phrase: "The integrity of the Turkish empire." Crete won her freedom at the time of the revolution and has won it since, but she has been persistently given back to Turkey.

The situation is this: Certain of the great powers stand around the Ottoman empire as crows might stand around a dying horse. They know that if the horse does die they will fall upon each other over the division of the spoil and will tear each other to pieces. They say: "It is better for Armenians and Christians to be murdered than that a general European war should take place."

PRIEST AND FOREIGN OFFICER.

BUSY SLICE OF EARTH UNDERNEATH LONDON.

Here is a curious slice of London. If a man were endowed by his Creator with X-rays eyes this is what he would see when he looked into Slaughterhouse Corner, as the point of convergence of Queen Victoria street, New Bridge street and the approach to Blackfriars bridge in the City of London is called. These streets only furnish the surface traffic. Overhead is the structure of a great railway corporation. Underneath you come first to the electric conduits and gas and water mains, forming a labyrinth of themselves. Then, at the depth of twenty feet from the street, you come to the tunnel of theunderground railway, through which so many thousands of people pass daily. A few feet under the underground railway is the sewerage system of this part of London, in itself a vast engineering work. Then, passing below the sewerage system, you come to a great channel of traffic in the new steel tunnels of the City & Waterloo Railway. Three railway systems, a busy thoroughfare and many sewers, water pipes, gas pipes and electric light wires cross each other at this spot. Nowhere else on earth can such an astonishing display of engineering skill be seen in so small a compass.

Crete is important on account of Suda bay, a splendid coaling station and harbor for warships. Any foothold in the Mediterranan is considered of vast importance by the powers. England now has Gibraltar, Malta and Cyprus. She is particularly anxious that neither France nor Russia should gain similar footholds. That is why the powers all maintain warships in Crete. They are not watching the islands so much as each other.

Meanwhile Crete is in a very unhappy position. It has no regular government and it is small wonder that anarchy prevails. The powers have established a joint protectorate, as they well know that a "protectorate" by any one power, especially England, means possession. When any trouble occurs the warships all blaze away together, in evidence of good faith and friendly zeal. The European concert, so far as Crete is concerned, means a concert of cannon.

It is decidedly Wagnerian music.

A MEMORY OF BISMARCK.

Prof. Sloane Says He Did Not Show to Good Advantage on Parade.

Prof. William M. Sloane contributes an article on Bismarck to the Century. Prof. Sloane says: It was on the anniversary of Washington's birthday in the year 1874, that I first saw him. The occasion was a reception at the house of George Bancroft, then American minister plenipotentiary at Berlin. The simply furnished but spacious rooms of the scholar-diplomatist were crowded with a distinguished throng. All the celebrities of the day were present, among them Moltke, Roon and Manteuffel. Bismarck entered somewhat late, when conversation was at its heighth and the brilliant scene was most impressive. The indescribable polyglot hum of talk just ceased for an instant, and then went on, as he made his way to a central position. For a time all eyes were turned toward him while he entered into the pleasant humor of the assembly; but as he assumed no other mien than that of a peer among peers, the general interchange of good-fellowship was resumed without regard to his presence. His low voice could be heard from time to time, and occasionally his unmusical laughter, but that was all; and after a stay of well-calculated length, he withdrew almost unnoticed. In the succeeding years I saw him frequently on public occasions and in the street, and heard him speak on important measures in the Imperial Parliament. Being only a secretary and historical student under Bancroft, I had naturally no opportunity for personal conversation with the hero of the hour; but the current gossip was of intense interest. Once a message taken to the royal residence afforded an opportunity to see the striking evidence of the chancellor's temper. He had just left the portal, and the rather flustered attendant pointed to the door of the Emperor's ante-chamber with a silent and deprecatory smile; the handle was gone, leaving plainly visible the fresh scar where the brass shank had been broken, as the wilful and perhaps momentarily thwarted giant had taken his departure.

A Pitcher Is Not a Bottle.

Native wine is so cheap in San Francisco that many restaurant-keepers serve it with meals in lieu of tea or coffee if their patrons prefer it. The clause in the war tax requiring a stamp to be affixed to each bottle of wine disturbed them seriously for awhile until the plan was hit upon of serving it in pitchers instead. As the internal revenue department has ruled that a pitcher is not a bottle these caterers get off scot free of the tax.

Fair Hair Growing Scarce.

Fair-haired people are said to be becoming less numerous than formerly. The ancient Jews were a fair-haired race; now they are, with few exceptions, dark. So it is in a lesser degree with the Irish, among whom 150 years ago a dark-haired person was almost unknown.

A Twenty-one Hundred Dollar Cat.

In London and Paris cats are more highly prized than in the United States, and there are frequent sales there of tabbies at two hundred and fifty dollars each. Some choice cats, with rare "markings" and "points," are disposed of at five hundred dollars each.

One of the most famous cats in America is Ajax, owned by D. W. Stevens, of Westfield, Mass. His actual value has been estimated, says the Philadelphia press, at from one hundred to three hundred dollars, yet it is doubtful if the owner would take several times the larger sum for him.

The famous cat Nicodemus, which won the first prize for beauty at a New York cat show, cost its owner, who purchased it of a street urchin in Hester street, New York, the sum of ten cents. After the close of the exhibition the gentleman received a dozen offers of fifteen hundred dollars for it, and one woman bid twenty-one hundred dollars. A lady who controls a cat farm in California paid $1,000 for a cat in Paris and considered it a bargain.

RIOT AT WILMINGTON

NINE NEGROES ARE KILLED BY WHITES.

The North Carolina City the Scene of Bloodshed—White Citizens Overthrow the Former Government and Are in Control.

Thursday was one of terror in Wilmington, N. C. The white men of the city, infuriated by past acts of lawlessness of the negroes, took the law in their own hands and wreaked terrible vengeance. The result, it is reported, is that sixteen negroes have been killed.

Shortly after the negro newspaper office, the Record, was burned, the negroes commenced to display a disposition to create trouble. They began to gather in one of their thickly populated sections of the city, and assumed a threatening attitude toward the whites. One mob fired upon a small number of white men, seriously wounding one and slightly injuring two others. The whites returned the fire with a deadly volley, killing four negroes.

As soon as the news of the shooting became known the whites, infuriated and utterly beyond the control of their leaders, rushed in large numbers to the scene and engaging the negroes, killed four of them. One military company and a division of the naval reserves, carrying with them two rapid-fire guns, also repaired to the scene, where they stood guard during the night.

Riddled with Bullets.

In the meantime the body of whites had instituted a diligent search for the leader of the mob that started the riot. The negro was finally found secreted in a house. He was taken out and told to run for his life. He started off, but only advanced a few yards before his body was riddled with bullets. Next a negro named Tom Miller, and a white man, both of whom had taken a prominent part in inciting the negroes to riot, were sought for and placed in jail. Five other negroes were also incarcerated and several banished from the city. Sixteen negroes have been reported killed and quite a number wounded.

The Board of Aldermen (colored) who have governed the affairs of the city for nearly two years agreed to accede to the demand made upon them by the mass meeting of citizens to vacate their offices. Consequently they, including the Mayor, resigned and their places were filled by white taxpayers. A. M. Waddell, ex-Congressman, was elected Mayor. The new Board of Aldermen instructed the Mayor, in view of the turbulent state of affairs existing in the community, to swear in 300 extra policemen. This was done, 250 being on foot, twenty-five on horseback, and twenty-five bicyclists. All are whites.

HOLD UP A TRAIN.

Eight Robbers Blow Open a Safe on Great Northern Express.

The Great Northern through train was held up and robbed five miles west of Fergus Falls, Minn., Thursday night. There were eight robbers in the gang, all well armed. Two of them evidently boarded the blind baggage in the city.

The train was scarcely out of town when these two climbed over the tender, and, presenting revolvers, told Engineer Brace and his fireman to stop at a lonely spot near the Pelican river bridge. Arriving at this place, the train was stopped and the engineer and fireman were ordered to leave the cab. The other members of the gang rushed from the woods and boarded the express car. All wore handkerchiefs over their faces. The gang was regularly organized and went by numbers. When the train stopped the conductor and brakeman started forward to find out what caused the delay, but the bandits fired a number of shots and warned them to keep back. They then compelled the express messenger to leave the car, and while three or four stood guard the others proceeded to blow open the safes.

The local safe was destroyed and it is thought that they succeeded in securing considerable money, but the exact amount cannot be learned. The through safe was drilled and partly blown open with dynamite, four charges being used. The jacket was blown off, but it was found impossible to reach the inner part and get at the money. The men worked over it nearly two hours, holding the train for that length of time, but finally gave up the attempt, and, joining their companions on the outside, started south.

The facts were wired to railroad headquarters and telegrams were sent to all towns in the vicinity, requesting the authorities to send posses in pursuit of the highwaymen.

BRAKES CLOGGED BY LEAVES.

Five Men Killed in a Collision Between Express Trains.

The Buffalo express on the Lehigh Valley Railroad ran into the New York and Philadelphia express, going east on Wilkesbarre Mountain, at 3 o'clock Friday morning. Five trainmen were killed.

The train going east had the right of way on a single track. The Buffalo express had orders to stop on a siding on the mountain and let the New York express pass. As the engineer approached the siding he discovered that the air brakes would not work. The train was moving about thirty miles an hour down a grade. The engineer whistled frantically for the hand brakes and reversed his engine, but could not avert the collision. In less than a minute the express from the west, drawn by two heavy engines, hove in sight. A terrible crash followed on a curve in a deep cut. Nearly all the passengers on both trains were asleep. Many of these were thrown out of their berths by the shock, but none was severely injured.

An investigation showed that a heavy windstorm prevailed on the mountain, which caused the leaves from the forest to accumulate on the track. The engines plowed into these leaves, which clogged the braking apparatus.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Although Admiral Sampson's report, sent through the press dispatches, does not contain a word of censure, criticism or complaint concerning the conduct of Admiral Schley, but simply gives the correspondence and orders in their sequence and allows the department and the public to judge it for themselves, it places the commander of the flying squadron in an embarrassing position, and explains why the Secretary of the Navy asked Congress not to pass resolutions conveying a vote of thanks to Admiral Schley. It also confirms the story telegraphed from St. Louis that Schley's fleet remained before the harbor of Cienfuegos for five days after he was informed that Cervera was in the harbor at Santiago, and that he started for Key West for coal, leaving Cervera free to go where he pleased until recalled by sharp orders from the Secretary of the Navy, who then placed Captain Sampson over his head.

Every year the heads of the great departments in Washington are having increased trouble with superannuated clerks. Many of these clerks have been in public service from twenty-five to thirty-five years, and there are not a few on the rolls who have been working uninterruptedly for the Government for forty-five or fifty years. Many of these old clerks have been holding salaried positions for a great many years, but the great majority are middle-class, where the salaries range from $1,000 to $1,400. With advancing years they lose in efficiency and their retention on the pay rolls in important positions is an injustice to younger and better clerks, who are doing a greater amount of work for less money. Heads of departments cannot nerve themselves to discharge these veteran clerks, and so they drag on year after year, incumbering the service.

Officials of the quartermaster general's office of the War Department say that those who desire to avail themselves of the Government's order to transport Christmas packages to the American soldiers at Honolulu and Manila should address the quartermaster general, Washington, D. C., for instructions. The department desires to regulate and control the number, size and contents of the packages so far as possible, and will not undertake to pay ocean freight upon everything that may be sent.

Exportation of wire nails from the United States has increased fifteen fold during the last ten years, going from 1,547,000 pounds in 1888 to 22,894,000 pounds during the fiscal year 1898. This product of American workmen goes to every grand division of the globe and practically every country. Ten years ago the price per pound was 10 cents. To-day it is 2 cents. Thus, the 1,547,000 pounds exported in 1888 brought $155,000, while the 22,894,000 pounds exported during the last fiscal year yielded only $458,000.

Speaker Reed is dead set against keeping Congress in session any longer than is absolutely necessary. His influence may, therefore, be counted upon to be thrown against a special session. He can practically control the committees in a short session and keep matters back which he does not wish to have acted on. In a long session this is more difficult and there is constant danger of the House breaking away from him. This was done two or three times last spring and summer.

The Comptroller of the Currency finds that he cannot issue a charter to a national bank in the Hawaiian Islands. This will be a severe disappointment to several ambitious politicians in Washington, who have been planning for months to secure the first charter for a national bank at Honolulu. The same crowd is after national bank charters in Porto Rico and Manila. It is believed that Congress will have to give specific authorization before the Comptroller can issue charters in any of these places.

The clerk of the Supreme Court is in receipt of a large number of letters from lawyers in all parts of the country inquiring of him when the Supreme Court will issue rules and regulations for the government of courts in the enforcement of the bankruptcy law. The United States will have to take charge of the postal system in Cuba as soon as the Spaniards evacuate, for the Cubans have no governmental organization of any sort and chaos would result at once if this action were not taken.

Up to date 2,000 claims for pensions have been filed by soldiers and sailors and their dependents on account of the war with Spain. Seventy were for victims of the Maine.

First Board of Health Case.

The Board of Health had its first case in court today. We spoke of it yesterday, but it seems it was delayed till this morning, when it was brought up before Judge Roby. It appears that Geo. Stebing, whose little child died of diphtheria, disregarded the order of the Board to remain at home until the Board gave him permission to go abroad. As he insisted on going about, to the great danger of the people, he was arrested, as the only way to make him obey, and to understand what a serious thing he was doing. The Judge put him under bonds of $250 to appear at the first day of the next term of court, and he also promised Health Officer Swarts that he would obey the laws strictly and carefully and would not leave his own premises again until he had authority to do so. We feel like complimenting Dr. Swarts, Judge Roby and Prosecutor Pomeroy on the stand they have taken. It will go far to assist in maintaining the health of the town, when people can be made to understand that the authorities are in earnest, and that the health laws and health ordinances must be obeyed. And we point with great satisfaction to the rapidity, with which this run of sickness has been got under control. As far as we can see, it is now over with.

Auburn's New Industry

A short time ago, we spoke of the new industry, the Robbins Bending Works of this place. Since then the plant has rapidly developed till now they are at work. L. D, Robbins is the originator, and the inventor of the machines. He has brought them now to such a high state of perfection that perfect pieces of bent work are now turned off with rapidity and accuracy. He has leased the Monitor Company's buildings at the Junction and has everything at work. Orders are rushing in and next week they will probably have to work night and day to keep up with orders. The working force is perfectly organized, and Mr. Robbins himself will buy the timber, he being an experienced dealer. John Robbins, the well known traveling salesman will be general business manager and bookkeeper, while two skilled and experienced men will be foremen of each of the chief departments of the factory The Junction will be a good place for shipping, and we look to see it again become the center of busy industry. We feel certain this new plant will be a success and be a valuable addition to Auburn's varied industries.

Queer Election Dodge.

[Angola Magnet]

Some of the smart Alexander low down political workers at Terre Haute got into a peck of trouble last week. It appears to have been a custom there for candidates for office to furnish here and there a ward worker with an order on a brewery for a keg of beer for himself and friends to drink, This liberality on the part of office-seekers got noised around among the bums, and a large number of them applied for and procured orders for beer; but instead of drinking it, many of them sold it to saloon keepers for whatever they could get, the price being generally below that charged by the Brewing Company. The latter, learning of the swindle being perpetrated upon them and the candidates for office, reported the matter to Uncle Sam, and the result was the arrest of sixteen men in one day on warrants charging them with being wholesale dealers in liquor without having paid the requisite government tax. Trying to swindle Uncle Sam generally proves to be a costly experiment.

An Unusual Operation.

Grandama Schutt, of whom we spoke yesterday. had to undergo a severe and unusual operation yesterday. She has long suffered from rupture and a few days ago it came out and became strangulated. Not knowing what was the trouble she neglected it until then. It was found to be irreducible and a consultation of physicians was held, and an attempt to reduce it by the aid of chloroform having failed, an operation was found necessary. This was done by Dr. Casebeer, assisted by Dr. Hines and Dr. Matheny and was successful in reducing the hernia and relieving the patient. Today she is reported doing well, but owing to her age, now about 70, and the other unfavorable conditions mentioned, there is yet great doubt as to final recovery.

The Concord correspondent of the St. Joe News writes:

Quite an accident occurred in the home of D. W. Wyatt one evening last week, which might have been of a very serious character, but for the wonderful presence of mind of Mrs. Wyatt. The rest of the family were yet out about the farm finishing their work for the evening, and Mrs. Wyatt lit the lamp and started to the barn to milk, and in a short time she happened to look toward the house and saw that the light was brighter than caused by a lamp and immediately returned to the house to discover that the lamp had exploded and the things in the room were on fire. She quickly got a couple of pails of water and went into the room hurriedly closing the door after her, and in a short time had the flames under subjection, and finally the fire completely extinguished. The carpet was entirely burned off of the floor, and a wrap that was lying on a chair was burned up, also the table and wall paper were partly burned. It was a narrow escape from being big conflagration.

Factory Improvements.

The already large factory of the Zimmerman Company is having extensive additions made to it. At the south of the wing in which is the business office, they are putting up a large storage room.extending south to the limits of their ground. Back of this will be made an addition 18 by 80 feet to be used for packing and similar purposes. In addition to these extensive buildings, they are just finishing another which is a continuation of the great three-story building in which is their blacksmithing department. This addition is 30x30 feet and three stories high to conform to the rest of that building. The upper stories will be used for paint rooms. These additions will increase the present floor space of the plant about 6,000 square feet. We are pleased to note these evidences of increasing business.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

A Churubusco Cattle Man Loses A Heavy Sum.

Saturday last, William Schlagel who buys cattle for Oscar Gandy of Churubusco went to Columbia City on the forenoon train to draw some money from the bank, to use in his business. His train was a little late, and that made the time between trains at Columbia City, still shorter though usually it is ample for one to get up town, do some business and get back to the station. In this case, when Mr. Schlagel got back to the station he found the train had gone. He was about to return up town and wait for the afternoon freight when he met two men in a buggy, who asked if he had missed his train. He said he had, and they asked him to get in and ride to Churubusco with them, as they were going through there. He got in and went with them. He seems not to be able to give an account of what happened to him, but that evening found himself in a strange town, at least he did not recognize it. He asked some men where he was, and they told him he was in Wabash. He does not know how he got there, but as soon as he was able to come, he hired a team and came back to Churubusco, reaching home Sunday forenoon. His money was all gone, and it is believed that the two men were aware of his going to get the money and his missing the train gave them a chance to get it. He says he knew the men he rode with but cannot remember their names. They had a bottle of whisky and asked him to drink which he did. Soon after taking the drink, things began to seem strange. The horses seemed to be going sidewise, and then he thinks they drove under a tree and got out. But after this, he can give no account. They probably took his money, amounting as is supposed to about $1200, then got him into the buggy, drove across the country to Wabash and there abandoned him to get home the best way he could. At present there does not seem to be any clue, and unless he gradually regains his memory of what happened, it may never be known, unless some accidental circumstance should give the highway robbers away

The Oldest Flag

It may not be generally know that our national flag is among the oldest of those used by leading nations. It has had no material change since its first adoption, while several others have been radically changed as in case of the flag of Germany which in '1870 had to be changed to suit the newly formed empire which contained fourteen distinct duchies or states. The British flag in its present form was established in 1801; the flag of Spain, in 1785; the French tricolor flag now in use in 1794; that of Portugal in 1830; the Italian tricolor, was established in 1848. Even the old nations, China and Japan have changed their flags more or less since "Old Glory" was adopted. The only change we make is to add a new star when a new state is admitted and that has not generally been done at the time. Norway last week made a change in her flag, so as to show that while she and Sweden have but one joint ruler, she has a separate existence with separate laws and a congress of her own. The new republic of Central America will no doubt now adopt a new flag so as to combine some of the features of the several flags whose nations go to make up the union.

AMERICANS TOO BUSY

The Majority of the Seventy Millions of People in America Have Not Time Enough to Eat.

It seems to be an utter impossibility for Americans to find sufficient time to eat properly, as nature intended. The time thus saved is lost in later years with compound interest—it will bring a diseased stomach every time. Do you know that eighty-five per cent, of American adults suffer from dyspepsia and indigestion? Seems an awful statement, but its so.

There are thousands of people suffering from indigestion today who are not aware of the fact. Many suffer because they don't know what's wrong, and have no remedy, others doctor for nervous prostration, heart disease, severe headaches, etc., when the real cause is indigestion. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure is a remedy which treats the stomach and liver. Its healing qualities are never failing. By its use you would not be able to recognize yourself within a few weeks.

There are many proximate causes for dyspepsia. Sometimes the stomach becomes deranged through other diseases. Sometimes the liver is the recalcitrant organ, and must be brought back again to a normal condition. The neglect to take proper exercise, the habits of hasty and irregular eating, and inattention to a proper and healthful diet, conduce to recruit with every year the great army of dyspeptics. The chief thing to do in such a case is to re-establish the healthful tone of the system. Remove the obstructions in Nature's way and she'll do the rest. What is needed is vital force and power. Increase the power, and the body will take care of the rest. By its power producing quality, its vitalizing energy, Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure has established for itself a solid record in cures of dyspepsia, indigestion and liver complaint, It supplies the power and nature starts the machinery. This remedy is sold at McCord's drugstore; 50 cents. The Stone Drug Co., Elkhart, Ind.

The DeKalb Boy

The DeKalb boy is always in evidence in honorable places. We have just received a copy of, the Berea Reporter, published by the Kentucky college in which J. C. Teeters is now one of the faculty. It contains an excellent half tone picture of Mr. Teeters, and has much complimentary matter in regard to him. He is foreman of the College Farm, and Instructor in Mathematics, and from what we we gather in this pamphlet, the College is something after the plan of our own popular state institution Purdue, at Lafayette, and is quite an important and extensive institution. We have known Mr. Teeters since he was a "round headed lad" in the schools of this county, and have been much interested in his progress as an instructor and as a citizen. So, it goes without saying that in common with hundreds of friends up this way, we are gratified to learn that he has made his chosen work a success.

BUTLER.

Winter is approaching and about every house in town that affords shelter from the cold and rain, is occupied, and a good many are tramping the streets in search of winter quarters.

Uri Mason, of Michigan with his wife, have come to Butler to spend the winter with his brother and other relatives.

Last week was very disagreeable, with rain and snow and mud, rendering it very unpleasant for many who have corn in the shock. The writer visited some of the south part of the county last week and saw a number of corn fields under water with the corn shocks still unhusked.

The recent election resulted in a good many surprises. Candidates who gave the saloon and its friends the cold shoulder, were rewarded by about five votes from the better class of voters, to each one they lost from its votarlers. It pays to be decent, even in politics.

The Bicycle Factory is about to start with a largely increased force on 1899, orders, mostly from the east.

The "Hello" station will be removed from Geddes & Harding's Drug-store, to that of Charles Phillips in the Haskins Block.

In speaking of the death of Mrs. Leibolt last week the Typo made me say Seibolt

John Wilson and daughter, Edith, are making an extended visit in south-Ohio among his brothers and other relative.

—Lizzie Champion and Miss Candlbury visited Pleasant Lake last week and enjoyed a rain bath and a very muddy ride.

Jonathan Haverstock living two miles north west of town is repairing the old Reed house, built by W. F. Campbell and Hiram Reed in '62, for his son who recently got married.

Hay bailers are busy now getting the '98 crop in market. The prevailing price is about $5.00 per ton on cars. There is no money to the producer in $5 a ton. He had better raise 15 cent corn and feed it to $3 a hundred, hogs.

Our good Bro. Frech, of the M. E. church is donning the lecturer's garb. He appeared before a Butler audience in a familiar subject last Tuesday night.

A Letter's Double Trip

[Goshen Times]

A letter containing a large amount of money and railway transportation, was taken out of the postoffice twice yesterday afternoon. It was addressed to Mrs. Jos. Hecter of Kansay City who is visiting the family of Geo. W. Farrell.

Joseph Farrel was sent to the office after the mail, as this particular letter was expected. He secured it, started home and lost it on the way. Doubling back and along the route failed to produce the lost valuable, and after an hour's search Farrell again presented himself at the postoffice window. He was handed the identical letter still in tact, one of the carriers having brought it in from a street mail box. It had been picked up by some one and dropped into the nearest collection box.

Brotherly Love

[Butler Record]

That big bag of wind that runs the Ashley Times got all he could out of the republicans during the campaign and then in his last issue turned traitor and sold out to the democrats, giving two democrats a write-up. Such a man is more detestable than a Spaniard in the eyes of people with decent principles.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Jane Teff deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 19th day of December 1898, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

EVERYTHING HERE.

Our mammoth Fall and Winter stock is complete in every way. A customer walking through our store last week asked: When do you expect to sell such an ocean of clothing? We have certainly bought heavy, but buying direct from the manufacturer and in such large quantities, we have the advantage of all contemporaries by giving you a much larger stock to select from and at the same time we will give you better prices than can be found elsewhere. Our Overcoat tables are heaped up with the best of New York's manufacture.

We start Overcoats at $3.00 and on up to the $22.00 all-silk lined, nothing finer could be constructed

Men's Winter Suits—we can fit any man.

$4 98 buys a good Cheviot Suit. $5 50 buys a good Cassimere Suit.

$7.50 buys a Scotch Cheviot Suit that at other places would cost you $9 00.

$9.50 buys an all-wool genuine Scotch Cheviot Suit that can not be bought elsewhere under $11.00.

We are offering the washington Mills Clay worsted Suits at $10.00, better prices than any year previous.

Ask to see the Black Cheviot and Cassimere Pants we are offering at $1.50 and $1.75. Men's working pants at 50c, 65c, 75c and 95c.

Ulster Overcoats.

When the cold winds whirl around and down your ne k just remember to call in and and let us show you Ulster Overcoats at prices that will make you a buyer. We start Ulsters at $3.25.

Boys' Knee Pant Suits.

We know you and your boy will be suited when looking this department over. They start at $1.00 a suit. The $1.50 suits are just right for school wear, they are heavy warm and durable.

Gents' Furnishings.

We haven't time to say much of this department. Fleeced Lined Underwear—others have them but we have the garment at 50c that others ask you 65c for. Neckwear, Gloves and Mittens, Shirts and Mackintoshes.

Our Hat and Cap Department has received its share of attention and it is this line that we are all so hard to please in. Come in and look us over we'll do our best to please you.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS—IMPORTANT.

The Quaker Valley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, have requested us to announce that they have several thousand sets of the finest coin silver-plated War Memorial Spoons left over from their recent distribution; They will mail, postpaid, a full set of six of these spoons to every subscriber to the COURIER, who will send name and address—a postal card will do. If, on receipt of the spoons, you find them the most exquisitely beautiful specimens of the silversmith's art you ever saw, and worth $3.00, remit 78 cents, as payment in full, within 30 days; if not pleased return spoons immediately. Each spoon is of a different design—after-dinner coffee size—showing soldiers in camp in Cuba, Morro Castle, and four U. S. Battleships. They are imperishable mementoes of the late war, and every subscriber should accept this most remarkable offer and obtain a set before it is too late. All that's necessary is to say you're a subscriber to the COURIER (this is important) and that you accept Memorial spoon offer. Address QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 357 W. Harrison St., Chicago.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO CHANCE IT.

A heavy cold may lead to pneumonia or consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar taken in time affords perfect security from serious results.

THIS COLD SNAP

Has Started the Jackets And Capes Going Lively.

How about yourself? Don't you need a nice comfortable wrap of some kind? The quality, fit and style of these Jackets is very pleasing to all who see them. There never was a season when ready-made garments for Ladies and Children were so good and cost so little. It makes wrap selling very easy here.

A good Boucle Jacket, nicely lined throughout, our price..... $4.00

Black and Blue Kersey and Beaver Jackets, box front, nicely lined with satin..... $3.50 to $4.00

Very fine Kersey and Covert Jackets, fly or box front, made up in the latest styles, handsomely lined, $8 00, better qualities at..... $10.00 and $11.50

A new line of Misses' Jackets in pretty shades, up to-date styles, fancy linings ..... $3.50 to $8.00

Nice line of Children's Reefers and Cloaks in a variety of colors..... $2.00 to $6 50

This has been a big season on Ladies' Tailor Made Suits. We have a limited number left, in sizes 32 to 38, on which we are naming very low prices.

Fur Collarettes and Collars from $2.00 up. A full line of Fur Trimmings in the desirable kinds, qualities and widths, at popular prices.

UNDERWEAR....

For Men, Women and Children.

The best goods—the lowest prices—come to us for all kinds of underwear, except the scratchy, ill-fitting kinds. We have plenty of underwear bargains, but none of the kind simply made to sell—'tis selling good underwear that built this great underwear business of ours.

BLANKETS....

Buying as we do direct from mill agents we are in position to offer some rare values in Blankets. Got about everything in the line that is worth having—and are selling them at such satisfactory prices that you will be quick to see the honesty of our argument. Look them over before the assortment is broken.

NOTICE OF HEARING OF DITCH PETITION

In the matter of the petition of Chas. H. Baber No. 682, notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the Auditor o DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and viewers have been appointed, who have viewed and reported said view, which is on file in my office.

The hearing of said petition upon its merits by the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, will be on Thursday, the 8th day of December, 1898, the same being the 4th day of their December term, 1898.

The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Commencing at a point 40 rods west and six rods north of the center of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and from thence in a general easterly direction, ending in Cedar creek at a point 40 rods west of the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 23, of said Butler township.

Also lateral No. one (1) to said main line beginning 50 rods north and 16 rods east of the southeast corner of the northeast fourth of the southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and ending in the main drain or ditch 35 rods west and six rods south of the east quarter corner of section 22, of said Butler township, said county and state aforesaid.

Lateral No. 2.

And also the following lateral for spur to lateral No. 1, beginning 45 rods southeast of the southeast corner of the northeast fourth of the southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, and from thence ending in lateral No. 1, 56 rods east of said southeast corner of northeast fourth of southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, said ending being station No. 15 of lateral No. 1.

Also lateral No. 3 to said lateral No. 1, beginning 15 rods east of the southeast corner of section 22, Butler township, and from thence in a general northeasterly direction, ending in lateral No. 1, at station 25 plus 39 at a point 38 rods east and two rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 4, beginning 40 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, and from thence in a northeasterly direction, ending in lateral No. 1, at stake 22-57 at a point 30 rods east and 17 rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 5, beginning at a point 30 rods north and 30 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, and from thence northwest, ending at stake No. 6-08 of lateral No. 4, said ending being 30 rods north, and 48 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 6, to lateral No. 3, beginning two rods east of the southwest corner of section 23, Butler township, and from thence in a northerly direction, ending in lateral No. 3, at stake 2-52, at a point 30 rods north and four (4) rods east of the southwest corner of section 23, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 7, commencing 10 rods north of the southeast corner of the southwest fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, and from thence northwesterly, ending at stake 22, of lateral No. 1, at a point 30 rods east and 30 rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui
has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible
FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,
irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in case requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

—The Ashley Times says, "Platter's defeat proves our assertion that a mistake was made in his nomination." Brother Strayer is the only republican editor that so far has had the manliness to say this. Every one of them knew what Platter was, and still voted for him.

—We publish today, as usual, the tabulated vote of DeKalb county showing the correct vote on each candidate for each of the 37 precincts in the county. It is copied from the corrected returns in the clerk's office and is therefore correct. It is quite a job to get this report and put it in press, and we trust our readers will appreciate it and lay aside this copy for future use.

—Little Ruth Weaver died yesterday morning at about five o'clock. She suffered intensely to the last, but she had hold out so long that it was hoped she might eventually recover All the community sympathize deeply with the grief-stricken parents. The funeral was at 11 a. m. today at the home, only a few being present. The services were by Rev. T. M. Guild and she was laid to rest in beautiful Evergreen.

—The Silver Dawn takes us to task for making public the conditions under which the new men take charge of the paper. We did not know there was any desire to withhold this from the public or we would have respected their wishes. But as Mr. Gerner himself in his statement on retiring makes a full explanation, and as the new managers, copy and thus give additional publicity to the COURIER'S statement, we cannot see what there is to complain of.

—W. S. Purdy did the first job of plumbing in connection with the new waterworks. It was for J. E. Rrse. He has got all the piping etc., ready to connect at the outer curb, so that the town can tap the main and connect with the pipe running into the house at any time. Mr. Purdy being skilled in this line will no doubt get a good deal to do. We presume many will now begin to get this work attended to.

—Capt. Sigsbee gets the first prize money for ships taken. He and his crew get half the value of the cargo in the British coal ship, Restormel, that was trying to bring coal to Cervera's fleet in Santiago harbor. Had the coal been delivered, the Spanish ships would have put to sea before our fleet arrived. When a warship captures another of equal or superior force the government gets nothing, all goes to its captors.

His Wife Couldn't Cook.

So he decided to apply for a divorce, for he considered he had good grounds therefor. But the Judge, after hearing his complaint, scratched the bald place on the top of his head, looked over his specs at the poor fellow, shifted the quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and said: "You don't need no divorce. You go home and ask your wife to forgive you. On the way home stop at Davenport's and buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; take it according to directions, and if you can't eat anything in less than a week from biled cabbage up, come up to me and I will give you a divorce and alimon yboth."

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October—our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85; hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

WILSON,
The Shoe Man.

Some people complain about the wear of their Shoes, but they are not those who wear those waterproof Dongola Shoes sold by Wilson.

A Fair Proposition.

If ladies will go to each shoe store in town and take home a pair of their $2 50 or even $3.00 shoes marked in plain figures and go to Wilson's and ask for a pair of his famous $2.00 shoes. Then if you do not believe that Wilson can and does save you from 50c to $1.00 a yair on such shoes why then its our treat.

Warm Slippers.

We bought a lot of Ladies, Misses and Childrens slippers and notice our seven is before the nine—79c is the price at Wilson's.

Rubber Footwear

is often a source of much annoyance. Buy them at last years prices of Wilson, who keeps more rubbers than any one else hereabouts having sold over 4,000 pairs last year. Wilson has the goods as well as the prices.

Felt and Knit Boots.

Buy them where you have an assortment to pick from, the best makes guaranteed and prices are right. Wilson is the man who keeps them.

Arctics and Overshoes.

Tis often difficult to get a fit. Don't go in to any store and accept of a poor fit. Come to us and we are right in the swim with more styles and more toes than can be found in the county. Wilson's is the place and prices are right.

School Shoes.

Mothers and Fathers often worry about the large amount of cash it takes to buy school shoes for their children. Come in and let us pick you out what is needed and our word for it your money back if they don't wear, at Wilson's.

AGRICULTURAL

Keeping Out the Cold.

Hundreds of farm buildings that contain shivering and unthrifty stock all through the winter months could, at almost no expense whatever, be made very warm and comfortable. Open foundations and absence of any closed foundation whatever cause much of the coldness of farm buildings. Cheap hay and swamp grass abound in almost all sections. If a large quantity of this is cut and put about the building and held there in the manner shown in the cut, the wind would very effectually be kept out. Two strips of boards, with laths nailed to them every fifteen inches, will keep the hay very snug. When winter is past the hay can be used for bedding

Packing Fruit for Market.

The degree of ripeness should determine the time of gathering the fruit. Most kinds of pears have a better flavor if picked as soon as their growth is completed and permitted to ripen off the tree. All the fruits should be handled carefully to prevent bruising, and very particular care should be taken with the tender fruits. The sorting should be carefully done, according to size and color, the wrapping to follow, but all the fruit should be permitted to cool before either is undertaken. Throughout this work, the less handling that is given the longer its condition will remain good.

The packing should be done in such a way as to hold the fruit protected from jostling and bruising while in transit to market, but yet it should not be packed so closely as to prevent the air from circulating through it freely. Only such fruits should be packed as are thoroughly sound, free from blemish, of good shape and of reasonably good size.

Tender and soft fruits especially should be cooled as soon after being picked as practicable. The wrappers should not be close enough in texture to confine within them the moisture that comes from the fruit by evaporation, or the fruit will be apt to mildew. This is often seen on oranges wrapped in a paper of close texture. The changes going on in ripe fruit generate heat, and this should be counteracted as far as practicable. It is said that even in a well-refrigerated car the heat liberated from the fruit will often more than counterbalance the cooling effect of the ice. Hence, it is important to have rapid transportation to market before the heat generated by ripening process causes decay.—Texas Stock and Farm Journal.

Roosts for Chickens.

As the chickens obtain size, they may be taught to go to roost in some room that is not occupied. Here they will be always under cover and safe at night from their enemies. Make the roost of broad strips of board, to prevent crooked breast bones, and to reduce the risk of vermin use the plan of hanging the roosts shown in the cut. The strips rest on horizontal wires, to which they are stapled beneath, and are held firmly up by wires from the ceiling.—Exchange.

SWINGING ROOSTS.

Early-Maturing Hogs.

Young pork is always best as well as the most cheaply produced. Unless the animal is wanted as a breeder it is not usually kept until a year old. The breeds that mature early will make more pork at less cost at six to eight months old than will those that keep on growing two or three years and attain very heavy weights. But it is still better to keep a breeding sow of some of the coarse, large-boned hogs and then grow litters of pigs from her when mated with some of the small breeds that mature earliest. The half breeds will make more pork than will the thoroughbreds.

Stone Banking for Barns.

In banking up against the walls of basement barns, and especially, in building up a passageway to the entrance, there is always strong temptation to use stones piled in loosely as a basis, where stones are over plentiful on the farm. Yet this usually proves a mistake. Rats will invariably effect a lodgement among such stones, and they will in time work through into the barn basement. Besides, rains will wash dirt among the stones, and it will require constant attention every year to keep the passage way so that loaded wagons can be driven over it.

Seeding Peaches.

In the peach orchard, and wherever this fruit is eaten, the seed, or as it is usually called, the "pit," will commonly be thrown upon the ground, where frosts will crack it and enable the germ to come forth. Even if not covered at all, the root naturally strikes into the soil, so that it is ready to supply moisture whenever the growing shoots demand it. These seedling peach trees are quite common in out-of-the-way places. Sometimes a valuable new variety is thus produced, though our experience of natural peach trees grown from the seed is that most of them are poor. It is a safe proceeding to bud the young tree when it has grown from spring until July or August. In that way you may know in advance what class of fruit you may expect to pick.—American Cultivator.

Pitting Potatoes.

Potatoes keep better in a pit than anywhere else, but they must be well protected to prevent zero weather from catching them. They should never be covered deeply enough to allow them to become at all heated or they will start to grow. The first covering should be not more than six inches deep, and this should not be increased until the ground has frozen enough to bear up a man. Then put on a covering of straw, over the soil already on, and put on more soil, patting it down to make it shed rain. Leave the pit until actual winter has come and the ground is well frozen, and then over all put a foot of fresh manure from the stables. Don't be afraid of driving the frost in, for this will not happen. Keep the manure on until the potatoes are needed in the spring, for the covered pit will not thaw out nor will the manure allow it to freeze any more, and the potatoes will not sprout until time for planting in the spring if left in the pit.

Potatoes that are to be used for seed should be placed in a pit by themselves so as to leave them undisturbed until taken out to plant.—Farmer's Voice.

Farm Profits.

When does the farmer make a profit? There are hundreds of farmers who have become wealthy, yet they have handled very little money and have had difficulty in meeting their obligations. There is one bank account which they do not draw upon, and the deposits accumulate for years, and that is the soil. A farmer takes a poor farm, works it, adds manure, and receives but little over expenses, but every year his farm has become more fertile and also increased in value. In ten or more years the farm may be worth five times the original cost, and it represents just as much profit as though the farmer had received money. All farms are, to a certain extent, banks of deposit, where the profits of the farm slowly accumulate.

Valuable English Bull.

An English newspaper says that the celebrated bull Merry Hampton has recently been purchased by Mr. Dustin, of Illinois, for the handsome price of 300 guineas. Merry Hampton is from the herd of Mr. Peterkin, of Dunglass, one of the group of Ross-shire breeders, who are so well known at the great English shows.

Oil Meal for Fattening Hogs.

One of the best variations of the all-corn diet for fattening hogs is some old process linseed meal, or, if this cannot be procured, use cottonseed meal with some oatmeal not bolted. All the linseed and cottonseed meals contain some oil, and to this extent are laxative. But all the cottonseed meal made now has the oil so squeezed out of it that it is unsafe to feed it to young pigs, and it can only be fed to old hogs in very small quantities, and then not very safely. It will need some roots to go with it. But these should be given any way when corn is fed to hogs, as the starch of corn is hard to digest. Besides the oil, the oil meal contains some nitrogenous nutrition which makes the feed a better balanced ration.

Sun Baths for Fowls.

It is not alone the cold weather in winter, but even more the lack of sunlight during its short days, that restricts egg production at this season. Plenty of sunlight is as essential as warmth to make the hens lively and healthful. But the single glass narrow windows, often only a single pane, and that covered with dust and cobwebs at all seasons, and with ice in winter, do little good. What are needed in all henhouses are large windows with an extra frame and glass with a space of enclosed air large enough to fill most of the south side of the building. Keep the place where the sunlight falls free from manure and fill this with sand or coal ashes. Fowls will dust themselves here, and basking in the sunlight they will soon begin to lay.

Dipped Texas Cattle.

A significant resolution was passed by the Interstate Sanitary Convention at Omaha as follows:

Whereas, The experiments recently conducted have demonstrated that Southern cattle dipped in dynamo oil saturated with sulphur will effectually destroy the Southern tick, and that such may be mixed with Northern native cattle without danger of communicating Texas or Southern fever thereto.

Resolved, That the quarantine regulations may be amended wth safety so as to permit the passage of dipped Southern cattle, on the certificate of a designated inspector of the State or of the United States Department of Agriculture, to Northern States during any portion of the year.

The temperature of the sun is now thought to be somewhere between 5,000 and 9,000 degrees centigrade.

HOUSEHOLD DEPARTMENT

Tomato Pickle.

Pare, chop fine and drain for two hours a half peck of fine, ripe tomatoes. Add one quart of vinegar and allow it to stand while the rest of the pickle is made ready.

To two or three heads of chopped celery, add one cup of fine chopped onion, a small red pepper, one cup of grated horse-radish, one cup of nasturtium seed, one cup of sugar, one of white mustard, two tablespoonfuls of black pepper, one of cinnamon, one of cloves, a teaspoonful of mace and one-half cupful of salt. Stir all together and put in glass cans or bottles, without cooking.

Care of Irons.

Irons should never be put away when damp or sticky, and should never be left as many thoughtless maids are apt to do, on the reservoir at the back of the range, where the escaping steam soon rusts them. When the weekly ironing is finished, scrape the irons if at all sticky with a thin knife, and rub them on a rough cloth moistened with beeswax or kerosene. Wipe thoroughly on a clean, dry cloth, and set upon a shelf or in the ironing drawer. Many good housekeepers particular about their tools draw paper bags over the irons when not in use.

Wheat Gems.

Whole wheat gems are always an acceptable addition to the autumnal breakfast. To make them, mix together two cups of whole wheat flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one tablespoonful of sugar. Beat the yolks of two eggs until lemon-colored and thick, and the whites until stiff. Add one cup of milk to the beaten yolks and then a cup of water. Stir this into the dry mixture. Add the whipped whites, stirring carefully, so as not to break the mush, and bake in hissing hot gem pans thirty minutes.

Excellent Cough Syrup.

An excellent cough syrup that needs no persuasion to get it taken is made this way: Steep three tablespoonfuls of flaxseed in enough water to make it a half cup of clear flaxseed tea when strained. Add to this a cup of loaf sugar and the juices of three lemons and cook until a clear jelly-like syrup is obtained. This is not only agreeable to the palate, but will be found most soothing to the irritated throat and lungs.

Grape Catsup.

Wash six pounds of grapes, drain on a napkin, remove from stems, place in a preserve kettle and mash with a wooden masher, so it will not be necessary to add any water for cooking. Boil soft and strain through a fine sieve. Return to preserve kettle, add one pint vinegar, three pounds of sugar, one tablespoonful each of mace and cloves. Boil slowly twenty minutes and seal hot.

Scorched Linen.

To remove scorch from linen, use the juice of an onion. Bake a large onion and squeeze out the juice through a piece of earth, a little finely shredded soap and a wineglassful of vinegar. Boil together till the soap has dissolved; leave till cold, and then apply the preparation to the scorched linen. Let it dry and then wash in the usual way.

Care of False Teeth.

Any one who has been obliged to wear a "plate" will recognize the peculiar tenderness which gradually affects the sound teeth coming in contact with it. This corrosion may be prevented, say dental authorities, if the teeth are ocasionally brushed with baking soda or baking powder, and then thoroughly rinsed.

School Lunch.

A spoonful of scrambled eggs or omelet left from breakfast and spread between slices of buttered bread or biscuit makes a school lunch sandwich that is usually found aceptable. A spoonful of creamed codfish is also not to be despised as a savory "filler" for the omnivorous sandwich.

Handy Grass Cutter.

Grass can be quickly cut on lawns by a Wisconsin man's device, consisting of a velocipede with a driving gear, which runs a cutting knife as the operator rides along, the machine also gathering up the grass in rows.

Improved Milk Pail.

An improved pail for milking cows has plates opposite sides of the rim, provided with teeth or projections to engage the clothing on the knees of the person using the pail to prevent it from slipping.

Ink on Woodwork.

When ink has been spilled on the floor or wood work, scour the spot with sand, water and ammonia. Then apply soda and water, and, if necessary, retouch the paint.

Dampness in Cellar.

If the cellar has a damp smell, and is difficult of ventilation, a few pans of charcoal set on the shelves and in the corners will make the air sweet and pure.

Comparative Use of Letters.

To those who have never considered the subject it might appear that each letter is of equal importance in the formation of words, but the relative proportions required in the English language are these: A, 85; b, 16; c, 30; d, 44; e, 120; f, 25; g, 17; h, 64; i, 80; j, 4; k, 8; l, 40; m, 30; n, 80; o, 80; p, 17; q, 5; r, 62; s, 80; t, 90; u, 34; v, 12; w, 20; x, 4; y, 20; z, 2. It is this knowledge of how frequently one letter is used compared with others that enables cryptogram readers to unravel so many mysteries.

In Vienna a man is often admitted to court socially because of his official position whose wife is never received. No matter how high he rises and how powerful he becomes, his wife is barred. Even the late empress was snubbed because she was only the daughter of a duke.

One hundred centenarians die in England yearly.

WARMTH AND BEAUTY

THE CORRECT COMBINATION IN NEW FALL WRAPS.

This Season's Capes Being Found Insufficient Protection Against Cold, Are Replaced by Coats and Cloaks—Three-Piece Suits Are Still Popular.

New York correspondence:

RIGHT good provision is made against severe weather this season by the accepted styles in outside wraps. Capes are almost always cold affairs, and this year's cutaways are even less protection than usual. But this fact was discovered very shortly after the first general rush to these dressy garments, and since then sightly and more comfortable garments have not only been put forward, but have met with many adopters. It has developed, too, that capes are not to be the only fashionable outsides this winter, as seemed more than likely to be the case when a look ahead was taken last fall. True, coats and cloaks have won indorsement rather slowly, but they are now soundly underwritten by fashion's insurers. Besides their stylishness, their coming is free from that frequent and always uncomfortable feature—the presence of a "popular" sort that nearly everybody will wear and quickly corrupt with commonness. These pictures, showing the more abundant types, are significant of the variety that exists, and as each one of the pictured garments is found in modified forms, the variety is really much greater than appears here.

With regard to the first picture it may be stated that a well-made tailor finish outer coat looks the right thing, and if it is made of waterproofed material it is the right thing rain or shine. Very handsome coats are being offered with skirts set on. Such designs allow a perfect fit, and yet give plenty of freedom below the waist line. They also add to the long-waisted look so essential in an outer coat. The fancy for tailor finish that holds in them is marked by a little deviation from absolute severity. This sketch shows a happy example. It is of a garment that fastened straight up and down the front, but the edges turned back in handsomely shaped revers, which will enhance the lines of a wearer's figure and add to the dressiness of the coat. Such coats are very handsome in any of the smooth-faced cloakings, and this one was of black waterproofed silk. The waterproofing had made no change in the surface of the silk, which showed a heavy cord and a soft gloss. With big buttons of thick cut jet heavy silk braid edge and rich satin lining, there is a garment handsome enough for any occasion, and at the same time plain enough for uses where simplicity is desirable.

Some coats whose skirts are set on are made to match a dress skirt, and thus the suggestion of coat bodice, rather than coat, is conveyed. An inner bodice, usually of silk, is worn, however, and as the materials for such coats are usually heavy they are fully warm enough for any but the most severe weather. A coat of this type is presented in the first model of the next picture, and was sketched in heavy black silk and wool crepon. Beneath the coat was a plain bodice of light blue silk, the same silk lining collar and coat skirts and facing the double lapels. The elaborate dress skirt was of the same goods, and was a series of flounces except for an overskirt effect at one side, which was outlined with three rows of heavy black silk cord.

A MUCH FAVORED SLEEVELESS SORT.

Dame Fashion this year has stamped with her approval the half length, loose sacque affair in fur that was in vogue some twelve years ago. The artist shows its later-day form. It fastens double breasted, with one row of buttons, which are either wood or pearl, or fur with wood rim. The very handsomest furs are cut in this fashion, which is a sensible one, because in a year or so it can be cut close, while the tight fitting fur can hardly last one-half as long. Marten, seal, astrakhan, and even krimmer are thus used, though long, fluffy furs make a woman look rather bulky.

Long coats like that remaining in this illustration are welcomed and consequently will find many wearers. These are made with skirts in one with the upper part of the coat and comfortably wide. Such a garment fur-lined is the acme of comfort and quiet elegance, but whether lined with fur or not it is usual to finish it with fur at the collar, perhaps extending to the waist in collar or tippet fashion, and to set fur at the wrists. The coat of this kind shown was made of dark green smooth-faced cloaking, was lined with black satin and finished with tippet, cuffs and muff of monkey fur. Nearly all collars on winter coats are high and snug about the ears.

A THREE-PIECE SUIT.

The sleeveless coat is one of these garments that are to last through late fall. It is for the days when brisk walking should keep the blood warm and when a heavy coat is only a burden. The all-over braided sort is the best liked, and it is one of these that the artist put in to-day's third picture. The costume was of dark red cloth, the jacket cut away prettily and made of black broadcloth braided all over with red. Jacket and epaulettes were lined with red. Such a coat may be chamois lined and should fit as perfectly as a riding habit. Some epaulette finish is usually at the shoulders. The all-over braiding gives a snug and becoming look, and the tailor dress is thus worn till snow flies.

THREE TYPES OF STYLISH COATS.

Another style for the woman who wishes to keep out of furs as long as possible is the ever popular three-piece costume; that is, skirt, plain or shirt waist bodice and outside jacket. A very pretty costume of this kind made of rust colored twilled serge-cheviot in heavy weight showed jacked and skirt oddly trimmed to match, the front of the skirt lapping over with three points at the foot to harmonize with points set at the edge of the jacket, as its picture here indicates. This costume was notable for the severity of the tailor sleeve, requiring, of course, a still severer sleeve to the bodice beneath. Jauntiness is the chief characteristic of most of the three-piece rigs, consequently some degree of simplicity marks them, and it is in them that the most trying sleeves make their appearance, though uncomfortably tight ones are by no means an essential feature.

Nearly Hung the Jury.

An action for debt was tried in the Wayne Circuit Court last week, and the testimony was so strongly in favor of the plaintiff that a verdict was expected on the first ballot by the jury. When the foreman examined the ballots he was astonished to find one vote in favor of the defendant. He at once called for another ballot, and that, as well as a third, fourth and fifth, showed the same result. The foreman gave expression to his annoyance at one man, apparently, holding up a verdict and asked that the dissentient juror should declare his identity. A man of German nationality acknowledged that he was the offender and expressed his determination to vote the same way for 2,000 years rather than agree to what he considered an injustice. An explanation showed that he wished a verdict for the plaintiff, but had confounded that word with the word defendant, owing to his imperfect knowledge of English. Some one suggested that the jurors should vote for the fat man or slim man, and the result was an agreement on the next ballot and a verdict for the plaintiff.—Detroit Free Press.

Getting Rid of His Knowledge.

One of those good-natured persons who are always bent on imparting information was humiliated not long since. A man, apparently a yokel, was seated on a fence, intently looking at the telegraph wires. A kindly gentleman passing said:

"Watching the wires, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"Waiting to see a message go by, eh?"

The man smiled, and said, "Yes, sir."

Then gentleman kindly told him that messages were invisible, and explained the work of the electric current to him at length. Concluding, he said: "Now you know something about it?"

"Yes, sir."

"What do you work at?"

"Me and my mate over yonder are old telegraph workers; we're just now putting up some new wire in these parts."—Saturday Evening Post.

A man's idea of chivalry is to protect a woman against every man except himself.

DOINGS OF WOMEN

A TALK WITH THE HUSBAND.

BECAUSE a man is "tired," he need not be indifferent or cross. But, alas! when he comes home, and finds everything prepared for his comfort, he too often accepts it as his due, as a matter of course, and never thinks of the worrying detail which has occupied so much time in bringing it about. He never thinks how inexpressibly "tired" his wife is of it all, though she may be too much of a woman to shirk it. Sunday, too, when there is, or should be, no "business"—when a husband should do his part toward making that day social and bright—how often does he retire to his room, that he may spend his time reading and smoking alone.

No wonder the wives of such men get discouraged. No wonder they say, as they often do, "What is life worth if my husband only values me as a housekeeper, and, worse still, one without a salary—when, after all my unrecognized services, I have the mortification of asking, every time I need money, as if I were a beggar soliciting charity?" "Tired?" Does he not talk with animation enough if a friend drops in? If you won't go out with your wives to seek agreeable company or relaxation, you are certainly bound to be social and agreeable at home—bound by your marriage promises—bound by your wife's performing her duty with regard to your comforts—bound by your little children, who see their mother's sad, weary face.

ferent colors. Almost any stitch may be used, according to one's fancy, and when stuffed and finished with cords and tassels and hung over the back of the old rocking chair, it will form no small addition to the comfort and ornament of the room.

Soon Tire of a Pretty Face.

A clever woman, provided she be not sarcastic and too fully alive to a sense of her own importance, is generally an attractive one. Men may be charmed for a time by a pretty face, but they soon tire of mere prettiness. Nor does it follow that all women of good sense and sharp intellect are necessarily plain. Bright thoughts enliven the most ordinary face until the reflection of the mind shining out in all its radiance makes one forget that the features are not pure Grecian, and leads us to believe that such a woman is in reality a great beauty.

The vivacious creature of varying moods and quaint fancies is the one to charm. A man forgets the type of beauty she may or may not possess, so interested does he become in the pleasing study of a mind that renders her face ever winning, irresistible and pleasing, because like the surface of a lake, there comes a change with every varying motion.

The attractive woman should cultivate the mind, for a grace of soul and education of spirit count far more than limpid eyes, a rosebud mouth and a dimpled chin. She should be ever teachable, for there is not one iota of lovableness in the man or woman who thinks he or she knows it all.—Boston Herald.

Sunshiny Women.

I know a man who says he fell in love with the woman who is now his wife because she was always cheerful in dull weather; that one summer they found themselves under the same roof for a number of weeks, and that the other folks would always make the discovery a long time before this girl did that it was raining and insufferably dull, says a writer in the St. Louis Republic. The damp, dull weather did not seem to dampen her cheerfulness, and that she always came down in the morning smiling and cheery. Such a woman, this man rightly concluded, was worth her weight in gold. She would always be able to get the best and happiest out of life, and she always has.

When a woman greets you at her door with a smile, and starts her chatting in a happy vein, you are at once glad that you have gone to see her, and you forget your own worries, if you have any, and join with her in discussing only the happier affairs of your life, and hers, and the lives of other people that you know.

Going to Bed.

No matter how busy one may be, it is quite possible to always find time to attend to one's toilet at night. One should not simply drop one's clothes and tumble into bed, else neither one's self nor the clothes will look attractive in the morning. Have plenty of hot water and give your face a thorough laving. The result will be as refreshing as an hour's sleep. Brush the hair; it will be glossier and thicker for the trouble, and your nerves will be soothed by the process. Then drink a glass of hot milk, weak cocoa, or even hot water, eating a biscuit or a bit of toast if you like. When the small supper is finished, you will be ready to go to sleep without any insomnia cure, and in the morning you will waken refreshed and thoroughly in good humor with yourself and the world.

Teaching Babies to Eat.

A father (whose many olive branches do such credit to early training as to render him authority in that direction) says a writer in Table Talk, declares that when a child can eat at the family table in a civilized manner, he regards it as half-educated. While this may be an extreme view, his method of gaining the important point is so practical and simple that it is worth thoughtful consideration at least. It demands that as soon as the youngest member of the household is allowed to feed itself, it should appear at one meal each day. His judgment banishes the spoon as a hindrance to neatness, and substitutes from the first the little fork and the silver "push," a late and great convenience of baby service. The food is carefully cut and placed before the tot, who soon learns to carry the dainty morsels to its rosy mouth with great ease and certainty. After a few trials, any failure in this means instant exile to the nursery. The use of the silver cup with handle is taught in the same manner, and also the utility of the napkin at meals, etc. A baby treated with this ceremony soon feels the dignity and importance of its position, and behaves accordingly.

Risks on Lives of Women.

The recent annual reports of the life insurance companies of the United States show that they are carrying over $50,000,000 in risks on the lives of women. The woman whose death would cause the heaviest loss to the insurance companies is Mrs. Leland Stanford, whose policies aggregate $1,000,000. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst is second on the list, with $400,000.

Twenty-one women carry $100,000 each and fifty $50,000. Over a thousand carry $20,000 each, and 10,000 range from $5,000 to $10,000. The percentage of women insured, as compared with men, ranges between one-half of 1 per cent. in some older companies to over 33 per cent. in the industrial insurance concerns.

Among the women whose policies amount to $50,000 or more, besides Mrs. Stanford and Mrs. Hearst, are the following: Mrs. J. S. Carr, North Carolina; Mrs. Wallace, San Francisco; Mrs. E. B. Crocker; Mrs. Eckert, Denver; Mrs. J. Sloat Fassett, Mrs. Lorillard, and Mrs. Martha Cramer, $150,000 each. Mrs. W. C. Hill, Seattle; Mrs. J. M. Hall, Mrs. Sarah Hackett Stevenson, Chicago, and Mrs. Gage T. Tarbell, Chicago, $100,000 each. Mrs. Loretta Gibson, Cincinnati, $70,000. Mrs. Edmund Lowe, Grand Rapids; Mrs. Lorra S. Standiford, Paducah, Ky.; Mrs. Caroline Sinclair, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Harwood, Atlanta; Mrs. L. Bailey, Louisville; Mrs. Mary E. Ransom, Mrs. A. H. Huestis, and Miss Julia Hills, Muskego, Wis., $50,000 each.

Business Ability of Women.

It is said that through the medium of clubs women are developing business ability, executive capacity, tolerance for the opinions and views of other people and a broad sense of charity and loyalty toward the world, which will materially strengthen their entire character. The achievement of kings and queens and princes does not make all of history by any means. The doings of the common people—the great class which keeps the world strong and true and helpful—make the noblest history, and women who realize that they are women sharing with all others in their sex the highest aims and ambitions for the good of the world have made a discovery that gives life a different color and makes a woman's possibilities rise to the noblest height. The true club woman is usually a strong and intellectual patriot, and an earnest student of political measures and laws. Indeed, women claim that the woman's club is a fine school for culture and broad mental occupation, and the true, wideawake woman is proving herself a power in the world—a power that is a permanency.

The throat is shortened by standing ruffles and the shoulders heightened by a square-cut dress.

There is no danger of the gaping frock if skirts are made in true Parisian fashion, to fasten in front.

Ornaments appear in the form of buckles and long pins, with various adornments of large flattened slabs of cut jets, oblongs and striking designs in color.

Black gowns of lovely transparent or semi-diaphanous weaves over silk or satin, and in heavier materials for day wear, will take high place in the ranks of fashion for the two seasons before us.

Faille, bengaline, victoria reps and many other lustrous corded silks are brought out in charming variety, and these are used alike for entire gowns, fancy waists, capes, coats and for stylish combination toilets and costumes.

Ribbons are now utilized in every way for dress trimming. The narrow, one-eighth to three-sixteenths of an inch wide is used for embroidery effects on velvet, laces, cloths and silks. Ribbon now is scarcely seen in the millinery combinations.

Fringes of every width and buttons in every variety of shape and size are shown with other new things in the way of dress trimmings, and among the very old-fashioned revivals is a cape in long shawl-shape, both front and back finished with a fringe about eight inches deep, with a knotted network at the top—a style in fashion when Queen Victoria was in her teens.

Stop Coughing

Every cough makes your throat more raw and irritable. Every cough congests the lining membrane of your lungs. Cease tearing your throat and lungs in this way. Put the parts at rest and give them a chance to heal. You will need some help to do this, and you will find it in

Why He Got Mad.

"I admire a first-class idiot as well as any one," remarked Dawson on his first trip down-town after a protracted illness, "but some people suit me too well."

"Why, what's the trouble?" asked the drug clerk, as he wrapped up a bottle of tonic for the invalid.

"Well, you know I haven't been out of the house for six weeks until three days ago, when I managed to crawl out on the veranda for a little fresh air," said the sick man, as he picked up the bottle, "and while I was there a neighbor came along and exclaimed: 'Why, hello, old man! Been away, haven't you? Have a good time? You're looking well! Now, say, wasn't that enough to freckle the disposition of a saint?"

Nickel as a Metal.

Nickel was first obtained as a metal in Germany about 1757, but the ore was previously known to miners, who called it Old Nick's copper, for the reason that, though it looked like copper ore, no copper could be obtained from it. Nickel when pure is silvery white. It is found in many parts of the world, but the principal mines are in Russia, Sweden, Germany, Austria, England and Scotland and in the states of Pennsylvania and Connecticut in America.—Exchange.

THE CZAR AT HOME.

The Russian Court Is the Most Magnificent in the World.

The Russian court military and ministerial dress is costly and rich in the extreme, and this richness is carried out even to the liveries of the servants, their scarlet coats being literally ablaze with gold, says a writer in the English Illustrated Magazine. It is a fact that no court in the world presents such a picturesque and magnificent appearance as does that of Russia. At any function, therefore, the show is brilliant, but more especially, perhaps, at a ball, when the rich evening toilets of the ladies, enhanced by jewels of priceless worth, add much to the already brilliant effect. The Russian dances are of a very stately description, and both the Emperor and Empress take part in them very thoroughly. The aspect of the armorial hall, where the supper is often laid, is grand beyond all description. This meal is not partaken of standing, as at the majority of the courts, but the guest sit down at the long row of tables. A procession is formed, which is headed by his Imperial Majesty, and the most distinguished lady present, and the room is then entered in the order of precedence. Of course, an immense quantity of plate is displayed. This and the china that is also used are noted throughout Europe for their richness and beauty. There is one service alone, capable of dining 500 persons, that is composed entirely of the purest silver overlaid with gold. Added to all this, the use of a variety of the choicest fruits and the rarest flowers, among which orchids figure largely, makes the scene one of the most gorgeous magnificence. During the evening a state progress through the suite of rooms is made by the imperial personages and the chief officers of the household, the guests forming up into a long avenue on either side. One special feature is that two or three of the largest halls in the palace are, on the occasion of a ball, fitted up as a huge conservatory, palms, exotics, ferns, banks of flowers and even fruit trees being transplanted thither with the most marvelous effect. Electric light is carried throughout, and glows down from myriads of globes of a variety of colors. In this veritable fairyland hundreds of seats are placed for the convenience of the guests between dances. It would be utterly impossible to mention the rare works of art to be seen in this palace, comprising paintings, statuary, collections of jewels, antiquities and curios of every description. Everything is of oriental magnificence, and to see it all the eye must weary of the continuous dazzle.

HARDSHIPS OF ARMY LIFE.

From the Press, Milroy, Ind.

One of the first to offer their services for the country in the Civil War was A. R. Sefton, of Milroy, Rush county, Ind. He made a good record. The life of every soldier is a hard one, and Mr. Sefton's case was no exception. "We were in Tennessee, penned in on all sides. Our rations were very scarce," said he, "and we had begun to go on quarter allowance, and as the rain was not enough to replenish the wells or streams, our canteens went empty. We were hurried on, and the only way to quench our thirst was to go down on our hands and knees and drink from the hoof tracks made by the horses.

Our Canteens Were Empty.

"Some of us were taken sick from the effects of this. I was laid up several weeks in a field hospital from fever. From that time I was always afflicted more or less.

"About four years ago I became much worse. Our family doctor seemed puzzled over my case, and it began to look as if there was no hope for my recovery, and that the inevitable end was near.

"Last November I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The physicians said they were an excellent medicine, but would do no good in my case. But I tried them, and am glad I did, for I became better at once. Eight boxes, taken according to directions, cured me. I used the last of the pills about a year ago, and have not been troubled with my ailments since."

Her Objections to Him.

Miss D.—Angelina, why don't you marry Lieutenant Y——?

Miss A.—First, because he has no brains, and he can't ride, dance, or play tennis. What could we do with him?

His Platform.

"And why?" she asked, "are you so strongly in favor of annexing all this conquered territory? Do you believe that we can extend our trade relations more easily if we bring all those islands under our jurisdiction than if we withdraw and let them govern themselves, or do you take your stand upon the broad grounds of humanity and the extension of civilization?"

"Maybe it is, but my husband hasn't had a single complaint to make about my cooking since he got home."

Induced.

"What! Vote for that man? Never! I would rather cut off my right arm."

"He told me to tell you that if you supported him and he got there he would see to it that your taxes were cut down $1.75 a year."

"Hurrah for him! Tell him I'll roll up a majority of at least 500 for him in my ward."

Trouble.

"Do you think the United States will want all our colonial possessions?" asked one discontented Spaniard.

"No," replied the other. "They'll leave us just enough islands to keep us in continual hot water over naval appropriations."—Washington Star.

How Much Feed to the Acre?

When wheat is selling at a low price the average farmer is apt to be somewhat more liberal about sowing seed than he would be if it were worth a high price. Whatever the price may be, it is waste to sow more seed than is necessary for the production of the largest crop the soil will mature.

The amount of seed depends somewhat on several conditions. If the land is in thorough condition, the soil moist and the weather favorable, there is good reason for believing that three pecks of wheat is sufficient to produce a good crop. If the land is in bad condition, the soil too wet or too dry, the weather unfavorable, six pecks is often not too much.

A series of experiments at the Ohio experiment station indicated five or six pecks as the best quantity of wheat to sow. It is probable that five pecks on comparatively new or fertile land is as much as can profitably be used. A greater quantity produces so many plants that they interfere with each other.—Farmer's Voice.

The scorcher evidently believes in putting his shoulder to the wheel.

One Hundred Years Ago

There was not a public library in the United States.

Almost all the furniture was imported from England.

An old copper-mine in Connecticut was used as a prison.

There was only one hat factory, and that made cocked hats.

Every gentleman wore a queue, and powdered his hair.

Crockery plates were objected to because they dulled the knives.

Virginia contained a fifth of the whole population of the country.

A man who jeered at the preacher or criticized the sermon was fined.

A gentleman bowing to a lady always scraped his foot on the ground.

Two stage-coaches bore all the travel between New York and Boston.

A day-laborer considered himself well paid with two shillings a day.

When a man had enough tea he placed his spoon across his cup to indicate that he wanted no more.

The church collection was taken in a bag fastened at the end of a pole, with a bell attached to rouse sleepy contributors.

The "American Boy" Battleship.

Every American hopes our school boys will succeed in their efforts to raise $3,000,000 to be used in building a battleship. It costs great sums to build a warship, but you can build up your health with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at small expense. This remedy is for all stomach, liver and bowel disorders.

First Fireproof Hotel.

"The first fireproof hotel erected in the United States was built in Rochester, N. Y.," said F. C. Holt, of New York. "It was built by a man named Powers, and was named after him. I have been told by those who run the hotel, but do not know how true it is, that the hotel was the first of that kind in the world. The building is absolutely indestructible by fire, not being one of those so-called fireproof structures that make the hottest kind of a fire when once they get started to burning. It is built almost entirely of stone and masonry, and cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. That was some fifteen or eighteen years ago, and I presume the same building could be erected today for considerably less than that figure. It was the wonder of the age when it was completed, but during the past few years so many fireproof hotels and other buildings have been erected that it is no longer spoken of in that line, except as the first in this country."—Denver Republican.

Farmers' Alliance.

To the Members of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union: I have made a careful investigation from the best sources of reliable information about the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co.'s Remedies, and found that they were giving good satisfaction. I therefore deem it but an act of simple justice to our members to say that I believe that the claims made by the company for their remedies will be fully realized by those who will give them a fair and reasonable trial. Yours fraternally, Jno. C. Hanley, Business Agt. F. A. & I. U.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28, 1898.

The wonderful success that has attended the introduction of "5 DROPS" is unprecedented in the history of the world. Think of it! It has cured more than one million and a quarter sufferers within the last three years. This must appeal to you! One million and a quarter people cannot all be mistaken. If suffering from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Backache, Asthma, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Earache, Croup, LaGrippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases, send 25c to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, 167 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and they will send you by return mail a trial treatment or a large bottle, 300 doses, prepaid by mail or express for $1.00. No household should be without this great remedy "5 Drops." Agents appointed in new territory.

Rocking Stones.

The most famous rocking stone in Great Britain is that near Land's End, estimated to weigh about seventy tons. This huge mass so fearfully and wonderfully balanced, was displaced in the year 1824 by Lieutenant Goldsmith and his boat's crew of nine men; but the thoughtless sailor was compelled to replace the stone at his own expense, the cost amounting to £2,000. At any rate, he made no attempt to tamper with the equilibrium of the great rocking-stone of Tandil, in the Argentine Republic. This is probably quite the largest of its kind. It weighs over 700 tons, and is so exquisitely poised that it actually rocks to and fro with the caprice of the wind, and may be made to crack a walnut as neatly as the most dainty pair of silver nut-crackers. In England several well-known rocking-stones or Logans, as they are called, are to be found in certain parts of Yorkshire, Derbyshire, and Cornwall. Scotland, Ireland and Wales are also the proud possessors of several fine rocking-stones.

Willing to Oblige.

"Sir," began the seedy-looking individual as he approached the cashier in a downtown office, "I have seen better days and if you will kindly render me a little assistance——"

"I'm very sorry," interrupted the cashier, "but I can do nothing for you to-day. Charity should begin at home, you know."

"Thank you, sir," replied the mendicant, as he extracted a memorandum book and pencil from a mysterious recess in his apparel. "What is your home address, please, and what time shall I call?"

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. Pinkham Relieved Her of All Her Troubles.

Mrs. Maude Babcock, 176 Second St., Grand Rapids, Mich., had ovarian trouble with its attendant aches and pains, now she is well. Here are her own words:

"Your Vegetable Compound has made me feel like a new person. Before I began taking it I was all run down, felt tired and sleepy most of the time, had pains in my back and side, and such terrible headaches all the time, and could not sleep well nights. I also had ovarian trouble. Through the advice of a friend I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and since taking it all troubles have gone. My monthly sickness used to be so painful, but have not had the slightest pain since taking your medicine. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too much. My husband and friends see such a change in me. I look so much better and have some color in my face."

Mrs. Pinkham invites women who are ill to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is freely offered.

The Heaviest Locomotive.

The Great Northern Railway Company is thoroughly testing a new engine of greater power than has yet run on that line. It is the heaviest engine in the kingdom, weighing 58 tons, or 90 tons with tender. It has ten wheels, four coupled wheels being 6 feet 6 inches in diameter, while the cylinders are 19 inch by 24 inch stroke. The boiler is 14 feet 8 inches long in the barrel, and is 4 feet 8 inches in diameter, giving 1,442 square feet of heating surface, and 26.75 square feet of grate area. The boiler pressure is 175 pounds, and the cylinder pressure is 131 pounds. This locomotive has made some runs on the fine road of the Great Northern between King's Cross and York, and the results obtained suggest that a number of that class will be built for next year. The performance of the Dunalastair, however, has not yet been equaled, the greatest speed got being a fraction over 73 miles per hour.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Every living thing has pains and aches sometimes, and the aches and pains of humankind have a friend in St. Jacobs Oil, which stands by in need to cure and restore.

Bats in a Church.

A colony of bats have located themselves in the roof of the parish church at Swineshead, Lincolnshire. During the summer they have increased so rapidly that, becoming a nuisance, steps have been taken to extirpate them. A net and a lantern were used, and during a single night 111 were caught, and on a second occasion fifty-seven more.

How to Get Strong

A system which has become run down by the trying weather of the past summer is not in a condition to meet the severe winter of this climate and will easily fall a prey to disease unless a proper tonic is used.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best medicine in the world for building up and strengthening an enervated system.

Do not confuse these pills with ordinary purgative pills. They do NOT act on the bowels, thereby further weakening the body. They build up the blood and strengthen the nerves.

Major A. C. Bishop, of 715 Third Ave., Detroit, Mich., is a well-known civil engineer. He says: "When I had my last spell of sickness and came out of the hospital I was a sorry sight. I could not regain my strength, and could not walk over a block for several weeks. I noticed some articles in the newspapers regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which convinced me that they were worth trying and I bought two boxes. I did not take them for my complexion but for strength. After using them I felt better, and know they did me worlds of good. I am pleased to recommend them to invalids who need a tonic or to build up a shattered constitution."—Detroit Free Press.

A BOLD BAD MAN.

A Saucy Tramp Attempts to Commit Burglary.

(Goshen Daily Times.)

At supper time last evening a knock was heard on the front door at the Messick boarding house. Mrs. H. V. Mercer answered and was confronted by a tramp who demanded something to eat. Mrs. Mercer upbraided the fellow for his boldness in going to the front door with such a request. The fellow grew insolent. His demand was refused, and as he became abusive the door was slammed in his face. A few minutes later a young lady who boards at the Messick house saw a man, who, from the description, was the same fellow that demanded food, attempting to get into a back window in the Lessick residence. He had raised the window and was in the act of drawing his body up into the house, when the young lady called to a passerby to stop the burglar. The fellow dropped to the ground and disappeared over the back fence.

Vegetable Freaks.

[Pierceton Record]

The Auburn Courier speaks of a freak in the pumpkin line as follows:

The strangest vegetable freak we have seen in this strangest of seasons, was shown us last evening by E. E. Draggoo. It was the seeds and sprouts of a sweet pumpkin that had sprouted and grown several inches before the pumpkin was cut open. They look weak and white but are the real thing.

Now, when it comes to pumpkins, we propose to let the Aubvrn people hear from the old town. We have been in the pumpkin producing business on a small scale this season and have credited the Central house people with marketing the largest pie pumpkins grown this year. One of these pumpkins was given to Clan Eddy for family use during the winter. Right here is where the "vegetable freak," as the Auburn man puts it, was discovered. We have it on theitestimony of Mr. Eddy, and being a drayman he is a truthful man, that this pumpkin was too large to take into his cellar. It was necessary to cut it in sections. When the pumpkin was cut open, instead of finding sprouted seeds, as was the case in Aubrun, Mr. Eddy avers that he found six large and juicy pumpkin pies, the kind that mother used to make, and, like the sprouts found in the Auburn pumpkin, these pumpkin pies were "the real thing."

Letter from a Presiding Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE WEST.

Presiding Elder Robertson Writes Encouragingly of the Prospects of the Northwest. Compares Minnesota With the Dakotas.

Doubt was expressed by some of the earliest colonial fathers whether this country would ever be settled west of what is now a suburb of Boston.

On the Chicago & North-Western Railway train that bore me to South Dakota a few days ago a mother and children looked eagerly from the car window on nearing Canby to see if they could discover the new home the husband and father had selected for them Two evenings before, seventy-five people got off at Canby to populate the prairies round about that one town. The country from Canby east to Marshall shows a remarkable advance in the few years that I have known these parts.

A recent Bostonese accession to cultured St. Paul society asked several if he had pretty nearly reached the frontier. Whether this question is a projection of the forefathers above mentioned or prompted by St. Paul society, I do not know, but I am confident the time is not far distant when there will be no frontier in the United States.

To an inhabitant of Norway and Germany, with a map of this country before him, a distance of a few hundred miles east or west counts for naught. He sees none of our imaginary frontiers. He seeks a home where land is cheap and asserts dominion over the wild region.

In the lifetime of the original settlers that community is classified with the established order and the "pioneers" are become "old settlers." And what about the land? The "pioneer" planted his shanty on the virgin soil and staked out his "claim." In the process of getting his living, with small additional money to the government, the "claim" becomes his "farm." As for advance in value, price some of the farms in southeastern Minnesota that are still in possession of the men who first settled upon them.

The history of eastern Minnesota is being repeated in western Minnesota and beyond. Canby is almost as far from Winona as Winona is from Chicago. The train that put off the mother and children at Canby carried me onward for a journey of more than a hundred miles beyond into South Dakota. Along the journey communities gave evidence of thrift and contentment that assure the future of this wide region which surprises me beyond measure with its already accumulated wealth and the unbounded confidence of the people. I write this mindful of the doubtful tales which others than I have been led to consider as the only incidents to an otherwise dreary monotony. What I have just seen makes me a convert to the faith of the people, who are already supplanting the pioneer shed and shanty with substantial barns and comfortable homes.

Dr. Chauncy Hobart, yet living in Red Wing, was pastor of the little frame Methodist church, located in what is now the heart of the great business district of Chicago. He was with the pioneers in southeastern Minnesota. I have been in Chicago upon the site of that early church and felt the throbbings of life within that mighty city whose vast piles that could gracefully wear the age of centuries were reached within the mature years of one man. I have traveled over Minnesota where that same man saw civilization's beginning.

Wearied with the march he turns aside and succeeding generations leave ancestral homes and push on to repeat the history of what has been. In the new Methodist church in Conde, costing $1,300 and dedicated with all bills paid, I was priviledged to preach. The people I met, the prosperity they enjoy, thetr intelligence and earnestness make it plain that this was no longer frontier.

Said Gladstone "America is another name for opportunity." In this I concur, but realize anew that the door of opportunity opens westward.

E. P. ROBERTSON.

A Center Shot

Geo. Boland is a pretty good shot for a new hand. He made a center shot at the office lounge in the Farmers Bank yesterday. It happened like this He was handling a new make of Winchester the working of which he did not fully understand, when he managed to discharge the weapons. It was loaded with buckshot, and happened to be pointed in such a way that the whole charge tore a hole through the lounge, then glanced into a chair and then flew out into the room. He and Albert Robbins were both in the bank office, and it is needless to say both were scared.

How It's Done

Harry Askew of the Avilla News, recently visited the stock yards at that place and heard them load a car of hogs. Harry says it's a great musical treat and is done in this way: A mixture of soprano, mezzo and basso voices, all swinging the baton and united in the grand chorus of "Suboy-his-his-hi-hi;yi-ho-su! Sich-get-up-ha-ho-whoop, swoy!!-swoy!!-he-rah-roh-h oo-ho-glang-glong-glung, whoa, hoa!", And that does it; every pig is in,

Our County Election.

We gave nearly a correct report yesterday, but we are always careful to keep within safe bounds. As to auditor, we said Seiler would have about 30 majority. This was based on a report that Fairfield had given him a majority of 84. Today we saw the Fairfield trustee, Mr. Huet, who says Fairfield gave Seiler 108 majority. If no other error has been made this will give Seiler a majority of about 50.

Robinson's majority in DeKalb will be about 300, but may be a little higher on official count.

All the 37 members of the returning board are in the court room, which presents a busy scene and many familiar faces from both parties and all over the county. They may be till midnight or later before all are done. And all must stay till the last precinct is counted and all the papers signed by all the members of the returning board.

The Pioneer Court.

The Milford mail revives an old story that is too good to be forgotten.

In an early day in the settlement of northern Indiana, in an anjoining county, there was an eccentric and hotheaded attorney—who shall be nameless—practicing law. He had a case of some importance before a country justice—who, also, shall be nameless. The attorney saw that the justice was prejudiced against his side of the case, and did not care what he said. In his argument of the case he laid down a principle of law that he thought ought to be conclusive. The justice interrupted him with: "Mr. ———, if you can make me sensible," (intending to finish with) "that this is the law," when the old lawyer broke in with—"Make you sensible? I make you sensible; God Almighty tried to do that and failed!" It is needless to day that he lost the case.

Physic, Grammar and Spellin'.

In an exhaustive scientific(?) article on the efforts Auburn is making to suppress sickness, the Garrett Clipper writes in this way; and without any further comment than that anti-toxine is worth many times its weight in gold, we give the extract "verbatim, et literatim et spellatim."

Dr. Swarts, one of the board of health members, wants the town disinfected with anti-toxin. It would have about as much effect now as a hand-full of salt. A can of carbolic acid and water on the stove would serve double the purpose. A vessel in each room with a strong solution of coperas water would be much more perferable. However, it is the opinion of the Clipper that a disinfectant should produce the most offensive oder that could possibly be obtained. Certainly anything of a pleasant nature would have to be extremely poisonious to destroy the microbe of a disease and this would be a damage to the system of the inmates.

What Will The Harvest Be?

(St. Joe News.)

Mahlon Baker invested in a ten pound sack of Pratt's Stock Food last week, and took it home and put it in the barn. expecting to feed it to his cow occasionally. It so happened that the cow got into the spare room and ate up the whole sack full of feed at one meal, and now Mahlon is expecthat the animal will give choice creamery butter in pound rolls.

Feeding Our Enemies.

When before did any nation ever obey the command, "If thine enemy is hungered, feed him," as the American nation has done in this present year of grace 1898?—Hartfort Courant.

Congressman Botkin's Statement

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 1, 1898.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

MY DEAR DOCTOR:—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines:

Hon. J. D. BOTKIN,
Congressman-at-Large from Kansas.

Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I have been afflicted, more or less, for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation; a residence in Washington has increased these troubles.

A few bottles of your medicines have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of their use will effect a permanent cure.

Pe-ru-na is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.

J. D. BOTKIN.

A Foolish Girl.

We never believed it wise for a girl to climb a tree, and an exchange shows the correctness of our view, in this item:

Joseph Girl, of Wakarusa, aged about 60 years, committed suicide on Saturday morning. He climbed a ladder in the barn, fastened the rope to it, and then around his neck, and jumped off. He had separated from his wife some time ago, and becoming despondent, ended his trouble in this way.

Hoarseness Sore Throat

Hoarseness, sore throat and constant coughing indicate that the bronchial tubes are suffering from a bad cold, which may develop into pleurisy or inflammation of the lungs. Do not waste health and strength by waiting, but use Dr. John W. Bull's Cough Syrup at once. This wonderful remedy cures all throat and lung affections in an astonishingly short time.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

Cures Hoarseness and Sore Throat. Doses are small and pleasant to take. Doctors recommend it. Price 25 cts. At all druggists.

Friday's Daily.

—Admiral Dewey has been a widower about twenty years.

—The new school house at Spencerville is nearly completed, says the St. Joe News.

—Indiana has only four democrats elected to congress, instead of six as at first belived. This is a gain of two.

—Mrs. Emerick and her son A. J. Emerick were down from Fairfield today They had a pretty stormy and muddy drive.

—Workmen are repairing the pipe on North Main-st. It had bursted by the pressure of the water, owing probably to some defect, —Waterloo Press says we have twenty-five cases of diptheria in Auburn. Verily, we must go away from home to get the news. The truth in this case is bad enough.

—In their efforts to dynamite one of the new water works wells at Fort Wayne yesterday, the explosion cracked the walls of the pumping station building doing considerable injury. The well was only about twenty feet from the building.

—The jail at Goshen is now without an inmate, for the first time in fifteen years. They ought to have our sheriff, and the jail would be liable to be empty almost any time. But we are going to have a new sheriff, a man who "hath a way" of attending to business.

—St. Joe News:—Five cases of beer were put off at St. Joe on Monday consigned to Jennie Williams. Now will some one please step up to the captain's desk and inform us who Jennie Williams is and what she is going to do with so much beer.

This is the first "off year" since 1874 that the election sustained the administration. Two years later, the democrats carried the country by a half a million on the popular vote. It will probably be that way in 1900. The tidal wave was delayed this year, by the war.

—W. G. Morr, of Concord township, was married last evening at 8:30, to Miss Mary E. Provines, of Jackson township. The ceremony was by Rev. T. M. Guild at the M. E. Parsonage in Auburn. The bride is a daughter of James Provines, and both young people are worthy of the many good wishes that go with them in their married life,

—The Nappanee Advance in speaking of the great onion crops raised near that place adds: The B. & O. painters recently at work on the depot and othbuildings of the railway company, paid a neat compliment to one of Nappanee's growing industries. After the large printed name of the station, instead of a period they have executed a neatly painted onion.

—Capt. Lahnum says that private Elliot is getting along all right, and when he comes home, that will be the last man of Co. K, and all will be at home and alive. This is a piece of good fortune that very few companies had. Nearly all others lost one or more men. But by the wise care of Company K's officers and men, we are ortunate in having them safe home.

—Auditor-elect, Seiler, came down from Ashley yesterday, to look over the field and see how his vote stood. His majority was a little greater than he had counted on, but it suited him just as well. He went home today on the noon train. He takes the office when his commission comes. We predict that Mr. Seiler will be a model officer and serve the people so well that more of them will wish they had voted for him. He and Mrs. Seiler will both be welcome additions to Auburn society. We look to see Auburn ladies welcome her, for she is a worthy and intelligent woman. She will be remembered by many as Miss Mino Andrews, one of the most successful of the lady teachers in our schools some years ago.

Saturday's Daily.

—Laporte county went democratic by 250 to 750.

—Lagrange Co. gave a republican majority of 774.

—For Fertilizers, see Culbertson & Boland, Auburn, Ind. 31—tf

—St. Joe county went republican by about 1200 and Noble by 200 to 300.

—Reports show that we had in the field last summer 275 000 men, of which force 215,000 were volunteers.

It appears that the fusion state ticket in Nebraska, is elected after all, though first reports gave it to the republicans.

—In South Dakota, the fusion candidate for governor was elected by a small plurality. The republicans got the other state officers.

—C. C. Kryder and his son came to town this afternoon and had the bad luck to break the wagon tongue. It caused a delay of several hours for repairs.

—Soothing, healing, cleansing, De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is the implacable enemy of sores, burns and wounds. It never fails to cure Piles. You may rely upon it. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—Almost every hour we hear bitter complaints from democrats, that men they had honored worked against the ticket. Let us hope that the men now newly elected will take warning and never do the like.

—Many a household is saddered by death because of the failure to keep on hand a safe and absolutely certain cure for croup such as One Minute Cough Cure. See that your little ones are protected against emergency. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—McKinley will probably call an extra session of congress in March. The regular session ends March 4. and as the senate stands at present, the republicans are in the minority. But after March 4, they will have a majority in both houses, and they want to pass some gold measures.

—Dr. Parker was defeated in his race for treasurer of Noble county, and has bought back his old paper, the Kendallville News, and will once more settle down in the newspaper business. He will discontinue the daily edition known as the "Press" and confine himself to the weekly. We wish the Doctor abundant success.

—Steuben county gave a republican majority on the state ticket of 1044. Stemen for congress got only 914, showing that Robinson ran ahead of his ticket. Hartman for judge got a majority of 650, showing that Powers ran ahead. It appears that each county preferred its own man. The republican candidate for auditor got only 306 majority.

NEW JUDGE INSTALLED

At 10 a. m. Saturday the court house bell rang, and attorneys and a number of spectators gathered in the court room to witness the induction into office, of the new Judge Hon. Ezra D. Hartman. Judge Roby had already gotten all the affairs of the court into proper shape for turning over, and after a brief delay, Clerk Long called Mr. Hartman to the desk and without formality administered the oath of office. The new Judge walked at once to the judge's desk and took his seat. He addressed the members of the bar briefly, as to the pleasant relations that had always existed between them and himself and hoped these relations would continue. He spoke of the high regard he had always had for the profession of the law and spoke of his early school days in Auburn, when he walked from his country home to school in Auburn, and how he one day came into court when a well-fought case was being tried and heard such men as Judge Morris, Judge Ninde, the late David Colerick, Andrew Ellison and Judge Jenkinson. He went home hurriedly that evening and told his father, how he had decided to become a lawyer, even though difficulties lay in the way. His father made no objection, but showed that he also realized there was hard work ahead. Since that day he has followed his early ambition, and today felt grateful to the people for the confidence they had reposed in him. He would do his best not to disappoint them, but to show himself worthy of this confidence. He spoke earnestly to the attorneys and hoped to have their confidence and assistance. He felt that in the work to come, all could not be suited for some must be disappointed. But he hoped his part would be so impartially done, that no just couse of complaint would arise. He realized the difficulties as well as the high responsibilities of the office, and added "Gentlemen, the court is now ready for business".

Here P. V. Hoffman at once arose and offered the following RESOLUTION.

RESOLVED, That the members of the DeKalb Bar, hereby extend to Hon. Frank S. Roby late Judge of the Thirty-Fifth Judicial Circuit of Indiana, their thanks for the uniform courtesy shown them by said Judge during his administration of his office, and the commend him for the faithful, honest and fearless manner in which he has discharged the duties of his office and ask that this resolution be spread upon the records of this court.

This resolution received several seconds and was then put by Judge Hartman and unanimously adopted. Then the regular work began, the first case being called up by James H. Rose. There was some work of odds and ends called up during rest of the day and this term court ended. It begins Monday at Angola.

NOTICE OF HEARING OF DITCH PETITION

In the matter of the petition of John Yarde, et al, notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the Auditor of DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and viewers have been appointed who have viewed and reported said view which is on file in my office. The hearing of said petition upon its merits will be on Thursday the 8th day of December 1898, the same being the 4th day of their December Term, 1898.

The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Beginning at a point five hundred forty-eight (548) feet north and twenty (20) feet east of the quarter sec ion corner on the west line of section thirty-four (34) in township thirty-four (34) north of range twelve [12] east in DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and ending in the George W. Lackey ditch No. 478, at a point eleven hundred (1100) feet west and four hundred sixty (460) feet north of the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of section number three (3) in township thirty-three (33) north of range twelve [12] east in said county and state.

This proposed work will affect the lands of the following persons:

The Weather Calendar

The COURIER has received the Cardui Weather Chart and Calendar for 1899 from The Chattanooga Medicine Co., manufacturers of McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught. This is one of the best Calendars published. It consists of twelve sheets of paper, 13x20 inches in size, all fastened together with a brass loop hanger. Each sheet contains the calendar for one month in large figures that can be read across any room. Under the figures patent weather signals indicating Prof. DeVoe's Weather Forecasts for every day in the year appear. The moon's changes and legal holidays are also shown. The calendar is valuable in any home. We understand a few copies of it can be secured by sending to one cent postage stamps to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Common Cold

and common carelessness can make a combination strong enough to defy all the healing skill of the physician. Common carelessness lets the cold root and grow. Common carelessness says, between paroxysms of coughing, "It will be all right in a day or two," and the common end is confirmed lung trouble, perhaps consumption. The common-sense treatment of a common cold is a prompt dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is the most efficient and reliable cure for colds and coughs, and is constantly prescribed by physicians.

S. HAYNES, M. D., Saranac, N. Y., says:—
"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my practice since 1853, and have always found it reliable for the cure of colds, coughs, and all lung diseases."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

is now put up in half-size bottles, for half price—50 cents.

Our Soldiers.

European nations depend on regular soldiers, and were surprised at the way our armies on both sides during the rebellion, were handled, composed as they were, almost altogether of volunteers. During the recent war with Spain, the leading European nations sent each an officer to go with our armies and see their work. Here is what they said about our soldiers.

In assembling regiments of the regular army at the beginning of the war with Spain, the character of the enlisted men arrested attention. A distinguished foreign officer, visiting the Fifth army corps at Tampa, remarked: 'Every man looked fit to command.' Their conduct on the transports, on the march and in the battles at El Caney, San Juan, and Santiago, gave abundant evidence that his good opinion was well placed. Officers and men by their valorous deeds, and gallant conduct met the high expectation of the country.

LINES

Presented by Miss Edna Bacon, of Bad Axe Mich, to Miss Nellie Baxter. In memory of her father Mr. James B Baxter who died Nov. 7 1898.

"FAREWELL."

The angels came and took him
Away to the land of the blest,
Where there is no sin or sorrow
With Jesus he is at rest.

He left us in the prime of life,
And crossed the dark blue sea
Where no storm e'er breaks the silence,
And so shall it ever be.

And he is in a happy land,
Over on the other shore,
There to meet his loved ones
Who have passed on before.

He leaves us here to mourn his lose
And seek the way aright
And claim the crown, and be with him,
In everlasting light

MRS. MARY J. BERRY.

Mrs. Mary J. Berry whose burial took place here today is the last of a well known Auburn family. She and her husband, E. Berry had resided here for many years, occupying their comfortable home on South Jackson-st, now the residence by R. W. Cobb. A few years ago they thought they would try farm life, and purchased a farm south of town, opposite the then farm home of C. P. Houser, and south of the farm of Mr. Abel. After Mr. Berry's death, Mrs. Berry moved for a time to the old Cochran farm west of town, which they had bought, but later, she moved back onto the farm south of town. Will Rose, wto had been reared by Mr. and Mrs. Berry had lived with her a part of the time, but his way of life did not suit her and they had not got along well. A few weeks ago, she made up her mind to go back for a winter's visit at the old Ohio home neighborhood at Millerstown and other parts of Champaign county. She had been there but a short time when she was taken sick. She died on Wednesday of this week, Nov. 16, her age being 71 years, 8 month and 13 day. The interment was in Woodlawn, the services being at her farm home.

Your'e Way Off, Bro. B.

The Goshen Times, is a little further out of the way in one part, and nearer the truth in another, than any of the other papers. It says, speaking of diphtheria:

Auburn, Indiana, has four cases and possibly more, and the newspapers of that city have adopted the reprehensible policy of trying to keep it quiet.

We wish to make two corrections Auburn had nine cases about half of which were fatal. As to the newspapers we call attention to the fact, that both the Auburn papers, far from "adopting the reprehensible policy of trying to keep it quiet," gave the name of each and every case of diphtheria, as files of both papers will show. All our exchanger would have been welcome to copy the correct list of all those cases, and they had it in their reach to do so. Should we ever be visited by the scourge again, we wish all our brethren of the press would watch the columns of the Auburn papers, and copy each and every case. We are always willing the truth shall be known, and we guarantee, they will get all the truth.

Heroism on the Lake.

Chicago Record.

The work of the life-saving crew and the tugboat men who went boldly out on the angry waters of Lake Michigan the other day to save the crew of a ship-wrecked steamer calls for recognition. The spirit which leads men to risk their lives in obedience to duty is the spirit of the hero. Courage in the face of an enemy's flying bullets is a fine thing, but it is no finer than the courage which takes men into peril for the humane purpose of saving life. The men who trusted themselves and their small craft to the perils of the storm-cossed lake last week ran great risks, and they took them fully aware of their danger.

So far as concerns the life-saving crew, it is but fair to say the performance was only what past experience has taught Chicago to expect of the gallant little band which time and again has shown itself so ready to answer the call of duty. Such men are a credit and an honor to the service io which they belong.

Change Officers

Several new officers are reported today. The new coroner, Dr. Campbell, got his commission, was sworn in, and at once, had to hold an inquest on the late E. A. Watson.

The sheriff, Mr. Hathaway, has also been inducted into office. His deputy is his wife's brother. Miss Blanche Shilling will do the office work.

Judge Hartman's commission has come, and he will be sworn in tomorrow forenoon.

Surveyor Krontz, is already working under a nice new commission.

Mr. Seiler is here but his commission has not come.

Sclagel Again.

The latest news from Schlagel, the Busco man, who claimed he had been robbed of money belonging to the Gandy Bank, comes from the Chicago Record in a dispatch from Wabash. It says:

"William Sclagel of Gandy' bank at Churubusco, who last week to Columbia City to get $2,200 for the bank and returned with $1,000, alleging he had started home with two men who had drugged him, today made a confession saying that he had buried the remainder of the money."

E. A. Watson's Death.

Our people were greatly suprised and shocked at the report that became current last evening about 4 o'clock, that E. A. Watson had died suddenly as it was not known that he was ill. It appears that he had fallen in a fit, or for some such trouble and when found, was near one of the sheds of the Greenler Co and had just died. Froth was in his mouth, as is seen in cases of apoplexy, but we presume the exact nature of the trouble will never be known. Mr. Watson was a man of much more than ordinary ability and intelligence, a kind man in his family and well liked by all who knew him. His family have the sincere sympathy of all our people. The funeral will be at the home on South Main-st, at 2 p. m. tomorrow under the auspices of the K. P. of which he was a member. The interment will be in Woodlawn.

Cruelty to Animals.

[Columbia City Post]

The grand jury has indicted the Rev. C. U. Wade, presiding elder of the Muncie district of the M. E. church and at one time pastor of the Wabash and Bluffton churches, for cruelty to his horse. September 7, the Rev. Wade's horse kicked in the dashboard. It is alleged that he plaited the horse's tail, tied it to its head, then beat it until it fell exhausted, after whirling about in a circle to escape the cruel lash. K. C. Thompson, deputy county recorder, W. R. Snyder, superintendent of the city schools and others were witnesses. Wade was arrested, and James Meeks, a deacon, furnished $100 bond.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, October term, 1898, Luella Elden, John W. Williams and Jane Lloyd, impleaded with another, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said Court, by Daniel H. Tomlinson and Charles W. Tomlinson on Partition and that the same will be heard and determined on the 27th day of December 1898, being the 8th juridical day of the next term of said Court, which commences December 19, 1898.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court, this first day of November 1898.

MICHAEL F. LONG, Clerk.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Many of your friends, or people whom you know of have contracted consumption, pneumonia or other fatal diseases by neglect of a simple cold or cough. Foley's Honey and Tar, a safe, sure and pleasant cough medicine, would have saved them. It is guaranteed.

The Richland Meeting.

At a meeting of the Good Citizen's League of Richland township, held last night at Corunna, it was announced that the committee appointed to secure signatures to remonstrance against granting saloon license, had obtained the requisite majority, and about sixty names in excess of the legal requirement. This probably means no saloon in that township for some time to come. There has been none there since the fire of several months ago.

The meeting was large and manifested much enthusiasm. The Hoosier Quartet gave eight or ten of their stirring selections and responded to several encores.

Lafayette's Land

(The Indianian.)

We have been asked the question where the land voted to Lafayette by Congress in 1824 was located. It was located in West Florida, being township 1 north, range 1 east, and contained 23,028.50 acres. The patent was delivered to General Lafayette himself by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Women Should Know It

Many women sufferer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for twenty-four hours, are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symtoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swemp-Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drugstore for fifty cents or one dollar.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention Auburn COURIER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS OF THE WORLD.

News of Crimes and Criminals, Accidents, Fires, Etc., from North, South, East and West, Sandwiched with Minor Affairs.

Death in a Fog.

While a gang of twenty track hands were at work upon the Pennsylvania Railway's line over the Hackensack, near Jersey City, they were run down by a local passenger train. Eleven of the workingmen were killed outright and six seriously injured. The train was a local from Milltown to Jersey City. The fog delayed the train and Engineer John Van Ostrand was endeavoring to make up time. His train was running at a high rate of speed, he believing there was nothing to obstruct a quick run to Jersey city. The first he knew his train had run into the men was when the engine jarred. Then the cries of the men fell on his ears and as soon as possible he brought his train to a stop.

Fatal Attempt at Escape.

Frank O'Neil and George Atkinson, convicts from Cleveland, Ohio, highway robbers, attempted to shoot their way out of the Columbus Penitentiary. Guard Lanterbach attempted to stop them and was shot and killed. Guard Woods then fired upon the prisoners without effect. He then attacked them with a club, crushed the skull of one and broke the shoulder of the other. Other convicts were found to have guns. The alarm was sounded and all the guards rushed to the walls with carbines. but the subduing of Atkinson and O'Neil ended the affair. How the convicts got the guns is a mystery.

Wrecked the Bank.

A telegram has been received by Mr. Dawes, the Comptroller of the Currency, from the receiver in charge of the First National Bank at Emporia, Kan., saying that so far his investigation has developed irregularities in the reserve agent's accounts amounting to $50,000; $15,000 in cash accounts, and that the bank has invested in doubtful enterprises controlled by President Cross approximating $150,000. Wednesday afternoon the Comptroller ordered the bank to close its doors, and within one hour after the order was received, President Cross had shot and killed himself at his country home near Emporia.

Raise Spanish Warships.

Admiral Dewey informed the Navy Department that he has contracted with a Hong Kong firm of wreckers to raise three of the Spanish war vessels sunk in the battle of Manila last May. The cost of raising the ships and putting them in thorough repair will be $500,000. The vessels which will be raised are gunboats of the large type. They are the sister ships, Isla de Cuba and Isla de Luzon, and the Don Juan de Austria.

Dreyfus Will Be Ordered to Paris.

A special from Paris says: In legal circles here the belief is expressed that the Court of Cassation will shortly order Dreyfus to France from his prison on Devil's Island, off of the coast of French Guiana, on the ground that it is impossible to carry on the examination of the prisoner by cable in view of the cost of such a proceeding, as well as in view of the necessary delay.

Three Men Missing.

Last week three hunters from Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived at Kouts, Ind., for a hunt on the Kankakee River. Next morning they started out to spend the day and since then no trace of them has been found, though half of the population of the village has been out hunting for them. It is thought the men were drowned.

Canadian Cruiser Seizes American Nets.

Sandusky (O.) special: The Canadian cruiser Petrel, which is patroling the fishing grounds in Lake Erie waters in this vicinty, has seized a lot of gill nets belonging to American fishermen and which it is claimed were set in Canadian waters.

Foot Ball Boycotted.

President Brown of the Northern Indiana Normal School, has forbidden the students from playing foot ball under penalty of expulsion, owing to a severe accident which befell a student in the Valparaiso-Crown Point contest.

Will Yield Under Protest.

All the dispatches to London papers, from Paris, express the belief that the Spanish Commissioners will finally yield, though under protest, to the American demands.

Startling Story.

Paris special: La Patrie says: "Lord Chamberlain has returned from America with a draft of a treaty with the United States concealed in his pockets."

Ordered to San Juan.

The auxilliary cruiser Panther, now in reserve at League Island Navy Yard, has been ordered to San Juan to serve as a station ship in that harbor.

Big Blaze at Brooklyn.

Fire in the Greenpoint district of Brooklyn, New York, caused a loss of $100,000. The largest loss is sustained by Joseph Schriver & Co., furniture dealers, $60,000. The balance of the loss was caused by the destruction of a number of smaller business places and dwellings.

Another Battle at Formosa.

Advices from the orient state that another battle has been fought at Formosa. Four hundred and fifty rebels were killed and a large number wounded. Japanese losses are also heavy.

Killed Before His Mother's Eyes.

At Mauch Chunk, Pa., when about to start on a rabbit hunt, Harry Weaver, aged 20, stopped to talk to his mother through a window of his home. His gun was accidentally discharged, and the young man fell dead, the left side of his head being blown away.

Killed by a Meteor.

A report from Perry, O. T., says that there was a brilliant as well as fatal shower of meteors near that place, causing much consternation among the people. Two children named Henderson are reported as having been killed by a large meteor.

OCTOBER A GOOD MONTH.

Volume of Trade Was the Largest Ever Known in That Month.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The country has safely passed the trial of off-year elections. Before this election everything except political uncertainties favored business enlargement. The volume of trade has been the greatest ever known in October, and the greatest ever known in any month except December, 1892. The record on November thus far shows clearings 10.4 per cent larger than last year and 9.3 per cent larger than in 1892. The railroad earnings in October have been 5.2 per cent larger than last year and 9 per cent larger than in 1892. Foreign trade shows an increase of 20 per cent in October in exports, while imports showed a gain of only 22 per cent in October, and credits against foreign bankers were piling up at an inconvenient rate. Failures for the week were 211 in the United States, against 291 last year, and 26 in Canada, against 24 last year."

BANDITS MAKE THEIR ESCAPE.

Omaha Thugs Elude Their Pursuers After an All Night's Chase.

One of the most extraordinary man hunts ever engaged in by Nebraska officers ended in the escape of two daring criminals that have bothered Omaha police for many years. This is the sequel of the battle between four Omaha detectives and two highwaymen, George Vanhaller and Royal Geppner, in the suburbs of Omaha. After the bandits stood off the detectives with an exchange of more than 100 shots the men mounted their horses and escaped to the country. Twice they compelled farmers to change horses with them. All night they were chased by over 100 men from Omaha and surrounding towns, who had orders to shoot them on sight. By a detour of fifty miles made before daylight the bandits went completely around the city to the river, robbed a boatman of his skiff and made good their escape down the Missouri.

WOMAN OWNS A TOWN.

Shrewd Effort of Whites at David, I. T., to Outwit the Law.

Mrs. Andrew Jackson Blackwell, a half-blood Cherokee woman and the wife of Col. A. J. Blackwell, formerly of Joplin, Mo., has just come into possession of the whole town of David, Cherokee Nation, I. T. The 1,000 white inhabitants of their own will have given to her all of their property, which she will hold under her name until the country is allotted and the whites are allowed to hold property in the Indian Territory in their own name. A decision of Judge Springer of the northern judicial district declared the people of David to be intruders and ordered their houses to be confiscated. To avoid losing their homes and running the risk of having them taken by the Indians, the property was transferred to Mrs. Blackwell, who, being an Indian, has a right to own property in the territory.

VICTIM OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Seven-Year-Old Boy Dies in Agony from Rabies.

Thomas Moore, 7 years old, son of E. J. Moore, a member of Company I, Second regiment Missouri volunteers, died at Sedalia, Mo., of hydrophobia. The lad was bitten two weeks before by a dog which was supposed to be suffering with rabies. On the day previous to his death the boy commenced to bark like a dog and was attacked with frequent convulsions. He tried to bite his attendants and seemed possessed of superhuman strength. His death was a most agonizing one.

Opinions of a Cabinet Officer.

There continues to be a good deal of talk in Washington as to the possibility of an extra session next spring, but those members of the administration who have studied the question seem to be generally opposed to it. One cabinet officer said: "Had the elections resulted differently we would have been obliged to get through as much of the war legislation as possible during the present session, but, as it is, we can scarcely do more than prepare the way for future work. In all probability the President will suggest the creation of separate commissions, one for Cuba, one for Porto Rico and another for the Philippines. The settlement of the Cuban question after the evacuation by the Spanish will necessarily require deep study and many personal visits to the island. According to the pledge made by Congress we shall be bound to create a new government for Cuba. The island has been under the blight of Spanish rule since its discovery, and in attempting to graft our republican ideas upon a people who have been accustomed to the worst monarchical rule in the world, there will arise problems which it will take time to solve. If a commission is sent to the Philippines, it will take them all of two months to get there after they are appointed. If they stay a month, take a month to come back, and spend another month formulating their report, nearly half a year will be consumed. This being the case, it does not seem possible for Congress to begin wise legislation this spring; and the extra session, if one is called, would probably not be until the fall or the late summer.

Death in a Collision.

The Grand Trunk Railway express from Montreal for Toronto collided with a freight train near Murray Hill at 8:30 o'clock the other morning. Eight passengers were killed or fatally injured, and a score were severely wounded. The engineer and fireman of the express, the fireman of the freight train, name not known, and two passengers, names unknown, are dead. Three passengers, names unknown, were fatally injured. Twenty passengers, most of them being in the Pullman cars, were more or less seriously hurt. The accident occurred at a place called the Diamond Crossing, about two miles from Trenton. The express, which was due at Trenton at 3:35 a. m., ran into an open switch and dashed into the freight train.

Ship Libeled for $2,500,000.

The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, owners of the steamship La Bourgogne, which was sunk with such appalling loss of life off the Newfoundland Grand Banks July 4 last, has seized the steamship Cromartyshire at Philadelphia, as being responsible for the horror. The action was taken by suit in the United States Court, and the libel is fixed at $2,500,000.

Murderer Ends Three Lives.

John Nickles shot and killed both his wife and his mother-in-law with a rifle near Shingle Springs, Cal. Afterward he removed the shoe from his right foot and with his toes discharged the rifle at his own breast, killing himself instantly.

Gets a Handsome Bequest.

It is said Miss Sarah Bonnell, an Abilene, Kan., young woman, has received a legacy of $500,000 from a friend in New York interested in her musical education. She will go to Paris soon.

$150,000 Fire Loss.

Fire wiped out fully a third of the business portion of Canonsburg, Pa., two of the principal hotels, many dwellings and did damage estimated at $115,000. No lives were lost.

Three Men Suffocated.

Fumes of burning sugar in the cargo of the American ship Kenilworth, from Valparaiso, caused the death of three men and nearly that of a fourth. The men who were lost were Captain James D. Baker, Arthur W. Piper, chief mate, and an apprentice boy named Henry Hobson, said to be a relative of Lieutenant Hobson. The man who was nearly suffocated was George Ernest Thrum, a passenger making the trip from Hilo to New York. The Kenilworth is owned by Arthur Sewall of Bath, Me. The fire was discovered when the Kenilworth was 2,500 miles from Valparaiso. The hatches were battered down and the vessel headed for Valparaiso. The men who lost their lives slept in the captain's sitting-room, to which the fumes of the burning sugar penetrated.

DEMANDS RELEASE OF TEMPLE.

Steps Taken to Recover the American from a Mexican Prison.

At the instance of the Governor of Arizona the State Department at Washington has instructed United States Minister Clayton at the City of Mexico to demand the surrender, under extradition proceedings, of Temple, the American railroad conductor who is held under arrest by the Mexicans near Nogales on the charge of killing a Mexican in the United States. If the Mexican Government concedes the justice of this demand, which is not doubted, Temple will be tried in the United States, and once more the principle of extra-territorial jurisdiction claimed by Mexico will have escaped a test issue, although our government is on record as having, by its demand for Temple's release, repudiated that principle.

FIND NEW MOUNTAIN RANGE.

Government Geologists Make an Important Discovery in Alaska.

A party of Government geological surveyors, headed by J. E. Spurr, has discovered a new range of mountains heretofore unknown to geographers in the southwestern part of Alaska. The new range is several hundred miles long, extending from the western end of Lake Clarke parallel with the Sushitna and Kuskokwim rivers. These mountains are extremely rugged, attaining an altitude of 7,000 to 8,000 feet, with some peaks much higher. Their course is from latitude 60 north and longitude 155 to the vicinity of Mount McKinley, in latitude 64 and longitude 152. The mountains have been named the Tordrillo range.

IMMUNES FIGHT WITH CUBANS.

Negro Soldiers Get Into Fracas at Santiago Over Hog Stealing.

At San Luis, twenty-five miles north of Santiago, where all the colored American troops are quartered, an attempt was made by Cubans to arrest two of the soldiers belonging to the Ninth immunes for hog stealing. A fight ensued and Lieutenant Ferrera, a Cuban, was killed, as was also Antonia Roman, an old man, a boy and a baby. Two of the negro soldiers were shot to death by the Cubans. General Wood will discipline all the soldiers implicated and offers a reward of $1,000 for the discovery of the officer who led the attack on the Cubans.

Soldiers in a General Row.

In a general row in the colored quarters of Cheyenne, Wyo., three soldiers were shot—viz., L. Fontenough, in the leg; H. Mitchell, in the right leg, and William Saunders, through the stomach. All will recover. The shooting was done by Corporal Scott of Company E of the San Juan heroes, who was arrested. At the fort in a general fight with razors and knives several of the soldiers were badly slashed and were brought before a court-martial and dismissed from the service.

Killed with Billiard Cue.

While interfering with James Rose who was playing billiards, John Shanley, aged 52, machinist, from South Bend Ind., was struck over the head with a cue at St. Paul, Minn., fracturing his skull and killing him. Shanley, who had been on a prolonged spree, knocked against the cue of Rose, spoiling a shot.

Julian Law Invalid.

The State Supreme Court at Jefferson City, Mo., decided that the Julian law, enacted by the Legislature in 1894, and provided for the sale of public franchises to the highest bidder, is unconstitutional.

Saw a Schooner Sink.

Fishermen from Green Island report at Toledo that Lightkeeper Gibeaut, of the Turtle light, saw a small schooner with a crew of six men and one woman go down during the recent gale.

Robbed a Golf Player.

Ockley C. Johnson, the professional golfer, was chloroformed in a hotel on the Natural Bridge road near St. Louis and robbed of $100 in cash, a gold watch and chain and other valuables.

Baltimore Glassworks Burn.

At Baltimore, Md., the extensive factory of the Carr-Lowry Glass Works Company was completely destroyed by fire. The loss will reach $125,000; insurance, $85,000.

Bloomville, Ohio, Block Is Burned.

Bloomville, Ohio, was the victim of a $10,000 fire, and one entire business block in the village is in ruins. The fire started from a defective chimney.

German Army to Be Increased.

WANT TO ARBITRATE.

SPANIARDS REHEARSE THEIR OLD ARGUMENTS.

Position on the Philippine Islands Is Reaffirmed—Reply to the American Demands Is Presented to the Peace Commissioners in Paris.

Wednesday's meeting of the joint peace commission in Paris lasted forty-five minutes and was of high importance. The Spanish commissioners presented their rejoinder to the American reply on the Philippine question, in which the contention was reiterated that Philippine sovereignty does not come in for discussion under the terms of the protocol and various reasons were given why the United States proposal concerning the debt could not be accepted by Spain. But the surprise of the meeting was the request that the dispute should be referred to arbitration as to the scope of the protocol and as to the legality of the demand of the United States to consider the sovereignty question under it.

This proposal was submitted with the protestation that it was made simply because of the great desire of Spain to bring the negotiations to an amicable issue. It was also pointed out that the United States has always been the foremost champion of arbitration. The American commissioners asked for an adjournment until Saturday.

Of course the United States cannot enter into a long-drawn-out arbitration over phraseology. The fact that the United States reserved to itself in the protocol possession of Manila and the fact that "the control, disposition and government" of the Philippines were mentioned as the subject for future determination shows that the entire matter is within the jurisdiction of the Paris peace commission. Spain resorts again to its old hair-splitting tactics. If anything were to be arbitrated it would be the main proposition as to whether the United States should hold the Philippines, and not the quibble as to whether the terms of the protocol warranted the consideration of that question at all. Spain's object is to irritate the United States as much as possible and to place itself before the world as the much-abused victim of overwhelming power.

As a conqueror in war the United States has the right to dictate the terms of peace. If the United States chooses to demand the Philippines it is within the bounds of right, according to the usages of war, in so doing. As to whether or not the United States should take the Philippines is a matter to be settled by itself, on considerations wholly apart from any rights of Spain in the premises.

SPEAKS HIS LAST LINES.

Jefferson's Retirement from the Stage Regarded as Permanent.

Joseph Jefferson's announcement of his temporary retirement from the stage, which was made public in New York, is taken by most of the theatrical people to mean that he has been seen behind the footlights for the last time.

Mr. Jefferson retires with a fortune that is conservatively placed at $2,000,000, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that not only has he scored famous artistic successes, but that his business career has been the most successful in the history of the stage.

"Rip Van Winkle," which he played first in 1859, alone made a fortune for him. Altogether he played "Rip Van Winkle" five thousand times, at gross receipts averaging $1,000 a performance. During the seventeenth season that it was played in Chicago it drew $15,000 in a week. "The Rivals" was another great moneymaker, and "The Cricket on the Hearth," "The Heir at Law" and "Lend Me Five Shillings," all yielded a considerable part of his fortune.

LACK LUMBER TO REBUILD.

Dawson City Fire Started by Woman Throwing a Lamp.

Belle Mitchell's penchant for throwing lighted lamps at people she does not like caused a third fire in Dawson City on the night of Oct. 10, the los from which, it is estimated, will reach half a million dollars. One side of the main street for four blocks was swept by the flames, and but for the hard work of every miner in camp the whole town would have been wiped out. A fire company was organized in a few minutes by several ex-firemen, and the new steamer and some apparatus that had just arrived were made to do good service. Advices state that there is not enough lumber in the town to rebuild the burnt district this winter.

The big fire of a year ago was caused by the Mitchell woman throwing a lamp at a companion's head, and a month ago she burned her own place and several other houses in the same way.

METEORIC SHOWER IS FAINT.

Young Says It Augurs Well for a Fine Display in 1899.

Charles A. Young, professor of astronomy in Princeton (N. J.) University, made an exhaustive observation of the meteor-shower Tuesday night from his observatory.

Between the hours of 3:15 and 5 o'clock he saw just about 100 meteors. One dozen were as bright as first magnitude stars. The rest were faint. The maximum of the shower was at 3:45 o'clock, at which time there were about two or three meteors per minute for about twenty minutes. The radiant point, the professor says, seemed to be in the sickle of Leo, a little farther south and west than in 1867.

It was a distinct meteoric shower, but a faint one, and augurs well for a good display in 1899.

MAKES NEW CYCLE RECORD.

San Francisco Wheelman Covers Fifty Miles in 2:13:29.

E. O. Kragness of San Francisco has created three American cycling records. He lowered the fifty-mile standard course from 2:22:59 to 2:13:29, which figure also lowers the American straightaway course mark of 2:15. The last ten miles he covered in 22:15, lowering the American standard course record of 24:14, held by L. N. Walleston of Newburyport, Mass., who held the fifty-mile mark.

TWO GIANTS AT WAR.

Coffee King and Sugar King Engage in a Bitter Struggle.

A fight between the Arbuckles, the coffee kings, and the Havemeyers, the sugar kings, is becoming so active that the effect will soon be felt throughout the country, and particularly by the grocery trade. They have already commenced cutting prices, and the apprehension of the investors is shown by the rapid decline in the price of sugar stocks. Brokers calculate that the value of the stock of the American Sugar Refining Company has suffered a shrinkage of nearly $14,000,000 during the last thirty days, and that the cut already made in prices, if continued through the year, will diminish the earnings of the trust by more than $6,000,000.

ARBUCKLE.

The firm of Arbuckle Bros., for several years the largest coffee dealers in the world, was formerly composed of John and Charles Arbuckle, two Scotchmen, who began a small business of coffee roasting in Pittsburg fifty years ago, and having made a success and accumulated capital sought a wider field in New York early in the '70s. They were men of little education, but understood their business thoroughly, and possessed the traditional Scotch thrift and economy which has swollen their pennies into dollars. For fifteen years after they began business in Pittsburg John Arbuckle roasted and ground coffee with his own hands, and his brother packed it and sold it over the counter.

The quarrel with the sugar trust began in a curious way. The success of the Arbuckle coffee business has been due in a large measure to the use of a certain kind of bag used in wrapping. These bags are made, filled, closed and sealed by machinery which John Arbuckle himself invented, and a few years ago it occurred to him that it would be a good scheme to put up sugar in the same way. Therefore the shrewd old Scotchman made an arrangement with the sugar trust to furnish him a certain quantity of sugar daily, which he put up in bags with the same machines that he used for coffee. The scheme was a great success, and the Arbuckle sugar sprang into popularity throughout the country.

HAVEMEYER.

In 1896, however, when the price of raw sugar went down, Mr. Arbuckle demanded a reduction in his bills, but the Havemeyers laughed at him. This made the old man angry and he resolved to put up refineries of his own and enjoy the profit that is now going to the sugar trust. Mr. Arbuckle started at once to build a sugar refinery and coaxed Mr. Stillman, the sugar trust manager at Boston, to become his superintendent. He put up a refinery in Brooklyn that is now turning out 1,000 barrels of sugar a day, and every ounce of it is packed in little Arbuckle bags and sold in that form. Mr. Havemeyer hired a fellow countryman named Herman Sielcken, from the Arbuckle factory, for his manager, and bought out an establishment at Toledo, which now has an output of 3,000 bags of coffee a day, and fitted up several idle sugar factories with machinery for roasting and grinding coffee, which he is selling as near as possible in the Arbuckle market. Mutual friends have tried to effect a reconciliation, but it has been impossible. The German is just as stubborn and determined as the Scotchman, and each is bent upon ruining the other.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

Filipinos Say They Are Ignored by American Commanders.

The Filipino Junta, representatives of Gen. Aguinaldo and the Filipino Government in Hong Kong, have drawn up what they designate as an "appeal to President McKinley and the American people." The memorial says:

"While the fate of the islands is still undecided and we are doing all in our power to prevent a conflict between the Americans and Filipinos—awaiting patiently the conclusion of the Paris conference—we implore the intervention of the President, supported by the will of the people, to end the slights shown our leaders, soldiers and people by some of the American military and naval officers, although we do not wish to wrong Admiral Dewey or Gen. Otis.

"From the commencement of the hostilities," continues the memorial, "the Filipinos acceded to all the American requests, but, after bottling up the Spaniards in Manila, the Filipinos were completely ignored when the Americans advanced, and thus deprived of the fruits of victory. All our launches have been seized because of foolish rumors that we would attack the Americans, and when we asked explanations we were not even answered."

SPANISH TROOPS IN MUTINY.

Refuse to Leave Cuba Until They Have Been Paid.

Information has reached the War Department that 9,800 Spanish officers and men who were to return to Spain openly declare that they will not leave the Cuban soil until they have received their pay. Although the situation will not be allowed to affect the plans of the Americans for the control of that part of the island, it is realized that if these soldiers persist in their refusal to return to Spain they may become a menace to the good government of Cuba.

Disaffection has spread to the troops brought in from the country by Gen. Blanco, and these men now also demand their pay at once. Gen. Blanco has lost confidence in the very guard placed in and around the palace. Up to the present time the uprising continues to be a pure military mutiny, but the people generally are apprehensive that the troops will break out at any moment and attack property and civilians.

REPULSED THE GIRLS.

Hero of Merrimac Fame Wouldn't Kiss Eager Lips.

Osborne Diegnan, one of the men of Merrimac fame, arrived at his home in Stuart, Iowa, Saturday and was met by 500 people, who escorted him home. Eighteen or twenty girls surrounded him at the depot and attempted to kiss him, but he pushed all back, saying there were handsomer men in the crowd than he. The municipal authorities presented Diegnan with a sword and Gov. Shaw and other prominent Iowans made speeches. Diegnan ran away from his home years ago.

BIG FISH COMBINE.

Company Is Organized with Capital Stock of $5,500,000.

Articles of incorporation of the A. Booth Company of Chicago have been filed for record. The capital stock of the company is set at $5,500,000, with $2,500,000 paid in. The business of the company is to engage in any line of enterprise connected with catching of fish and making them ready for the table. This indicates ship owning, net making, canning and growing and dealing in vegetables. The life of the corporation is to be ninety-nine years.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Bank Messenger Is Held Up—Moravians Await the Second Coming—Sympathy from the President—Dangerous Fire at Evansville.

A messenger for the Exchange Bank of Churubusco was robbed of $1,200 in bills the other night. He was sent to Columbia City to bring back $2,200 in cash. Failing to return on the evening train, his friends became alarmed and sent out a searching party. He was found at an early hour the next morning lying by the roadside, badly injured, but $1,000 of the $2,200 was left on his person. His story is that, failing to catch the evening train for Churubusco, he had started to walk home. When nearly at his destination he was assaulted by two men and robbed of the money, but the robbers failed to find the package of $1,000, which he had concealed in an inner pocket.

End of the World in a Year.

A small colony of Moravians near La Porte has taken heed of the prophetic words of Dr. J. T. Boyd, the Indianapolis Moravian divine, who is predicting the end of the world, and meetings are being held nightly in preparation for the coming dissolution. Boyd's conclusions are drawn from biblical sources. Nov. 11, 1899, the Moravians believe, will witness the end of the world. Boyd lays much stress on his prophecy of a meteoric shower, which the scientists have foretold long in advance of him.

Defrauded by Its Employes.

The Bowser oil tank works, one of the largest manufacturing concerns of Fort Wayne, has been systematically robbed by trusted employes for months past and the peculations have just come to light. One of the men would issue express orders and others would have them cashed in Chicago, Indianapolis and Toledo, Ohio. Peculations amounting to nearly $10,000 have been uncovered, but the investigation has only just begun.

President McKinley Sends Sympathy.

Mrs. James Jones of Kokomo has received a letter from President McKinley. Jones was the artilleryman killed by the premature discharge of a cannon in saluting the presidential train when it passed through there a few weeks ago. The President expressed deep sympathy for the bereft family and sent a check for $25.

Fireworks House Destroyed.

The wholesale candy, fireworks and grocery house of Broom & Co. was destroyed by fire at Evansville. The store was valued at $60,000. A continuous explosion of fireworks made the work of subduing the flames exceedingly hazardous.

Within Our Borders.

South Bend's new court house cost $239,162.78.

Fifteen new gas wells have been drilled in the vicinity of Gaston.

Rural free mail delivery has been established in Hamilton County.

Robert Lowe was shot and fatally wounded by James Eden, Jr., a druggist, at Bryant.

Joe Tolbert and Charles Finch had a fight at Connersville and Tolbert shot his adversary in the hip.

Private Frank M. Green, Company D, 161st Indiana, died in the division hospital, Jacksonville, Fla.

The Indiana State Dairy Association will hold its ninth annual meeting at Mooresville Dec. 14 and 15.

At Kokomo, Frank Lewis, colored, was killed by the cars by rolling off the depot under the wheels while asleep.

Near South Bend, Lee Styles, a wealthy farmer, was attacked by a bull he was leading and received probably fatal injuries.

The city theater in Oswego was completely gutted by fire. Loss about $8,000, uninsured. An amateur rehearsal was in progress at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Edward Hilligoss, one of the oldest residents of Madison County, living north of Anderson, was killed by a train on the Panhandle, as she was returning in a buggy to her home after a trip to market.

Herman Schaumann of Watertown, Wis., was found dead in his boat, which was floating down the Kankakee river. His gun had been accidentally discharged and the top of his head was blown off, causing instant death.

William Helm, aged 55 years, of North Manchester, committed suicide by hanging in his barn. He was absent from the house only an hour, when relatives instituted a search and found him suspended from one of the timbers.

Thieves entering the postoffice at Gravelton the other night aroused a dog, which is kept in the room, and the postmaster was brought out of his home near by. Several shots were exchanged, but the robbers escaped without injury and with $300.

The body of Miss Katie Hefferlin was found in the Ohio river at Evansville. Miss Hefferlin disappeared from home two weeks before, and her parents feared she had committed suicide. She became despondent because her lover broke an engagement with her.

A peculiar disease has broken out among the horses in the north part of Carroll County, and several have died. The animals' throats become inflamed so that they cannot swallow, and consequently they starve to death. There seems to be no remedy for the disease.

Joseph Beard, in jail at Seymour, awaiting trial for the fraudulent collection and appropriation of money for church purposes, was taken from prison late the other night and severely whipped. The victim is a negro, until recently unknown there, and in the "committee" were a number of his own race.

At Elko, William Ellison was shot and dangerously wounded by James Shields, a Seventh Day Adventist, who was being persecuted by several boys on account of his religious belief.

Isaac N. Hoop, an insane man taken to the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane about six weeks ago, has escaped and his whereabouts are unknown. His home is in Madison County.

At New Albany, Miss Leona Peers was shot and dangerously wounded by Charles McCoy. The latter did not know the gun was loaded and the bullet entered her abdomen and may cause death.

The Hamilton County Agricultural Fair Association has dissolved, and the grounds at Sheridan have been sold.

Nathan McCracken's barn, three miles west of Paoli, was burned the other night. Five horses, a quantity of feed and harness and farming implements were consumed. The origin of the fire is unknown. Loss $1,000.

The jury, after two hours' deliberation, returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter against "Dode" Carrington, who killed Bayless Ewart and Wesley Neice in a saloon at Grant. He hoped for acquittal on the ground of self-defense. The sentence is for from two to twenty-one years, under the indeterminate law.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

The first appropriation bill to be introduced at the approaching session of Congress will be one to carry forward the expenditures on account of the war with Spain. By the explicit terms of the bills passed at the last session, making provision for the army and navy, authority to expend the money appropriated expires on Dec. 31, so that it will be necessary to prepare and enact, before the holiday recess, legislation extending the period to June 30 next, the end of the fiscal year. This is the view of Chairman Cannon of the House Committee on Appropriations.

-:—:-

The President and Secretary Alger have agreed to make the same recommendation in regard to the proposed increase of the regular army. Secretary Alger, in his annual report, and the President in turn, in his annual message to Congress, will recommend that the standing army be placed on a permanent peace basis of 100,000. The President's decision to advocate an army of 100,000 is taken as an indication that he thoroughly appreciates the necessity of properly garrisoning the new possessions and dependencies with United States troops.

-:—:-

In his annual report the Secretary of War will recommend an increase of the numerical strength of the military academy to not fewer than 500 cadets, and he may decide to ask an increase to 700, which is the maximum capacity of the building. The number of cadets at West Point now is 370, but if the army is doubled in strength it will be necessary to double the number of officers, and for the same reason the number of cadets.

-:—:-

The Government has decided to investigate the race troubles in South Carolina in respect to the interference with the duties of Federal officers. This is the only extent to which the Government can go as it is considered that the other difficulties are merely local, and therefore not within the province of the national government. The investigation will be conducted by the Department of Justice.

-:—:-

A heavy and continued demand exists for American corn in south Africa, according to United States Consul General Stowe at Cape Town, who has made a special report to the State Department on the subject of American trade in that section. Corn is quoted at $3.52 per hundred pounds in Cape Town and $4.44 in Johannesburg, and the supplies do not satisfy the demand.

-:—:-

President McKinley has practically completed his message to Congress, for while it is not all written the remainder is carefully outlined. It will deal almost exclusively with the war and will give the reasons for the pronounced advocacy of expansion by the administration. Attention is also called to the necessity for an increase in the regular army.

-:—:-

Vice-President Hobart may attend the Paris exposition as the representative of the United States. All of the other nations will be represented by their official heads or some member of the reigning family, and as it will be impossible for the President to attend, efforts are being made to induce the Vice-President to go.

According to a ruling made by the Postoffice Department the postmasters throughout the country are prohibited from passing out mail matter to children while going to and from school. The department made this ruling on account of the numerous complaints made of mail matter lost by children.

The positive statement by Chairman Dingley of the House Ways and Means Committee that there will be no revision of the existing war revenue law short of a year, renders it certain that the Government will have an unusually large amount of cash to expend during the next twelve months.

-:—:-

There are evidences that the influential people behind the monetary commission will bring pressure to bear on the President to call an extra session of Congress in the early spring. They want the currency reformed on the lines laid down by the Indianapolis conference.

-:—:-

Attorney General Griggs has rendered a decision that a person may draw money on a check without a revenue stamp provided the check be payable to himself from his own funds.

The first state dinner of the season was given at the White House Wednesday evening, when the President and Mrs. McKinley entertained fifty guests in honor of the Anglo-American commissioners.

PRINCE OF WALES MAY COME.

McKinley May Deliver Oration at Masonic Anniversary.

President McKinley has practically accepted an invitation to deliver the oration at the Grand Masonic ceremony on Dec. 14, 1899, at Mount Vernon, in commemoration of the anniversary of the death of Washington. President McKinley is a Virginia Mason, having been initiated at Winchester during the war.

The program includes the ceremony at the old tomb of Washington by the Grand Lodge of Virginia; at the new tomb by the Grand Lodge of Colorado; addresses at the house and a reception and banquet in Washington city by the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia. Representatives of all the grand lodges in this country will be present, and it is expected that the Prince of Wales will attend or send a personal representative.

ODDS & ENDS OF SPORT

It is said that the bookmakers at Chicago the past season lost $250,000.

Riley Grannan has been beating the bookies at the California race tracks.

It has been figured that during the National League season 173 times pitchers were driven off the slab by opposing batsmen.

James Daly of Buffalo, who was Corbett's sparring partner several years ago, has been appointed boxing instructor of the Buffalo Athletic Club, and will retire from the ring.

It is generally agreed that it was a mistake to abolish the fining system in the National League last season, and in 1899 it is apt to cost a player a bit of his stipend if he dares an umpire to put him off the field.

THE MOUNTAIN DWELLER.

I ask no odds of the men who ride
With trappings that gleam like gold;
Nor envy the homes where they abide,
Nor the lands by their will controlled.
For a sense of freedom and joy profound
Is mine as I look on high.
There's only an acre or so of ground,
But billions of acres of sky.

'Tis a heartless master, the stubborn sod
As for beauty you delve and strive;
You must blast the quarry and break the clod
Ere gardens and towers may thrive.
But my clouds with castles each night are crowned
And the radiant stars draw nigh—
There's only an acre or so of ground,
But billions of acres of sky.

Oh, the town is great and the town is fine
And it's gay as a town can be,
And the house on the height where the sun's ashine
Is humble, though fair to me;
But a universe seems to gather round,
With joys that will never fly;
There's only an acre or so of ground,
But billions of acres of sky.

AN ONLY QUARREL.

Many thanks for your letter and all the good advice it contains, my dear Harry. I know that when a man has got into a thoroughly morbid state, a ruthlessly candid lecture is as good for him as is a slap in the face for an hysterical girl. Your motive is truly kind, and I should be ungrateful if I failed to recognize it as such.

You point out that it is now three years since my dear wife's fatal accident, and that, closely as we were united and terrible though the shock must have been, others have had to bear blows as severe and have borne them with pluck and resignation.

My dear Harry, so far as you know the facts, your criticism is perfectly just. But until you know them more fully it is impossible for you to understand my feelings aright. I will relieve my mind by telling you things which have burdened by thoughts during three years and have made it impossible for me to throw off my sadness.

Alice was killed upon the second anniversary of our wedding day. For two years our married life had been, as you are aware, one of unclouded happiness.

What plans we made for that second anniversary! I took three-quarters of an hour to choose a present for Alice, and a great mystery overshadowed the something that she was making for me. Then there were the invitations to our little party in the evening, the great question as to whether we should ask the rector or the doctor—they were not on speaking terms—and the debate on the happiest way of spending the earlier part of the day.

It should be passed in the depths of the country, we both agreed, and after much pondering over the local time tables, we settled that the eleven o'clock train should take us to Beechwood, a walk and picnic tete-a-tete amid the summer glories of the forest, tea at the clean little Barleycorn inn, and go home.

So we settled on the eve of our wedding day, and then we had our first and only quarrel.

The circumstances were trifling enough. A letter had come to Alice, asking her to pay a short visit, if I could spare her, to some friends whom she had known intimately before her marriage, "the day after to-morrow." I suppose I was not in the best of tempers—worried with business, perhaps, and a trifle out of sorts—a bit jealous, too, it may be, for one of the sons of the house had been once a rival.

At any rate, when she produced this letter and told me she would like to accept the invitation, some evil spirit tempted me to raise objections. I could see the keen disappointment in her face, and that increased my silly petulance and jealousy till I recklessly launched out in diatribes against her friends who had sent the invitation.

She defended them hotly—for Alice was always loyal—and so the day ended in a cold good night, leaving her pained and unhappy, and me—thoroughly ashamed of suspicions I knew to be groundless and of an ill temper I was too proud to confess.

I had a wakeful and restless time that last night. Our disagreement preyed strangely on my mind, and in the dark hours assumed quite an exaggerated importance. You see for us it was a new experience. A "little rift" had divided us for the first time, and I could boast no more that my wife had never heard a harsh or bitter word from me.

In the morning there was still a cloud between us. I knew that I was in the wrong, and yet I would not own it even to myself. Alice gave me one little wistful look, expressive of a timid hope that my mood had changed. I saw that look, and for a moment I felt impelled to fling my arms around her and ask forgiveness. If only I had yielded to that impulse! I gave her one cold kiss. To think that it was the last I ever gave her, living or dead!

While I was dressing, my eye fell on the small case containing the bracelet I had bought as a present for my wife. I picked it up, hid it in my pocket, and, fool that I was, never gave it to her.

I opened the letters, which were mostly on the business that was worrying me. The rest I pushed irritably away. I opened them afterward, and do you know, Harry, that in one of those parcels was the gift that my wife had been working for weeks to make for me.

We breakfasted almost in silence, but after the meal was over, she rose and came softly round the table toward me. Then she put her dear hand on my shoulder so lightly as if she feared to offend, and, bending down, she said pleadingly, "Won't you let me go, Charlie?" And I, or the imp that possessed me, coldly answered, "You may please yourself."

I don't know what you will think of me when you read all this. You cannot condemn my brutality more than I do myself. Don't judge me too hardly, Harry. I did not know how short would be my opportunity.

Half past ten came. Our trap drove up to the door. The station was nearly three miles off, and Alice, who generally was waiting for me, did not appear.

For a few minutes I stood fuming in the hall, delighted with my rash grievance. Then I shouted—

"Alice!"

"Coming!" was returned from the room above, and immediately after, my wife hurried down stairs, fastening on her hat as she descended.

Alice got into the trap and took the reins, as usual. I seated myself beside her. The man got up behind, and so we started on that last miserable expedition. Neither of us said much. I looked at her once or twice, sideways. Never had she seemed so handsome, or in such glowing health, but there was an unnatural deep flush upon her cheek, and her lips were tightly closed together.

When we reached the station, the train was already in it. I rushed to the ticket office, bought our two tickets (I have them now, for they were never used), seized my change, and hurried my wife off the platform, reaching the train just as it was beginning to move.

"Get in, for goodness sake!" I cried peevishly, opening a car door, and then—God forgive me—I gave her a push, and you know what happened next.

My poor wife never spoke again, but as she lay in the waiting room, mutilated and dying, she just opened her eyes and looked at me. Then a sad, sweet smile came over her face, and, raising her arms toward me, as I bent over her in an agony of remorse, she put up her dear face for a kiss, just as she had so often done in happier days.

I stooped down, and then—somehow I could not give her that last kiss. Something held me back—a feeling of utter shame and unworthiness. A shadow of pain crossed her face, the arms fell back, and in a moment the opportunity had passed forever, and our span of wedded life and love had ended—so.

Do you remember that awful inquest, Harry? You were good to me that day, old fellow. No one could have proved himself a truer friend.

You remember that, when I gave my evidence, I said that I tried to assist my wife into the carriage. Well, you know now that I was playing with the truth, and you will probably despise me for it. I almost hoped that there would be a verdict of manslaughter—that I should be sent to prison.

There is only one thing more to tell you. When the accident became known, I received many kind and sympathetic letters from my friends and hers, hardly read them, for each one of them was a fresh stab to me. "If they only knew!" my conscience kept saying to me. She knows. She died cursed by my ill temper, without a parting kiss, and if we meet in another world, what will she say to me or I to her?

But there was one letter that arrested my attention and caused me far more pain than all the others put together. It was from the lady whose invitation had caused our fatal quarrel. "Perhaps," it ended, "it may be some comfort to you to keep the enclosed letter from her. I received it after her death—probably the last she ever wrote."

Dearest May—Thank you so very much for your most kind invitation. I should dearly love to come and see you again, and have a good talk over old times. But Charlie cannot well spare me at present, and he is so good and kind to me and so nice about everything that I do not like to be away when he wants me.

We are just off for a jaunt to celebrate our wedding day, and Charlie is calling for me to start. Your loving friend, ALICE.

That is what she was writing while I bullied in the hall. That is what she had written, when she silently listened to my grumbling on the way to the station. Oh, the irony of it all!

Now you can understand, Harry, why it is that I take so long getting over my loss. One thought, and one alone, sometimes arises to comfort me. Perhaps that last movement of hers meant forgiveness and—perhaps—when her attempt at reconciliation failed, she sent me that letter as a message from beyond the grave.

Seeking Something Appropriate.

Mr. Blykins had been reading his newspaper and was looking thoughtfully at the vacant wall, when his wife said:

"Well, have you decided? You know I said I would leave it entirely to your judgment."

"Have I decided on what?"

"On a name for the dog. You said you would think up something while you were down town to-day."

"Is that dog still around the house?"

"Why, of course he is. And I don't see why you should speak of him in that way. I have always wanted a dog."

"Certainly. I am glad he came. I was afraid he might have strayed away. Name him Hector."

"That's so common."

"Well, call him Carlo."

"But so many dogs are named Carlo."

"Call him Pinkie."

"That isn't a bit appropriate. He's a mastiff, I think."

"You want something appropriate and unusual?"

"Yes."

"Well, let's see. That dog came into our possession quite unexpectedly, some of us are in favor of keeping him and some are not, but it seems a great deal easier to take care of him than it does to get rid of him. Let's call him 'Philippines.' "—New York State.

Phantom Guests.

Once upon a time, as the story used to run in a newspaper office in Philadelphia, it became necessary at the last moment to remove two names from a list of persons staying in a hotel at Cape May, and to substitute for them the first that occurred to the man that was revising the paragraph. When he read it in print, his invention—a sonorous name of three parts and many syllables, worthy of Rittenhouse Square—so pleased him that for the rest of the summer in appropriate paragraphs he carried his phantoms, as the American custom then was, from watering place to watering place. By autumn they amused his acquaintances as much as they did him, and in due course they elected to pass the winter in Philadelphia, where they went often to large dances, dinners and entertainments in general. In a few months their inventor had so well established them socially that he began to find their names in lists of guests sent to him for publication by hostesses, who wished to persuade the town that they had everyone worth having in their drawing rooms. Such semblance of flesh and blood soon brought vexatious questions to his door, and he prudently sent his phantoms to Europe, where the husband died, and the wife chose to dwell permanently.—Boston Transcript.

SHAFTER BELLE OF THE BALL.

His Name on Nearly All of the Cards, Altho' He Did Not Dance.

General Shafter was decidedly the belle of the recent peace jubilee ball in Chicago. He received more attention than anybody except the president and Mrs. Palmer and accepted the adoration of the multitude with becoming modesty. Early in the evening his box became surrounded by a crowd of admirers and the general was in a state of siege during the rest of the night. Some pretty girl had a brilliant idea and asked the general to write his name upon her engagement card.

"I don't dance," said the hero of Santiago.

"I know that," returned the eager damsel, "but I want your autograph."

The general took a pencil with a willing air and write his name so large that it covered two lines. Then every other lady around rushed up to him with the same request and kept him busy for an hour or more writing his autograph upon the printed list of dances. Some of the prettiest girls in town had him down for waltzes and others for two-steps, and of course they will save the cards as souvenirs and no doubt show them to their grandchildren in the middle of the next century and relate how they danced with General Shafter at the great jubilee ball.

The autograph craze then became general, and nearly all the famous men present were detained until they had written their names upon the engagement cards of hundreds of ladies. Those souvenirs will be doubly interesting because of novelty, but it will require further evidence to convince their friends that they danced two-steps with Secretary Gage and the Chinese minister and waltzes with Governor Tanner and Senator Cullom.

Excepting the president, Archbishop Ireland was perhaps the most popular guest at the jubilee. Like all the other dignitaries, the Archbishop went to the ball, and, of course, was imposed upon by any number of pretty girls. He wrote his autograph along with those of General Miles, General Shafter and other prominent men, without noticing the character of the paper that was presented for his signature. It would make a decided stir in the college of Cardinals at Rome if some of the engagement cards that were used at the dance last night were submitted to them, and I fear that the holy father would be shocked to see the name of this eminent prelate written in his own hand upon the engagement list of many a Chicago girl for waltzes, two-steps and other dances which have not usually been included in the accomplishments of ecclesiastics.

Russia a World-Dominator.

Whether Russia will succeed in her scheme of world domination is open to question, but her policy is being pursued under conditions without parallel. Unless she should break up from internal commotion—not a likely contingency—she will attempt the conquest of Turkey, Persia, India and China, bit by bit, and according to fitting opportunity. She has at present a docile partner, ready to be used, little realizing that the ally of to-day will be the victim of to-morrow, when no longer needed. Germany, whose policy must of necessity be opportunist, is ready to tacitly support Russia, while she is in the ascendant. Japan is, of course, a most important factor in the future destinies of the Pacific. She wisely keeps her own counsel and prepares vigorously for eventualities, making those careful and minute studies of every country in the world which have already yielded such astonishing results. Her future course will be largely influenced by the action of the western powers, and it need not be said that the most energetic among them will gain the sympathies of the island empire. Should Russia succeed in becoming mistress of Asia, she will dominate some eight hundred millions of the human race—active, hardy, intelligent, and requiring only direction to become a formidable force in any competition, whether in commerce or in war. The reduction of the British empire is essential to the accomplishment of her scheme of universal dominion.—Eastward Expansion of the United States in Harper's Magazine.

Notre Dame's Towers Uneven.

Most of the thousands of visitors who annually throng Paris-ward would be incredulous were they told that the towers of Notre Dame were unequaled. But the statement is true, nevertheless, and a series of learned papers upon the subject have just been served, for the first time, to bring the circumstance before even the French public.

To that obnoxious person, "the casual observer," the towers, of course, appear exactly equal in size. The "casual observer" seems to have been made for no other purpose than to play the scapegoat for the five senses of humanity. In spite of him, however, there is a difference in the size of the bays, and the reason for this is that originally the cathedral of a suffragan was not entitled, by canonical law, to two towers of equal size. For centuries Paris was suffragan to the Archbishop of Sens.

Two slate-roofers quarrelled recently on a roof in Boston, and both fell to the ground and were killed.

NAPOLEON'S ORIGINAL PLAN TO INVADE ENGLAND.

NAPOLEON'S FLOATING FORTRESS.

A German historian now comes forward with the remarkable statement that he has discovered Napoleon's original plans for the invasion of England in the year 1798. Just 100 years ago Napoleon decided to tow an army over to England on great floating forts, with large bodies of troops lined up in battle order. They were then to fight their way ashore and land on the coast without resort to lighters. The troops were to march ashore in the order of their regiments, preceded and backed up by artillery. This, the German historian says, Bonaparte hoped to accomplish in the summer season, when the water was calm and the attending circumstances favored by wind and weather.

It will be remembered that Napoleon has often declared that he would have been as great an admiral as he was a general with half a chance. "But," he added, "the French are useless as sailors. They are too fussy, too excitable. At sea one needs a calm mind, quiet fortitude and energy." Bonaparte's ferries were built in Brest, Cherbourg and Boulogne, but when Napoleon inspected them in the spring of 1798 his faith in the new-fangled monsters wavered.

He abandoned the proposed invasion of England and instead started on the expedition to Egypt, from where he hoped to be able to rule the Mediterranean.

QUEEN AGAINST HER WILL.

A Tragic Romance of the South Sea Islands.

The schooner Ocean Spray, Capt. Luttrell commanding, recently arrived at San Francisco from an extended trading cruise in the Southern Pacific. The Captain bore the news of the death of the Queen of the Muna Islands. A stranger story never was told.

According to a special dispatch from San Francisco to the New York Herald, many years ago William Young, an English sailor on a little trading schooner that had sailed from an Australian port, was shipwrecked and cast ashore on one of the Muna Islands. Long struggling had swept away nearly all his clothing, but he managed to cling to a piece of timber until with it he was thrown up on shore in safety. It was night when he landed on the beach and realized that he was safe. Then he swooned away. The next thing he knew he was on a comfortable cot in a native's cabin, and around him were a number of dusky barbarians who, unaccustomed to seeing a man having a white skin, had taken him for a god and were entertaining him as best they could. In a few days he began to recover sufficiently to appreciate the situation, and it is needless to say that he enjoyed it. Favors of every description were bestowed upon him. By the decree of the King a palace was appointed for his habitation, and here he continued to receive the attention of the great chiefs of the islands. In a short time he learned the native language and invented many contrivances to gain and retain the homage of the people. He soon became a favorite on the islands and in time became strongly attached to a young sister of the King. Then followed the marriage of the god and the princess. The union was a happy one, and in the course of time a daughter was born and she was named Margaret. She was a beautiful child, and naturally was the idol of her father. He taught her to read and write English, and when she had attained years of understanding he sent her to a convent school at Samoa.

Margaret pursued her studies in the convent about four years, and during that time she fell in love with a handsome young Samoan, who, at the completion of her course, begged for an immediate marriage. The young lady was agreeable to the marriage, but asked the privilege of returning to her father at her old home before the ceremony should take place. The next trading vessel that sailed from Samoa carried her to her old home.

She had only been there a few weeks when the King was taken suddenly ill and shortly afterwards died. When the grief of the nation had subsided the wise men and councillors began to look around for a successor. There were several sons and daughters of the deceased monarch living, but according to a peculiar custom of the people the eldest nephew or niece of the late ruler succeeded to the throne. Margaret was the regular and legitimate successor according to this rule. She was well aware of this, and at the first report of the King's illness had made an effort to get away from the islands, but there was no vessel by which she could escape. She had promised her young Samoan chief that in six months she would return and become his wife. Now her prospects were blighted. She was a prisoner, although an heir to a crown. Although a queen, she knew her life would be a living death. The constitution of the islands consisted in a code of unwritten laws, one of the most stringent of which was that the Queen could never marry or even look upon the face of a man. The palace was so constructed that one could not see beyond its walls from within, and the royal attendants were all maidens. Every day the wise men and councillors sought the advice of their sovereign on bended knees with their foreheads upon the ground and a partition shutting off the view of royalty. The rules governing sovereigns were inexorable. Nothing, even death itself, could change a law. It was to such a life as this the beautiful young Margaret was doomed. When she was sought to take her place as the sovereign of the people she protested and declined the office. But there was no getting rid of the responsibility. She was Queen by right, and she must be Queen in fact. They brought her against her will into the palace, the inaugural ceremonies were performed, and she was initiated into the seclusion of a palace that in reality was a prison. Although the first lady of the realm, she did not enjoy the privileges or freedom of the meanest slave.

It was about three years ago that she became Queen, and since that time one can only fancy the life of sorrow she must have lived. Only once was she outside the palace walls in those three years, and that was to attend the funeral of her father.

A bamboo box was made in which she was carried to the graveside. The sides of the cage were thickly thatched with palm leaves, preventing her from seeing anything that was going on outside. Near the top of the bamboo structure were ventilation openings, but these were so screened that she could not see out. At the grave she could hear the clods falling upon the coffin lid, but could see nothing. She could hear the moans and wails of the mourners, but received no real sympathy. When the grave was closed in she was carried back to her prison and her life of hopeless loneliness. That was about a year ago.

Some weeks ago the Ocean Spray was driven out of her course and stranded on the shores of Muna Island. The natives swarmed around and welcomed the whites. They told the captain of the illness of their Queen, and he, knowing something of the circumstances, secured permission for his wife to see the Queen. From his wife's report he concluded that the unfortunate royal prisoner was merely suffering from a cold. He prepared some medicine for her from his chest and gave it to the chiefs, saying that it was only a cold, and if they followed his directions and gave the medicine she would be all right.

They accepted the medicine with a great show of gratitude, went away, called a council of chiefs, and after long and careful deliberation decided that it would be dangerous to give her the white man's medicine. If she had a cold the proper remedy was an application of heat. The priests built a number of fires on the beach. The Queen was carried out in the bamboo cage, and amid the loud wails of the priests and cries of the assembled people it was placed in the center of the circle of fires. Fresh fuel was piled on and the heat became more intense. The poor Queen cried for help, but no help came. All one night and during the greater part of the next day the cold-curing ceremony was kept up, and then all was still within the cage. Calls to the Queen brought no answer, and the chiefs and priests knew that the cure had been a success. Amid shouts of jubilation the box was carried to the palace gate, delivered to the attendants and dragged into the secluded interior. Soon a piercing shriek came from the Queen's apartments, and almost immediately two attendants ran out screaming, "The Queen is dead! She is dead!" Instantly all was confusion. The priests chanted themselves hoarse and the people gave vent to their sorrow in long, loud sobs and wails. Several old women were sent in to investigate. They came out shortly bearing the lifeless body that all might see. The intense heat and choking smoke had suffocated the unfortunate woman as she lay in the closed box.

AN HISTORIC HOUSE.

Building Where the Famous Boston Tea Party Met 125 Years Ago.

The last private house that was directly connected with the episode of the Boston tea party in the great struggle for liberty has been torn down to make room for a business block. The old Bradlee house, for as such it is known, has stood at the corner of Tremont and Hollis streets for 127 years, and the land, which when the building was built was a part of a pasture, is today worth $100,000.

The house was one of the most interesting historic landmarks in Boston. In its wide old kitchen the ringleaders of the Boston tea party disguised themselves as Indians on the evening of Dec. 16, 1773, before going to the wharf where the cargo of tea was thrown into the waters of the harbor. The Old South Church and Faneuil Hall are the only two buildings besides this house now left that sheltered the patriots on that eventful day.

Although built in 1771, the house was strong enough to stand together another 100 years, and it would doubtless have been left as a landmark were it not for the city's growth around it. The land comprised in its site and the yard have risen so much in value that a building productive of proportionate revenue must be put up to meet the increase in taxes.

AMATEUR SURGERY.

How the Broken Leg of a Chicken or Canary May Be Cured.

Young chickens and other birds frequently break the bones of their legs and if properly attended to these ruptures can be easily cured with very little trouble. As soon as the trouble is noticed the fractured leg must be carefully cleaned and washed with warm water and then wrapped with a bit of antiseptic cotton. Splints are then prepared for the fractured limb, preferably of split elderwood, the pith of which is taken out. These splints are fastened to the cotton with a drop of glue and held tightly in place by being wound with linen thread. The bandage and dressing are left undisturbed for from three to four weeks; then the leg is soaked in tepid water until the bandage comes off easily. The fracture will have completely healed up in that time. Canaries and other pet birds can be similarly treated in case of a fracture of a leg, only the elder splints are substituted by pieces of cardboard and the bandage is left but two weeks on the little winged patients.

HOME-MADE SURGERY.

NEW TRAINING VESSEL.

Practice Ship Chesapeake Will Cost to Build $125,000.

A fine new training vessel or practice ship for the United States navy is under way. She will be called the Chesapeake and will cost to build $125,000. It will be propelled by steam and sail and will accommodate at once 180 cadets of the naval academy.

The Chesapeake is to be fitted with all the modern appliances for service and comfort and will be constructed entirely of steel, the bottom will be sheathed with yellow pine four inches in thickness, from keel to two feet two inches above the water line, and coppered. The main battery, six four-inch rapid-fire rifles, will be on the covered gun deck; four six-pounders rapid fire and two one-pounders will be mounted off the rail and worked from the flush spar deck.

A full ship rig will be provided, the lower masts and lower yards to be of steel, the balance of the spars to be of spruce or yellow pine. The bulwark plating in connection with the stem is carried out to form the bowsprit. The total sail area is 19,975 square feet, the vessel depending wholly upon the sails for propulsion.

The principal dimensions of the vessels are: Length on load water line, 175 feet; breadth on load water line, thirty-seven feet; draft, mean, 16 feet 6 inches; displacement, 1,175 tons.

Never Get Thirsty.

There are certain lucky creatures which never feel the pangs of thirst, for they are so constituted that drink is unnecessary to them and they never swallow a drop of water in their lives. Among these animals are certain gazelles of the far east and the lamas of Patagonia.

Some naturalists believe that hares never drink, but get enough liquid for their needs in the dew on the grass they eat, and it is certain that in the London zoological gardens a paroquet lived over half a century without once drinking.

A considerable number of reptiles—serpents, lizards and some batrachians—thrive in places in which there is absolutely no water. In France in the neighborhood of the Losere there are herds of goats and cattle which hardly ever drink and which, nevertheless, produce the milk of which the celebrated Roquefort cheese is made.

"He," screamed the crossroads orator, "who puts his hand to the plow must not turn back." "What's he to do when he gets to the end of the furrer?" asked the auditor in blue-green overalls.—Indianapolis Journal.

The poor are always with us—and some wealthy people are pretty close.

GIFFORD, THE SWAMP KING.

He Is Now Building a Seventeen-Mile Railway Through His Land.

Thirty years ago Benjamin J. Gifford laid the foundation of his large fortune by a scheme for reclaiming swamp lands in the counties of Kankakee, Champaign and Livingston, in Illinois. These lands had the best of soil, yet, on account of their wet character, were useless for farming purposes. By virtue of large canals and dredge ditches these lands were all brought into market, and from them Mr. Gifford derived large profits. Before selling out the major portion of his land in Illinois he planned and built a railway running from West Lebanon, Ind., to Rantoul, Ill., a distance of about seventy miles, which was afterward sold to the Illinois Central Railroad Company, and is now a part of that system. In this transaction Mr. Gifford made $250,000. In 1892 he went to Jasper County, Indiana and began the purchase of lands. This county has been noted for its swamp. After a thorough examination of the character of the soil of these swamp lands, and running levels to ascertain whether there was any outlet for the water, Mr. Gifford began to purchase land in this county, paying from $5 to $25 per acre. He has continued to purchase until he is now the owner of approximately 33,000 acres of land in Jasper County, extending from northwest to southeast a distance of twenty miles. Nelson Morris, of Chicago, owns 20,000 acres adjoining Mr. Gifford's land upon the north and running to the Kankakee River.

Mr. Gifford first excavated a system of canals or dredge ditches of at least 100 miles in length at an immense cost. He has constructed 120 houses and barns at an average cost of $600 each. He has, within the last two years, taken off his land railway ties enough to complete twenty-five to thirty miles of railway. He has now commenced the construction of a railway beginning about two and one-half miles east of De Motte station, on the Indiana, Illinois and Iowa Railway, running thence southeasterly a distance of twenty miles. This line, with the exception of probably two miles, is wholly upon his own land. It crosses the Chicago and Indiana coal branch of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway at Kniman station. The presumption is that eventually the road will be constructed on north across the Kankakee River to Hebron station on the Panhandle Railway, and possibly there may be an independent line on into Chicago without regard to the Panhandle connection. It will run southeasterly to Monon station on the Monon Railway.

The change in this swamp region wrought by the system of canals is almost beyond belief. Within a year and a half lands which would mire a cow or a horse—in fact, lands where an animal would go out of sight, where the muck was from three to six feet deep—have been made to produce corn eight feet high; and a region which was a wilderness without population has been settled by over 100 families, bringing into this county an increase in population of 400 to 600 people. Mr. Gifford is reputed, at the present time, to be worth from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 and has no family except a wife.—Chicago Chronicle.

Took Salts on the Stage.

It is told of a well-known actor, now dead, that he would never take any physic, and his medical adviser was often obliged to resort to some stratagem to impose a dose on him. There is a play in which the hero is sentenced in prison to drink a cup of poison. The actor was playing the part one night and had given directions for the cup to be filled with port, but what was his horror when he came to drink it to find it contained a dose of salts. To throw it away was out of the question, as he had to turn the goblet upside down to show his persecutors he had drained every drop of it. He drank the medicine with the slowness of a poisoned martyr, but he never forgave his medical man, as was proved at his death for he died without paying his doctor's bill.—London Tit-Bits.

Taking Down the Captain.

A former commodore-captain of a famous trans-Atlantic line, whilst friendly and polite to his passengers when below, was very much the reverse if approached when on duty. As he happened to be on deck one fine afternoon a lady, quite unaware of this peculiarity, accosting him with some trifling query as to the probable duration of the favorable weather, was both surprised and indignant to get curtly answered "Don't know, ma'am—don't know. Better go and ask the cook."

The lady, though taken somewhat aback, was quite equal to the occasion and rejoined:

"Oh! I beg a thousand pardons. Excuse me, pray. I thought I was addressing the cook."

Suicide.

According to statistical returns the suicide rates per annum a million of population have risen during the past 30 years from 67 to 86 in England and 40 to 54 in Scotland. It is asserted however, that the tendency to conceal the occurrence of death by suicide has diminished since insanity has become more widely recognized as a disease and this leads to the belief that suicides, on the whole, are not increasing.

"Unless you soon fall off, sir," said the lady in her pony-cart, who had made several unsuccessful attempts to pass a persevering beginner on a bicycle occupying the whole road, "I'm afraid I shall miss my train."—Tit-Bits.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY...NOVEMBER 24, 1898.

OUR BIG CORN

Our readers will remember we offered our subscribers about a month ago, a prize of a year's subscription to WEEKLY COURIER for the best specimen of this year's big corn. We did not then know how difficult a matter we had undertaken. Some specimens would be tallest, others, have the best ears; others be in good condition, others have the highest ears, and so on. We submitted these specimens to nearly every farmer that came in, and the opinions were so varied, that we feel that no one was really and completely ahead of all others. So we have concluded to "compromise" by giving the premium to three of the four brought in. These are A. F. Clark, S. H. Barton and Ben Grogg. The fourth is Cal. Husselman's big corn, a new variety, that everyone who saw admired and wondered at, but no one would say anything definite about it for they feared it would not ripen in an ordinary season. It happened that the specimens Mr. Husselman brought in, were still green and this condition made the decision as to them, quite difficult. His stalks had ears nine feet high, and the stalks 15 feet 3 inches high the same as Barton's. But all who examined the specimens decided that sound ears were what we need in corn.

Our Holiday Gift.

Briefly stated for the present, the COURIER will make a valuable holiday gift to its subscribers. It is a beautiful and useful pamphlet, containing valuable matter, such as laws of health; treatment and care of horses; valuable hints on all subjects; tables of freights: capacities, such as wagon's, cribs, cisterns; foreign money: seed to the acre; wages tables; where plants originated: law notes and law forms; estimate dates and a ready calculator.

Better than all else, is a part of the work having ruled blanks for bookkeeping, such as expense accounts on the farm. This alone is worth the price of a year's subscription.

WHO GETS THE GIFT.

All who have paid one years subscription within the year 1898, or since last January.

All who will come in and pay one year' subscription by February 1, 1899.

And all new subrcribers.

We will explain further next week. You can see s copy any time, here.

OBITUARY

Henrietta B. Park was born Oct. 22, 1836. Died in Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3, 1893 buried at Kendallville, Ind. Her early life was spent at Auburn, Ind., was educated at Fort Wayne Ind., and was married to Rev. John M. Mann, at Auburn, Ind., October 31, 1861. For twenty years she shared his life as an itinerant minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was widely known within the northern limits of the North Indiana conference. After the death of her husband in 1881, she removed to Greencastle, Indiana that her sons might attend college. She lived at Greencastle until in August 1898, when she went to Chicago to make her home with her children

Chairman Walter.

We believe C. C. Walter has now closed up the work of the late campaign, and the verdict of all democrats is that he has done his work well. As chairman of the county committee there was a great amount of hard work to be done, some of it, of a character that would test the ability and patience of anyone. The success with which he met and overcame all these difficulties has made him friends in his own party and won the respect of his opponents. Even those who denied the wisdom of some of the steps he took must now see he was right. But the position is generally a thankless as well as a difficult one, and we feel he should know that his work is appreciated. If all the members of the party had done as well as he, we should now have a straight majority of at least 400, in the county.

Best Cuban History.

The best history of the Cuban War, is the one written by a leading Cuban citizen, Senor Gonzalo de Quesada, the Cuban charge d'affaire at Washington, assisted by Henry D. Northrop the historian. An examination of this book at once reveals its superiority. Senor Quesada knows what he is writing, and well. It is abundantly illustrated with battle scenes of sea and land, famous ships and scenes on the island in country and city. It is a wonderful book of the wonderful historr we made in the last six months and every American should have it. It is being sold here on subscription, S. W. Walter being the agent. He will call on our people more or less each day as his health permits, for as is well known, he is hardly able to get about. We hope he will be literally patronized for it will be appreciated. He is not able to work but will give more than the money's worth in this valuable book,

THE CHRISTIAN MISSION.

The Opening Last Evening a Splendid Success.

At the appointed hour of seven, last evening, the room of the Auburn Christian Mission, was filling rapidly with the earnest and thoughtful christian people who had planned and carried out the work, as well as their friends and well wishers, and friends of the cause. There are 200 chairs in the two rooms and nearly all were occupied, the main room being full, and some standing. The room is neatly papered and well lighted, the chairs are new, and everything looked bright and attractive. Mr. Eckhart had the program in charge, and called on the different speakers as well as selecting most of the songs. Mr. Gaylord led the singing assisted by the members of the Hoosier Quartet. The singing was abundant and fine.

Mrs. Myers, read the scripture lesson, the 34th Psalm, and Rev. J. D. Brosy, delivered a prayer, which was most appropriate for the occasion.

The principal address was made by Mrs. Ehlers, and was a fervid and powerful one in its simple and touching eloquence. We have often had occasion to call attention to her gift in this line, especially to her command of that pure, simple, yet forcible English, that is so rare to find and yet so admirable. If any there be, who doubt that the English language is the strongest and best in the world, they should listen to an appeal from her lips, or from some of the very few who have this rare gift. Her entire address was fervid and eloquent—coming from the heart and reaching the hearts of all. And it was all in the line of thought, which originated this mission, the desire to "save sinners." At its close, all bowed while she delivered a brief prayer.

After a song, Mr. Guild was called, and spoke a few minutes with his usual ability, following in the same line of thought.

Mr. Brosy was called also, responded briefly, yet with feeling and eloquence.

Mrs. Hart, the leader of the mission gave a short address and was followed by the secretary, Mrs. Julia Hodge. Both ladies spoke feelingly and hopefully of the work of the Mission and the good they hoped to see result from it. Only five weeks had elapsed since the first words in favor of such a plan had been spoken.

Mr. Eckhart gave a brief outline of the purposes and plans of the mission, which is primarily to save souls. Here all can come and find encouragement and assistance. The room will be always open to those who earnestly desire such assistance. Let all such feel free to come. They will be made welcome. This place has been secured for two years and he hoped would do much good. The meeting was dismissed by a song, and the benediction by Mr. Guild. It was a splendid success.

Annual Almanac and monthly paper, Word and Works, are known from sea to sea. We are pleased to call the attention of our readers to the Almanac for 1899, now ready. It is a splendidly printed and illustrated book of 116 pages and storm forecasts and diagrams and astronomical and scientific matter are superior to anything that has ever been seen before in a 25 cent book. His monthly journal, Word and Works, is one of the best literary, home and scientific magazines in the country, besides containing his monthly storm forecasts with explanations. The subscription price and Works is $1.00 per year and a copy of the Hicks Almanac is sent as premium to every yearly subscriber. Single copies of Word and Works, 10 cents. Price of Almanac alone, 25 cents. Send your order to Word and Works PUB. Co., 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Progressive Jews

The Jewish Synagogue at Fort Wayne, will celebrate the fiftieth year of the life of the congregation Friday evening of this week, Nov. 25. They have a meeting at their temple and will be addressed by A. Oppenheimer, the only surviving charter member. The exercises will be followed by a banquet at the Standard Club, at which Mrs. A. S. Lauferty and Mrs. A. Oppenheimer will respond to toasts. They will be the first Jewish women who ever took part in public exercises in Fort Wayne, and probably the first in the state.

The Plant Running

Hundreds of spectators wandered down to the water works plant yesterday afternoon to see the big machinery run. It had been running a little at times before, but last night for the first time, the electric lights were run from the new plant. This was for incandescents only, the street lights not running. The great machines work silently, but with power. It is a wonder to see them go. Of course, all the details of the plant are not ready, but there is enough to show that we will have the best one of any town of its size in the country. Alt Moody, the electrician, and we presume Supt. Lewis and other helpers, have made some wonderful arrangements, including what seems to be a big switch board. They got a big marble slab and cut and fitted the attachments to it themselves.

Samples Free.

The great number of newspapers, magazines, etc., that are now being published have made it very hard for the readers to decide just what one they wish to subscribe for. The American Subscription Agency, of Indianapolis, Ind., have compiled a list of 100 papers that they offer to send a sample copy of each to any address upon receipt of 10 cents to pay for mailing. They do this so that you may see and read a copy of each paper before subscribing. If you decide to subscribe to any of their papers to the amount of $1 they offer to deduct the 10 cents sent from the subscribtion. Send 10 cents to the American Subscription Agency, 653 Arch St., Indianapolis, Ind., and you will receive one hundred papers. j23

Don't Like Hot Town.

The town council of Hutchinson, Kan., has passed an ordinance against "A Hot Time In The Old Town Tonight." "Any person or persons," says the ordinance, "who shall willfully and maliciously whistle, hum, sing or bellow said tune, or who shall play the notes thereof upon any organ, hand organ, piano, flute, clarinet, bass drum or any other musical instrument, within the city limits, shall be fined not less than $2 nor more than $20, and confined twenty-four hours in the lock up, or as much longer as the magistrates shall deem best for public welfare."

DR. C. D. WARNER, COLDWATER, MICH.
DEAR SIR:—I was afflicted with that common scourge—"La Grippe," and had violent paroxisms of coughing from which I could get no relief until upon the recommendation of Rev. E. L. Odle I bought a 25 cent bottle of your "White Wine of Tar," which afforded immediate relief. I have taken two bottles and now consider myself cured, and I always recommend it to all my friends who are similarly afflicted, for I know it to be good. Sold by F. E. Davenport.
Very truly yours &c.,

VOTED BY MACHINE

At Rochester, N. Y., It Proved to be Success

A triumph was scored at Rochester, N. Y., election day for the Standard voting machine, an instrument that mechanically records the ballot cast by each votor, There were seventy-three of the machines—one in each election district. Each worked without a hitch and all were easily operated by even the less intelligent of the voters. In fact, it was not even required to explain the system, it was so simple and apparent,

The rapidity of the machines can be understood from the fact that the entire vote of Rochester had been counted and turned in at police headquarters exactly thirty-seven minutes after the polls closed.

Three Daughters of the Revolution.

Albion New Era.

Nathan Chapman, of Argos, Ind., has been entertaining for a few days, three daughters of a soldier of the revolutionary war. They are Mrs. B. Bell, of St. Paul: Mrs. Philip Klingesmith, of Peru, Ind., and Mrs. Harlo Glazier, of Wabash, Ind. Their father, as the records show, was an officer in the revolutionary war, serving with distinction upon George Washington's staff. The ladies now have in their possession his commission, signed in Washington's own hand. A special bill providing for a pension for the widows and daughters of revolutionary soldiers has been presented by Congressman Steele, and the ladies are here securing evidence to further their claims for pensions. Mr. Steele says the pension records show that there are only nine surviving daughters of these revolutionary soldiers, and these three ladies are among the number.

WRONG END OF THE STRING.

If You Have Sotmach Trouble You Must Expect Nervousness, Heart Palpitation, Headache, Rheumatism, and Other Suffering.

You hold the wrong end of the string when you doctor the nerves for nervous prostration. Bad liver and bad stomach cause bad nerves. Make the liver and stomach right and you will have sound and evenly balanced nerves. Every adult knows the stomach is the nerve center. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure will sooth, calm and make healthy the entire nervous system, because it is a liver and stomach regulator that acts upon those organs so that proper nourishment and pure blood is furnished to the nerves. It is an impossibility to have pure blood with a diseased stomach. Food decays upon entering the stomach, poisons the blood, affects the nervous system, heart, etc. It is not a relief you want, but a cure for your suffering. Dr. Stone's New Dspepsia Cure removes the cause.

Many people say: "I like it but cau't eat it, hurts my stomach." You can eat anything when taking this wonderful remedy; in fact the heartier you eat the more speedy will a cure be brought about. There is no case of dyspepsia or indigestion that Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure can not give permanent relief.

Mr. George Smitley, of 110 Corona street, an employe of the Conn horn factory, says Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure has relieved him of a dreadful case of stomach trouble of many years' standing, and is ready to recommend the remedy to persons similarly affected.

You feel good when taking this medicine. It keeps the stomach and liver in their proper shape, and with perfect ly digested meals, man generally feels O. K. You get a 50 cent box at once from McCord's drug store, and if you are not benefited we want you to take it back and get your 50 cents. Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure is not a new medicine nor an experiment. Are you willing to try to be cured under the above proposition? Then go ahead. The Stone Drug Co, Elkhart, Ind.

His Wife Couldn't Cook.

So he decided to apply for a divorce, for he considered he had good grounds therefor. But the Judge, after hearing his complaint, scratched the bald place on the top of his head, looked over his specs at the poor fellow, shifted the quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and said: "You don't need no divorce You go home and ask your wife to forgive you. On the way home stop at Davenport's and buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; take it according to directions, and if you can't eat anything in less than a week from biled cabbage up, come up to me and I will give you a divorce and alimony both."

Thought the Coach on Fire.

[Goshen Democrat;]

Great excitement was caused on Lake Shore train, No. 14, at LaPorte Wednesday night. A terrible smell in the car gave out the impression that the furnishings were ablaze and the couch soon became smoky. Investigation proved that a lady had dropped her wad of chewing gum on the steam pipe which was the cause of all the commotion.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

BUTLER.

Died at her home in Butler, Ind., 19, 1898, after a short illness, Louisa A. Brundage, in the 77th year of her age. Louisa A Roberts was born in Ontario County N. Y., June 1822. She removed with her father, Collins Roberts to Indiana 1838, and settled in Wilmington township. She engaged in teaching school, when the country was yet very new, and Indians were plenty. She assisted in organizing the first Sunday school in Newville township and became a teacher in it, On Jan. 21, 1847, she was united in marriage to Hiram Brundage who preceded her in death March 1880. To this union were born six children, four namely, Mary, now the wife of James Freman, Calista wife of Hiram McCullough, Celesta her twin sister and Lottie well known among the teachers of this county. Mrs. Brundage removed to Butler soon after her husbands death and with her daughters made her home with our people. She has been a faithful member of the U. B. church for nearly her whole life, Her death breaks a family circle that has held lovingly together these many years. Her funeral took place from the U. B. church last, Rev. Smith officiating assited by Rev. Tedro.

—A call for service awaited Dr. E. V. Campbell's induction into the office of coroner.

It is whipered that J. J. Crow, a former well know citizen of Butler is coming to his first love, and will soon occupy a place among Butler's business men.

J. A. Campbell, accompanied by A. B. Hahn, of Richmond, Ind., adjusted a loss near Edon, Ohio, last Thursday.

J. A. Madden's house has settled on its foundation on East North street, when repaired it will add not a little to this the finest street in town.

John Baxter's barn has also ceased wandering and stopped to stay near his residence on North-street.

The M. E. Sunday school is taking steps to have an interesting Christmas entertainment.

There are about a half dozen young men in Butler, that are forever, day, night, and even Sunday, hanging about the doors of the south end saloon. The proprietors have perhaps kicked them out, because they have no money to buy their poison. They have become such lovers of the accursed stuff that they hang about the door to get even a smell of the fumes that emanate from within, fumes that turn a temperate stomach up side down.

Union Thanksgiving services will be observed Thursday in the Church of God. Rev. Bloyd delivering the discourse.

—When you ask for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve don't accept a counterfeit or imitation. There are more cases of Piles being cured by this, than all others combined. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

---Baby photographs a specialty at Lybarger's Gallery North Main, Auburn.

—Our consul at Athens, Greece says over 100 Greeks asked to be mustered in as volunteers last summer, to come over and fight for Uncle Sam. He told them we had more men already than we could use.

—The Hedekin Foot Ball Club played an exhibition game for the lady students of Westminster school, Fort Wayne, the other day. Out of regard to the girls, they played gently and no bones were broken.

—Keeley, who claimed to have invented a new and wonderful motor is dead. Though friends furnished money to make a good many machines, not one was ever made public, and it will probably never be known whether they were frauds or not.

—The new sheriff, Mr. Hathaway is now fully installed busy and in his office, and work goes smoothly on. Miss Blanche Shilling as office clerk insure that part of the work properly done. We are glad to see her retained for she is experienced and capable.

—A cough is not like a fever. It does not have to run a certain course. Cure it quickly and effectually with One Minute Cough Cure, the best remedy for all ages and for the most severe cases. We recommend it because it's good. Fischler & Son and H. B. McCord.

—S. A. Russ, the original bluing man was here Wednesday, looking up his interests. It appears that the new firm in some way got ahead of him and got control of his original patents or copy rights, but that he is going forward with a new and improved product. Patent right men have their troubles the same as the rest of us.

—Rev. J. A. Croy, of Marion, is in the city being called here by the severe illness of his father, Rev. H. A Croy who resides on East 9th-st. He has been getting worse for some time, and is now a great part of the time unconscious. His condition gives his many friends serious cause of alarm for at his advanced age it is doubtful if he can rally.

—We were favored Saturday evening with a call from Editor Ellis, the new proprietor of the Garrett Clipper. We find him a very agreeable gentleman and trust our relations with him may always be pleasant. We believe he is already in possession of the paper. Mr. Ellis informs us he was a dispatcher for the B & O., at Garrett some years ago, so it will be seen he is not among strangers.

—Admiral Dewey reports that he has saved two of the ships he sank at Manila last May, the Isla de Luzon and the Isla de Cuba, and has them anchored at the docks of Cavite. He will soon raise another, the Don Juan de Austria. The total cost of saving the three ship is about half a million, and they are large gunbboats.

—Charles O'Tenney has been employed by John L. Davis, the hardware man, to fill the place of Mr. Lewis, who resigned in order to give proper attention to the water works and electric light plant. Mr. O'Tenney is a skillful and experienced tinner, and Mr. Davis congratulates himself upon being able to secure a man like him.

—Rev. W. L. Meese is now living by himself in the house next east of J. A. Clifton's, and will be pleased to have his friends call on him. To those who are not familiar with the streets, we might say he is on the north side of 9th-st near the west end. This is the street running west along by the National Bank and Swineford House.

—B. F. Myers, wife and little son, were callers, Monday. Their home is now at Bankers, Mich., where he is section foreman on the Lake Shore road. They have been visiting relatives at the old home neighborhood south of town for a few days and are also going to visit Mrs. Myers' people over in Noble county a few days. They like their new home and their prospects up there in every way except as to schools. They are free to express their opinion that Indiana district schools are superior to those in Michigan. And they are right. Indiana has the best laws for common schools, found in any state.

A Narrow Escape

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Reguler size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Quarantine Raised

At their meeting last evening the Town Council of Auburn passed the following resolution:

RESOLVED, That the quanatine resolution heretofore passed on the 7th day of November, 1898 be raised on Wednesday, Nov. 23, 1898. This gives an authoritative closing of the two weeks quarantine on account of diphtheria.

—Three new families are locating in Auburn, and seeking for houses to move into. Only one has found a house, so far. Any one who knows of an empty house, should get word to them. They are the men who are going to work in the Auburn Foundry and machine Works plant now starting up again.

—Gov Mount says he is not a candidate for United States Senator He prefers to serve out his time as governor and that is the proper thing for him to do. He is too light weight for senator. We still believe the only fit man so far mentioned is Judge Taylor, and he is not so much of a statesman as he ought to be, to fill that place.

—Judge Roby is again in the active practice of his profession as an attorney and is putting in a part of this week at Angola. He has in most regards made an excellent Judge. The work has been carefully and conscientiously done, and great pains taken to save time and expense. The COURIER especially compliments him on the stand he has generally taken in favor of the moral side of all questions. The manly and fearless stand he has taken on such matters has won for him, golden opinion of all good citizens.

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October—our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85; hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

WILSON,
The Shoe Man.

Some people complain about the wear of their Shoes, but they are not those who wear those waterproof Dongola Shoes sold by Wilson.

A Fair Proposition.

If ladies will go to each shoe store in town and take home a pair of their $2 50 or even $3.00 shoes marked in plain figures and go to Wilson's and ask for a pair of his famous $2.00 shoes. Then if you do not believe that Wilson can and does save you from 50c to $1.00 a yair on such shoes why then its our treat.

Warm Slippers.

We bought a lot of Ladies, Misses and Childrens slippers and notice our seven is before the nine—79c is the price at Wilson's.

Rubber Footwear

is often a source of much annoyance. Buy them at last years prices of Wilson, who keeps more rubbers than any one else hereabouts having sold over 4,000 pairs last year. Wilson has the goods as well as the prices.

Felt and Knit Boots.

Buy them where you have an assortment to pick from, the best makes guaranteed and prices are right. Wilson is the man who keeps them.

Arctics and Overshoes.

Tis often difficult to get a fit. Don't go in to any store and accept of a poor fit. Come to us and we are right in the swim with more styles and more toes than can be found in the county. Wilson's is the place and prices are right.

School Shoes.

Mothers and Fathers often worry about the large amount of cash it takes to buy school shoes for their children. Come in and let us pick you out what is needed and our word for it your money back if they don't wear, at Wilson's.

THANKSGIVING HYMN.

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is bright—
The gleam of the day, and the stars of the night;
The flowers of our youth and the fruits of our prime,
And blessings that march down the pathway of time.

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is dear—
The sob of the tempest, the flow of the tear:
For never in blindness, and never in vain,
Thy mercy permitted a sorrow or pain.

We thank Thee, O Father, for song and for feast—
The harvest that glowed and the wealth that increased:
For never a blessing encompassed earth's child,
But Thou in Thy mercy looked downward and smiled.

We thank Thee, O Father of All, for Thy power
Of aiding each other in life's darkest hour;
The generous heart and the bountiful hand,
And all the soul help that sad souls understand.

We thank Thee, O Father, for days yet to be—
For hopes that our future will call us to Thee—
That all our Eternity form, through Thy love,
The Thanksgiving day in the mansions above.

—Will Carleton.

THE VACANT CHAIR.

IT seemed to Aunt Huldah Simmons that the pumpkin had never looked so pale and waxy, the apples so weazened, even the turkey itself so lifelessly dismal, as on that especial Thanksgiving morning.

"It's going to be a failure!" she said snappishly. "For twenty years the cheeriest, the brightest, the happiest celebration under this roof ever was—and now!"

Aunt Huldah plunged her arms to the elbows into the flour barrel, and choked with the dust she raised, and was glad of an excuse to smother a kind of a sob.

Just then the grocerman from town drove up, brought in his basket of "extrys and fixin's," and for a moment stopped to steam his snow-crusted shoes at the blazing fireplace.

"Well, mum! well, mum!" he said briskly, "on hand, as I see? Why, it's getting to be a milestone in my life, mum!"

"What is?" demanded Aunt Huldah tartly. Poor soul, she did not feel overcompanionable.

"Coming here—at this hour, on this day. Think of it, Miss Simmons! For twenty year, every Thanksgiving day, I've delivered the ordered basket of raisins, and currants, and mace, and citron, and nuts, and every Thanksgiving morning for twenty year your blessed face has smiled 'Come in!' I say, mum, if some Thanksgiving morning I should miss just this, I'd go home, shut up shop, and begin to think 'Things hain't right—the best dinner in the world ain't going to be cooked today!'"

"You'll miss, next time!" almost grumbled Aunt Huldah.

"Don't tell, Miss Simmons—oh, shorely not!" and the grocer looked anxious.

"Yes, 'twill!" affirmed Huldah, half crying, half mad.

"And what's the matter, mum?"

"The charm is gone, the circle is broken, and—don't pester me, man! I'm that downcast! I feel more like a day of fasting than feasting!"

The storekeeper gave a solemn nod of adieu, and stalked out to his wagon miserably.

"It's that boy!" he sighed, and wagged his head gravely.

Dolorously he wagged it all the way back to town. "That boy" was a lively theme that afforded him plenty to think about.

For twenty years Aunt Huldah Simmons had come over from Parkville to superintend Thanksgiving dinner for brother Enoch Dalton and his wife.

For twenty years there had sat at the festal table the two happiest children in the State—Nanny and Walter.

Aunt Huldah had watched them graduate from high chair to common folks' chair—had seen Nanny grow into a charming miss, and Walter into a stalwart, handsome fellow, "a trifle too lively for the times!"

Two years back he had come to the Thanksgiving table late—for the first time since he knew what Thanksgiving dinners were.

One year back he came later, and talked loud and long, and his eye was suspiciously bright, and, Huldah noted, those of his parents secretly dimmed and sorrowful.

In December gossip told Aunt Huldah that her nephew had "gone to the dogs." In February gossip had it that there had been "a terrible row" between father and son.

When May blossoms were painting the vines rose and snow color, the story came

"OH, MY BOY! MY BOY!"

of a dissipated son ordered out of the house till he could behave like a man—of a high-spirit answering the stern affront with a prompt departure, and not a word had been heard of the wandering son, brother and nephew since.

So, no wonder that Aunt Huldah browned the turkey with a lack-spirit zest, that doleful morning—and no wonder that pretty Nanny beat the pudding sauce between spells of tears, for there was a vacant chair at the Dalton table only one person could fill, and he was a wanderer, lost, missing, that sad Thanksgiving day.

Tap—tap!

"Come in!" spoke Mr. Dalton.

"It's a tramp," murmured Aunt Huldah.

"Sit down, won't you, and have some dinner?" insinuated Mrs. Dalton's gentle, motherly tones.

The dinner had been a blank failure. Pretty Nanny was almost thankful for the incident that distracted thoughts and attention from the vacant chair beside her.

The cloaked, snow-shot figure entering moved towards that chair at the invitation.

"Not there!" sharply said Mr. Dalton.

"No, set another chair and plate, sister," suggested his wife.

"I'll take this one!" amazingly spoke the intruder. "You thought enough of scapegrace Walter to keep him in memory, eh, folks? Well, maybe I deserved it!"

Back went the enveloping ulster, and a bronzed, bearded fellow smiled, all hands around.

"Wait!" he said, as Aunt Huldah shrieked hysterically, as Nanny glided up tremblingly, as his mother nearly fainted, and his father turned white, hopeful, anxious. "I've come back a new Walter. I've been in the Cuban war."

"Oh, my boy! my boy!" murmured his mother poignantly.

"Father, if I hadn't been 'all right' I'd never have had the courage to face what lost me that"—and the hero showed one arm missing at the elbow. "If I had not learned to obey orders better than when I left home, they would never have honored me with those," and Walter indicated the barred shoulder straps he wore.

"I've come back for forgiveness—a better boy, a new Walter," went on the soldier-penitent. "And I've brought a pledge that I mean to live life in earnest. Father, mother, this is my wife!"

Walter had stepped back to open the door.

There, shy, beautiful, with anxious pleading in her lovely Cuban face, was the girl-wife of the boy-soldier.

"Come in!" spoke Nanny, her soul in her eyes, her welcoming hands outstretched.

"Yes," brokenly but fervently cried Mr. Dalton. "As Uncle Sam says to all his wards, 'Enter! Here is home!' My boy, your story tells itself. Welcome, Walter and wife, to the happiest Thanksgiving reunion in Christendom!"

"And I slighted the turkey!" mourned Aunt Huldah Simmons, under her breath, "and I made the biscuits just as my heart felt—like lead! I'm punished for shirking my duty. Well, in this world you never can know what's going to happen next!"

GROUNDS FOR THANKFULNESS.

Mrs. Blimmer Didn't Quite See It as Frederick Did.

"THANKSGIVING day again! Well, I haven't anything to be thankful for," announced Mrs. Blimmer, at the breakfast table, as she looked across at her husband.

"Why, my dear," replied he, "you have me."

"I have you, have I?" replied Mrs. Blimmer. "And that is something for me to be thankful for, is it? Well, not that I know of, it isn't, Frederick Blimmer. Thankful that I have you, indeed? It was the greatest mistake of my life in marrying you, and I have never ceased to regret it. It was all right to marry me, so far as you were concerned. It was quite a feather in your cap to marry one of the Jonesey girls, but I think I must have been clean out of my mind when I said yes, and I think all my folks must have been plumb crazy ever to think of letting me marry you. I had an idea that I loved you, but I see now that I didn't know what an idea was, and if I had it to do over again I'd marry any man in the whole wide world before I'd come to you, Frederick Blimmer. And you needn't try to interrupt me, as you always do when I have a word to say, for I'll not listen to you. It isn't as though I had no chance to marry any other man, either, that I took you. I could have married Joe Simpson, as fine a man as ever walked on two legs, and he treats his present wife like as if she was an angel from heaven, and she not his first choice, either. Then, Jack Dukes was fairly pining away for me, but I didn't have sense enough to marry him, although I knew he was only waiting for a little encouragement, but I was that independent I never would encourage a man the least bit. Besides those two there was Frank Palmer, who fairly worshiped the ground I walked on, but I wouldn't have anything to do with him because his hair was red, but it's a mighty fine-looking man he's got to be, and they do say his wife doesn't want for a thing, and she's as proud of him as if he was a king, and—Frederick Blimmer, what are you putting on your overcoat for? Didn't you say that you had a holiday to-day, and that we would spend a happy Thanksgiving day together, like we did when we were first married? Oh, well, go out if you want to, but if you are not home by 1 o'clock sharp not a bit of Thanksgiving dinner do you get."

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.—Porteus.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING DINNER IN NEW ENGLAND.

FIRST THANKSGIVING.

Indian Chiefs Were Hospitably Entertained by Pilgrims.

EVER since the year following the landing of the Pilgrims we have been observing Thanksgiving day. The first Thanksgiving was appointed by Gov. Bradford at Plymouth, Mass., in 1621, in order that the colonists in a more special way could rejoice together at having all things in good and plenty, writes Clifford Howard in the Ladies' Home Journal. In preparation for the feast "gunners were sent into the woods for wild turkeys, which abounded there in great numbers; kitchens were made ready for preparing the feast—especially the large one in Dame Brewster's house, which was under the immediate direction and charge of Priscilla Molines, she who afterward became the wife of John Alden—while a messenger was dispatched to invite Massasoit, the chief of the friendly tribe, to attend the celebration.

"Early on the morning of the appointed Thursday—about the first of November—Massasoit and ninety of his warriors arrived on the outskirts of the village, and with wild yells announced their readiness to enjoy the hospitality of their white brethren. The little settlement, which now consisted of seven dwellings and four public buildings, was soon astir with men, women and children, who gave the Indians a hearty welcome as they filed into the large square in front of the Governor's house. Soon the roll of a drum announced the hour of prayer, for no day was begun without this religious service. Then followed a holiday of feasting and recreation, which continued not only during that day but during the two succeeding days. The usual routine of duties was suspended; the children romped about in merry play; the young men indulged in athletic sports and games in friendly rivalry with the Indians; the little American army of twenty men, under the leadership of Miles Standish, went through its drill and manual of arms, to the great delight and astonishment of the natives, while the women busied themselves in the careful preparation of the excellent meals, which were eaten in the open air.

A Thanksgiving Note.

Talk about Thanksgiving, with its pleasures and its joys—
We're all a-looking forward to a meeting with the boys,
And Sue will come from college, and Jimmy won't forget,
And we'll all feel mighty happy that we're this side Jordan yet!
I've seen the turkey spreading of his feathers fair and fine,
And his "gobble, gobble, gobble" seems to dare the folks to dine.
The verdict's been against him, and his execution's set,
And he makes the folks feel happy that they're all a-living yet!

A THANKSGIVING TURKEY.

Here Is a Stuffing from a Famous Chef's Notebook.

There is a chef in one of the large hotels of New York who is famous for his roast turkey. Turkey under his hands comes out not only a beautiful brown, but of a delicious flavor quite different from any other turkey that ever was seen. The turkey meat is positively rich, and even the white meat that is generally dry has a moist, spicy taste.

This is his recipe for roast turkey, which he kindly consented to give the household department:

Clean the turkey with as little handling as possible and rinse with water in which a little baking soda has been dissolved. Now break up about half a pint of bread crumbs and into the crumbs chop two links of pork sausage. Stuff the turkey with this mixture and just before putting into the oven bind salt pork on the breast of the turkey. Remove the pork just before the turkey is taken from the oven.

THE THANKSGIVING BIRD.

When the meat is carved its flavor will be found very superior. This is particularly to be recommended for the Thanksgiving turkey, which, with so many other dainties rivaling it, must be very appetizing to be enjoyed.

A Vienna hotel has 1,500 rooms.

Hi! on Thanksgiving day,
When from East and from West,
From North and from South, come the pilgrim and guest;
When the gray-haired New-Englander sees round his board
The old broken links of affection restored,
When the care-wearied man seeks his mother once more
And the worn matron smiles where the girl smiled before—
What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye?
What calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie?

O—fruit loved of boyhood—the old days recalling,
When wood-grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling!
When wild, ugly faces we carved in its skin,
Glaring out through the dark with a candle within,
When we laughed round the corn heap with hearts all in tune,
Our chair a broad pumpkin—our lantern the moon,
Telling tales of the fairy who traveled like steam,
In a pumpkin shell coach, with two rats for her team!

Then thanks for the present—one sweeter or better
E'er smoked from an oven or circled a platter!
Fairer hands never wrought at a pastry more fine,
Brighter eyes never watched o'er its baking, than thine;
And the prayer, which my mouth is too full to express,
Swells my heart that thy shadow may never grow less,
That the days of thy lot may be lengthened below,
And fame of thy worth like a pumpkin-vine grow,
And thy life be as sweet, and its last sunset sky
Golden-tinted and fair as thy own pumpkin pie!

—Whittier.

A little clerk,
A little jerk,
A little dirk,
Will make a little dinner.

The Real Thanksgiving.

When the chestnut burrs are op'ning
And the leaves are leaving fast,
They are hustling up at gran'pop's
To prepare the grand repast,
That the city sons and daughters
Yearly get from dear gran'marm;
When they go to spend Thanksgiving,
Yes, Thanksgiving at the farm.

How they crowd the loved old farm house
With their children great and small,
Till they overflow the bedrooms
And must camp out in the hall!
Oh, the way they keep increasing,
Fills the old folks with alarm,
At the advent of Thanksgiving;
Yes, Thanksgiving at the farm!

But at last the guests must scatter;
They must all go back to town;
While the old-time peace and quiet
On the household settles down.
Then the dear old folks just revel
In its pleasant, peaceful charm—
And, I tell you, there's Thanksgiving;
Yes, Thanksgiving at the farm!

On Desert Air.

As It Seemed to Him.

"How do they make these?" asked Tommy after he had taken his allowance of fresh cider from a tiny wine glass.

"Blow them," answered his mother.

"Why?"

"The feller that blowed this one must have been short of wind."

Gave Thanks.

"We should all think of the poor on Thanksgiving."

"So we should. Did you give anything this year?"

"Oh, yes."

"What?"

"Thanks."

All the fall they feed the turkey,
Till he's almost had enough,
But he learns their motive only
When they cry, "You're just the stuff!"

POLITICS OF THE DAY

MUST BE A CHANGE.

The loss of a par of exchange between gold-using and silver-using countries, and the constant tendency of a lower exchange are productive of uncertainty and loss in commercial transactions difficult to exaggerate. Prof. Foxwell says: "There are 432 pars of exchange depending on the ratio between gold and silver. The whole of these and the trade that rests on them are left to fluctuate with every passing change in the bullion market. Every calculation of business and finance in these pars is enough to turn the fine profit of modern trade into a loss. Take one of them—the par between the rupee and the sovereign. The variation of this par in a single year has so upset the calculations of the Indian Finance Minister as to turn a surplus of £1,000,000 into a deficit of £2,000,000." The fall in silver exchange has been a constant protection to the industries of silver-using countries and a bounty on their exports. While their mints were open to silver both Japan and India profited by this process amazingly. The progress of the former country for twenty years under the silver standard was absolutely unexampled among nations, and similarly the trade and manufactures of India thrived. But hardly were the mints of India closed in 1893, and scarcely had Japan taken her initial steps toward her recent adoption of the gold standard, when each began to feel the evil effects of a constricting money supply, falling prices and the competition of the countries, like China and Mexico, whose mints remained open to silver. During the four years succeeding the closure of the mints India's excess of exports over imports fell off over 60 per cent., while that of Mexico increased more than 40 per cent. Japan has been compelled to witness lately a marvelous awakening in China and to feel her hated and humbled rival seizing the commercial and industrial advantages which she herself had previously enjoyed, as against the Western nations, and which the adoption of an artificially limited money accommodation has compelled her to relinquish. British capital is fleeing from India, her industries are languishing, prices are falling, the burdens of taxation are increasing, and the mutterings of popular discontent lend to the situation a political complexion of extraordinary gravity as affecting English supremacy in India, and, indirectly, the peace of the world. It is safe to describe the situation as intolerable, and to predict that the nations will not permit it to continue much longer.

Condition Intolerable.

At present the experiment of the gold standard is in a state of incompleteness. In almost no country has it yet been installed in its entirety. To go on with it to the logical conclusion of the gold valuation system is a practical impossibility, while it is equally out of the question for the world to remain in its present monetary condition. Let us examine these propositions somewhat more fully. The gold standard in its simplicity means the abolition of every other kind of money of full debt-paying power except gold alone, and the use of various forms of credit based on gold in the ordinary transactions of business. We may see an indication of this intended consummation in the various schemes of "monetary reform" recently proposed and now pending in Congress, the so-called Gage plan, that of the "Indianapolis sound-money convention," and that embodied in the McCleary bill now on the calendar of the House of Representatives, all of which share the aim so distinctly announced by the Secretary of the Treasury, to commit the country more thoroughly to the gold standard, and agree in their essential provisions. They contemplate the retirement of all forms of government paper money, our greenbacks and treasury notes, and the reduction of our standard silver dollar into a mere promise to pay in gold. The inevitable result of such a course would soon be the absolute disuse of silver for money except as small change, the melting and sale for use in the arts of about half a billion silver dollars, and the contraction of our circulation to such a quantity as should be furnished by our distributive share of the world's gold, plus such a paper circulation as the banks could keep actually redeemable in gold.

Altgeld on Recent Elections.

When viewed as a whole, the 1898 election was favorable to the Democrats. While the Democrats in Congress and out of Congress forced the administration into the war they knew that it would give it a tremendous political advantage, for they knew the war must be successful, and a successful war always strengthens the party in power. The Republicans should have received much larger majorities than two years ago. Instead of that they have lost forty Congressmen and a large number of others had their majorities almost wiped out. One more such a Republical victory will destroy that party and forever end the hypocrisy and false pretense now reigning in Washington. The Democrats have not lost a single State they carried two years ago, but, on the contrary, have elected a Governor in Minnesota, which is equal to a miracle. That element of the Democratic party which has favored the abandonment of all principle and has urged harmony for the sake of spoils has had a chance to try its scheme and has utterly failed. In Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and one or two other States where they had refused to indorse the national platform they have suffered humiliating defeat, although in some of these States the conditions favored the Democratic victory. I understand that nearly every Democratic Congressman elected in these States was unsuccessful because he told his constituents, if elected, he would support the national platform. That fraudulent sideshow called gold Democracy will now pass out of existence, and the Democratic party from the Atlantic to the Pacific will line up on higher ground. It will assume the aggressive and not only fight for the mighty principles enunciated in 1896, but it will make itself the champion of struggling humanity. It will pull this country out of the pool of corruption into which the Republicans have dragged it, and it will lead our people toward a higher civilization. Tuesday's election will make Mr. Bryan more formidable than he ever was, because it is going to bring to the front the great principles which he has advocated.—John P. Altgeld.

Meaning of Roosevelt's Victory.

The election of Theodore Roosevelt to be Governor of New York is not an administration victory. It is not a result for President McKinley and his immediate political friends to be felicitous over. It flatly presents another candidate for the highest favor of the Republican national convention in 1900. It will be of no avail to affect contempt of Roosevelt as a Presidential possibility. The facts will have to be stared in the face. One of these facts is that a man who has been elected Governor of New York cannot be flippantly shoved aside if his friends and those who see personal advantage in supporting him choose to consider him fit for the most eminent advancement.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Changes in New York Politics.

New York can change its politics with greater facility than any other State in the Union. In electing Roosevelt by a majority of 20,000 it upset a Democratic plurality of 60,000 given a year ago in the election for Supreme Court Judge. The result in 1897 was a radical reversal of the vote in 1896, when McKinley carried the State by 268,000 majority, and that was again an overturning in the status of the vote as it stood in 1892, when the Democrats carried the State by 45,000.—Kansas City Star.

Quay Triumphs Again.

Standing under the shadow of an indictment which, if honestly prosecuted, would probably land him in the penitentiary, Matt Quay proudly points to the election returns in Pennsylvania as a personal vindication. He not only assumes that his own garments are now white as snow, but he gives voice to virtuous indignation in speaking of those who attempted to defeat "his" candidate for Governor and "his" candidates for the Legislature.

The President to Blame.

The President is said to have remarked recently, in a tone of mingled amazement and resentment: "They blame Alger, but I was the Secretary of War." In one sense he was, since he chose Alger and kept him and made himself responsible for him, and even in the speeches of his recent tour tried to screen him. It was a terrible blunder, and Mr. McKinley will have to pay for it through all the rest of his term.—New York Times.

Slow-Working Peace Commissioners.

Judging from the deliberate way in which the American Peace Commissioners are acting, there may be something in the statement that the Spanish war was a Republican war. Things are not being closed up in the way in which Democrats have been in the habit of closing them. Imagine, if you can, Andrew Jackson submitting to the delay and the Spanish and European insults that are being heaped upon us.—Peoria Herald.

CONVICT'S ODD FACE.

Abnormal Expression Caused by Paralysis of the Facial Nerves.

Angello Del Bello was the first man convicted of murder in the first degree in Ohio not sentenced to receive the penalty of death. He was not sentenced to death because of insanity, yet he is not insane. He is confined in the prison asylum, though he is not a lunatic. Del Bello is a native Italian, but seems to understand neither English nor Italian, comprehends nothing that is said to him, is oblivious of punishment, and is a puzzle to the prison physicians. Since his confinement his face has begun to twist over toward the right. At first the doctors thought it was an illusion, but measurements show that the head is contracting on one side.

A prominent physician, quoting Dr. Bastien's treatise on facial disorders, said: "The diagnosis of this case is a matter of considerable difficulty. It is reasonable to suppose, however, that Deputy Warden Dawson's remark that the man's mentality was of too low an order to admit of insanity is incorrect. Del Bello is suffering from what Dr. Bastien calls the 'reaction of degeneration.' His mind has descended to the brute plane. He has allowed his mind to become such a blank that it has lost its usefulness, and has now begun to show the effects of lethargy.

"Del Bello's experience ought to be a warning to those who let their 'angry passions rise.' He has allowed anger to sway him to such an extent that the nerves of the brain have become affected and have lost their functions. Owing to violence the trunk of the nerves first became affected, the inflammation gradually spreading until the facial nerves became entirely paralyzed, allowing the face to assume an abnormal expression."

WILL WED WILHELMINA.

Of All Her Suitors the Prince of Wied Is the Favorite.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is to marry her cousin, Prince William of Wied. It is a love match, and, while it does not particularly please the courtiers and royal match-makers, who wanted the young Queen to wed some monarch or heir apparent, the gentle Wilhelmina is happy.

Prince William of Wied is the second son of Prince William Adolphus Maximilian Charles, whose family domain is at Neuweid, Rhenish Prussia. He was born March 26, 1876, and is therefore in his twenty-third year. As Prince of Wied he would have attracted little attention in European court circles; as the consort of Queen Wilhelmina he will be the first gentleman in the kingdom of Holland. Only the Queen herself will take precedence of him, and his place will be beside her at all court and other official ceremonies. He will share her income, and his children will inherit her throne. In a word, he will occupy in Holland the same position that Prince Albert occupied in England as consort of Queen Victoria.

Queen Wilhelmina has had many suitors. Among them were Prince Louis Napoleon, Prince Bernard Henry of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, whose suit was pressed by Emperor William; Prince Frederick Henry of Prussia, Prince Harold of Denmark, Prince Nicholas of Greece, and Prince Alfred of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, who is a grandson of Queen Victoria. But she dismissed them all in favor of young William of Wied.

WILLIAM OF WIED.

Lighting Mines.

The extending use of electricity is well illustrated by its use for lighting mines. The candle or oil lamp of former days was not only dangerous in coal mines, where there is likelihood of an explosion, but it furnished a very imperfect light and compelled the miner to work in semi-darkness. Small electric lamps, to be carried by the miners, were introduced in France; but they were objectionable on account of their weight—nearly five pounds—and also because they would burn only a few hours without being recharged. The lamps are now being attached to the roofs of the galleries, currents being established by means of wires. By this means an abundance of continuous light is obtained, but care must be exercised in insulating the wires, to prevent friction or sparks which might provoke an explosion or ignite surrounding wood-work.

Forest Stands on Ice.

One of the largest forests in the world stands on ice. It is situated between Ural and the Okhotsk sea. A well was recently dug in that region, when it was found that at a depth of 250 feet the ground was still frozen.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way.

It creeps its way along.

First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats.

The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage.

Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping.

FARMERS' CORNER

Famous Lincoln Sheep.

Fine pastures make fine flocks, and this fine Lincolnshire sheep is reared on the richest pastures of the world, as well as fed on the succulent roots grown on the fertile farms.

Recently this sheep has come into the forefront as an improver of the native flocks of Australia and South America, the half-bred mutton making the finest shipping mutton for the English markets. The ram whose portrait is given was purchased from the leading flock in Lincolnshire, England, for the sum of one thousand pounds sterling, an amazing figure for something over three hundred pounds of mutton. But the animal was unquestionably worth it, for its destination is to more than double the value of thousands of the poor sheep of Argentina, and to add ten times its cost to the profit of the shepherds of these great plains for all time to come.

LINCOLN RAM RIBY.

Clover Fails on Clover Sod.

Almost all farmers know that it is not safe to plow a clover sod, or, in fact, any other sod in the fall, and then sow wheat with the expectation of getting a clover catch from seed next spring. There have been various reasons assigned for this, the old one being that the clover sod while it is rotting in the soil "poisons" the land for clover until the rotting is completed. But it is quite as impossible to seed with clover on any newly plowed sod, and that disposes of the clover-poisoning theory. The true explanation seems to be that when a sod of any kind is decaying under the furrow it allows the soil above it to fall down, thus destroying the slight hold which the young clover plant has, and obliging it to regain its hold before the leaf wilts and kills the root. Clover will come up well enough on a clover or any other kind of sod, but unless there are almost constant rains during the spring little of it will live. Even a timothy seeding does not do well on a newly plowed sod, though in young plants the proportion of leaf to root is much less in the grass than it is in any kind of clover.

A Haying Device.

It is a difficult thing to get on and off a load of hay; and yet both operations are often necessary with each load of hay that is drawn in. Make a light ladder and hinge it at the rear end of the hay rack, so that it can be inclined forward on the floor when not in use. When ready to load set up the ladder and the hay will keep it firmly back against the back end of the rack, ready for use either in ascending the load, or in coming down from it.—New England Homestead.

LADDER FOR HAYRACK.

Water Horses Frequently.

It is not natural for the horse to go long without a drink of water. His stomach is small and cannot hold a water supply for a long time. Watering morning, noon and night when at work in summer time is none too often. If the work is very heavy two tablespoonfuls of oat meal stirred in the pail will make the horse drink better, and will also prevent so much cold water from injuring his stomach. It is a mistake to suppose that a horse or any other domestic animal prefers to drink water only a few degrees above the freezing temperature. If it is lukewarm the horse will drink more freely and the water will be less apt to injure him.

Remedy for Striped Bug.

To save squash and melon vines from attacks from the striped bug, take a small stick or stake, less than two feet long, and stick in the ground, slanting so the top of stick will be over middle of hill. Take a strip of heavy paper one foot long and one inch wide. Double one end and tie a string around it, and the other end of string to stick, so that the lower end of paper will just clear the plants; the passing breezes will keep it fluttering and twisting every minute, and the striped bug never tarries when something is moving so close above him.—Practical Farmer.

Dehorning Young Calves.

Preventing horns from coming is better than cutting them off after they have formed. If when a calf is a few weeks old the head is examined, the place where the horns will appear can be plainly seen. Get a stick of caustic potash and apply it to this spot, first removing the hair, and hold the potash there until it makes a slight sore. There are few or no nerves where the horn is formed, and this sore will not affect the calf injuriously in any way.

Remedy for Fleas.

I notice some one asks how to rid a barn of fleas. It seems to be not generally known that salt will kill them. When I was a boy, father's place became infested with fleas from pigs sleeping at the barn, and they nearly drove me crazy. I heard in some way that salt would kill them. I suppose I used a peck of salt, scattering it freely about the barn and house, and at the expiration of a week we could not tell that a flea had ever been on the place. All gone. Since then I have cleared our home of them several times. One application always does the work. I have also recommended it to others who have used it with equal success. Salt scattered over a carpet and swept off before it melts will clean it of both fleas and dirt. I am never bothered with fleas now unless I get them away from home. I know there are many people who would willingly spend the price of a barrel of salt to be rid of the pests, and salt is never failing.—J. W. Trisler, M. D., in Practical Farmer.

Straining Milk.

There are some points about straining milk that are not generally thought of, and therefore the milk is not wholly cleared of its bacteria. In the first place it is important that the milk should be put through the strainer and set where its cream is to rise as soon as possible after it comes from the cow. It often accumulates bacteria very rapidly if left in stables exposed to foul odors. Besides, if left long some of the cream will rise and will be so mixed with the milk that what does not cling to the strainer cloth or wire will not rise as cream again. The strainer should be thoroughly washed by dipping it first in cold water and moving it rapidly through both ways, so that bacteria will not adhere to the under side, as they are apt to do if the rinsing water is merely poured on the strainer from above. Then repeat this process with water pretty near scalding heat. In that way if there are any bacteria on the strainer they will be killed.

A "Kept-Shut" Gate.

A great deal of loss occurs each year from accidents that come from the leaving open of some gate. It may be one's own or a neighbor's stock that does the damage—it was the fault of the open gateway. The cut shows a gate that will always stay shut, unless one holds it open. A stout spiral spring pulls the gate to, whichever way it is opened, the spring being attached to the extended upper rail of the gate as shown in the sketch.

GATE THAT WILL STAY SHUT.

Keep the Meadow Clean.

Briers, bushes and weeds really have no place in the meadows or cultivated fields, and their growth should be carefully kept down. Every farmer ought to have some sort of rotation of crops for his land, and of a kind that experience teaches him is best for his purposes. But even with this, from various causes, special work will need to be done from time to time. It is desirable to have the best possible returns from the mowing fields, and as the crop was being secured it was quite easy to note what particular places or fields needed most attention. There are some portions of the meadows on most farms that it is rather difficult to plow and cultivate, but yet with proper treatment can be made to produce excellent crops of hay. If these can be made smooth for the harvesting machinery and a good sward secured, they can be kept in condition for a long time with plowing by frequent top dressings of manure.—Farm News.

Plant Lice.

As these insects do not eat the leaves or buds, internal poisons like london purple or paris green, do not affect them, but something which kills by contact must be used. Perhaps the best and simplest of the remedies is good whale oil soap solution. This is made by dissolving one pound of a standard whale-oil soap in seven gallons of water.

The above is an extract from the Popular Edition of Bulletin 139, of the New York Experimental Station. Other remedies mentioned are kerosene, emulsion, kerosene water mixture, tobacco decoction, concentrated extract of tobacco, and pyrethrum or Persian insect powder. Spray from below, as the lice choose the under side of the leaves, and spray thoroughly.—Vick's Monthly.

Stone Fences.

While the stone fences common in all sections where stone abounds cost nothing for material, and with hard work are therefore within any one's ability to construct, they are not usually very satisfactory. Horned stock soon learn that the top stones can be easily displaced and then the fence can be jumped. The best way to stop jumping is to place a barbed wire over the fence, fastening it to stakes firmly in the ground. It may seem cruel, but the stock must learn not to jump, and they won't get hurt. But when sheep have learned to jump a low stone wall, even a barbed wire over it will not stop them. There must be several wires, so close together that the sheep cannot get their heads between. That will stop the first sheep, and no one of the flock will try to jump after the leader has turned back.

Turns Upside Down.

The quince roots so readily by bending over the top and covering it with earth that it is easily possible to reverse the natural order and make the tree after two years live with what were its roots in the air. These roots will then put forth leaves, and the year following will bear blossoms and possibly fruit. But for several years the tree set upside down will require to be propped, as the original growth was largest at the ground.

Poison to Hogs.

Powdered soaps, now so largely used by hotels and laundries, are injurious to pigs if fed to them in swill. The Cornell station found that in many cases death resulted from poisoning by the excess of free alkali in swill. Small amounts of powdered soap produce no immediate bad results, but it is not safe to feed the animals. The proper disposition of dish water is the sewer.

THE HOUSEHOLD

When Papa's Sick.

When papa's sick, my goodness sakes!
Such awful, awful times it makes,
He speaks in oh! such lonesome tones,
And gives such ghas'ly kind of groans,
And rolls his eyes and holds his head,
And makes ma help him up to bed;
While Sis and Bridget run to heat
Hot water bags to warm his feet,
And I must get the doctor quick—
We have to jump when papa's sick.

When papa's sick ma has to stand
Right side the bed and hold his hand,
While Sis she has to fan an' fan,
For he says he's "a dyin' man,"
And wants the children round him to Be there when "sufferin' pa gets through";
He says he wants to say good-by
And kiss us all and then he'll die;
Then moans and says his "breathin's thick"—
It's awful sad when papa's sick.

When papa's sick he acts that way
Until he hears the doctor say,
"You've only got a cold, you know,
You'll be all right'n a day or so,"
And then—well, say! you ought to see,
He's different as he can be,
And growls and swears from noon to night
Just 'cause his dinner ain't cooked right,
And all he does is fuss and kick—
We're all used up when papa's sick.

A Barrel Ottoman.

To make a barrel ottoman saw the barrel in half, after which bind with a hoop, nailing to each stave, and clinch-

A BARREL OTTOMAN.

ing the nails. Be sure the head is firm. Then to cushion use curled hair, or excelsior and over this tack unbleached muslin. Over the muslin place cretonne or whatever the cover is to be, and tack around the edges. Get buttons with metal shanks and with them tuft the seat by boring holes through the head and passing a strong string through the head and stuffing and tying it in a tight knot over a nail to draw the button down into the cushion. Of the same material make a flounce for the sides, gathering it on a stout cord and tacking it fast. The flounce should be full enough to hang gracefully and where tacked the edge can be finished by gimp ornamented with large headed upholsterer's tacks.

Odoriferous Feet.

Few things are more insufferable to their possessor or to the public at large than feet with an odor. It is worth knowing, however, that this trouble may be corrected. The remedy, as given by one who has had occasion to try it, is as follows: Dissolve one-half cup powdered borax in a gallon of hot water, and soak the feet in this from five to twenty-five minutes. Then add one teacupful of vinegar. Scrub the feet thoroughly, using strong soap suds. Rinse in tepid water, then in cold, and dry thoroughly, rubbing with a heavy towel.

German Coffee Bread.

Cream two-thirds cup of white sugar, one egg and a large spoonful of butter. Work into this one pint of light dough, such as is ready to mold into loaves. The secret of success is in the thorough mixing. The result must be a creamy, smooth batter, only to be had by beating patiently. Pour into well-buttered cake tin—a shallow loaf is best. Sift over the top a little powdered cinnamon. Bake in a good oven twenty minutes and eat while warm.

In Ironing Serviettes.

In ironing napkins, fold like tablecloths, with the selvedges together, then iron straight up and down with the warp, not across. Fold first wrong side out, then fold back evenly to the edges. This allows it to open readily. If there is a monogram, fold outside. Fancy folding is a matter of choice, but most private families prefer the ordinary plain fold. Sherry allows but one way, the English pocket to hold the roll.

Corned Beef Hash.

Chop a pint cupful of lean, cold corned beef; cut up the same quantity of cold boiled potatoes, with one small onion. Put a large tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan and stand over the fire to melt. Sift in two tablespoonfuls of flour and mix until brown; add the potatoes and onion, let cook for five minutes, turn in the meat. When well heated pour over a pint and a half of water, season with pepper and salt and stir until well mixed. Take up in a heated dish and serve.

A Sponge Cake.

Take five eggs, the weight of four in sugar and the weight of three in flour; put the eggs and sugar in a basin, and beat them with two forks for a quarter of an hour; then take out the forks, and take a spoon and gently sift in the flour, stirring very gently. Have a small cake tin buttered inside; then pour it in. It takes about half an hour.

Soft Gingerbread.

One cup of sour milk, one cup dark rich molasses, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one tablespoonful ginger, two cups bread flour. Warm the butter, molasses and ginger together, add the milk, flour and egg and a pinch of salt, and last the soda dissolved in one tablespoonful of warm water. Bake in shallow pans.

All Forts.

If you want to pick a flaw in humanity begin at home.

Why are the men who say women are delusions and snares always snared by delusions?

Beggars are unknown in Malbourne. The poorest part of the city is the Chinese quarter.

The chief ingredients in the composition of those qualities that gain esteem and praise are good nature, truth, good sense and good breeding.—Addison.

HOLMES AS A PUNSTER.

A Good Thing Caught by a Chance Listener.

It was said of Oliver Wendell Holmes that some of his best jokes were made at times when there was nobody to appreciate them save a chance listener.

One such fortunate listener tells of a reply which she, sitting in a street car, heard Dr. Holmes make to a complaining writer of little wit and less talent.

"I've worked with all my heart on that book," said the young man, who had been treating the Doctor to a long account of a recent collection of poetry which he had edited. "I've used my best taste and judgment and research, and I feel confident that nobody could have done the thing better or more thoroughly than I have. And what reward do I get? Harsh criticisms for my omission of a few popular poets, and a paltry hundred dollars!"

"A hundred dollars!" echoed the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, wearily. "Why, I wouldn't have written that book for a thousand dollars, I'm sure."

The collector of poetry smiled with gratification, but the listener turned to regard a passing dray, lest her face should betray her.—Youth's Companion.

Smoking in Corea.

In Corea all men and women smoke. They begin early. The pipe is a brass bowl, with a reed stem four feet long and a brass, amber or glass mouthpiece. Accidents often occur from persons falling with a long pipe in the mouth, the stem of which is driven down the throat, through the cheek or into the palate. During the "reform period," after the Japan-China war, long pipes were forbidden to the common people, and they turned to cigarettes, which have become rooted in the popular affection. Native cigarettes, which are of poor quality, sell for 1 cent gold for twenty. Little cigars of cigarette size sell for 14 cents gold per 100. American cigarettes are used exclusively in the palace, and thousands of them are smoked there. This makes them popular with the upper classes, and the consumption of them is very great. The best of them cost 1 cent gold apiece. The import duty on cigars and cigarettes is 20 per cent. ad valorem, but, in spite of this the American manufacturers are gradually coming into control of the market.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Eugene Field's Arithmetic.

The first book which Eugene Field had printed was the "Tribune Primer," published in Denver in 1882. It was composed of short lessons in different lines of study. As there are said to be not more than seven or eight copies of the book now in existence, readers may be glad to see two specimen paragraphs from the lesson in "mental arithmetic:"

If you have Five Cucumbers and eat Three, what will you have left? Two. No; you are wrong. You will have more than that. You will have Colic enough to double you up in a Bow Knot for Six Hours. You may go to the foot of the Class.

Confession of a Millionaire.

A millionaire confessed the secret of his success in two words—hard work. He put in the best part of his life gaining dollars and losing health, and now he is putting in the other half spending dollars to get it back. Nothing equals Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for restoring health. It gets at the starting point—the stomach—and cures dyspepsia and indigestion.

Things Were Different.

A workingman with a dinner-pail in his hand came out of a little shop, and was met by a fellow-workingman.

"Why, Jim," exclaimed the newcomer, "you're working overtime now, ain't you?"

"No," was the reply. "I'm not."

"Ain't you putting in over eight hours a day?"

"Yes."

"I thought eight hours was the union schedule?" remarked the outsider.

"Yes, but you see I have bought the shop, and I want to work more than I did."—Youth's Companion.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Not to Be Caught.

Waiters in Parisian restaurants always have an answer ready. Zola, the novelist, had noticed this fact, and according to the London Figaro, made use of it in perpetrating a joke.

"Bring me a sphinx a la Marengo," he said to a waiter.

"I am sorry to say they are out," was the answer.

"What, no more sphinx!" said Zola, in a tone of indignant surprise.

The waiter stepped close to the chair and whispered:

"The truth is, we have some, monsieur, but I don't care to serve them to you, as they are not quite fresh."

Avoid the Night Air.

Avoid the night air when damp and cold, and you will often avoid having neuralgia, but St. Jacobs Oil will cure it no matter what is the cause and no matter how long it has continued.

Statistics of Foreign Missions.

According to a statement prepared by the Rev. Dr. Strong, the missionary societies of the United States, Great Britain, Continental Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia number 249, with 4,694 stations and 15,200 out-stations. There are 11,695 missionaries, 65,000 native workers and about a million and a quarter communicants. The income from all these countries approximate $13,000,000.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

Women Everywhere Express their Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Mrs. FLORENCE A. WOLFE, 515 Mulberry St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with what the local physicians told me was inflammation of the womb. Every month I suffered terribly. I had taken enough medicine from the doctors to cure anyone, but obtained relief for a short time only. At last I concluded to write to you in regard to my case, and can say that by following your advice I am now pefectly well."

Mrs. W. R. BATES, Mansfield, La., writes:

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhœa and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

Properly Jailed

Last evening Wm. Ebey, of Garrett was to have been married to Mrs. Inez Tefft McDowell. This wedding had been expected some time, as Mr. Ebv had got a divorce from his wife and had got money enough ahead to get a bran, splinter new marriage license. But he found on applying yesterday afternoon for the license that he would get nothing but the marble heart unless he first paid up the costs of his divorce suit, which he with remarkable forgetfulness had somehow overlooked. So he went down into his pocket for the cash, paid up the costs, and was just getting the new and attractive license, when the sheriff placed him under arrest, on charge of failing to pay the alimony the court had ordered him to pay at the time the divorce was granted. Not being able to pay it, or to furnish bail he was taken over to jail and locked up. He had intended, to be married and then they were to go on the evening train to Grand Rapids, where he claimed he had employment working for the Chase Construction Company. It appears that the arrest was caused by his divorced wife, who hearing he was going to marry the woman who had caused all the trouble, followed him over here, and notified the officers. She is represented by those who know her as a respectable and worthy woman. She has to support her three little children since her worthless husband abandoned her. It seems he had been employed as electrician in the Garrett telephone office, but had lately wasted so much time coming to Auburn, that he had lost his job. He deserves a severe punishment, and we hope to see him put to work on a stone pile, or ditching our muddy streets.

LATER.

Eby was called into court this forenoon and examined as to the matter and the reasons why he had not paid the alimony. It was continued this afternoon. Mr. Moody as attorney for Mrs. Eby questioned him at length as to what he had earned and how he had used the money. Witness seemed to forget a good deal, and once or twice asked Mrs. McDowell how much he had paid. It had also leaked out that since he came here yesterday, he had given his revolver, money, watch and some other things to Mrs McDowell. So far, he says he has not paid anything on the alimony due his wife, nor all his board and had promised some to his attorney, Sharpless. He had been getting $50 a month till thrown out of a job last May. It also appeared that the order on the court docket had originally showed that he was to pay the alimony in 60 days, but it was afterwards changed to be paid immediately. It also appears that his watch and revolver are pledged as security for the fees of his attorney in the divorce case. Both women were in the court room during the examination and manifested deep interest in every question and answer.

At the close of his examination the judge said he must pay $25 or go to jail again. He concluded to pay, and is, we suppose, now at liberty.

Obituary of Mr. Watson.

Augustus Evans Watson, was born in Medina, N. Y, Oct. 23, 1843, and departed this life Nov. 17, '98 His youth was spent as is the youth of young men who have a desire to fit themselves for the stern realities of later life. He was given a practical education and business training. He was a man of much more than ordinary ability and intelligence, and many traits of character which endeared him to his family and friends. Mr. Watson was always happy, genial and whole-souled; a man who could not do too much for his friends, devoted to his family and their interests. He was for a number of years a member of the Knights of Pythias of Auburn lodge, always taking the greatest interest in the work of the order, and always ready to help and assist a brother in distress. Mr. Watson removed from Medina, N. Y., to Oswego, N. Y, when on June 30 1866 he was united in marriage to Lydia C. Barney to whom two children were born, Evans L. and Myra. Later he removed to Hartford, Conn., being located there three years, engaged in milling, later removing to his old home at Oswego. In the year 1876 he came to Auburn where he has since lived, with exception of one year at Hudson, Ind., and one year at Huntington, Ind. Mr. Watson leaves to mourn his death a wife, one daughter, one son, two brothers and one sister, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the house Saturday Nov. 19 at 2 p. m. Interment took place in Woodlawn cemetery. Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

Important Operation

Another difficult and important surgical operation was had in Auburn yesterday. Dr. Jared Spooner of Peru came up at noon to operate on W. H. Rakestraw for the cure of a serious case of hernia. Mr. Bakestraw has suffered from this trouble a number of years, and knowing that skillfull surgeons could cure it by an operation decided on doing it. The surgeons met at his house, and proceeded with the work, which as we said the other day in speaking of old Mrs. Schutt, is quite a difficult one, and rather unusual, Dr. Spooner, was assisted in the work by Dr. Hines, while Dr. Baxter administsered the chloroform, a part of the work, that calls for great care and judgment. The operation was a long and tedious one, but quite successful, and the patient was left resting easy, and with a good hope for a full recovery, a condition that his many friends will be pleased to learn. And it should be added that Auburn physicians are getting a reputation as surgeons equal to the best. We presume that all these difficult operations can be performed here entirely by home talent.

Keeping Melons.

"A load of Watermelons," says the Milford Mail, "was unloaded in Warsaw the day after election. They had been kept in a cellar all the time." This is easily done. Melons will keep a long time and be greatly improved if kept in a quiet, cool place. Many a farmer boy has hid melons in a big corn shock till husking time, when on opening the shock the melon was found to be in perfect condition, cool, crisp and sweet. A good way to keep melons is to put them in a box in the cellar and cover them fully with clean, dry sand. They will be good at New Years, as we can testify. We hope our farmer friends will keep this recipe, try it next year, and if it don't work, they needn't bring us one of the melons for a holiday gift.

Not a Cast Iron Stomach.

Of course you haven't. No one need have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a remedy prepared on purpose for stomach troubles, weak stomach, sour stomach, big stomach, little stomach, or any irregularities caused from indigestion or constipation. They can be permanently and thoroughly cured by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is made in three sizes, 10cts, 50cts, and $1.00, and is sold by Davenport the druggist.

A Half-Year's Benefactions.

A careful compilation of the gifts and bequests of the American people for the promotion of charity, education and religion, excluding all public appropriations and all benefactions below $5,000 in amount, shows a total for the first half of 1898 of over $20,000,000. It is too soon to judge even approximately of the value of individual gifts to the federal government for war purposes, such as steam pleasure yachts for the auxiliary navy, free railroad transportation for the armies, buildings for warehouse and hospital uses, etc., or of special gifts of money and supplies for the starving Cubans and our troops in the field. Concerning the last, it may be said that the contributions to the American National Red Cross Relief committee exceeded $200,000 in cash.

Citizen and Belle.

A man and a woman are employed in different offices in one of our large buildings. Each office has a telephone, but as it happens one is an instrument belonging to the Citizens' Company, the other a Bell instrument. One day the man had occasion to use the Citizens' line and stepped across the hall to the lady's office. "Have you a Citizens' 'phone?" he asked, and she replied in the affirmative. "Well," he ventured, "I'm a citizen. May I use it?" Why, of course he might use it. An hour later she balanced the accounts with him. "Have you a Bell telephone?" she asked, on stepping into his office. He did not try to deny it. "Well, I'm a belle. May I use it?"—Grand Rapids Press.

We Set Them Right.

The Hicksville News is mistaken when it says Bud Shilling escaped from the jail here. The first time he got away, he was out on the streets, working under care of the marshal or some officer, and took advantage of his chance to run off. The other day, when the officers went down to see Shilling's father, Sol. Shilling, it was for the purpose of seeing if he would not agree to pay the judgment against Bud, so that Bud might be permitted to return home. The sheriff was likely to have to pay the judgment himself, on account of Bud getting away while in his custody. But when the officers reached Mr. Shilling's house, they were surprised to see Bud himself, who was standing out doors. As soon as Bud recognized them he started off on a run. The officers took after him, but found it hard to overtake him, In the meantime Bud's brother, seeing the chase, saddled a horse rode around the road, got ahead of the pursuers and reached Bud, who jumped on the horse and escaped. This part of the affair was in plain sight of the officers, and the chances are, that the brother will be hauled up in court, and punished for helping Bud to escape. So it will be seen neither escape took place at the jail. There have been, however, a plenty of other escapes that did not reflect credit on the sheriff or his deputy. The jail is all right, is a very strong one in fact, but on several occasions they have been found sawing out, and recently two got away, But in order to do so, they had to go through a door of steel bars that should have had two locks on it. This let them into the corridor so they could get to the outside windows. The window had an inside and an outside set of crossed, steel bars, and they cut through both of these and got out. Officers should be about the jail and know what is going on. Prisoners should not be allowed to have files, saws, etc.

One Answer.

NEW ERA, Nov. 15, 1899.

MR. EDITOR:—Please insert in the COURIER the answer to H. A. Winslow's problem of your last issue requiring a hundred head of poultry for a hundred dollars.

16 Turkeys,	$5.00 each	..	$80 00
4 Geese,	2.50 "	..	10 00
80 Chickens,	.10 "	..	8.00
Revenue,		.....	2.00
100			$100.00

The law requires every purchaser to pay 2½ cents a head for every chicken he has. Turkeys and geese are on the free list. Probably Mr. Winslow is not posted on revenue laws. Dewey must be paid.

J. H. THOMAS.

COMMENT.

Our friend is mistaken in his fourth item. There is no internal revenue charge on chickens, and as the transaction is all in this country, the tariff rate of 2½ cents would not apply in this case. Try again.

Ten Thousand Cash.

Readers of the COURIER know that for a year or two we have advertiseed for the great lumber dealers at Goshen, known as the Sanders & Egbert Company. To give an idea of the extent of their business as well as the commercial value of our native timber, we clip from the Goshen Times of the 16th:

Negotiations were closed today by which the Sanders & Egbert Company of this city came into possession of a large bunch of walnut trees. There are 51 trees in the lot, located in Cass county, Michigan. They were purchased from John M. Newton for a plump ten thousand dollars cash. The timber is known to all lumber manufacturers in Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan and many efforts have been made to obtain it, the Goshen company being successful.

EVERY-DAY HEROISM!

Struggling through life, cursed with catarrh, is a common experience. However heroic the fight catarrh generally wins.

Under some name or other it gets the best of us. Frank E. Ingalls, Waco, Tex., and thousands of others have been permanently cured of catarrh by Dr. Hartman's successful remedy Pe-ru-na. Here is Mr. Ingalls' letter:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—"Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin have cured me of one of the worst cases of catarrh any one ever had. My case was so severe that I was compelled to discontinue my business, that of conductor on a railroad; but I am now entirely well."

Ordinary treatment of catarrh is for local relief. Cures are not expected. Dr. Hartman's method eradicates catarrh absolutely. Get his latest book and learn how to combat this insidious disease. The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail Dr. Hartman's books free on application.

H. A. Scott, Burt, Tenn., writes:

"I feel very thankful to my Maker and your great medicine that I am cured. I would not be without Pe-ru-na in the house."

Pe-ru-na has been curing catarrh for forty years. It plucks out the roots of catarrh and builds people up. All druggists sell it.

—It now appears that Sheriff Stroh is being sued to recover the judgment the court had rendered against Bud Shilling, and it was to secure a settlement out of some of the Shillings that the sheriff sent Platter and Potter down there the other day. They were surprised to find Bud there, but since his second escape they still hope to get that judgment out of the Shillings.

—George C. Recktenwald, of Keyser township, and Miss Sissie Mathews, of Auburn Junction, were married by Rev. W. L. Meese, at his rooms on West Ninth street, this forenoon, Nov. 17. About ten years ago Rev. Meese married a brother of George Recktenwald to a sister of Sissie Mathews, and a few months since married another sister of Miss Mathews.

—Affairs in the Philippines are in a very unsatisfactory shape, the insurgent natives still causing trouble in some quarters and uneasiness in others. Our government should send a larger force there and to Cuba, if we expect to secure peace and safetly for the people in either case. At the Philippines especially, our own troops are liable to be in danger of great loss.

—Walter Hartman left for Roann today where he assumes the general management of the hoop and stave plant there. Charles McClellan and A. C. Robbins also interested in this plant will spend part of the week there. Extensive improvements are being made in view of increasing business. Mr. Hartman will devote only half his time there until spring, which arrangement will enable him to care for his business in the office here.

—F. M. Powers, who was candidate for judge has written Judge Hartman, his successful opponent, a most friendly and gentlemanly letter, congratulating him on his election, and complimenting him on the clean and manly canvass he had made. It should be added that both gentlemen made a clean canvass, one that did great credit to both. This is as it should be especially for that high office, and both stand all the higher for it today all over the disirict. And the fact that each ran away ahead in his own county is additional proof of the high standing in which they are held. Mr. Powers did woll when we consider the heavy majority against him.

—Auditor Seiler was here last evening having come down to bring some house plants that he feared might be frozen if he waited to bring them later. He will occupy the Wm. McIntyre residence on West Seventh-st which will make them a splendid home in an excellent neighborhood. We are sure our people will welcome them. They expect to move in next Tuesday. A remarkable thing about their getting the McIntyre residence, is that it seems to be the home of auditors. It was the home of Whedon Griswold when he was auditor from 1866 to 1870. Then Wm. McIntyre was elected auditor, and at once bought the property, and resided there till his death. Now it will be occupied by Auditor Seiler,

The Dispatch calls the COURIER by a selected and assorted lot of bad names, because we put up a good fight for our party. Why did not the Dispatch put up a good fight for its party? Either it did no know how, or it lacked the ability, or the courage, or it had no good cause, or else it had no influence with the people. It is easy to see that the COURIER'S fight counted. The people knew we were right because we had always told them the truth.

—We like the idea of having a repair shop in connection with the new Specialty Company's plant, as that branch of business has been neglected We make buggies, by the thousand in the various factories of Auburn, but so far, have had to get our repairs done in the smaller shops, many of which were already crowded with orders, making up impossible to get all the work done here. Hence, much of the repair business went to other towns and Auburn was that much the loser. We believe the Specialty Co. is going to be a success in many ways.

There should be no complaint of boss ship or undue influence in securing nominations where every man has the chance to vote secretly as he chooses. Give us a primary election law."

A CASE OF KIDNEY DISEASE GIVEN UP BY FOUR DOCTORS.

NOTICE OF HEARING OF DITCH PETITION

In the matter of the petition of Chas. H. Baber No. 682, notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the Auditor of DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and viewers have been appointed, who have viewed and reported said view, which is on file in my office.

The hearing of said petition upon its merits by the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county, Indiana, will be on Thursday, the 8th day of December, 1898, the same being the 8th day of their December term, 1898.

The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Commencing at a point 40 rods west and six rods north of the center of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and from thence in a general easterly direction, ending in Cedar creek at a point 40 rods west of the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 23, of said Butler township.

Also lateral No. one (1) to said main line beginning 50 rods north and 16 rods east of the southeast corner of the northeast fourth of the southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and ending in the main drain or ditch 35 rods west and six rods south of the east quarter corner of section 22, of said Butler township, said county and state aforesaid.

Lateral No. 2.

And also the following lateral for spur to lateral No. 1, beginning 45 rods southeast of the southeast corner of the northeast fourth of the southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, and from thence ending in lateral No. 1, 56 rods east of said southeast corner of northeast fourth of southwest quarter of section 22, Butler township, said ending being station No. 15 of lateral No. 1.

Also lateral No. 3 to said lateral No. 1, beginning 15 rods east of the southeast corner of section 22, Butler township, and from thence in a general northeasterly direction, ending in lateral No. 1, at station 25 plus 39 at a point 38 rods east and two rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 4, beginning 40 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, and from thence in a northeasterly direction, ending in lateral No. 1, at stake 22-57 at a point 30 rods east and 17 rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 5, beginning at a point 30 rods north and 30 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, and from thence northwest, ending at stake No. 6-08 of lateral No. 4, said ending being 30 rods north, and 43 rods west of the southeast corner of section 22, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 6, to lateral No. 3, beginning two rods east of the southwest corner of section 23, Butler township, and from thence in a northerly direction, ending in lateral No. 3, at stake 7-52, at a point 30 rods north and four (4) rods east of the southwest corner of section 23, Butler township.

Also lateral No. 7, commencing 10 rods north of the southeast corner of the southwest fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, and from thence northwesterly, ending at stake 22, of lateral No. 1, at a point 30 rods east and 30 rods south of the northwest corner of the southeast fourth of the southeast quarter of section 22, Butler township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

The proposed ditch will affect the lands of the following persons, to-wit:

HOW TO PREVENT A COLD.

After exposure, or when you feel a cold coming on, take a dose of Honey and Tar. It never fails.

Constant Coughing

Constant coughing is not only very annoying, but the continuous hacking and irritation will soon attack and injure the delicate lining of the throat and air passages. A simple cough is bad enough; but a chronic cough is really dangerous. Take advice and use the celebrated Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup at once and be cured.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

Cures a Cough or Cold at once.

Doses are small and pleasant to take. Doctors recommend it. Price 25 cts. At all druggists.

A QUEER (?) MEDICINE.

There is a medicine whose proprietors do not claim to have discovered some hitherto unknown ingredient, or that it is a cure-all. This honest Medicine only claims to cure certain diseases, and that its ingredients are recognized by the best for Kidney and Bladder Diseases. It is Foley's Kidney Cure.

European Cartoons.

We insert here a European Cartoon to show the great difference between those in favor in the old country and in America. Bismarck was very bald but a few stray hairs stood up on the highest point, and cartoonists were sure to picture him with the famous "three hairs" made very prominent.

For forty-one years Bismarck flourished in journalistic caricature, and there is no doubt but that it was this aggressive caricature that was the initial element of publicity that presented to the world at large his character as a statesman, with all his faults and some of his great qualities exaggerated.

The first notice by the comic papers enjoyed by Bismarck occurred away back in 1949, but it was not until 1863

BISMARCK'S FAREWELL TO THE PRESS.
(From "Bismarck in Caricature.")

that the small cut showing Bismarck with his left hand raised and his first finger and thumb extended appeared—a rather insignificant sketch, but one now famous, for the reason that it was the first to bring the three hairs into prominence, and to make them characteristic of the man. From that time the three hairs have been associated with his caricatures, and his retirement from public life in 1890, was shown by an affecting cartoon, where the great ex-chancellor, grip-sack in hand, and his famous dog at his side, is about to say farewell to the public press forever. He hesitates at the doorway, and returns to the comic editor the three hairs, saying that, as he has no further use for them, the cartoonist had better keep them for a memento.

WORST FRENCH PRECEPTOR.

It Is the Press, Says Monsieur Gabriel Monod.

Now Rome, the Roman church, Italy of the renaissance, the reform, the Jesuits, have all in turn and in a different way been the preceptors of France; and when we see how completely the French Protestants, considered in their ensemble, differ from the Catholics by the turn of their mind and their character, it must be acknowledged that this element of education plays a great part in the psychology of a people, says Literature. On the other hand, who could think that France, defeated and mutilated in 1871, has remained the same as under Louis XIV., or even under the restoration, still triumphant after its twenty years of conquests, in spite of the final catastrophe? If we have witnessed the growth of that moral disease "Boulangism" in France; if she has adopted in the east a purely selfish political line—she who was once so ready to be fired up by any generous cause; if, in the Dreyfus affair, the great majority of the nation showed itself indifferent to the question of equity, and exclusively preoccupied with blindly upholding its military chiefs—what is all this to be ascribed to if not to the deep modifications wrought in the French mind by the Franco-German war? Let us add to this the influence of the press, that, by its insults, falsehoods, systematic calumny, distills into minds the most perverting of poisons, for such is the latest and worst preceptor of the French people.

South American Pickpockets.

Practice makes perfect even in wrong-doing, and in the use of what seem to be very awkward means. A writer in the Boston Transcript says: The Gauchos, or dwellers on the extensive plains of Buenos Ayres, are marvelously dexterous with both hands and feet. Many of them have acquired, through long practice, such skill in using their toes instead of fingers that they can fling the lasso and even pick pockets with them. Some time ago a Frenchman, who was fishing in one of the rivers of Buenos Ayres, was warned to be on his guard against the light-fingered natives. He forthwith kept a vigilant watch upon his companions, but, nevertheless, one day, when his attention was closely riveted on his float, a wily Gaucho drew near and, delicately inserting his foot, extracted the Frenchman's hooks and other valuables from his pocket.

A Whole Family

Three Weeks Until Christmas!

NOT LONG, IS IT?

No doubt you are intending to make at least a few presents on this occasion. Again you may not have been able to decide just what you would like to buy. Now we've been thinking for you these many weeks and as a result we are nicely prepared to assist you. We have gathered together by far the largest and prettiest assortment of articles suitable for Christmas presents we have ever shown. We mention some lines on which we have made an extra effort to excel.

UMBRELLAS.

We don't believe you could find a handsomer lot of umbrellas in Fort Wayne than we are showing this year.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

Last year we were paid a great many compliments on our exceptionally fine line of these goods. This years' supply is much larger and far handsomer.

GLOVES.

We have a fine selection for Men, Women or Children—lined with silk or unlined as you choose.

FURS.

Nothing nicer for presents. We have just received another large assortment purposely for the holiday trade.

NECKWEAR and MUFFLERS.

All the new shapes and colorings and a plenty from which to choose.

RUGS.

More patterns twice over than were ever shown before.

CARPET SWEEPERS.

We have the celebrated Bissell's Gold Medal and American Queen. There is nothing better to be had.

SMOKING JACKETS.

We have cuts and sample swatches from which to order for you. Make your selection early and we will not disappoint you.

We are Saving You Money.

The Auburn Foundry

A look through the plant of the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works this forenoon showed active preparations going on for the early start of this important factorty, Mr. Burgoyne and several helpers are at work putting machinery in order, cleaning up things, examining all the working parts of the various machines, cleaning and oiling them and testing every part so that when they get up steam after a long idleness, there will be no danger of accident or delay, Mr. Burgoyne's son Frederick and his wife reached here yesterday and are temporarily at home at the Watson Hotel at the south end. Clifton, a younger son of Mr. Burgoyne also came yesterday. Mr. Feitner is expected soon. They will start steam early next week, and commence work at once, as they already have orders waiting. They have two jobs of boring cylinders for parties from a distance, and expect to do all kinds of work when fully started. They are already well equipped with tools and machinery and expect soon to add some new ones for the most difficult lines of work, such as have not been attempted heretofore. It will be made the best iron working plant in this section of the country. There are some improvements to be made on the building. It is found that the steel sheets of the roof over the large moulding room, have nearly all rusted out, though they have only been on three years. New steel roofing has been bought and will soon be here, when a new and more durable roof will be put on. They have a good plant and we predict will make it a success.

New Harness Shop.

In connection with our feed store and in the same room, we will have a harness shop in charge of a skillful harness maker. New harness made to order and on short notice. Harness repairing a specialty, and all work skillfully and promptly done. When you want any thing in this line, or in the feed line, give us a call at our room south of the jail.

Send 10 cents to the American Subscription Agency, 653 Arch St., Indianapolis, Ind., and you will receive one hundred papers. j23

EASYGOING PEOPLE

Those who disregard early indications of disease.

The progress of catarrh is frequently gradual. Chronic catarrh secures possession without the knowledge of its victim.

It has become so common to say, "Everybody has a little catarrh" that many easy going people pay slight attention to it. Yet no class of disease is so difficult to shake off.

Many people well advanced in years find themselves in the toils of catarrh. Mr. and Mrs. Collum, of Giddings, Tex., found help in Pe-ru-na. Mr. Collum's letter follows: Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

DEAR SIRS:—"I think your Pe-ru-na is the best medicine I ever tried for catarrh. I have tried all the catarrh medicines that I could hear of and none of them did any good until I tried yours. I and my wife have both used the Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin, and we are about well. I am 70 years old and my wife is 66. When we commenced to take your medicines we were not able to see after our work, but now she can tend to her work and I see after my farm. You can use this publicly if you want to."—A. P. Collum, Giddings, Tex.

An Old-Time Bargain.

In 1867, Judge Hartman and Judge R. Wes McBride, were two young attorneys just starting business at Waterloo. They were in real truth, also, "Bachelors of Law" for both were unmarried. It appears that in a spirit of friendly banter, they at one time, made a sort of agreement, and put it into writing, that he who got married first should buy for the other a new hat. The matter, however, seems to have been forgotton in the hurry and struggles of their early practice. But last week the matter was recalled, by a letter from Judge McBride to Judge Hartman, which we append here:

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Nov. 22, 1898.
HON. E. D. HARTMAN,
Auburn, Ind.

DEAR JUDGE:—A year or two ago my stable burned, and in it were several boxes of old papers. In sorting them over I found the enclosed contract, which may be interesting to you as a relic of our younger days. I am afraid the statute of limitations would bar an action, although there may be a query as to whether the statute would begin to run until demand was made. I am a little doubtful, too, about the 1867 style of hat. What say you?

Please accept my sincerest congratulations over your election. While they are a little late, my heart has been full of thankfulness ever since the result was known.

Sincerely yours,
R. WES MCBRIDE.

THE AGREEMENT.

It is hereby agreed between R. Wes McBride and E. D. Hartman, that the one of them who marries first shall receive of the other as a present, a fine silk, stove pipe hat of the latest style in fashion at the time he marries.

E. D. HARTMAN,
R. WES MCBRIDE.

Waterloo City, Ind.,
Sept. 24, 1867.

It will be seen that this agreement was signed by them, 31 years ago last September, and as Judge McBride suggests, "the latest style in fashion at the time he marries," would be hard to get now, and hardly suitable to wear in case it could be got. It will be noted that Waterloo was at that time called "Waterloo City." It should be noted that both these young men have since been promoted. Judge McBride after serving a term as judge of this circuit, was later on appointed to fill Judge Mitchell's term on the supreme bench of the state, he having died in office. He is now at Indianapolis, having formed a law partnership with Judge Denny, who has served a term or two as attorney-general of the state. And Mr. Hartman is now judge of this circuit. The agreement is evidently in Judge Hartman's hand writing, and shows marks of the fire, the words "latest style" being nearly burned away at the fold of the paper.

Gold in Sea Water.

In connection with the recent disastrous ending of the company that established works in Maine for obtaining from the ocean the gold contained in its salts, a statement appears in the Mining Press of San Francisco from Mr. Pack, assayer of the United States mint in that city, concerning his own experiments in this line. He has found gold in the ocean water proper only in solution and amounting to about .05 of a grain to the ton—in value about two cents—the gold in the water of San Francisco bay being probably about twice that amount, though largely in a finely divided state, only a portion being in solution. The quantity of gold and silver actually contained in the ocean water and the possibility of profitably extracting them has long been under discussion. Malaguti and Durocher's well known experiments resulted in the discovery of silver in water, but no note is made of any gold. Later, in 1872, Sonstadt discovered gold in sea water, and though not stating the exact amount found, he reported it to be less than one grain to the ton of water. In a paper read before the New South Wales Royal Society on this subject Prof. Liversidge estimates the sea water of the coast in that region to contain a very small amount of gold to the ton, namely, 0.5 grain.

Miniature Oxen.

The sacred oxen of Ceylon are described by a recent writer. The largest specimen never exceeds thirty inches in height. The Marquis of Canterbury has one, presented to him in 1891, which is now about ten years of age, and only twenty-two inches tall. Notwithstanding their smallness they are very useful in Ceylon, where, it is said, four of them are able to draw a two-wheeled cart with a driver and 200 pounds of merchandise, sixty or seventy miles in a day.

Ballooning as Pastime.

Vienna's smart women have taken to ballooning as a pastime. The duchess of Aosta has hired a balloon by the month, and engaged two professional aeronauts to teach her the hang of the thing. She makes an ascent with her maid every day. She expects to own a balloon of her own very soon, and predicts that aeronautics will become the future sport of the aristocracy.

Wedding at Noon

At the residence of Jefferson Walters on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at high noon occurred the marriage of Miss Melvina Dickinson to Orrin Enauer, of Spencerville, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Dunlap pastor of the Lutheran church at Spencerville of which both Mr. and Mrs. Enauer are members. Only the near relatives and friends were present. The bride wore an elegant gown trimmed with white satin, and never looked lovelier. The wedding matched the weather for it was a lovely day of sunshine. After congratulations were tendered the newly married couple, a superb dinner was served, and shortly after this, the bride and groom left for the home of the bride's parents. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap and son Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Dickinson and daughter, Hazel, Pearl Dickinson, of Spencerville, Mrs. James Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Walters of the same place; Mrs. Frank Walker of Elkhart, Mr. and Mrs. J. C, Hull, son and daughter of St. Joe, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Haifley and daughter, Myrtle, of Spencerville, Rev. W. S. Oberholtzer and wife, of Harlan, Miss Lillie Stoner, of Mifflintown, Pa., and Hon. S. S. Shutt, of Spencerville.

LASSITUDE.

Lassitude, "that tired feeling," is one of the first signs of approaching illness: it may be a cold: La Grippe or other malady. A few doses of "77" at this early stage may "break up" the disease, preventing a long illness

How to Propose to a Queen.

A young man on the island of Malta wanted to marry a queen of one of the south Pacific islands, so he wrote her a letter. "Most gracious queen," were his words, "I read about the steamship Bonanza being drifted on your island and the women under you began to select husbands from the crew, and that you, my queen, wanted for a husband a man that would love you and make you happy. If you will have me for a husband write back and let me know and send me the money for my passage. Send me a paper note for £25 and I will come to you at once."

LUTHER, MICH., Feb. 24, 1892.
DR. C. D. WARNER, COLDWATER, MICH.

DEAR SIR:—I was afflicted with that common scourge—"La Grippe," and had violent paroxisms of coughing from which I could get no relief until upon the recommendation of Rev. E. L. Odle I bought a 25 cent bottle of your "White Wine of Tar," which afforded immediate relief. I have taken two bottles and now consider myself cured, and I always recommend it to all my friends who are similarly afflicted, for I know it to be good. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Very truly yours &c.,

AT WORK ON THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY

Whatever we may think of the Russian people or of Russia as a nation, we must surely admire the force of their continued energy that has put forward and completed some of the most gigantic enterprises of modern times. If they begin a work, they keep at it, till done, if it takes fifty years. An instance of this, is the construction of the great "Trans-Siberian Railway," which, leaving its connections with the Russian railways in Europe goes eastward, across Siberia, in Asia, and works its way to Pacific side the of the continent. Of course, the obstacles it had to surmount, were tremendous, but the work has gone steadily forward not under contractors, as we build roads but under the government and army officers, as will be seen by our picture of the work going on. This stupendous work is now nearly completed.

THE NEWS RECORD.

SUMMARY OF A WEEK'S HAPPENINGS.

The Latest News as Flashed Over the Wires from All Parts of the World—Regarding Politics, Religion, Casualties, Commerce, and Industry.

Gutted by Fire.

The building of the Indiana Medical College, a department of the University of Indianapolis, has been gutted by fire. The fire was caused by a defective furnace. The flames shot up the stairway, cutting off the escape of Dr. Norman Shobe of Ligonier, Ind., and Dr. R. G. Morgan, of Plainfield. Dr. Morgan used the fire escape from the third floor. Dr. Shobe attempted to escape by means of the stairway, but was caught between the second and third floors and perhaps fatally burned. He was rescued later by the fire escape. The loss will amount to $40,000; insurance, $35,000.

Cause of the Delay.

The Paris correspondent of the London Standard says:

It is hinted that the delay in the peace negotiations here is chiefly due to the irritation of Montero Rios, who wants to resign, and has only consented to retain his membership in the Paris Commission on the personal appeal of Sagasta to his patriotism, the Premier having assured him that personal responsibility is in no wise involved.

Struck by a Train.

A special from Elkhart, Ind., says: While a party of twelve people were returning from a bait at Otis on two hand-cars they were struck by the Lake Shore fast mail east of Chestertown. William Zabenski and William Kempler were killed outright, while Zabenski's two daughters, aged 13 and 15, respectively, were probably fatally injured. Others of the party jumped and escaped injury.

An Explosion.

Green Point (N. Y.) special: Several explosions in the Oakland Chemical Works started a fire which did $25,000 damage. The explosion occurred in the basement. Those in the building were thrown into a panic. There are rumors of many casualties. Ambulances were summoned from several hospitals, but their services were not needed. All the employes escaped without injury.

The Occupation of Cuba.

The War Department has issued the first of the general orders looking to the occupation of the central and western provinces of Cuba by the United States troops. The order contemplates the early beginning of the movement, as the Spanish troops are expected to have progressed with the evacuation movement early in December.

Two Steamer Wrecked.

A special from Duluth, Minn., says: The steamers Tampa and Arthur Orr are wrecked on the north shore of Lake Superior. The two vessels represent about $450,000 with their cargoes. They lie within nine miles of each other. The Tampa had a cargo of coal from Buffalo.

Cut His Windpipe.

At Fostoria, Ohio, John Aldrich and his brother-in-law, John Shreck, had been drinking and quarreled. Shreck pulled a razor and severed the windpipe of his brother-in-law. The wounded man is still living, but there is little hope of his recovery. Shreck escaped.

Killed by His Brother.

A party of hunters started out from Ashland, Ky., and when about two miles out of town Frank Lamaster was shot in the head by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of his brother, John Lamaster, causing instant death.

Funds All Right.

Ellsberry (Mo.) special: The safe of the Lincoln County Bank, which robbers attempted to enter a few days ago, was opened by experts and the funds of the bank found to be intact. The bank has reopened for business.

A Loan Authorized.

The French Cabinet has decided to authorize a loan of 160,000,000 francs for the purpose of establishing an Indo-Chinese railway in connection with the Chinese railroads.

Business Man Dropped Dead.

Tilman Reipel, a wealthy coal man of South Bend, Ind., was found dead in a street of Mishawaka at night. The Coroner has started an investigation.

End of Blanco.

Madrid special: The Official Gazette publishes a decree accepting the resignation of Marshal Blanco as Captain General of Cuba.

Permitted To Cable.

Paris special: Mme. Dreyfus, the wife of the prisoner of Devil's Island, has been authorized to cable to her husband.

Big Blaze in Chicago.

The factory of the Allen B. Wrisley Company, makers of soap, 479-485 Fifth avenue, Chicago, was completely destroyed by fire. Spontaneous combustion was the cause. The loss is estimated at $105,000, amply protected by insurance.

Two Burned to Death.

Mrs. Nancy Staley and Minnie France, her niece, were burned to death at Huntington, W. Va., by a fire in the flats on the river front. May Staley was also badly injured.

Fatal Explosion in Paris.

A terrific explosion occred in the Cafe le Champeaux, Paris, France, underneath the offices of the Havas agency. A woman was killed outright and eight other persons were seriously injured. It is thought that the explosion was due to ignited gas, but there are rumors of an anarchist plot.

Two Farmers Frozen to Death.

George and Ed. Cotter, married farmers, were found frozen to death near Ash Grove, Mo. The day before they went to Ash Grove and drank considerable. They started to their farms and were caught in the blizzard. It is supposed they fell from their horses.

BUSINESS IMPROVES AFTER ELECTION.

Largest Clearing House Payments Ever Known Labor Troubles Mostly Settled.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The situation is clearer and the improvement in business which was expected after the election has begun. Payments through clearing houses are far the largest ever known—for the week, 37.3 per cent larger than last year and 33 per cent larger than in 1892. The glass workers have resumed, the anthracite coal output is heavy and much beyond the present capacity of markets, the troubles in Illinois coal mines have been settled and the new strike of shoe workers in Marlboro, Mass., is now the only labor hindrance of consequence. It is noteworthy that in spite of all changes the price of spot wheat has but slightly changed. The exports for the week, flour included, have been 3,968,768 bushels from Atlantic ports, against 3,237,344 bushels last year, and from Pacific ports, 988,093 bushels, against 2,191,334 bushels last year, making in all for two weeks of November, 9,312,331 bushels, against 9,939,804 bushels last year.

SILVERWARE TRUST FORMED.

International Silver Company Incorporated in Trenton, N. J.

Articles of incorporation of the International Silver Company, the silverware trust, were filed with the Secretary of State at Trenton, N. J. The company has an authorized capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $9,000,000 is preferred stock, to receive 7 per cent cumulative dividends, and the remaining $11,000,000 to be common stock. The company is authorized to manufacture and deal in silverware, plated ware, pottery and glass. The incorporators are William Findley, Hamilton H. Durand, Alexis P. Bartlett of New York, Frederick Dwight of Brooklyn and John J. Tracy of Jersey City.

STOMACH FILLED WITH PINS.

Many Foreign Articles Discovered During Dissection of a Body.

A dissecting class at the Toledo Medical College met with a strange subject the other morning. The body of a middle-aged woman who died at a charitable institution was being dissected. When the stomach was cut open the demonstrator and students were surprised to find that it contained at least a quart of hairpins, needles, brass pins, small nails and pieces of glass from one to three inches long. A ring with a fine stone was also found. The alimentary canal was stuck full of needles and pins. It is said that the woman had been insane.

Held Up an Overland Train.

Four robbers held up the west-bound overland passenger train between Daggett and Barstow, Cal. Express Messenger Hutchinson refused to open the express car, successfully defending it with a shotgun. The robbers finally were driven off by him. At Barstow the trainmen sent a posse back to the scene of the hold-up, where the body of one of the robbers was found, perforated with shot. Two robbers boarded the engine at Daggett and crawled over the tender. The engineer stopped the train and succeeded in escaping to the coaches. Fred Blakeley, a helper, who also got on the train at Daggett, fired at the two robbers, and they jumped from the engine. There were four robbers, but only two of them succeeded in getting on the train. They were evidently amateurs. The dead robber was a young man. The train held up was the west-bound Santa Fe overland, No. 1.

Shorthorn Cattle Bring Big Prices.

A sale of shorthorn cattle from the herd of H. C. Duncan of Osborn, Mo., attracted many breeders to the Kansas City stock yards. Fifty head sold for an average of $214 each, though twelve Cruickshank shorthorns, bulls, cows and heifers brought an average of $400. The highest price realized was $1,000, paid by J. W. Smith & Son of Allerton, Iowa, for the 3-year-old bull Baron Dudding. The lowest price was $105, for a 3-year-old cow.

Creek Nation Defeats Dawes' Agreement.

Secretary Bliss has received a dispatch from Indian Inspector Wright in the Indian territory announcing the rejection of the Dawes commission treaty by the Creek Indian nation. Inspector Wright says the count of the returns in the Creek elections has just been completed and that the treaty, instead of being ratified as has been believed, is defeated by a majority of 152 votes.

Injunction to Stop Boycott.

An injunction was granted by Judge Johnson of the District Court at Denver, restraining the International Association of Machinists, its officers and the striking mechanics formerly employed by the F. M. Davis Iron Works Company from interfering in any manner with the non-union men now employed in the shops nad from boycotting the company's products.

Hobson Lifts a Mortgage.

Lieut. Hobson has just lifted a mortgage of $6,000 on the home of his father. He earned the money by his pen. While Hobson and his men were held prisoners of war in Morro Castle word was sent to his parents that the foreclosure of the mortgage would be averted and the money raised by popular subscription, but the offer was courteously declined.

Explosion of Freight Engine.

An engine pulling a heavy lot of cars, while going up a grade near Converse Station, Ohio, exploded with fearful results. The fireman was killed and three trainmen fatally injured. The bodies were blown some distance away. The train consisted of twenty-five cars and each was derailed. The report of the explosion was heard for miles away.

Thieves at Work in Havana.

The new police force of Havana, established by Gov. Fernandez de Castro, is very defective. Senor Galis Menendez, inspector of police, who was severely wounded by thieves some days ago, died from the results of his wounds. One of the rooms in the audience chamber of Havana, where money and valuables were deposited, has been robbed.

Keely's Motor Secret Lives.

B. L. Ackerman, president of the Keely Motor Company, says: "Keely's secret did not die with him. On my arrival at Mrs. Keely's house I found her so prostrated that she was unable to more than state that Mr. Keely had left in her possession a manuscript of 2,000 pages, which explains the whole system and the work he has done."

Confesses He Is a Murderer.

Emil Wier stepped into Sheriff Melbury's office at Huron, S. D., and asked to be placed in jail, saying it was he who killed John Mott of Richland township, whose body was found in his barn. Wier claims to have committed the crime in self-defense.

Trouble on Shoshone Reservation.

Indian Agent Nickerson of the Shoshone reservation received a telegram from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs notifying him that Indians are illegally killing game and setting fire to forests in the Teton mountains of Wyoming.

Shot Himself in the Head.

George E. Chandler of Cleveland, Ohio, fatally shot himself through the head at the Forbush House in Erie, Pa.

Rebellion Against Federal Republic.

Late advices from Salvador, via Nicaragua, indicate that the revolt is more serious than at first thought. It may involve all five States in a general uprising. According to advices the real object of the movement is the overthrow of the Federal republic, which was organized Nov. 1 at Amapala. To accomplish this Regalados called in the aid of Guatemala and Costa Rica, who always viewed the union of Salvador, Nicaragua and Honduras as a constant menace to their sovereignty. The rebels are now in possession of all the departments, with the exception of La Union and San Miguel, the latter a stronghold of Horacio Villavicencio, who is a candidate in opposition to Regalados. The Federal Government is hurriedly mobilizing its forces to march against Regalados. Honduras sends 4,000, Nicaragua 400 and the Federal district of Salvador 2,000. The movement is backed by capitalists who are well-known military men.

WIFE AND MONEY ARE MISSING.

St. Louis Real Estate Dealer Fears the Woman Is Demented.

William F. H. Shroeder, a wealthy retired real estate dealer of St. Louis, aged 58 years, reported to Chief of Police Campbell that his wife, aged 30, whom he married eighteen months ago, had left home and taken with her money and valuable papers, mostly notes, valued at $27,000. Mr. Shroeder said: "Of this amount $1,500 was in cash, $8,000 in negotiable notes and the remainder could not be negotiated. I had notes for $18,000 held in trust for various persons for whom I was trustee. All these are gone. I am confident my wife has not eloped with a man. I think her mind is temporarily unbalanced because of sickness."

PORT ARTHUR COMPANY WINS.

Texas Supreme Court Decides It Can Build Its Canal.

The Supreme Court of Texas has handed down a decision in favor of the Port Arthur Channel and Dock Company in the injunction suit brought by the property holders near Port Arthur. The decision disposes of all questions in connection with the completion of the canal, which is in course of construction at Port Arthur, to connect the terminals of the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railway with deep water, a distance of six and one-half miles.

Big Victory for Scalpers.

The so-called anti-ticket scalpers' law has been declared unconstitutional by the New York Court of Appeals, and is therefore inoperative. This law, which was passed by the last legislative session in spite of bitter opposition, declared it a criminal act for any one to sell railroad tickets in that State except the authorized agents of the railroad companies.

Hacked by Highbinders.

While alone in the upper story of a dingy building on Commercial street, San Francisco, Ah Pun was hacked and beaten by Ah Bow and Sung Yee, two highbinders, who fled at the approach of a lodger in the house, thus saving Ah Pun's life. The latter was found lying over a grating, with his skull fractured and covered with gore.

Cattle Are Dying in Kansas.

Information comes to the Kansas live stock sanitary board that cattle in many sections of central Kansas are dying from eating frost-bitten oats. The volunteer growth in the fields was very rank, and wherever stock was turned on the oats stubble death resulted. Scores of cattle have died from the poison.

Prairie Fire Checked.

The most disastrous prairie fire that ever ravaged the Indian territory has been brought to an abrupt stop by heavy rains. The fire started in Chickasaw and Choctaw nations, and it is estimated that property valued at $250,000 has been destroyed. An area of seventy-five miles square was burned over.

Louisville Suffers from Fire.

Fire in the wholesale district of Louisville, Ky., destroyed the millinery store of David Baird & Son. New stock valued at between $50,000 and $60,000, was destroyed, while the building suffered $10,000 damages.

Father and Son Are Slain.

George Neighbors and his son Lewis were shot and killed on their farm near Garden City, Kan., by A. F. Potts as a result of a quarrel over the location of a fence. Potts is in jail.

Great Fire in San Francisco.

The Baldwin Hotel and theater in San Francisco was destroyed by fire. There were 800 persons in the building. Many are supposed to have perished. The loss is about $2,000,000.

To Buy a Sword for Hobson.

The Alabama House of Representatives has ratified a joint resolution appropriating $500 to buy a sword for Lieut. Hobson of Merrimac fame.

Death of Noted Union General.

Gen. Don Carlos Buell, one of the few surviving generals of the civil war, died at his home, Airdrie, Muhlenberg County, Kentucky.

Jealous Man Kills His Wife.

Ed. Ross shot and killed his wife three miles from Paducah, Ky. John Walker, of whom he was jealous, was also fired at, but escaped.

Iloilo Said to Have Fallen.

It is reported that Iloilo, capital of the island of Panay, is in the hands of the insurgents.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

The report of the surgeon general of the navy shows that on the thirty-one vessels of the North Atlantic squadron commanded by Admiral Sampson there were only twelve deaths out of a total of 5,516 men which was at the rate of 2.17 per 1,000, and only three of the twelve died from disease—one from pneumonia, one from consumption and one from alcoholism. Three were killed or died from wounds and six were drowned. In Admiral Dewey's squadron of eighteen vessels and 2,261 men there were only six deaths, at the rate of 2.65 per 1,000—one from cholera morbus, one from appendicitis, one from drowning, one from suicide, one from alcoholic poison and one from wounds. This is the most remarkable record that was ever known in any navy in the world.

Within a radius of two squares, just to the east of the treasury, lies the great news-heart of our republic. The center of this is the historic old "newspaper row," a dingy row of low buildings. At one time nearly all the important newspapers of the country had their offices there. In later days many have moved into more modern offices in neighboring buildings, but still within the circle. Here are busy brains and bright; so many mind-mills into which as into hoppers are poured day and night all the notable occurrences of government, prophecies of policies, politics and a perfect hodgepodge of small talk, and gossip, to be ground up into a blend flour fit for any and all palates, under the brand: "From our special correspondent at Washington."

The dome of the Capitol is probably one of the most fascinating things in Washington after one has come under its influence. It looks so simple at first—so small after one's ideas gleaned perhaps from pictures in the geography, that it is a while before its grandeur takes effect, but after that point has once been reached, it is only a question of time when you will become thoroughly and completely hypnotized. The dome is no respecter of persons, either; it takes artist and layman alike. It makes the artist think that it is easy to draw. But of all the things hideously misdrawn after the human form, none is more often than the Capitol dome.

No one will be surprised if Spain repudiates the Cuban and Philippine debts. It is a way she has of getting rid of embarrassing obligations. She has repudiated twice before, but she will harm nobody so much as her own people. Nearly all the Spanish bonds are held by Spaniards. The Bank of Spain alone, which is a Government institution, has at least $150,000,000. There is perhaps $150,000,000 held abroad, mostly in France, where they have been worked off among the peasants by unscrupulous stock brokers. No financier in Europe has bought Spanish bonds for an investment since the last repudiation.

President McKinley was the central figure in a picturesque scene at the White House the other day, when a delegation of Ute chiefs called to pay their respects to the "Great Father." They were led by Tim Johnson, an old-time brave, who had picked up somewhere the uniform coat of a captain of infantry, and he was so proud of this bit of finery that it interfered seriously with the dignity of the reception. He was accompanied by Sauce-A-Knockit, David Copperfield, Happy Jack and Charlie Mack. They all shook hands solemnly with the President.

Washington should be known as the Mecca of Brides. Every year it is becoming more and more the goal of the bridal tourists, and you may see the happy ones going the rounds of the public buildings any day in the year. Of course in June, and again around the holiday time, they are more in evidence.

NOT A MAN ESCAPES.

Employes of a Missouri Powder Mill Killed in an Explosion.

Ten thousand pounds of powder, which was being prepared for shipment in the packing house of the Hercules powder mill at Lamotte, Mo., situated on the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northern Railway, thirty miles south of Quincy, Ill., exploded at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, tearing into shreds the bodies of six men, who were at work in the building at the time.

Pieces of flesh and bone were found scattered over the ground a half-mile from the scene of the explosion. These were gathered up in buckets by the employes of the mill, but identification of any of the parts found was an utter impossibility. Several men working in the mill, which was some little distance from the packing house, were injured by broken glass and flying debris, but none was fatally injured.

The cause of the explosion will never be known; no eye-witness is left to tell the tale. There was always some loose powder on the floor of the packing room, and it is conjectured that some heavy article was accidentally dropped into it by one of the men, causing it to ignite.

The explosion was accompanied by a terrific report, and windows in buildings at New Castle, Ill., seven miles away, were broken by the jar. Reports received from Pittsfield, Bayliss, Kinderhook, Hulls and other towns in Pike County by telephone say the explosion was plainly felt in these towns. Bayliss is nearly twenty-five miles from Lamotte.

THANKSGIVING AT SANTIAGO.

Outdoor Games Are Postponed Because of Heat.

Thanksgiving day was observed at Santiago de Cuba for the first time in the 300 years' history of the city. By a proclamation issued by Gen. Wood, all business was suspended at the palace, on the streets and wharves. The employes of the municipality had a vacation, and only necessary work was done by the American troops.

It was a novel Thanksgiving day for the Americans. The thermometers registered 95 in the shade. Several projected baseball and football games were postponed on account of the heat. In the evening dinners and entertainments were given by American officers and Cubans. The most important dinner was at the Governor's residence, where Gen. and Mrs. Wood entertained a number of department officers and several American civilians.

CAN OF POWDER EXPLODES.

Spark from a Miner's Pipe Causes a Fatal Accident.

Near the coal mines in Dawson County, Ky., Will Barnes, a miner, was emptying a keg of powder in the house while smoking. A spark from his pipe dropped into a can of powder. His mother was instantly killed, and he and his sister were seriously injured. One end of the house was blown down and the entire building was damaged.

PERISHED IN THE FLAMES.

Lives Lost by Baldwin Hotel Horror at San Francisco.

The Baldwin Hotel, on the corner of Market and Powell streets, San Francisco, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The Baldwin Hotel was one of the finest hostelries in the city. The Baldwin Theater also took fire, and it, with all the properties of the William Gillette company, will also be a total loss.

Many panic-stricken guests jumped from the hotel windows and it is known that a number perished in the flames. Fire started at 3:15 in the morning. An alarm was given and the sleeping guests aroused so far as possible. They crowded in the smoke-filled hallways in their night clothes and soon there was the wildest excitement. A number were cut off by the flames, and many jumped to the street. Loss by the fire will run into the millions.

The Baldwin Hotel was built by F. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, the well-known turfman. He expended $1,500,000 in erecting and fitting out the hostelry. At the time it was built it was said to be the finest hotel in the country.

GOLD SEEKERS ARE SLAIN.

Indians in Alaska Massacre a Party of Prospectors.

A report has reached San Francisco that a party of fifteen gold seekers, including Rev. Mr. Webber, a Moravian missionary, were murdered by Indians while they slept. The Indians, after the massacre, held a dance, getting drunk, and then indulging in a fight among themselves over the division of the spoils. This party was reported drowned by the wrecking of the schooner Jessie some time ago, at the mouth of the Kuskowi river, in Alaska. P. Malakoff, a Russian, states, however, that the party reached shore in safety. The Indians rendered assistance in saving their tents and supplies, and then murdered the entire party.

Malakoff says he learned from a squaw that after the prospectors were killed the bodies were placed in canvas, taken out to sea and sunk. The squaw saw the Indians wearing the clothing and jewelry of the murdered men. Two bodies, which were washed ashore, were identified by an agent of the Alaska Commercial Company. Both bodies were mutilated, and were buried on the beach.

SHARKEY WINS ON FOUL.

Fight in New York Ends in Peculiar Manner.

The glove fight between James J. Corbett and Tom Sharkey at the Lenox Athletic Club in New York City Tuesday night resulted in a victory for the sailor pugilist after one minute and forty-eight seconds of fighting in the ninth round. Corbett was not knocked out, nor was the bout stopped because of distress on his part, but it was brought to a close abruptly by a violation of the rules by Corbett's second and trainer, Jim McVey, who jumped into the ring before time was up and thereby lost the fight.

McVey has trained Corbett and been behind him in every fight in which the ex-champion has indulged, and the unanimous opinion was that either McVey lost his head or he made the break intentionally. The referee was compelled to give the decision to Sharkey, but he made a most popular ruling by declaring all bets off. Thousands of dollars had been wagered on this fight, and, as Kelly said after it was over, it would have been manifestly unfair to decide away so much money on such a piece of unsportsmanlike behavior.

There were rumors throughout the crowd, and they would not down, that McVey's break was part of a scheme to save Corbett. There were also statements by unknown persons that the whole thing was preconcerted and was known by both sides before the fight.

FLEET READY FOR ACTION.

Warships Could Be Quickly Sent Into Service Again.

Though confident that hostilities will not be resumed, Secretary Long has made it a point since the peace protocol was signed to put the men-of-war of the service in the best possible condition. It would not take long to mobilize a strong fleet. The New York is now at Hampton Roads fully coaled and ready for sea; the armored cruiser Brooklyn and the battle ship Massachusetts, which are at New York, can sail within a short time, and the second-class battleship Texas is having her propeller sleeve repaired.

Besides these vessels, the department would probably attach to a fleet sent abroad the cruiser New Orleans, which will be ready for service in a few weeks, several gunboats and a fleet of colliers. The battleships Iowa and Oregon, which are at Rio, are also available for operations in Spanish waters.

FAST TRAIN KILLS SOLDIERS.

Wholesale Slaughter of Black Immunes in Georgia.

A fatal accident occurred on the Southern Railway at Silver Creek, Ga., early Tuesday morning. While running at a high rate of speed Engineer Waters suddenly discovered a crowd of negro soldiers walking on the track, but before he could check his train it had struck the soldiers. Waters stopped his train and found that at least three of the men had been killed, but the negroes swarmed about him and talked so strongly of lynching him that he hastily pulled out for Chattanooga. Parts of the remains of the victims were found hanging to the locomotive when it arrived there. The soldiers were members of the Seventh Immune regiment, who were en route from Lexington to Macon.

RIOTERS SLAIN BY PLOICE.

East Indian Mobs Resist Sanitary Regulations.

A dispatch from Allahabad says that serious plague riots occurred at Seringapatam on Friday. A thousand Hindoos and Mohammedans tried to rescue a number of persons who had been arrested for violations of the sanitary regulations.

In an earlier riot the police fired on the mob, killing two and wounding several. The rioters were temporarily dispersed but later contingents from the villages swelled the crowd until it numbered 10,000. They tried to rush the fort where the prisoners were lodged. The police fired volleys into them, killing and wounding several. A large number were arrested.

URGES NEGROES TO RESIST.

Perry Carson Tells the Blacks They Must Arm Themselves.

At a meeting of colored people at the First Baptist Church in Washington, resolutions were adopted condemning "the murder of innocent people in North and South Carolina." Col. Perry Carson, a prominent leader of the negroes, made the speech of the evening.

"Organization is what is needed," said he. "You niggers don't get nothing till you organize. Protect yourselves, your women and your property. Get your powder and your shot and your pistol."

Officers Shoot a Soldier.

At Knoxville, Tenn., Zeb Patton, a private of the Third North Carolina, colored, was shot and instantly killed by a squad of officers of that regiment. Patton, with other soldiers of Company C, became engaged in a difficulty. A guard was turned out under Lieut. Powell and attempted to disarm Patton, when he fired at them. Then the officers took deliberate aim and fired at Patton. His body was riddled with bullets.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties, and General Indiana News Notes.

Pensions for Indianians.

Pensions have been granted to Indianians as follows:

Original—Frederick Armand, Madison, $6; Henry B. John, Indianapolis, $6; Patrick Reilley, Hammond, $6; Ernst Kaiser, Fort Wayne, $8; David Donaldson, Solitude, $12.

Increase—George W. Mosier, Edwardsville, $10 to $12; Amasa S. Forister, Angola, $8 to $12; Charles Sweitzer, Evansville, $6 to $10; Abraham Allen, National Military Home, Grant, $8 to $12; John H. Leavell, Hagerstown, $6 to $10.

Reissue—Orlin Ingols, Indianapolis, $6.

Original Widows, Etc.—Margaret Tom, Muncie, $8; Elizabeth E. Lawyer, Saltillo, $8; Sarah J. Pfeiler, Muncie, $8; Jennie C. Woolley, Columbus, $12; Mary J. Weaver, Mr. Summit, $8; Serena E. Dotson, Indianapolis, $8.

Minor State Items.

Diphtheria is epidemic at North Salem.

Alpheus Birch, Greencastle grocer, has assigned.

A Fort Wayne party will take a trip to Porto Rico.

Slot machines of Fort Wayne have been buried.

Noblesville Bottling Works has started, employing 100 men.

Joseph Ragan of Kokomo, fell dead on the street recently.

The German Baptists are preparing to erect a new church in Goshen.

Mrs. William Oesterlee of Muncie, was attacked by a negro, who escaped.

A. W. Henry of Madison, has a Bible that onced belonged to Robert Burns.

Cut-up and blown-down corn in Southwestern Indiana rotted because of rain.

John H. Long, aged 70 years, of Columbus, a Democrat and ex-County Auditor, is dead.

The election cost Vanderburg County $6,000. Each inspector was allowed $1 8 for nine day's work.

Mrs. John Pohlman, wife of a leading manufacturer of Greensburg, is insane and will be taken to the Richmond Insane Hospital.

A counterfeit ten-dollar bill is being generously circulated in Indianapolis. It is a Hendricks head silver certificate, with the work unusually clever.

At Muncie, Aaron Richey's 5-year-old daughter was walking on a paling fence, when she fell astride. A paling penetrated her stomach seven inches and she will die.

While out hunting Cornelius Brenneman, aged 26 years, of Elkhart, let a gun slip as he was loading one barrel. The charge in the other barrel exploded and the injuries caused his death several hours later.

Col. Alexander Hardy of Washington, ex-Congressman, was arrested the other day, charged with using profanity on the streets. He was acquitted in a justice's court. Nor Hardy has sued the City Marshal for $10,000 damages.

Clarence Bolus, near Attica, was taken sick at the Foster-Evans wedding feast at West Lebanon. His corn was not husked, so twenty-five brother Knights of Pythias took their teams, the other day, and put all his corn in the crib.

At Indianapolis Sydney J. Jordan and wife were awakened at an early hour by the presence of a huge negro, with a revolver at full cock close to their faces. Mrs. Jordan screamed and the negro backed out of the house, carrying Mr. Jordan's overcoat and several dollars in cash.

Mrs. Della Carter has brought suit at Terre Haute to recover the estate of John J. Ferrell, worth $150,000. He was a widower, aged 80 years. Recently the Court ordered a distribution to a lot of cousins. The Carter woman says he adopted her and sent her to school at St. Mary's of the Woods.

Miss Nina Prince, a schoolma'am of Greentown, got hold of a note written by Joe Powell, aged 12 years, to one of the girls. It was bad and she turned him over her knee and used a ruler. The boys' parents had her arrested and she will be tried for cruelty. Marks of the ruler are said to be very evident.

Michael Gillespy, a farmer living north of Tipton a short distance, was married recently to Eliza Gillespy, from whom he has been separated five times. The husband and wife alternately applied for divorce, until the last time the Court, in deciding the petition, warned them not to apply again. Notwithstanding they entered upon their sixth trial of matrimonial felicity the other day.

Patents have been issued to Indianians as follows: Edwin L. Barber, Larwill, spring heel for boots or shoes; Ernest F. Barth, New Albany, game device; William H. Brown, Indianapolis, floor; William H. Cloud, Kokomo, measuring vessel; William M. Dennison, Bedford, track; Louis Pfeiffer, Jr., Butkin, endgate latch for wagons; Walter W. Schultz, Richmond, carriage pole; Elmer E. Stephenson, Wabash, trace holder.

The alliance of Indiana brewers and brewers' agents is now believed to have been perfected, headed by Albert Lieber of Indianapolis, and a number of retail saloons which have been operated at a loss by the syndicate will now be closed. Under the combine every brewer and agent connected with the trust will be required to make weekly reports to a financial manager, together with duplicate bills showing no sales have been made under $7 20 per barrel. The object of this combine is to freeze out Cincinnati, Aurora and other competition. About forty saloon keepers still remain outside the combine, and these are now getting estimates on car load lots from Cincinnate, Chicago and St. Louis dealers, looking to continued resistance.

At Vincennes the jury in the case of the State vs. John W. Campbell charged with swindling the Adams Express Company out of $400 by impersonating another man, failed to agree. This is the third time Campbell has been tried on this charge and the jury disagreed.

Six years ago while Edward Hill, aged 21 years, was out hunting near Brazil, his shotgun exploded, driving the breech pin two inches into his brain and crushing his skull. He surprised his physicians by recovering and was in good health until a few days ago, when violent pains set in, the wound driving him insane and he died.

Rev. C. U. Wade, tried at Muncie for cruelty to his horse, was acquitted, the jury returning a verdict in ten minutes. Women friends in the room clapped their hands for delight. It was shown that he did not beat his horse, but merely tied its tail to its head and threw it down until it was conquered. It had kicked out a dash beard.

An attempt was made a few nights ago to assassinate Mrs. George Green at Cementville, near Jeffersonville. She was standing at the gate of her residence when a shot was fired, the ball penetrating the abdomen. Her recovery is doubtful. Mrs. Green, it is asserted, says that a man disguised as a woman, did the shooting.

BIG FOOTBALL GAMES.

Western Championship Is Decided by Score of 12 to 11.

Michigan by defeating Chicago on Thanksgiving day by a score of 12 to 11 won the football championship of the West. The Wolverines outplayed the Maroons in the first half, but in the second half the Chicagoans rallied to an appreciable extent in their team work. Widman of the Ann Arbor eleven made a remarkable run of sixty-four yards that resulted in one of the two touchdowns made by his team. Herschberger drop-kicked a goal from a point forty-six yards from the line that netted five of Chicago's score, the other six being secured after a sensational series of dashes and plunges just before the end of the game.

Chicago Athletic Association's football team defeated Dartmouth University eleven by a score of 18 to 5. It was the first meeting of the two crack organizations since 1894, when the local stars vanquished the visitors, 4 to 0.

Northwestern University's football team was defeated by the eleven representing the University of Wisconsin by a score of 47 to 0. Far and above all the other features of the game was the great drop kick of Patrick O'Dea from Northwestern's sixty-yard line. This feat of the Wisconsin kicker came early in the contest and was the probable cause of the Northwestern team going so completely to pieces. It breaks the American record for long-distance drop kicking.

Following are results of big games: Mihigan 12, University of Chicago 11; Wisconsin 47, Northwestern 0; Chicago A. A. 18, Dartmouth 5; Illinois 11, Minnesota 10; Pennsylvania 12, Cornell 6; Oberlin 10, Purdue 0; Iowa University 6, Nebraskn 5.

SOLDIERS IN A RIOT.

Two Negroes Killed and Several Whites Are Wounded.

Great excitement prevails at Anniston, Ala., as a result of the armed conflict between white and black soldiers, resulting in two negroes killed and several minor casualties. The trouble was caused by a street fight early in the afternoon, when a colored soldier was dangerously beaten by white soldiers on Tenth street. A couple of hours later the negro soldiers in camp began retaliations. Several white soldiers reported that they had been shot at.

Just about dark the wholesale reprisals began, when squads of the Third Alabama regiment (colored) lay in ambush and commenced shooting at individual white soldiers passing by. A squad of the provost guard was ordered out, but the negroes opened fire on the approach of the guards and they were forced to retire. When re-enforcements arrived it was found the negroes had disappeared.

When the news spread white soldiers and citizens turned out in great numbers, and begged for arms. Later the armories of the two local military companies were broken into and every gun and cartridge appropriated.

Gen. Colby, who commands the Second brigade, ordered out two companies each of the Third Tennessee and Third Arkansas. They scoured the city and conducted all soldiers not on duty back to their camps. Several arrests of armed negroes were made, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the prisoners were saved from being lynched by the angry mobs.

PLUNGES DOWN A BANK.

Fast Train Wrecked and Twenty-two Persons Injured.

A three-coach and baggage incoming passenger train on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern road was wrecked six miles north of Burlington. One of the cars, containing thirty passengers, rolled down an embankment, turning three times in 150 feet. Two persons were fatally, three seriously and seventeen slightly injured.

The train left Cedar Rapids four hours late and was making up time. The rear car, a Pullman sleeper, jumped the track on a curve known as Six-Mile Post, where there is a steep embankment, ending in a dry gully twenty-five feet below. The sleeper turned on one side, but was not ditched. The day coach nearest the sleeper was the one that plunged down the embankment. The passengers were tossed about from floor

THE SILVER LINING.

When poets sing of lovers' woes
And blighted lives and throbs and throes
And yearnings—goodness only knows
It's all a pose.

I am a poet, too, you know,
I, too, was young once, long ago,
And wrote such stuff myself, and so
I ought to know.

I, too, found refuge from despair
In sonnet's to Amanda's fair
White brow or Nell's complexion rare,
Or Titian hair—

Which, when she scorned, did I resign
To flames, and go into decline?
Not much! When sonnets fetched per line
Enough to dine.

So, reader, when you read in print
A poet's woe—beware and stint
Your tears and take this gentle hint—
It is his mint.

Sir Thomas' Invention.

I

Few things are more unpleasant to contemplate than the prospect of being buried alive. The horror of the idea haunts some people like a nightmare; the dread of such a fate amounts in some of them to a species of madness. It was so with old Thomas Twining, who had, on repeated occasions given the most precise instructions as to the tests which should be applied to his presumably lifeless corpse before it was finally made ready for its resting place among the Twinings of three generations.

One evening as he sat ruminating over the subject he was struck with what he thought was a new idea. It was not new, by any means, for coffins which would open automatically on the revival of a supposed corpse have been known from almost the earliest times. Sir Thomas never heard of these of course; if he had he would have had one made long ago, and besides, there was really something new about his idea—which was that the coffin should not merely open, but fly to pieces, so as to afford instantaneous relief, and should contain the necessary tools, explosives, etc., to enable the prisoner to escape, even if he should awake to find himself bricked in from the air and the sun.

The baronet had always had a taste for mechanics, electricity, chemistry and the like. Castle Twining was full of apparata—lathes, benches and tools—and so Sir Thomas decided upon inventing with his own hands, the coffin which was to inclose his remains, and which was to effectually guard him against the doom which he regarded as ten times more terrible than death.

He thought over all sorts of projects—of levers which the slightest movement of the body must certainly act upon; of elongated electric buttons, the faintest pressure upon which would lift the cover of the coffin and lay its sides and ends flat upon its bed; of cements which the increasing temperature of the "body" would melt, and of fabrics which, while air proof, would easily be torn in shreds by convulsive and desperate fingers. All these, after full consideration, he discarded as failing in some particular to meet the requirements of the case.

Patience rewarded him at last, however. The next solution, he perceived, must be a pneumatic one. The releasing apparatus must be operated upon by an increase of the internal air pressure. How was this to be achieved? The answer came to Sir Thomas just as the idea of gravitation came to Newton and that of steam to Watt—by observation of one of the commonest incidents imaginable. The falling apple of the former and the hissing kettle of the latter spake not more clearly to those keen observers than did the opening of a bottle of soda water to Sir Thomas Twining. What was the gas in soda water but imprisoned air? And why should not the release of imprisoned air in the projected coffin effect the purpose in view?

Still, there was this difficulty—that the force necessary to let loose the soda water was greater than that needed to operate the mechanism which would throw the coffin open. And how was this initial force to be provided? Much anxious thought was bestowed upon this problem. But it, too, at length yielded to the baronet's persistent efforts, for he found that the same effect, on a much larger and therefore better scale, could be produced by an ordinary seidlitz powder. To devise a plan by which a light metal plate, attached by a slender rod to two cups containing tartaric acid and carbonate of soda, which would rest upon the corpses' hands, and on the slightest movement tilt the chemicals into a vessel of water, was no difficult matter. And then Sir Thomas had the satisfaction of beholding his coffin complete.

II.

It was beautifully made of oak, hinged at the corners in such a way as to open out flat directly the cover was disturbed, and having a most ingenious snap-catch for the cover itself so that, when once fastened down, it was practically immovable from the outside, but was instantly lifted partly off when the increased internal air pressure acted on a valve as delicate as the tympanum of a telephone.

Words cannot describe Sir Thomas' delight when for the first time he put the coffin to practical proof. Having chloroformed his favorite dog, a mastiff, he laid the animal out in the coffin, set the metal plate in position on his paws, charged the cups with the necessary chemicals, shut down the cover with a sharp click and calmly awaited the result.

Half an hour passed and nothing happened. There was nothing surprising in this for Sir Thomas had calculated the anaesthetic to last at least as long; but when fifteen minutes more had gone by, the baronet began to feel a little anxious. He was not so much concerned about the dog, although he was sincerely attached to him. It was the thought that the invention might be a failure, after all, which distressed him most. Judge therefore, of his joy when as if some one had touched a hidden spring the cover was seen to rise—at first slightly, and then with a velocity as if dynamite had been exploded under it, while the mastiff, with a yell that might have lifted the roof—not of the casket merely, but of Castle Twining itself—sprang madly out of its prison, gave a ferocious glance at Sir Thomas and leaped like one possessed through the open window. The mastiff was not seen again for days, and when at last it returned the poor beast was so emaciated that evidently nothing but hunger had induced it to come home. But Sir Thomas was overjoyed. The great work had been accomplished at last.

III.

After this Sir Thomas took great delight in showing off the merits of his coffin to his visitors and neighbors. On the first of these occasions the services of the mastiff were again requesitioned. But the mastiff objected. Once buried, twice shy. No sooner did he catch sight of the dreaded receptacle than he broke loose from his custodians, and galloped off as fast as his legs could carry him. Of course, another dog was found, and was put through the experiment successfully, but he, too, strange to say, could not be induced to repeat the performance, and gave the mansion a very wide berth ever after. In fact, long before Sir Thomas had demonstrated his invention to all who were curious to see it, he had alienated the affections of every dog on the estate, and was obliged to borrow from his neighbors. Matters reached such a pass at last—all the available dogs for miles around having been "used up," so to speak—that in respone to the numerous applications which racked Sir Thomas to see the wonderful coffin, he used to say by way of postscript: "Visitors are kindly requested to bring their own dogs."

The coffin used to lie on a narrow bench in the library, and Sir Thomas would sometimes sit for hours and gaze upon it lovingly. One afternoon an idea occurred to him which he was rather surprised had not suggested itself before. It was that he should put the invention to a crucial final test by confining himself within the coffin, and then, by setting the apparatus going, effecting his own release, precisely as he would do if, unfortunately, he should be supposed to be dead while still alive. Of course, he would not chloroform himself; that was unnecessary, as well as impracticable. Indeed, it would be as much as he could do to adjust the chemicals and the levers, and then, having stretched himself inside the casket, to lower the cover upon it in the proper way.

He put in an extra dose of the soda and the acid, laid himself down, and carefully drew the lid forward until he had worked it into the right position.

One hand was just beneath the metal plate, the other still supported the cover. At this supreme moment a sudden sinking of the heart sent a cold sensation through the baronet's frame, and he could not help thinking it would have been better had some one else been present in case—

Bah! what could happen? Had he not carried out a hundred similar experiments without a single failure? He withdrew his hand from the lid and in an instant, click! Sir Thomas was to all intents and purposes dead and buried.

What happened immediately after can only be conjectured; Sir Thomas himself was never able to give any clear account. It is certain, at all events, that from some cause or other the apparatus failed to act. The baronet swears that he moved the metal plate exactly in the right way, but that instead of hearing the "fizz" of the seidlitz powder he perceived nothing to save a deathly and appalling silence, while a few seconds sufficed to throw him into the agonies of asphyxiation.

He remembers very little else, and from this point the story is continued by the servants at Castle Twining, who say that they heard a most awful crash in the library, as of some body falling from a considerable height; that on rushing in they found the coffin on the floor, literally broken in halves, and that their beloved master was frantically endeavoring to extricate his head from one half, while his feet seemed firmly wedged into the other. They got him out, purple in the face, and with every vein in his body at bursting point, and applied restoratives freely, after which he speedily recovered, though speech was still denied him. It was not before a powerful restorative had been administered to him that he gasped:

"I think I must have forgotten to put in the water!"

Whether this was so or not, it is certain that Sir Thomas had the wreck of the coffin carefully removed and disposed of. He never made another, and never patented the invention. He still retains his dread of premature burial, but his final instructions on the matter are that all possible doubts as to his decease shall be resolved in any way his medical attendants may decide upon, but that his body shall not be inclosed in any coffin whatever.

"A mere winding sheet," he says, "a mere winding sheet! That's quite good enough for me!"

Chicken Eating Squirrels.

"What are you shooting?" said a man at the old Meeker tavern in Union to a couple of Newark gunners a few days ago.

"We are out for gray squirrels," said one of the Newarkers.

"I wish you would kill them all," said the hotel man. "They killed twenty-four of my young chickens this season."

"Are you sure of that," said one of the Newarkers, to whom the fact that squirrels are omniverous was a surprise.

"Sure as shooting," the Union man replied. "We climbed the trees and found parts of the young chickens in the squirrels' nest."

It is an undisputed and indisputable fact that red squirrels eat flesh, and gray squirrels have frequently been accused of the cat-like habit of killing and eating nestling birds, but this was a case where proof was found.—Newark Sunday Call.

WILL ABOLISH WAR.

ELECTRICIAN TESLA DEVISES A NEW POWER.

Claims It Will Render Useless the Navies of the World—Destroys Distance, and from a Base in New York Can Operate in Europe.

WHEN all the world is ringing with rumors of an impending colossal conflict there comes from the laboratory of one of the great magicians of science the announcement of the development of a power which he believes is destined immediately to usher in the era of universal peace by the demonstration of its ability to destroy, without the possibility of defense, the mightiest armaments of all the naval powers.

In the words of Nikola Tesla, the electrician, "war will cease to be possible when all the world knows to-morrow that the most feeble of the nations can supply itself immediately with a weapon which will render its coast secure and its ports impregnable to the assaults of the united armadas of the world. Battleships will cease to be built and the mightiest armorclads and the most tremendous artillery afloat will be of no more use than so much scrap iron. And this iresistible power can be exerted at any distance by an agency of so delicate, so impalpable a quality that I feel that I am justified in predicting that the time will come, incredible as it may seem, when it can be called into action by the mere exercise of the human will."

In brief, Mr. Tesla's latest and most startling miracle consists in an application of electricity whereby, without the interposition of any artificial medium of communication, one man can control and direct, with absolute exactitude, the movements of any type of vessel, balloon or land vehicle, at any distance that may be desired. From a station on shore, or from the deck of a vessel under way, a torpedo boat equipped with Mr. Tesla's controlling device may be propelled either on or below the surface, maneuvered at will in any direction, and finally brought into contact and exploded against the side of a hostile vessel at any point within the range of the vision of the operator.

More than this, assuming that it were possible to accurately locate the position of the vessel which it is desired to destroy, the torpedo boat could be directed to it, even if the ship lay in the harbor of Southampton and the operator were stationed at Sandy Hook. With such marvelous possibilities of destruction, it is hardly to be wondered that Mr. Tesla firmly believes that the days of the supremacy of sea power are numbered.

Hitherto, says Mr. Tesla, the only means of controlling the movements of a vessel from a distance have been supplied through the means of a flexible conductor such as an electric cable, but this system is subject to obvious limitations, such as are imposed by the length, weight and strength of the conductor which can be practically used; by the difficulty of maintaining, with safety, the high speed of the vessel or changing the direction of her movements with rapidity, by the necessity of effecting the control from a point which is practically fixed, and from many other drawbacks which are inseparably connected with such a system.

The plan which I have perfected involves none of these objections, for I am enabled by the use of my invention to employ any means of propulsion, to impart to the moving body or vessel the highest possible speed, to control the operation of its machinery and to direct its movements from either a fixed point or from a body moving and changing its direction, however rapidly, and to maintain this control over great distances, without any artificial connections between the vessel and the apparatus governing its movements, and without such restrictions as these must necessarily impose.

Mr. Tesla then went on to give a practical example of the workings of the model which the correspondent describes:

Elevated on stocks on a table in the center of Mr. Tesla's laboratory in New York stood a model of a screw-propelled craft, about four feet long and somewhat disproportionately wide and deep. The deck was slightly arched and surmounted by three slender standards, the center one being considerably higher than the other two, which carried small incandescent bulbs, a third bulb being fixed at the bow.

The keel consisted of a massive copper plate, the propeller and rudder being in the usual position. Mr. Tesla explained that the boat contained the propelling machinery, consisting of an electric motor actuated by a storage battery in the hold, another motor to actuate the rudder and the delicate mechanism which performs the function of receiving through the central standard the electric impulse sent through the atmosphere from the distant operating station, which set in motion the propelling and steering motors, and through them light or extinguish the electric bulbs and fire the exploding charge in a chamber in the bow in response to signals sent by the operator.

"Now, watch," said the inventor; and going to a table on the other side of the room, on which lay a little switchboard about five inches square, he gave the lever a sharp turn. Instantly the little bronze propeller began to revolve at a furious rate. "Now I will send the boat to starboard," he said, and another quick movement of the lever sent the helm sharp over, and another movement turned it as rapidly back again. At another signal the screw stopped and reversed.

"During the day," continued Mr. Tesla, his hand still on the lever, "we should steer our course by keeping the two standards in line, but at night we should depend on the electric lights, which would, of course, be screened so as not to be visible to the enemy." And at a signal both the tiny bulbs were illuminated.

"Now we will assume that the boat has arrived within striking distance of the vessel to be destroyed, and the bulb in the bow will serve to show that the explosion has taken place."

As he spoke he touched the lever again and the light flashed and was extinguished.

NIKOLA TESLA.

Whose Discovery, It Is Claimed, Will Abolish War and Change the Fate of Nations.

"Imagine, if you can," said Mr. Tesla as he went back to his desk, "what an irresistible instrument of destruction we have in a torpedo boat thus controlled, which we can operate day or night, on the surface or below it, and from any distance that may be desired. A ship thus assailed would have no possibility of escape.

"I can apply this system of control to any type of vessel and of any size. It is not even necessary to make a close approach to the vessel to be destroyed. At the distance of 100 feet the explosion of 200 pounds of dynamite will exert a shattering effect on a battleship, but there is no reason why we should not load a vessel with 200 or 300 tons, or even more, of dynamite, which, exploded even a mile or so away, would raise a wave that would overwhelm the biggest ship ever built.

"But I have no desire that my fame should rest on the invention of a merely destructive device, no matter how terrible. I prefer to be remembered as the inventor who succeeded in abolishing war. That will be my highest pride. But there are many peaceful uses to which my invention can be put, conspicuously that of rescuing the shipwrecked.

"It will be perfectly feasible to equip our life-saving stations with life cars, or life boats, directed and controlled from the shore, which will approach stranded vessels and bring off the passengers and crews without risking the lives of the brave fellows who are now forced to fight their way to the rescue through the raging surf. It may also be used for the propulsion of pilot boats, for carrying letters or provisions or insruments to inaccessible regions, for killing whales and for many other commercial or scientific purposes.

"In the operations of war the radius of control would usually be limited by the range of the vision of the operator, whether afloat or ashore, but otherwise there is no limit to the distance. In order to give a practical illustration of this it is my intention to exhibit a model of a torpedo boat at the Paris Exposition and direct all its movements from my office in New York, precisely as I have shown you the working of the model here, except that in Paris I intend to exhibit it afloat in a tank."

Mr. Tesla then stated that the electrical disturbances proceeding from the center of the control were of an infinitesimally feeble character, and he believed that the time would come when it would be possible to bring them into play by the mere exercise of the will.

TOLD BY FINGER NAILS.

Temperment and Health Shown by the Nails' Coloring and Form.

The temperament of a person and the condition of health are shown by the coloring and form of the finger nails. Long, oval nails show a reasonable and gentle disposition; one who would yield in a controversy sooner than arouse enmity, even when his or her contention is right. The nails when very short and broad indicate an obstinate nature. Little white flecks on the nails indicate a nervous temperament.

When the white moons at the base of the nails are large and the nails are of a bright pink color, they indicate vigorous health. On the contrary, nails of a pale bluish color, with little or no moons, show an unhealthy condition of nerves and want of recreation. Nails when very much curved show a tendency to throat trouble. Nails which are thin and turn out at the end show weak nerves. Fluted nails show a liability to blood poisoning.

A parrot owned by an Arch street physician gave signs of possessing "almost human intelligence" the other night. A party of young folks were on the lawn and were spending an hour in guessing riddles. Finally, a young lady asked: "Why does a dog turn around twice before he lies down?" Before anybody could answer, the parrot croaked: "One good turn deserves another."—Philadelphia Call.

THE MARCHAND EXPEDITION.

Anent the Territory in Dispute Between France and England.

The British ultimatum that the French should get out of the Nile valley and Great Britain's refusal to recognize the political significance of the Marchand expedition brought to an issue a question of two years' standing.

When Great Britain, acting for Egypt, began the reconquest of the Soudan in 1896, France sent an expedition from French Congo into the interior to reach the southern Nile, if possible, before the English and claim authority there. This was the Marchand expedition. It consisted of six French officers, a doctor, another French civilian, an Arab interpreter, and four sergeants, who were to command the two companies of African troops. There were two gunboats which could be carried by and in sections, and three aluminum boats. On April 13, 1897, the mission left Bangi, and on June 17 the vanguard reached Semio, on the Mbomu, which is not far distant from the Bahr-El-Ghazel province of the southwestern Nile tributaries, and of which Fashoda is the capital. By March, 1898, Marchand had reached Meshra-El-Rek, on one of the tributaries to the Nile, and last July he reached Fashoda. As is well known, Gen. Kitchener took Omdurman on Sept. 2 and immediately left for Fashoda with a large force on five gunboats. This he took early in September and established garrisons there and on the Sobat River. Marchand had too small a force to repel the Anglo-Egyptians, but he claimed to have made treaties with the chiefs of the Shilloks, a tribe that rules the Fashoda district, which recognized the protectorate of France. Gen. Kitchener, however, denies there are any such treaties, and England refused to recognize Marchand as a political factor at Fashoda. England claims for Egypt all the provinces which were formerly held by the Khedive before the insurrection of the Mahdi. These provinces included Fashoda and the Nile almost to Uganda and the southwestern tributaries of the Nile as well, reaching over toward French Congo.

THE NILE REGION.

There Are No Flies on Him.

Benjamin Berdell, a wandering clock repairer, is death on flies. Three years ago, when at Rahway, N. J., during a storm he was picking cherries, when the tree was struck by lightning. Berdell received a severe shock. It transformed him into an electric man. Anyone who shakes hands with him now receives a severe shock. By pressing the blades of a knife between his thumb and finger during a storm he charges the metal so strongly that heavy weights can be lifted. When flies alight upon him they drop dead. When he is in a dark room sparks flash from his flesh and his eyes shine like incandescent lights. Whenever a storm approaches Berdell becomes highly charged with electricity and it is dangerous to touch him. He says that he feels no inconvenience except that he will not go near a moving locomotive for fear of being drawn against it and killed.—New York Press.

Feminine Financiering.

"I have a vague recollection," said a prominent business man, "that when I was a boy I heard as an impersonal joke much used by minstrel shows exactly the same story that I am now going to tell you as a truth. The thing actually happened during the summer just passed. I had occasion to go abroad for a couple of weeks during September, but before I went away I left in bank, at the disposal of my wife, a sum of money that I considered more than ample to meet all her needs while I was away. I gave her my check book, in which there were at least fifty signed checks, which I instructed her how to fill up. Well, as I learned upon my return, the good lady got along famously for a while, for when a woman has a check book at her command she is supremely happy. One day, however, about a week before my return, she went into the bank to get some cash. The paying teller told her very politely that there was no money there for her—the account was already overdrawn. My wife was indignant, and insisted that there must be some mistake. The teller suggested that she bring her bank book for comparison. 'I have it right with me,' said my wife, fumbling in her reticule; 'and,' said she, as she drew out my check book, 'you can see for yourself that there are still quite a number of checks in it that haven't been used yet.' The paying teller refrained from laughing, and endeavored to give her a short lesson in banking, but she doesn't understand it yet."—Philadelphia Record.

Eagle Whips Rooster.

Back in the forties an American ship visited one of the ports of Spain, and while lying at anchor in the harbor the officers went ashore to see the sights, says the Fall River News. Among the places they took in was a cock pit, a popular resort, to see the sport. The game cock of the don is a diminutive bird, but a fighter.

One of the Americans expressed contempt for the bird, and boasted that he had on his ship a Yankee rooster that could whip any bird ashore. The dons accepted the challenge, and a match was arranged. On the ship the sailors had an American eagle, which they proceeded to starve and trim of his feathers so as to resemble a Shanghai cock, strange birds to the Spanish, and on the appointed evening carried him ashore for the battle.

The dons eyed him suspiciously, but he was dumped into the pit, where he stood, hungry and ugly, taking in the surroundings. The Spanish cock, a champion fighter, was brought in and likewise pitched into the pit. Strutting and crowing, he sparred for an opening at his silent and watchful Yankee enemy, and finally let drive at him with his "slashers," knife spurs, and drew first blood. Aroused, with one wild scream, the eagle lit on him, tore off his head, and, to the horror of the Spaniards, began to eat him.

They lost their money, their honor was trailed in the dust, and to this day they do not understand the peculiar nature of the American fighting cock.

Crusade Against Cradles.

"The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world" was a very pretty sentiment in its day. Even now orators who are not quite up-to-date on the ethics of "child culture" do a little soaring along this line. They don't know that well-regulated mothers have started a crusade against cradle rocking, and that there is a stigma on the hand which persists in jogging the baby. Apparently the electricians did not know this, either, for they have invented a cradle which can be rocked by electricity. All the fond mother has to do is to put the plug in the switchboard, and the cradle will rock until the baby grows up and pulls the plug out himself, if some one doesn't do it before that. Consequently, the prospects are that if the cradles of the world do go on swinging, the hand that rocks them will be that of the electrician. In that case, may be the hand that rocks the cradle will continue to be the one that rules the world, but there will scarcely be so much sentiment about it.—New York Sun.

Frederic as a Flutist.

Frederick the Great made generous presents to all musicians except flute players. He played the flute remarkably well himself, and his proficiency sometimes led to acts that caused disappointment to his brother artists. A famous flutist once visited Potsdam, and asked permission to play to the king, hoping that Frederick would show his appreciation of his skill by some valuable gift. Frederick received him graciously, and listened attentively while he played a difficult piece. "You play very well," he said, "and I am very glad to have heard of such ability. I will give you a proof of my satisfaction." So saying he left the room. The musician waited, guessing at the probable nature of the "proof." Presently the king returned with his own flute and played the same piece which had just been executed for him. Then he bade his visitor "Good day," saying: "I have had the pleasure of hearing you, and it was only fair that you should hear me."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Colonel and the President.

During the late Spanish-American war a certain old colonel who had served all through the civil war and who had lost one of his eyes at the battle of Gettysburg, was very indignant because he was put aside as physically incapable when he applied for admission to one of the New York volunteer regiments.

Filled with wrath he journeyed to Washington, bent on having a personal interview with the President. He succeeded in getting an audience, and the President, after listening to his plea, said kindly:

"'But, my good Colonel J—, you have only one eye."

"Just so, sir," was the prompt rejoinder; "but can't you see the great advantage of my having only one eye? When I aim my gun I will not have to close the other!"

He fought at Santiago.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Good Influences.—Good suggestions and influences do not drive or force us; they only lead.—Dr. Pratt, Swedenborgian, San Francisco, Cal.

Man.—Man has power over the laws of the universe, and can and does oftentimes bend them to his will.—Rev. R. F. Coyle, Presbyterian, Detroit, Mich.

God's Work.—In the great church of God there is somewhere a work for every honest man.—Rev. Wm. J. Long, Congregationalist, North Cambridge, Mass.

Rest.—The rest God speaks of is not the alternative of something else, but the quality which marks the highest attainment of the human soul.—Dr. Storrs, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Fatherhood of God.—Some people say that the fatherhood of God is all the theology they want. With one exception, I am inclined to accept that view.—Dr. Abbott, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

God's Question.—When God asks a question he pronounces a judgment. His question searches us through and through. His question carries its own answer.—Rev. D. Gregg, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A New Epoch.—There is a class of people who have outgrown the church and who find the satisfaction that they require in literature, science and many other new theories of life.—Rev. Thos. Van Ness, Unitarian, Boston, Mass.

The Idea of God.—The idea of God holds a very large place in human life. It matters not how we got this idea. We have it and live in it. The idea emerges whenever we get at the conception of truth.—Dr. Patton, Methodist, Princeton, N. J.

The Great Truth.—Among certain elements of faith which are fundamental we must emphasize the great truth that man is a spirit, the conviction that man is free and the fact of grace.—Rev. J. N. Beard, Methodist, San Francisco, Cal.

Honor and Happiness.—Honor and happiness are not dealt out in due proportion to men's just deserts. Many who are good and kind suffer the loss of fortune, reputation and everything that makes life worth living.—Rev. Dr. McElveen, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, New York.

The Happiest People.—It needs some one very often to show us how fortunate we are. The happiest people in the world are by no means those who have the most to be happy with, but those who are most aware of what they have, and who make the most of it.—Rev. W. H. Lyon, Congregationalist, Brookline, Mass.

The Invisible God.—As we are taught in the peaceful hours of childhood, so we are taught in the years of manhood. God is everywhere, yet God is invisible; and the angels of God, his ministering spirits, his viceroys, they, too, are spirits.—Rev. J. J. Prendergast, Roman Catholic, San Francisco, Cal.

America's Duty.—America owes a duty to Spain. She will utterly perish unless she learns self-reliance, and she will never learn this until her colonies are taken from her. For this reason the United States should entirely separate the mother country from her colonies for the advantage of both.—Rev. C. C. Earle, Baptist, Boston, Mass.

Our Flag.—Our flag is a symbol of light, the banner of dawn. The poor slave, the downtrodden creatures of a foreign despotism, the starving victims of a barbarous oppression, find light and freedom beneath it. In all these years it never lost a star. God bless the soldier who goes with it.—Rev. W. H. Moreland, Episcopalian, San Francisco, Cal.

Repentance.—If there is to be a genuine repentance, there must be somebody to repent to, as well as something to repent from. In John the Baptist's preaching the emphasis laid on the heinousness of sin was strong, but the emphasis on the loveliness of Christ was stronger. His denunciation of sin was terrible, but his adoration of Jesus knew no bounds.—Rev. J. A. Francis, Baptist, New York City.

SALISBURY'S BUMPS.

British Premier's Qualities as Indicated by His Head.

This is the head of Lord Salisbury, British premier. Self-esteem, cautiousness, imagination, perception and reason are strongly marked. Hope and personal ambition are small. He has firmness and a wide horizon. His qualities as indicated by his head are, indeed, the same as displayed in his career.

THE STATESMAN'S CHARACTERISTICS.

Hot Baths.

A hot bath is usually decried as provocative of colds and other evils. Every one knows of cases of severe illness occurring from exposure to the outer air after such ablutions. And yet nothing is more refreshing, as nothing is more harmless, if properly taken. The reason is that one should use the hot bath as one does that of very cold water, merely as a plunge, followed by quick and thorough rubbing and massage.

BUTLER.

Florence E. Campbell and her aunt Lizzie Champion visited near Pleasant Lake last week, and were caught in Friday's storm.

Dr. McIlrath, wife and escort, reached Butler last Friday evenidg, mid the ringing of bells, screaming of whistles and booming of cannons, (in imagination.) They did create a sensation, however, and hundreds of people lined the streets as the "Globe Girdlers" wheeled into town. Many hundreds of our people visited them at their hotel. The band played stirring music, and all in all we gave them quite an ovation. Friday night's snow storm tied them up, and they are still among us at this writing.

Mrs. William Mutzfeld is seriously sick at present and grave fears are felt for her recovery.

The Basket Factory has been idle for a few days, on account of shortage of timber and of suitable orders.

Our people generally observed Thanksgiving. The attendauce at the church service at the Church of God was only moderately attended. The ladies of the M. E. church served a Thanksgiving dinner and supper at their church, from which they netted about $45.

Our former townsman, Ira J. Crow, is comfortably settled in the Ulm house, near the elevator, and is, we believe in the same building he used to occupy on west side of Broadway.

George R. Flood of North Liberty, Indiana, has been spending a week with J. A. Campbell, soliciting business for the Home Insurance Company of New York. They visited Waterloo, Corunna, Helmer, Hudson, Ashley, Hamilton and Metz, and secured a liberal amount of new and desirable business from all these places.

Jacob Cook, living four miles north of Butler, lost his residence by fire last Friday night. Cause of fire is unknown. A large part of the household goods were saved. Mr. Cook and his wife were visiting at Josiah Neidig's. and got home to see their home go up in flames. Mr. Cook was fairly well insured in the Hartford Insurance Company.

McILRATHS HERE!

They Have Been Around the World but Wanted to see Auburn Before they Settled Down

The Famous Globe Trotters Nearing the end of Their Four Years Journey, and are Glad they are Almost Done.

Dr. and Mrs McIlrath, the now famous Inter-Ocean correspondents spent Sunday in Auburn, at the home of Mr. Parmeton on South Jackson-st. The ladies are sisters, and their mother, Mrs. Boyer. of Defiance, was here with them. They had taken Thanksgiving dinner in Defiance with Mrs. McIlrath's mother and the next day had to lay up for the furious snow storm, on Saturday they come to Butler. These short delays were in part made necessary by the bad state of the roads and bad weather, Besides, Dr, McIlrath had met with an accident Wednesday, the other side of Defiance by striking his side against the handle bar of his wheel in such a way as to break one of his ribs. This made it necessary for them to travel by easy stages. So after resting at Butler over night, they took the morning Wabash train over to Auburn and staid over till Monday morning, when they went back to Butler. They had left their bicycles there, and so resumed their journey awheel from that place. This also gave them the advantage of the fine paths along the tracks of the Lake Shore road which they can follow directly into Chicago.

It will be remembered by our people, and especially by readers of the Chicago Inter Ocean, that Dr. H. D. McIlrath and his wife have been going around the world under a contract with that great newspaper. The conditions were that they should, as far as possible go on their wheels, only going by water when absolutely necessary. They were to have all their expenses paid and at the end of the trip were to receive from the Interocean and $4000 and also the same amount each from the Fowler Bicycle manufacturers, who furnished the wheels, We also understand that they are to own the copy right of the book of their travels, which is to be compiled from the letters they wrote to their paper, the Interocean. These letters they have faithfully sent from all places around the globe, where they had a chance to mail or send a letter. They have proved very interesting and have thrown light and added knowledge on many old-world scenes, cities, countries and people, not heretofore known. All who have followed them in their long wanderings know this, and their letters have been more widely read than the travels of any other "globe trotters" we know of.

They started westward from Chicago on their wheels in April 1895, almost four years ago, and wheeled across the country to the Pacific coast, Leaving the United States at San Francisco, the took steamer to Yokohama and then to Tokio, in Japan. They made several trips into the interior of that country and sent admirable descriptive letters home. From there they crossed over to China and made such trips as they could by permission of the authorities After meeting with various rebuffs and difficulties some of which they overcame, and in some of which they failed, they worked their way by degrees across a part of Asia passing through by way of Persia, then to Tidis, took steamer across the Black Sea and reached Constantinople. After a short stay there, they resumed their overland journey across Europe passing through Hungary and finally reached the sea at Dieppe, France. From there they crossed to England, and on finishing that country, they took a steamer at Southhampton and crossed to New York. Here their over land journey began. They reached Defiance, Ohio, as already stated on Thanksgiving day. Their long journey is nearly done for it is completed when they reach Chicago, which they expect to do in two or three days now, if Mr. McIlrath's injuries do not lay him up.

They expect to be met by admiring friends and lovers of the wheel at various points, especially at South Bend where a reception will be given them. The cyclometers on their wheels already show a distance of over 29,000 miles traveled which is more than the distance arouud the earth. For though they went many thousand miles by steamer, they made many long trips in different directions. on land. They are still riding the same wheels they had when they started. They think the Fowler bicycles have no equal for durability and reliability. They have met with some accidents, of course. Once, while, in Persia, the Doctor broke one of the forks of his wheel, and a Persian made him a new one of iron, that is still in use. At a town in Hungary as they were wheeling along a street, suddenly a man with a team came from across street, and before the team could be stopped they had run into him, throwing him down and running over the bicycle, which when picked up, bid fair to be of no further use. None of the spokes were broken, however, though some were pulled out But by Mr, McIlrath's skill and experience and such help as local artisans could give, the wheel was finally put in such shape, that he has used it ever since. Mrs. McIlrath's wheel has met several accidents also, but not so serious. We believe each has used up three sets of tires in the journey. We do not understand that the wheels were made on purpose for them unless it might be hers, she being a small woman, perhaps had hers made to order.

Sunday afternoon while they were resting at Mr. Parmerton's, the editor and wife, and W. C. Hartman, A. C. Robbins, D. A. Hodge and Hubert Hartman, took the liberty to call on them. We found Mr. McIlrath, asleep and trying to rest up a little. But Mrs. McIlrath, received us with cordiality, and very cheerfuly entered into a conversation, that brought out many of the facts above noted. She is a small, but evidently very plucky lady, bright, cheerful and brimful of ideas and facts in connection with the long trip She spoke of the many dangers and difficulties encountered and seemed to feel that their wonderful trip was all a matter of course after all. In reply to a question by Mr, Robbins, she said they always had to carry a good sum of money with them, say from $200 to $500, but had never been robbed. On starting into a new country, they would exchange some of their money, for the money in use in that country, and so on with the other countries. By the time their money got low, they would reach some large city where a letter of credit could be cashed and so get a new supply. Missionaries sometimes had to assist them in getting this done.

The COURIER party wishes to express their obligations to Mrs. McIlrath and to Mr. Parmerton and family for the privilege of this interview. Mrs. McIlrath is apparently in excellent health, and her face is nicely browned by exposure. But she is a bright, intelligent lady, and has evidently improved her opportunities on this extensive tour. She has a very pleasant and friendly manner, and impressed favorably, all who met her. They wear warm and strong bicycle suits and look comfortable in them. They returned to Butler this morning, and are now again wheeling on their closing trips. We wish them a pleasant and safe ending of this wonderful journey.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave me relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong, I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drugstore; every bottle guaranteed.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's Drug Store.

NOT AMONG INDIANS

Nine-tenths of the American People Suffer From Indigestion and Dyspepsia

Dyspepsia has become known as a disease of civilization. It has become domesticated in America, and the people threaten to monopolize it. Few disorders inflict upon their victims greater suffering, and statistics prove that a majority of the ills have this disease as their origin. You may have only a slight attack of dyspepsia or indigestion, but without immediate treatment your case is positive to eventually terminate into a chronic case, if not something worse, as rheumatism and many blood diseases and even insanity are directly traceable to a diseased stomach—dyspepsia.

If you are a dyspeptic, don't suffer another day, take Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure, that will cure any case of indigestion or dyspesia. To prove the sincerity of this statement H. B. McCord ss authorized to refund your money if the remedy is not as represented. Thousands of cases have been cured over the United States, and The Stone Drug. Co., of Elkhart, Ind., has such confidence in this remedy they stand ready to refund through the druggist to any purchaser who is not pleased.

Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure is prepared in tablets, and is positively the only true method in treating diseased stomachs. The tablets are pleasing to the taste, contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs, and may be taken by the smallest infant without injury. The first dose will afford relief and before many days' continued use the patient will in this new system of treatment a cure rapidly approaching.

Mr. S. E. Hoisington, a prominent citizen of Auburn, Ind., says: "I suffered for seven years the many distresses of dyspepsia, and owe my cure solely to Dr. Stone's New Dyspepsia Cure."

Sold only by all druggists. The company's guarantee goes with each sale. The Stone Drug Co, Elkhart, Ind,

Let every one put forth an extra effort to hear him.

His Wife Couldn't Cook.

So he decided to apply for a divorce, for he considered he had good grounds therefor. But the Judge, after hearing his complaint, scratched the bald place on the top of his head, looked over his specs at the poor fellow, shifted the quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and said: "You don't need no divorce. You go home and ask your wife to forgive you. On the way home stop at Davenport's and buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; take it according to directions, and if you can't eat anything in less than a week from biled cabbage up, come up to me and I will give you a divorce and alimony both."

"Put on de Rousements."

The homiletic method of the colored preacher is needed today in temperance reform. He said, as to his method: "I fust explains de text. Den I presents de argyments. And den I puts on de rousements." The text as to the woes and crime of intemperance has been explained, until all are familiar with the catalogue. The expediency of doing away with the liquor traffic has been argued from the platform, the pulpit and the press, until further argument seems superfluous What is need now is to "put on de rousements," and awake the slumbering conscience of the church and public sentiment.

Thanks!

We wish to thank the people of Auburn and DeKalb county for the very liberal patronage they have given us so far for the year 1898; especially during the month of October—our sales last week being more than double the amount of the same week last year as well as over $100 better than any week in October '97. Week before last also showed a nice little gain of $85; hence we are highly gratified to know that the people appreciate our efforts to keep just what they want in footwear at prices to suit. We shall aim to merit a continuance of a trade that is so flatteringly satisfactory and ask you one and all to call again. Yours for trade,

WILSON,
The Shoe Man.

Some people complain about the wear of their Shoes, but they are not those who wear those waterproof Dongola Shoes sold by Wilson.

A Far Proposition.

If ladies will go to each shoe store in town and take home a pair of their $2 50 or even $3.00 shoes marked in plain figures and go to Wilson's and ask for a pair of his famous $2.00 shoes. Then if you do not believe that Wilson can and does save you from 50c to $1.00 a yair on such shoes why then its our treat.

Warm Slippers.

We bought a lot of Ladies, Misses and Childrens slippers and notice our seven is before the nine—79c is the price at Wilson's.

Rubber Footwear

is often a source of much annoyance. Buy them at last years prices of Wilson, who keeps more rubbers than any one else hereabouts having sold over 4,000 pairs last year. Wilson has the goods as well as the prices.

Felt and Knit Boots.

The Cheviot Sheep.

This excellent sheep has been too much neglected by breeders on this side of the ocean. While it is thought to be a mountain breed its life is spent only in part on verdant pastures of the Cheviot hills, for it is bred mostly for crossing by the Leicesters in middle and southern English pastures for the London markets. The cross-bred produce are excellent feeders and very popular among the butchers, the mutton being of the first quality and having the flesh marbled with fat, rather than covered with it, and is thus tender and juicy. This sheep, while not the largest, is a heavy animal, making 150 pounds at two years old when well fed on good pasture with a moderate allow-

American Apples in Europe.

The United States Consul at Chemnitz, Germany, advises Americans to ship their apples this year to Germany. If good fruit is chosen, such as will stand a long voyage—the Baldwin apple, for instance—he is confident that the business will prove to be a paying one. Complaint has been made in Germany against American fruit because of the fear of the introduction of the San Jose scale, which is one of the most destructive diseases known to fruit. Investigation has shown that the fear of the Germans has been exaggerated. It is not denied that the San Jose scale is found in some parts of the United States, but diseased fruit is not shipped abroad. Such a course would soon result in destroying the export business. German experts are now in the United States studying our fruit. So far as known they have not advised exclusion. Americans have much to learn about packing fruit, but they are gaining a strong hold in the foreign markets. For the five years preceding 1896 the annual average of shipments of fruit from this country to Germany amounted to over $4,000,000.—Baltimore American.

A Double Barn.

The accompanying illustration shows a plan for a barn with double driveways in which the distinguishing feature is the great amount of loft room. Four gables added to the main roof space give almost another story's capacity to the barn, making it possible to use nearly the whole of the lower floor for stock. With a silo and the root cellar that will be found in the basement it will be possible to carry a large stock on the fodder that can be stored beneath the roofs. There are many conveniences about a double barn, and when one is to be built the form here given will prove an excellent one to follow.—New England Homestead.

Fall-Rolling Winter Grain.

While the roller is a good implement for fining and smoothing the surface soil, it can very rarely be used effectively after winter grain is sown. Almost all farmers agree that if soil is heavy, it will produce better crops of winter grain if the soil is left rough after it is seeded. All the lumps are dissolved by winter freezing, and they furnish the fine, rich dust that is needed to fall upon the roots as they have been lifted up by frost. The only conditions when rolling is helpful to winter grain are when the soil is light, and liable to blow away in winter. In such case the rolling should be done as soon as the grain is sown. It will pack the light soil around the roots, and thus cause the wheat to make enough growth so as to partially protect itself from winter killing, and will lessen the effects of winds in blowing away surface soil.

Onions as Food.

Despite their disagreeable effects as breath perfumers, the common onion is much the most healthful vegetable grown, and all would be healthier if onions cooked in some way were a part of the daily diet. Drinking milk after the onion will to a great extent absorb the odor. Those farmers who grow and use many onions keep their health better than do those who are too dainty to eat this vegetable. In southern Europe raw onions are eaten as part of the daily meal, laying a slice of onion on the bread and then biting through both together. The Spaniards have a very mild onion that is quite commonly eaten thus.

Plowing Frozen Ground.

If there is a thin crust of frozen soil, or even a light fall of snow on the ground when it is fall plowed, it will be none the worse for the soil next spring. The frozen soil holds up the furrow better, even though when turned to the bottom it is soon thawed by the earth's internal heat. The result will be that frost will penetrate to the bottom of the furrow, giving the soil a much finer tilth than would be possible by repeatedly cultivating it.

Choice Bacon.

The secret of producing choice bacon, says the American Swineherd, lies in the feed trough. If any one doubts this, let him put two Poland-China, Berkshire, Chester-White, Duroc, Jersey or any of our recognized breeds of hogs in two different pens, feed one all the corn he can eat until fat, and the other boiled potatoes, milk, barley or wheat ground fine and some pea meal until fat (the old country way). Kill both, put in dry salt for six or seven weeks, then take out and wash, and hang it up in the kitchen or drying house until thoroughly dried; then cut off a good, big chunk and boil it, let it stand till cold; then cut off a few slices, and you will see the corn-fed meat is not so firm, is more oily, and not so many streaks of lean as meat fed on barley, potatoes, milk, etc., and this is all the difference you or any one else can detect.

Cats Around Barns.

The habit which many people have of getting cats and keeping them close by the kitchen fire very soon destroys the hunting instinct and makes the cat good for nothing as a mouser. On the farm especially, the proper place for a cat is at the barn, where it can make itself useful killing the mice or rats that destroy the grain. It is a mistake to suppose that a cat will suffer from cold while thus employed. Exercise will keep the blood circulating, and the cat will be quite as warm if kept dry as it would be dozing by the fire, and breathing the vitiated air that is always found near the floors of dwellings. The cat will usually, if there is a chair or a bed in the room, make that her resting place.

Private Market for Butter.

A farmer who has all the facilities and who knows how to make the best butter ought always to sell it to private customers, who will also take his fresh eggs and other farm products at prices somewhat higher than he can get in the open market. But if he does this he must obligate himself to supply what is needed throughout the year, and that it shall never be below the standard. It is this last condition that prevents farmers from making such bargains. To make the best butter in winter requires care in feeding, and also in handling milk and cream, which too many are unwilling to undertake.

Low Evergreen Branches Dying Out.

Where any of our native foreign evergreens are planted in yards or lawns, complaint is made that their branches die out after the trees acquire a height of ten to fifteen feet. This destroys their symmetry, and to some extent injures their effectiveness as windbreaks. All our evergreens, if left to grow as they will in the forest, will make large trees. What the lawn maker complaints of as a defect is an advantage in the forest tree. If the row of evergreens is used as a windbreak, plant younger evergreens in a row behind the first, and thus keep off the cold winds from houses or other buildings.

Home Made Sausages.

There is no kind of meat food so palatable as a well-made sausage. But the fact that when made it is almost impossible to tell what meat it is composed of prevents many who only eat what they buy from using it. On the farm the well-made, wholesome sausage should be a specialty. It is a common mistake to put in too much fat. Not more than a quarter of the whole should be fat. If some lean and fat of beef, not to exceed one-quarter of the whole, is put in the sausage it will improve it. Much of the excellence of the sausage depends on the flavoring. Too much pepper and spices are found in most sale sausages.

Curing a Kicking Horse.

A kicker is a failure on the farm, if not cured of the habit. They not only injure themselves, but other animals, and sometimes their owner. They may be cured by a swinging iron bar or pipe across the stall door. Drive a staple about five or six feet from floor on each side of stall; tie rope in each and swing bar at ends about a foot from floor, or high enough to strike horse about hocks. He can kick this to his heart's content and not hurt himself, as it will swing out of the way. In a week's time he will not notice anything touching his heels.

Variety of Feed for Stock.

In feeding stock of any kind it is important that it be furnished a variety of food. This is not merely a matter of flavor, for different kinds of food furnish usually different nutrition. A great deal of the success of animals pastured lies in the fact that they are able to select their own rations, and the care they will take to do this indicates that this is a matter of greater importance than it is usually considered.

Clover Smothered by Manure.

Clover is more easily killed by smothering than are any of the grasses. It is never good policy to topdress clover with coarse manure, as wherever a clod of manure falls on a clover plant, the latter will surely be killed if it cannot grow to one side of the clod. But if clover seed is sown on top-dressed land, it will get the full benefit from the manure without injury of any kind.

Inexpensive Kitchen Table.

I just had a table made, and I wonder now how I could ever have done without it. What makes it superior to other tables is its height, which prevents so much stooping. Mine is 3 feet high, 3½ feet long and 2 feet wide. Along the front side are arranged three drawers, each being 2 feet long, 1 foot wide and 1 foot deep. The left drawer I use for flour, the right for meal, and the one between for bran. Have one made by all means, sisters, and you will not complain so much of that miserable backache.—Amanda Brock.

White Custard.

Add to the white of one egg two teaspoonfuls of sugar and a small pinch of salt, and mix thoroughly together. Heat one teacupful of sweet milk, add to the above ingredients, and stir until quite smooth; then strain, if the egg is not entirely dissolved. Pour into custard cups, cover with brown paper, set in a dish of boiling water, and bake in a moderate oven. Test the custard with a silver knife, which will come out quite clean if it is sufficiently cooked. Serve in the cups with cakes or jelly.

Effective Trap for Vermin.

Vermin are prevented from crawling on the perches in bird cages or poultry house by the device shown in the cut. It consists of a receptacle to surround the perch support, with a tight joint at the bottom. Into this receptacle a liquid, such as oil, or water, is poured, which catches the insects as they try to gain access to the perch.

Lemon Crackers.

Take two and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of melted lard one pint sweet milk or water, the whites of three eggs or two whole ones, 5 cents' worth of carbonate of ammonia, six teaspoonfuls lemon essence. Warm the milk and pour over ammonia, which should be well pulverized. Mix dough very stiff and pound with rolling pin ten minutes. Mark in squares and prick with a fork. When cold, break in squares.

Apple Mould.

Cook two pounds of apples, rub them through a sieve and add to them one quarter pound of caster sugar beaten up with the yolks of two eggs, and one-half ounce of gelatine previously soaked in a little water and dissolved over the fire. Mix all together, then add the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth, and turn into a mold rinsed out in cold water. When set, turn out and serve with cream or custard.

Diphtheria.

At the first indication of diphtheria make the room close, then take a tincup and pour into it a quantity of tar and turpentine, equal parts. Then hold the cup over the fire so as to fill the air with fumes. The patient on inhaling the fumes will cough and spit up all the membranous matter, and the diphtheria may pass out. The fumes of the tar and turpentine loosen the matter in the throat, and thus afford relief.

A Home-Made Tooth Powder.

Procure an ounce of precipitated chalk, half an ounce of carbonate of soda, and the same of the sweet-scented orris root, powdered. Dry the different powders, then mix, pound together to remove any possible roughness, and finally pass through a very fine hair sieve. This powder may be used without the slightest hesitation, as it contains nothing that is liable to injure either teeth or gums.

Drink for Invalids.

A refreshing drink for the invalid whose digestion has to be respected is iced toast water. A few slices of stale bread are toasted a delicate brown, then placed in a pitcher and a quart or so of clear, boiling water poured over them. When cool, place on the ice until thoroughly chilled. When ready to serve, pour off in a glass, sweeten a little if desired and add a thin slice of lemon.

Potato Biscuit.

Boil, peel and mash fine one quart of potatoes. Rub them into one quart of sifted flour and one teaspoonful of salt. Work in one teacup of lard, then add enough sweet milk to make a moderately stiff dough. Roll out to a quarter of an inch thick, cut into cakes and bake in a quick oven. Sprinkling sugar over the top is to many palates an improvement.

New Kitchen Utensil.

A new kitchen utensil is an eggspoon intended to lift boiled eggs from the water. It has a long handle, at the base of which is a spring. When this is pressed the rim of the spoon rises and allows the eggs to roll into the dish. The bowl, being made of wire, does not retain the water.

Maryland Biscuit.

When your light bread is ready to knead in loaves, take the same in quantity of dough as you do of pie dough. Mix the two together well, roll, cut out as you would a soda biscuit, put them in a pan, stick them when raised, bake in a quick oven a light brown, and you will pronounce them fine.

All Sorts.

If a man doesn't use his head in his business he is sure to put his foot in it.

Five hundred million pounds of Britain's national debt has been paid off during the last twenty years.

The name Austria is Oesterich, signifying the eastern part of the kingdom. It was applied to the territory of east Germany.

Two Paris policemen the other day arrested a ragged vagabond who was too imbecile to answer any questions. When his clothing was searched his pockets were found to contain $4,000 in bank notes and $170,000 in bonds.

HATS OF LATE MODE.

STYLES IN MILLINERY FOR THE WINTER SEASON.

Women Are Cautioned Against Too Great Economy in Headgear—Better Be Skimpy as to Number of Gowns—Variety of Designs Pictured.

New York correspondence:

LOUD protests from women who did not like the bulky toques offered in the early fall have had but slight effect. At the beginning of the season the small hat seemed to be a thing of the past. Turbans deserved the name and resembled the fat rolls the Turk delights to set upon his head. This condition has changed but little, though at last there appears something a little like the close and jaunty small hat so dear to the heart and satisfactory to the heads of many women. Plainly this concession is begrudged, for these late arrivals are not in great variety. Yet there is good hope of a satisfying choice. Some of the prettiest are made of a rough felt. The brim stands up square, hiding the crown, and right in front, or a little to one side, the brim rises to a saucy point that forms backing for an aigrette, pompon or a little fur head and a bunch of tails. Such hats are suitable for all tailor use, and are even pretty with more elaborate costumes. The one sketched here was brown felt, the pompon was of a bit lighter brown and the aigrette was white.

The hat in greatest demand, naturally, is the one capable of all around usefulness. That is neither very small nor extremely large, and as this season's sizes are almost all moderate, the range of choice is nearly unlimited. But women who strive to make a good showing on a small outlay, and that means ninety-nine per cent of all, should beware of too great economy in headgear. It is much better, on the other hand, to let the wardrobe be slightly skimpy as to gowns.

There is no end of styles to choose from. There are those with wide upstanding brim over which hangs a lot of tips of plumes. The rest of the plumes are bunched back of the brim, and in a high wind all the tips stand straight up, suggesting an ostrich farm in a cyclone. Other great rolls of velvet spread down on a wide brim and shadow the eyes, while a big pompon seems to hold the heavier folds in place. Black, violet and green are fashionable colors. Violet in several shades is especially a favorite. The rembrandt hat, the Napoleon and the flared leghorn shape are all shown. One low crowned silk felt was wrapped about with a great cock's feather boa, and the end of the boa came down at the back and passed about the throat, while at one side of the hat a delicate lace scarf was wired high at one end, the other end falling over the side of the hat to meet the feathers under the chin. Such a hat is romantic in effect, besides being picturesque.

Now that hats are drooping with all the grace of a leghorn, that the hair sweeps low about the temples and ears, and that the throat is built up high or muffled in the fluff of the feather boa, it really seems as if all a girl needs to seem pretty is a pair of lovely eyes. Plume trimming is especially suitable to the romantic hat. The one of this third picture was a low crowned hat of the cavalier variety. Its brim was turned up high at the right side, and on the very edge of this the quills of a pair of enormous plumes were secured under a big bunch of yellow primroses. From here the plumes swept, one each way, around the hat, the tips curling way to the further side. The plumes were gray, the hat itself a shade of yellow just darker than the primroses, so the color effect was as dainty as the lines of the hat were graceful.

The plume trimmed hat is sure to soften the lines of the face. A youthful face becomes almost infantile, and an older face "loses good five years," as the saying is. Be careful about an all-black hat, it is likely to harden the coloring of the skin a little.

The campaign form of walking hat is going through a similar series of modifications to those that have in many cases so effectually disguised the sailor hat. At first it was perfectly plain, but in this form it has grown so common that it is no longer pretty for the exclusive miss. Even the later trimmed campaign hat is now so usual that extreme care must be taken in its selection if it is to make the finish for a well-planned costume. All sorts of elaborate bows are being invented for trimming the walking hat. Among the newest is a bow of many ends, which is made of black satin ribbon that is still edged with a tiny plaid liberty silk puffing. The result is very gay and new. The last of these pictures shows a walking hat thus trimmed. In general, the shape of the walking hat is a little modified from the strict lines of the manly hat worn last season. Anything to get away from the mode of the million is the wish of the exclusives and the reason for this change.

In the season's new tricks with feathers lies a source of danger to purchasers. The coque feathers that are curved prettily are stiffer than they look, and as their curves are often accomplished after plucking, a good many are defective. So if these feathers do not spring back stiffly when partly straightened out with the hand, examine them closely to see if a break is not poorly concealed. The same is true of wings, too, which are often beside feathers that could not possibly have been taken from the wings' first owner. With plumes it should be remembered that those which towered handsomely over last winter's hat may be applied this year, the main point being that the feathers should lie nearly flat upon the brim instead of rising high above it.

HATS THAT ARE NOW CLASSIFIED AS SMALL.

Fashion Notes.

The new silk petticoat which can have any place among the new fashions must be fitted as carefully as the skirt which covers it, made almost as long and quite plain about the hips.

Popular fur trimmings are of sable, mink or marten tails hanging like deep fringe from yokes or square sailor-shaped collars of Lyons velvet overlaid with silk cord and bead appliques.

Red, in the new shade which has a very pinky tinge, is very much the fashion. It is something between a scarlet and a crimson, and cloth gowns in this tint, with plain stitching for trimming, are very swell.

The new vicunas and French camel's-hair goods are very handsome, and thus far some of the smartest tailor gowns have been made of these fabrics. While warm in quality, these goods are remarkably light.

The cloths largely used for fashionable cloaks are Lyons velvets, satin materials, silk seal plush in four different grades, each forty-eight inches wide, and Velours du Nord in six different qualities thirty-two inches wide.

Rhinestone buttons, large and small, appear on many pretty frocks, cut steel ornaments, a large plain crystal button; and there is nothing prettier than the plain crystal button which has no ornamentation. Small crystal buttons are also used.

Alaska sable in the form of a collar with long stole ends and plenty of tails for trimming, is one of the fashionable novelties in fur which is not beyond the price of the average woman. If she can have a muff with frilled ends to match, so much the better.

Cardiac Disease from Laughter.

Laughter in itself cannot very well kill, but it may do harm. Hysterical girls and boys with kindred nervous affections are often given to immoderate laughter, which tends to increase nervous exhaustion. Dr. Feilchenfeld relates an instructive case in which a little girl suffered from very definite cardiac symptoms after immoderate laughter. The patient was 13 years old and had previously been free from any sign of heart disease. After laughing on and off for nearly an hour with some companions, she suddenly felt stabbing pains in the chest and was seized with fits of coughing, followed by cardiac dypnoae, very well marked. Feilchenfeld believes that the cardiac disease directly resulted from immoderate laughter.

Genesis of the Side Saddle.

Some agile brain centuries ago devised the side saddle for a lame princess who could not ride astride as other women did in those charming days. Incidentally, this shows that the modern practice among women of sitting on both sides of the horse is not modern at all. First came the additional pommel, and then, only sixty or seventy years ago, the third pommel. An Englishman who had bet that he could ride a steeplechase on a side saddle found himself compelled, for safety, to add another pommel. Many English women of this day use two saddles, and sit alternately on the right and left sides of the horse.

Fox Hunting in England.

England has about 150 packs of foxhounds, and about 15,000 horses are kept specially for fox hunting.

TENTMATE A BANDIT.

A NEW YORK LAWYER'S THRILLING EXPERIENCE WHILE A ROUGH RIDER.

His Smooth-Faced Chum, Who Talked Like a Woman and Seemed So Friendless as to Excite His Pity, Proved to be a Desperado Who Was Wanted in Kansas for Murder.

A number of the New York boys who enlisted with the rough riders experienced some severe shocks during the first few days that regiment was in camp at Tampa while getting acquainted with their associates in the organization. The New York boys were scattered around the various troops and thrown in with men from the West and Southwest, who were of a type with which they were not familiar. A young New York clubman, who served through the Santiago campaign with Col. Roosevelt told the following story of his first days in the regiment at the University Club the other night, according to the New York Sun.

"I went to Tampa alone, after the regiment had been there for several days, armed with letters which I felt pretty sure, would result in my being taken in. Soldiering was a thing I had never given any thought to before the war broke out, and I was about as green a youth as ever made application at a recruiting station. All of my time had been devoted to the study of law and a struggle to establish myself, and my ill success probably had as much to do with my desire to fight for my country as anything else.

"I had never heard much about the rough riders, but never having been in the West, I had no idea what kind of men formed the nucleus of the regiment, although I had heard there were lots of cowboys and Western bad men in the ranks. The day I struck Tampa I presented my letters to Col. Wood, and the next day I was a trooper. My troop was made up almost entirely of Westerners, and at that time I was the only New Yorker in it. I didn't make friends very rapidly, but my tentmate seemed a decent sort of a fellow, and I was soon on pretty good terms with him. He was a little, smooth-faced fellow, with a firm jaw and a keen eye, and, I should say, about 30 years of age. He was very quiet, but when he did talk it was in a voice as soft as a woman's.

"I made up my mind that he was a good fellow, but rather diffident, and that in order to make our relations more cordial, I must draw him out. I felt rather sorry for him, and for a time made a point of going everywhere with him in order to make him feel more comfortable. He took my overtures in good part and seemed to enjoy my company. About the fourth day it suddenly dawned on me that my bashful little 'bunkie' knew all about me, my name, station in life and all the other things that a friend is supposed to know, while all I knew about him was that his name was Redmond. So I just tackled him one day and told him that, as we might be together for months, I'd like to know who he was and where he came from and whether he had a family. 'You see, Redmond,' I said, 'our homes may be all we'll have to talk about before this war is over, so we might as well know one another.'

"He gave me a queer look, mumbled something about seeing me later, and left the tent. I made up my mind right there that there was some sad secret in his life that he couldn't talk about to so new an acquaintance as myself, and I didn't bother his again. I was so blue myself about being away from my friends and relatives that a great wave of pity for this poor fellow, who seemed so much less able to stand trouble than I, swept over me. The second night after this Redmond put on his coat and said he was going out for a walk. 'Hold on a minute,' I said, 'and I'll go with you.'

"'Oh, I'm not going far,' he said 'you'd better stay. I'll be back in an hour.'

'But I want to go,' I said. 'I'm sick of hanging around the tent.'

"He said no more and we went out together. There were no guards but the provost guards and the men could wander around at will. We went into the town and stopped at a saloon, where Redmond made me gasp by drinking nearly half a tumbler of whiskey without wincing. We went to several other places and had drinks, and finally, at my suggestion, started back for camp. We were passing through a very dark street when Redmond suddenly came to a standstill, and, hauling out his big cavalry revolver, examined it carefully and then turning to me, said: 'You'd better step in that doorway a moment. I'll be right back.'

"I looked up and then noticed, about a hundred yards away, a man coming toward us. He was a well dressed, prosperous-looking man, and as I saw Redmond take a step in his direction it came over me all of a sudden what he intended to do.

"'See here, Redmond,' I called, walking forward and catching him by the shoulder, 'what are you going to do?'

"'Hold him up,' he said in his soft voice. 'Go into a doorway; it won't take a moment.'

"'Not a bit of it,' I said. 'You'll do no such work as that while I'm around.'

"An expression which betrayed the man's real character came over his face and for a second I thought he was going to shoot me. Before he got a chance I continued:

"'Redmond, if you need some money I'll help you out. I've got a little. I won't stand for any such game as this, though.'

"'I can get along until we get a pay day on $5. Can you let me have that much?'

"'Certainly,' I said, and I gave him a bill in a hurry, for the stranger was getting dangerouly near us. He put up his revolver and the stranger passed us, little knowing what a narrow escape he had had.

"Redmond never made the slightest reference to the affair on our way to camp, but when we got into our tent I told him very plainly that I was going to quit him, and I made an exchange with another man the next day. He wasn't the least disturbed by my leaving him, and always greeted me pleasantly when he met me. A week later he came around and gave back my $5. We hadn't had a pay day, and I don't know to this day where he got the money.

"From this incident I guessed that Redmond was an unscrupulous fellow but I never had the raintest conception of what a scoundrel he was. It wasn't until I got to Camp Wikoff that I learned all about Redmond. I came up to that camp from Cuba. He came from Tampa and got there ahead of me. When I got there he was under guard, although he wasn't supposed to know it. He was wanted in Kansas for murdering two women, and the Kansas officers who brought on the warrant told a tale of Redmond's career that was bloodcurdling. In addition to being a murderer he was notorious as a train robber and all-around desperado. A Sergeant was put on guard over him so that he couldn't get away, but one night while the Sergeant was peacefully sleeping Redmond cut out the whole back of the tent and escaped. The next day the detective came on to arrest Redmond, having procured the right from the War Department, but the bird had flown, and I have never heard that he was captured. That was all there was to it, but if you could meet Redmond—by the way, that was merely an alias—you would never believe that he was anything but a mother's darling."

MIRACLE OF BO PEEP'S GRAVE.

The Dire Prophecies of a "Canuck" Fortune Teller.

Every French-Canadian resident of Maine believes that a miracle has been performed over the grave of Paul Beaupre, who died and was buried in the woods above Grindstone Falls four years ago. Beaupre, or Bo Peep, as he was called by his acquaintances, was a fortune teller and peddler of snakeskin charms, who traveled from camp to camp in winter selling his amulets and preying upon the credulity of his countrymen by pretending to reveal future events. Four years ago he was taken ill with pneumonia while staying at a camp on the East Branch and died inside of a week.

Before his death he expressed a wish to have his body taken to Montreal for burial, pronouncing a fearful curse upon those who neglected to obey his last request. Among other catastrophes that were to follow a denial of his wish were the sudden death of the camp foreman, the loss of the year's cut of logs and the burning of the camp. He also said that if he were buried in the woods a living cross would grow up from his grave which should serve as a perpetual warning to all unbelievers.

Beaupre died in November, 1894. His body was sewed up in new blankets and carried to a rocky point above Grindstone, where the bearers placed it under the roots of a great yellow birch tree which had lately been overturned in a gale. When the remains had been duly disposed in the stony opening, one of the men chopped off the fallen tree trunk with an axe, allowing the stump to fly back, thus filling the hole and burying the body under tons of earth.

Two weeks later the camp boss was killed by a falling limb. The following spring the logs were hung up for want of water and while they were lying on the shore waiting for rains a forest fire swept through the woods burning the logs and the camp where the men had worked. This fall a party of Frenchmen who had been hunting deer stopped at Bo Peep's grave and were surprised to find that the yellow birch which covered his remains had sprouted from the stump, sending up three shoots which had interlaced so as to form a cross about ten feet tall. When they saw that the last of the dead man's predictions had been fulfilled, they came out and circulated the story all over eastern Maine, since which time the grave has been visited by scores of French-Canadians, all of whom believe that a miracle has been wrought above the dead.

Robed in White, They Bore Her.

A touching sight was that witnessed in Burlington, N. J., recently, when six young girls clad in spotless white walked slowly through the streets to the cemetery, bearing upon their shoulders a coffin, covered with a pall of flowers. In the coffin rested the body of a young girl, a Sunday school classmate of the bearers. The procession moved through the middle of the street with the ministers who had conducted the funeral service immediately behind the coffin. It was not a long march, and the girls moved steadily with their burden, but there were tears on their faces and on those of the spectators who lined the way. The dead girl was burned to death a few days before while throwing waste paper on a bonfire in her father's yard, and it was one of her last requests that her classmates, of whom she was extremely fond, should carry her to her grave.—New York Tribune.

A Cauterizing Instrument.

A new cautery, termed by its inventor the "aphysocautery," has much to recommend it. There is a cautery in which the platinum that sears the flesh is kept hot by a jet of hydrogen gas, but this requires a small bellows and other appendages to work it. In the aphysocautery the platinum searer is maintained at the proper temperature by means of anesthetic ether. The instrument resembles a pencil or stylographic pen, with the searing platinum at the point and the ether inside the stem. The ether is partly vaporized in a flame to begin with and afterward by the heat of the platinum.—London Globe.

The Work One Does.

A statistician has estimated that an average man of fifty years old has worked 6,500 days, slept 6,000 days, amused himself 400, has walked 120,000 miles, has been ill 5,000 days, has partaken of 36,000 meals, eaten 15,000 pounds of meat and 4,000 pounds of fish, eggs and vegetables and drank 7,000 gallons of fluid.

Half Sick Half Well

Many persons have their good day and their bad day. Others are about half sick all the time. They have headache, backache, and are restless and nervous. Food does not taste good, and the digestion is poor; the skin is dry and sallow and disfigured with pimples or eruptions; sleep brings no rest and work is a burden.

What is the cause of all this? Impure blood.

And the remedy?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It clears out the channels through which poisons are carried from the body. When all impurities are removed from the blood nature takes right hold and completes the cure.

If there is constipation, take Ayer's Pills. They awaken the drowsy action of the liver; they cure biliousness.

Poor Recommendation.

One of the many ways in which a man's carelessness may cause his undoing has lately been discovered by a young man who has a habit of mismating letters and envelopes when sending off his correspondence.

He had secured from an influential friend a letter which recommended him for a clerkship in a wholesale dry-goods establishment. The proprietor was personally known to the writer of the letter, who advised the young man to mail it, with his application for the place, to the merchant who lived in a suburban town, and was seldom to be found in his city office.

The young man wrote his letter, and attended to various other correspondence, and then hastily put his several epistles into their respective envelopes, adding to one what he supposed to be his friend's kind recommendation. Two days later he received the following letter from the merchant:

"In reply to your communication of the 10th, I will say that at present there is no vacancy in my corps of clerks. I return the 'recommendation' to you, only saying that it is not such as I consider especially valuable to a young man."

With a sinking heart, the young man glanced at the fatal enclosure, and read:

Mr. James Robie, Dr.
To Forbes, Hopkins & Co.
3 fancy shirts.....$15 00
½ dozen neckties..... 6 00
$21 00

A Race Against Fire.

The crew of a steamer from Spain discovered in mid-ocean that flames were raging in the hold. For ten days they bravely fought the flames. If men would fight as persistently against disorders of the stomach, there would be fewer premature deaths. The best weapon for such a fight is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

The Hint that Hit.

"Have you noticed," he asked, "that the czar of Russia has proposed to have the Europeans put down their arms?"

"Yes?" she replied; "I hope his proposal will not be regarded with favor over here."

"Why?" he returned in some surprise.

"Oh," she said, "what's the good of having arms if you don't make use of them?"

After a few moments he came out of his dazed condition.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

A man named Gustave Marcelin, a professional beggar, was found dead in his room in the Rue Puy Guillaume, Avignon, in November, 1892. A search led to the discovery of French Government bonds and various securities to the value of $100,000. He left a paper requesting that his savings might be divided equally between the city and the bureau de bienfaisance.

"The directors decided to water the stock and he couldn't stand it."

His Strong Claim.

"Why do you think this candidate is honest, any more than any of the others? What has he done to prove it?"

"Well, he candidly admits that he wants the office for the salary attached to it and not merely for the purpose of sacrificing himself in the interests of the people."

An Old Adage Newly Applied.

Proprietor—I think I'll employ a female bill collector.

Bookkeeper—Very well, sir; but I'd advise you not to do so.

Proprietor—And why not, pray?

Bookkeeper—Because it is said that a woman's work is never dun.

Reason Enough.

Teasing Friend—What makes that new baby at your house cry so much, Tommy?

Tommy (indignantly)—It don't cry so very much; and, anyway, if all your teeth were out and your hair off and your legs so weak you couldn't stand on them I guess you'd feel like crying yourself.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Reputation.

"At last," he said, "I have arranged it so that people will talk about me."

"How?" his friend asked.

Not Up-to-Date.

Author—Well, did you look over my new play?

Manager—Yes; but I'm sorry to say we cannot use it.

Author—Why, I consider it my very best production.

Manager—That's the trouble—it's too good. The dramatic situations are not sufficiently improbable.

An Aimless Part.

Topsy—And so you failed to make a hit in that Cuban war drama?

Marks—Alas! Yes.

Topsy—What role did you assume?

Marks—That of a Spanish gunner.

Her Lost Opportunity.

Marie—I have just been reading of another Red Cross girl who married the soldier she nursed through a fever.

Mildred—Yes, that's become quite common now. Oh, now I wish we would have another war.

A Point of Resemblance.

"I don't see why you should compare that absconding bank cashier to Dewey. There's nothing in common between them."

"Oh, yes, there is. Haven't they both got taking ways?"

Her Spells.

Little Elmer—Sister Sue has sinkin' spells purty often now.

Mr. Spoonleigh—Why, what do you mean?"

Little Elmer—She says whenever any comp'ny comes when you're here she always feels like sinkin' through the floor, and somebody's come the last four times you've been here.

A Bicycle Crank.

Captain—What in blazes is that thing Googan's got on the steering works?

First Mate—He says it's wan o' them cranks makin' a trip' round the world on a wheel.

She Was Thinking of It.

Mrs. Elverson—Oh, Mrs. Downsleigh, I hear that your daughter Mabel is engaged to Fred Waddington.

Mrs. Downsleigh—Yes; they expect to be married some time during the winter. Why, what makes you look so funny? Do you know anything about him?

Mrs. Elverson—Oh, no; nothing much. I was only thinking. Once when he was a boy I heard our minister say he expected him to come to a bad end.

Off Her Mind.

"There's a load off my mind," said the Italian lady, as she deposited the seven bushels of coal that she had picked up along the railroad tracks."

Worried.

"What's the trouble, old man?"

"I'm afraid my mother-in-law won't leave us any of her money."

"Why, you haven't quarreled with her, have you?"

"Not exactly; but she's very touchy on the obesity subject, and when my little boy kept sliding off her lap yesterday she caught me laughing. There has been a revengeful look in her eye ever since."

Stirring Strains.

"Isn't the music thrilling?" said enthusiastic Miss Gaswell to young Mr. Dukane, as knights by the thousand marched by.

"Sole-stirring!" replied the young man.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Two of a Kind.

"Do you know," said the fat man, "that you remind me of the Maria Teresa every time I see you?"

"No," the elevator boy replied; "why should I do that?"

"Because you put in so much of your time going to the bottom."

Relief at Last.

Collector—Look here, I'm getting sick of coming here every week for this bill.

Debtor—I'm very glad to hear it.

His Inference.

Bilger—Yes, I always like the cold weather. I'm never sorry when winter comes.

Anstey—Say, how did you break your wife of the house-plant habit, or is she one of the few that never were addicted to it?

A Winner.

Old Bullion—So, sir, you want to marry my daughter? Wasn't that your name I saw signed to a poem in one of the magazines the other day?

Reginald Ricksley—Yes, sir; I have written a great deal of magazine poetry, but indeed I assure you, sir, I do not depend upon it for a livelihood. I have a regular job as timekeeper in a machine shop."

Old Bullion—Oh, in that case I suppose I ought to let you have her.

A Cautious Girl.

Gladys—I had tickets for the matinee yesterday and invited Laura Willingsley to accompany me to the opera, but she begged to be excused.

Fanny—Whatever in the world made her do that? I should have been delighted at such a chance.

Gladys—She said she wasn't going to be classed as one of the girls who never have invitations to go in the evenings.

Paralysis After Chloroform.

Tasse has recorded two cases personally observed by him, in which paralysis followed chloroform narcosis. He believes that such paralysis arises from several causes: First, from the position in which the patient is lying, whereby pressure is exercised upon a supplying nerve, or as a result of tractions on the arm or leg of a violent nature. Second, the employment of impure chloroform, which seems capable of poisoning the nervous system and producing such paralysis, at the same time developing transient or permanent albuminuria. He also believes that in some rare instances the chloroform renders the patient susceptible to microbic intoxication, with secondary paralysis from this cause.

A LIVING WITNESS.

Mrs. Hoffman Describes How She Wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for Advice, and Is Now Well.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer. I have been sick for months, was troubled with severe pain in both sides of abdomen, sore feeling in lower part of bowels, also suffered with dizziness, headache, and could not sleep. I wrote you a letter describing my case and asking your advice. You replied telling me just what to do. I followed your directions, and cannot praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me. Many thanks to you for your advice. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me, and I will recommend it to my friends.—MRS. FLORENCE R. HOFFMAN, 512 Roland St., Canton, O.

The condition described by Mrs. Hoffman will appeal to many women, yet lots of sick women struggle on with their daily tasks disregarding the urgent warnings until overtaken by actual collapse.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometimes past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

Grandma's Peppermints.

"Misappropriation of money" would be a harsh verdict to render after reading the following story reported in the Boston Herald by a worker among the poor:

There was a certain family in which the worker became interested. Though very poor, their rooms were clean, and they were very fond of one another, especially of the old grandmother, who had not been long in this country. The church people were very desirous of assisting them, as the children always attended Sunday school and were well brought up; so the district visitor was instructed to look out for them.

This she did, seeing that they had a modest allowance of groceries, coal enough to keep them from freezing, and so on. She did not give them money, as that was contrary to her methods except in special cases, but she was going out of town for a week, and so left with the mother fifty cents for emergencies.

This is what they told her they did with it:

"The weather was so fine, and grandma had never seen the shops here. I knew," said the mother, "that they must be dressed handsome for Easter, so I took grandma and the children down town in the electric cars, and let them see all the stores. That cost forty cents down and back, and with the ten cents left I bought grandma some peppermints."

Flattery Did It:

A Mississippi court room anecdote of the olden time is furnished by a correspondent of Law Notes. The court was presided over by a rural justice of the peace.

"I realize," said the counsel for the defense, "that I stand in the presence of a descendant of the grand old Huguenot family that emigrated from France to escape from religious intolerance. Many able jurists have sprung from that family, and embellished the bench and bar of the Union. Their watchwords are honor, truth and justice, and their names are spoken in every home. The law is so plain in this case that 'he who runs may read.' Shall I insult the intelligence of this court by reiterating a proposition so simple? Need I say more?——

"No," interrupted the judge, "'tain't necessary—I'll give you a judgment." Counsel sat down, while the judge with emphasis knocked the ashes from his cob pipe, and counsel for plaintiff began:

"May it please the court——"

"'Squire, what are you fixin' to do?" asked the judge.

"I have the closing argument," was the reply.

"Well, you jes' as well set down; I done got my mind sot on the other side." Judgment for defendant.

How It Happened.

"My dear," said Mrs. Richleigh to her daughter the other evening after young Woodby had departed, "how in the world did your hair become so disarranged?"

"Why, mamma," replied the quick-witted miss, "I guess it must be from shaking my head so much when Mr. Woodby was trying to coax me to say yes."

And the mother suddenly remembered that she had once been a girl herself.

The Cat and the Waiter.

In these days of material progress even the lower animals, so called, are quick to see the value of a labor-saving invention. So we find in the Hartford Courant the following account of a cat's cleverness:

By some accident she was shut into the dining-room while her young kittens were in the basement kitchen. They called and she answered, but nobody came to open the door. Finally, when the kittens' voices became more and more imperative, the cat, as it seems, remembered the dumb-waiter, on which she had often seen things transported back and forth between the dining-room and the kitchen.

With that she climbed upon the shelf, her weight started it downward, and the next minute a member of the family who happened to be in the kitchen saw the wise cat jump out of the waiter and join her hungry progeny.

AN AFFAIR OF THE NATION

It has been said of Americans that they are "a nation of dyspeptics" and it is true, that few are entirely free from disorders of the digestive tract, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Stomach and Bowel trouble, or Constipation.

The treatment of these diseases with cathartic medicines too often aggravates the trouble.

THE LOGICAL TREATMENT

is the use of a remedy that will build up the system, thereby enabling the various organs to act as Nature intended they should. Such a remedy is found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Here is the proof.

In Detroit there are few soldiers more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. His home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was a bookkeeper with the wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, and he says: "I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work. I have tried many treatments and remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few doses I found much relief and after using several boxes I was cured. I know these pills will cure dyspepsia of its worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."—Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

A Fleshy Consumptive

Did you ever see one? Did you ever hear of one?

Most certainly not. Consumption is a disease that invariably causes loss of flesh.

If you are light in weight, even if your cough is only a slight one, you should certainly take

of cod liver oil with hypophosphites. No remedy is such a perfect preventive to consumption. Just the moment your throat begins to weaken and you find you are losing flesh, you should begin to take it.

And no other remedy has cured so many cases of consumption. Unless you are far advanced with this disease, Scott's Emulsion will hold every inducement to you for a perfect cure.

Narrow Escape

[Silver Dawn.]

What came near being a bad accident occurred in the west side of town last Saturday. Mrs. Myrtle, whose husband is a Chicago printer, with her four-year old daughter, has been visiting at the home of Dan Rohm. The little one, while playing with Mr. Rohm's boy, chased a pet cat across a well in the yard, that was partly open. The cat cleared the opening, but the little girl fell in. The well was about twenty feet deep, with five or six feet of water in it. The little one had been taught to swim last summer and when the frantic mother reached the well, was swimming around in the cold water. A pail was quickly lowered and the little one grasped it, but let go after being drawn up a part of the way. The child was then told to hold to the pail, and soon the hired man of Steve George came with a ladder and the child was speedily brought out. Dr. Showalter was called but found no injuries on the little one except a few bumps on the head where it struck the curb in its fall.

The Spanish Way.

(Angola Republican)

Monday evening a couple of students were discussing the pronunciation of Spanish names in one of our stories, when one of them insisted on giving "J" the sound of "H" in every word, as in "San Juan" he pronounced it "San Huan," and "Montejo" "Monteho," and said "Hunta" is perfectly proper. "Oh, it is, is it?" remarked the other student with a sort of sneer. "Then I suppose your name is Hohn instead of John as it was before the war, and I suppose you want me to tell you that the recent wreck was at Hackson's store?" The laugh which followed rather angered the first speaker, so he jumped to his feet and shouted: "I want you to understand that I am a hentlemah! Hump unto me, you hackasses, and I'll show you this is no hoking matter. By the humping Herusalem, you haven't as much sense as a hackrabbit. If you insinuate that I'm a country hake, I'll break your haws, by himiny, I will." And the student walked out, apparently in an angry tension.

Long Lawsuit.

In 1868 Jacob Wine of Pierceton, sold an 80 acre farm to Daniel Shoup for $1,500 in money and some wild land in Wisconsin. The title to the Wisconsin land proved to be defective and Wine never got possession of it. He tried for several years to get a settlement out of Shoup but in vain. It got into court in 1880, and has since worn out several sets of lawyers, some on both sides having died. Shoup died long ago, and the case has continued term ofter term, and from one court to another, and finally into the supreme court. Then it was sent back to the circuit court, and was to be tried in Elkhart county. Later on, it was agreed to take it back to Warsaw in Kosciusko county, where it started. It is now finished, the jury deciding that Wine was entitled to $1000 on the claim due 30 years ago, and interest on this at 6 per cent for 30 years, or $2848 in all. The attorneys get $900 of this by agreement, and Mr. Wine and his son get the rest. Wine is lucky to live to see the end of his suit.

Sets Them Right.

CENTERVILLE, MICH., Nov. 22, 1898:—On the 26th day of March 1898, Mr. Russ A. Loveland and Miss Mina A. VanAuken were duly and legally joined by me in marriage at Centerville, St. Joseph Co. Michigan, in the presence of J. D. Dockstader and D. R. Hazen, both residents of Centerville, Mich. as witnesses. Pastor, First Baptist church, Centerville, Mich.

REV. C. C. MARSHALT.

This is the figure at which Auburn beat Fort Wayne Thursday, in the football game. There was quite a crowd in attendance. It was a lively game, but Auburn always wins just the same.

A Naval Hero

The thrilling incidents on the southern coast of Cuba will make the pages of the future histories of the Spanish warread like a romance. The blind and bloody fighting on the Santiago hills, the gallantry of Hobson and his men, Cervera's despairing dash to almost certain destruction—no more sensational or dramatic events than these could well be imagined. Among the many picturesque incidents connected with the destruction of the Spanish fleet, the heroic work performed by Lieutenant Commander Wainwright will long be remembered. Wainwright was executive officer of the Maine on that tragic night in the harbor of Havana, and he was recently placed in command of Mr. J. P. Morgan's yacht Orsair, converted in to a fighting boat and renamed Gloucester. When Cervera's dreaded torpedo boat destroyers came in sight at Santiago, on July 3, the Gloucester made for them at full speed and whipped them both although the little American boat was at the same time under the concentrated fire of the shore batteries and the guns of the Vizcaya. The culmination of Wainwright's astonishing fearlessness was reached when he actually engaged the big Spanish cruiser, and maintained the action until supported by our men-of-war.

LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER WAINWRIGHT

What Shall We Do.

A serious and dangerous disease prevails in this country, dangerous because so deceptive. It comes on so slowly yet surely that is often firmly seated before we are aware of it.

The name of this disease which may be divided into three distinct stages is, First, Kidney trouble, indicated by pain in the back, rheumatism, lumbago, frequent desire to urinate, often with a burning sensation, the flow of urine being copious or scant with strong odor.

If allowed to advance, this reaches the Second stage, or Bladder trouble, with heavy pain in the abdomen low down between the navel and the water passage, increasing desire to urinate, with scalding sensation in passing, small quantities being passed with difficulty sometimes necessary to draw it with instruments. If uric acid or gravel has formed, it will prove dangerous if neglected.

The Third stage is Bright's Disease.

There is comfort in knowing that Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, has discovered a Remedy famous for its marvelous cures of the most distressing cases and known as Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

It is sold by all druggists.

As a proof of the wonderful virtues of this great discovery, Swamp-Root, a sample bottle and book of valuable information will be sent absolutely free by mail on application to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing kindly mention that you read this liberal offer in the AUBURN COURIER.

Testing the Pipe Line.

The three breaks in the pipe line occurring one week ago at 50 lbs. pressure per square inch, were repaired Monday and Tuesday under the supervision of the city engineer, J. J. VanAuken. Today at 10 a. m. the pressure was again put on and two breaks again occurred. One was on North Main-st., under a pressure of 85 lbs. per square inch, and one at the South end of Jackson-st, under a pressure of 105 lbs., per square inch. A pressure of 105 lbs., will equal the pressure of a stand pipe 242 feet high, and 85 lbs. pressure will equal a stand pipe 196 feet high. The pressure required by the specifications is 150 lbs. per square inch or a pressure equal to a stand pipe 346 feet high. Up to date there have been but 8 breaks out of 3600 joints of pipe. The cost of repairing these is on the company that made the pipes, the Addison Pipe & Steel Co. of Cincinnati. No defective calking has been found, but if there were any, it would fall on the Chase Company. Pipes are guaranteed to stand 150 pounds.

NOTICE OF FINAL SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Fred Groscop deceased to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 16th day of January 1899 and show cause if any, why my Final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 17th day of Nov. 1898.

JUNCTION CITY, WASH., Nov. 18, '98.

EDITOR COURIER:—This pleasant November day finds us busily engaged clearing land, for the wild timbered land is of so vast extent and the cleared areas so small, that I wade into the great forests with my ax to clear, feeling like an ant endeavoring to remove a mountain. But perseverence wins. We have, what will make a beautiful place when cleared. The land is adapted to fruits, grains and vegetables. But dairying leads all other pursuits. The average price of butter is 28 cents per pound for the whole year. Young stock are allowed to run at large all winter, so that no cured feed is necessary except for milk cows. There are many thousands of acres here of good pasture land, that could be bought for a few dollars per acre, but is hard to clear. Grass grows green all winter here, although we are five hundred miles north of DeKalb county. The climate is essentially that of England. It is extremely healthy here at all times of the year. There is absolutely no malaria. In a town of three hundred population, there were no deaths except by accident, in three years.

For the past three months, the salmon have been going up the creeks by the thousands. They ascend the fresh water creeks from the sea, to lay their spawn, and after the young fish are hatched they go down to the sea where they live until grown. Most of the salmon weigh from ten to fifteen pounds, and are very beautiful fish of a silvery color. We catch all we want with a pitch fork. It is fine sport. Men, women and children all take a hand in the catching. Yea, verily this is a prolific country I send my love to the good people of DeKalb.

Yours truly,

JOSEPH A. SHADE.

Successful Bird Dog

Walter Hartman has sold his bird dog. And thereby hangs a tale. No pun intended. Mr. H. is an energetic hunter, and is liable to bring down a goodly number of birds, which makes running to pick them up, pretty tiresome work. He had often seen Geo. Swineford's dog run and bring in the game, while George took a rest and he envied George. So he hunted up a similar dog with a similar way of doing things. The owner of this dog assured the buyer, that this dog had somewhere in his interior, the very mechanism that would enable him to stick out his foot in a mute sort of eloquence, or to run sailing over brush heaps to bring in the slaughtered game. So the dog was bought, and a few days ago, Mr. Hartman and A. C. Robbins bed themselves to the country, making a special point to avoid the "No Hunting" signs. Business soon began on the part of the shooters but not on the part of the dog. He looked calmly on, as much as to say, "I'll see you later." The men scared up their own birds and and shot them, but the dog remained as passive as an Indian cigar sign. Evidently he thought his place in the program had not yet come. So he waited and watched, Bert suggested that the dog was a failure, Walter insisted that dog was all right and only needed a little instruction, which he would now proceed to give. So he picked up a bird he had just shot, and calling the dog to him, had him take it in his mouth. The dog fondled the bird, with evident enjoyment and Walter felt he had won the first point. But while he was showing the dog, the proper way for a retriever to hold his game, gently, yet safely in his jaws, the dog seemed suddenly to have an "idea" and he at once put it into execution. He sprang lightly away, with the bird in his mouth—then stopped. There was a rattling of falling feathers, and a quick disappearance, and the bird was safely resting in his stomach Walter had viewed the affair in amazement, but was recalled to earthly things by a tumultuous, smothered racket behind a corn shook. It was his paralyzed fellow-hunter. Bert lay on his back, fairly smothered with laughter. He had never seen a dog "retrieve" a bird so quickly and thoroughly. The dog also, was happy. But he was altogether too talented. He was learning too fast. So he was sold, and Mr. Hartman is not in the market for any more bird dogs.

Robinson's Gain

[Silver Dawn]

Hon. J. M. Robinson, the democratic candidate for congress, has a majority of 1,440 in the district as he ran ahead of his party ticket as follows:

Allen county,	346;	DeKalb,	321;
Whitley,	82;	LaGrange,	79;
Noble,	130;	Steuben,	130.

For a young man it is a remarkable record.

BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis is very prevalent. It generally begins with a common cold, attended with cough, hoarseness, soreness of the lungs, tightness of the chest and difficulty in breathing. If not cured, it becomes dangerous—thousands die from bronchitis annually. Dr. John W. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best remedy for this disease; it relieves the cough at once, eases expectoration, and cures in a few days.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

Will promptly cure Bronchitis.

Doses are small and pleasant to take. Doctors recommend it. Price 25 cts. At all druggists.

Thursday's Daily.

—Saxby McIntosh, of the Silver Dawn was in town today.

—Ask any druggist for a free Peruna Almanac for the year 1899.

—Antwerp has had a small diphtheria scare, but the disease is dying out.

—Auditor Seiler is fairly at work now and getting the hang of business.

—We see that Jacob Gushwa at Hudson has had an increase of pension from $6 to $10.

—F. E. Davenport went to Toledo today, to arrange for a big stock of holiday goods.

—Each year increases the sale of Ceylon and other East Indian teas in the United States.

—Geo. Brown took his Thanksgiving turkey with his father and mother at Waterloo today.

—John Sheffer, one of our earliest patrons has thanks for favors on this Thanksgiving day.
